GOOD NEWS!

The undersigned have entered into co-partnership in the

TAILORING

Business, for the purpose of better facilitating our business, and would say to our patrons and friends, that we are now ready to attend to the wants of all who may be in need of work, in a style not to be excelled by any "Professor," or "Accomplished Artist" this side of Paris.

Mr. SCHERER is late from Paris, and is as good a workman as the country affords, and he will warrant his work inferior to none.

Mr. JONES is too well known as an accomplished Tailor to need any puff.

Please give us a call and see what we can do, as we will "Give you Fits" every time, and warrant our work "Not to Cut in the Eye." JONES & SCHERER.

Patent Medicines.

ONE DOLLAR
WILL BUY

ONE OF THE BEST PURGATIVE AND LIVER MEDICINES now before the public, namely DR. SANFORD'S INVIGORATOR, or LIVER REMEDY, that acts as a Cathartic easier, milder and more effectual than any other medicine known. It is not only a Cathartic, but a tonic remedy, acting first on the Liver to expel its morbid matter then by the stomach and bowels to carry off that matter. Thus accomplishing two purposes effectually, without any of the unpleasantness experienced in the operations of most Cathartics. It strengthens the system at the same time that it purges it, and when taken daily in moderate doses will strengthen and build it up with unusual rapidity.

DR. SANFORD'S INVIGORATOR is compounded entirely from new articles of medicine, namely Gums.

Some idea of the strength of these gums may be formed when it is known that one bottle of the Invigorator contains as much strength as one hundred doses of Calomel, without any of its deleterious effects.

Though possessing rare medical powers, these gums have been but little known to Physicians and never used in their prescriptions until used in the form of the Invigorator, which met with such unprecedented success as to induce the proprietor to offer it as a family medicine tried and known in its effects. It has rarely ever failed to cure Liver Complaints in their worst forms.

INDIGESTION being caused by a deranged Liver is cured when the Liver is excited to action.

JAUNDICE is caused by an improper action of the Liver, and as a proof that the Invigorator relieves this disease, let any one troubled with Jaundice take the Invigorator regularly one week, and their skin will begin to assume its original color.

COSTIVENESS can be permanently cured by the Invigorator. Take it in small doses on retiring and it assists nature in her operations. By gradually diminishing the dose, the bowels are left in a healthy and active state, and work as regularly as clock work.

SICK HEADACHE is very soon relieved by taking a double dose of the Invigorator, which corrects all acidity and rourness of the stomach.

For an over-loaded stomach it has no equal as it relieves all oppressive or uneasy feeling after eating heartily. For a remedy, wherever generally, all who use it speak in the highest terms.

DR. SANFORD'S INVIGORATOR came to us recommended as a cure for Liver Complaints, and all diseases arising from a Diseased Liver. The testimonials of so many of our Physicians in its favor, induced us to try it, and now conviction is certain that it is one of the greatest blessings ever given to Dyspeptics, for it made a complete cure before the first bottle was taken, and no we can eat anything edible without trouble, while before nothing but the lightest food would digest, and often that gave pain. Now what we want to say to all our readers is, if LIVER COMPLAINTS or DYSPEPSIA trouble you, do not fail to try this the greatest remedy in the world.—State Fact.

We take infinite pleasure in recommending this medicine as a preventative for FEVER and AGUE, CHILL FEVER, and all FEVERS of a BILIOUS TYPE. It operates with certainty, and thousands are willing to testify to its wonderful vertues.

There has never been tried in our family a remedy which has met with such unbounded success in the cure of diseases incident to children as DR. SANFORD'S INVIGORATOR, nor is it alone for diseases of children that we use it, for it acts as a Cathartic so mildly and gently, and seems to revivate the system so thoroughly that we think we are doing a service to all in advising them, when they need medicine, to try this remedy. There are cases that have come under our notice where great benefit has been received in diseases of the Liver, Stomach and Bowels, where all other remedies failed to give relief. It had become so useful in our family that we will not be without it.—Jacksonville, Ala. Republican.

AYER'S
Cathartic Pills
(SUGAR COATED.)
ARE NOW READY
CLEANSE THE BLOOD AND CURE THE SICK
Invalids, Fathers, Mothers, Physicians, Philanthropists, read their Effects, and Judge of the Virtues
FOR THE CURE OF
Headache, Sick Headache, Foul Stomach,
Dr. J. C. Ayer, Sir:—I have been troubled for many years with the worst headache you ever heard of. I have tried your Pills, and they relieve me more than all the doctors and other medicines I ever took. In fact, the fact is none but Ayer's Pills will cure sick headache for me.
Yours with great respect, ED. W. CHERRY,
Chief of Zouaves Cleveland.
Bilious Disorders and Liver Complaint
Dysentery, Relax, and Worms.
Poor Office, Hartland, Lee Co., Miss., Nov. 1, 1856.
Dr. Ayer: Your Pills are the perfection of purgatives. They have done my wife more good than all the doctors and other medicines she had been sick and pining away for months. She was off to be doctored at great expense, but got no better. Your Pills then commenced taking your Pills, and soon began to get well. They cured her by expelling large quantities of worms and bots from her body. They afterwards cured her of a bad case of Dysentery, and of bloody dysentery. One of our children had the dysentery, and a single dose of your Pills was enough to cure it. Many others around us have been cured by your Pills, and have saved many bills, and lost much time, without taking any other medicine. Such a medicine as yours will be appreciated wherever known, and good and honest, will be prized here.
GEO. J. GRIFFIS, Esq.
Indigestion and Impurity of the Blood.
From Rev. J. V. Himes, Pastor of Advent Church, Boston.
Dr. Ayer: I have used your Pills with extraordinary success in my family and among those I am called to visit as a minister in distress. To regulate the organs of digestion, and purify the blood they are the very best remedy I have ever known, and I can confidently recommend them to my friends.
Yours, J. V. HIMES.
Warsaw, Wyoming Co., N. Y., Oct. 30, 1856.
Dear Sir: I am using your Cathartic Pills in my office, and find them an excellent purgative to cleanse the system, and purify the fountains of the blood.
JOHN G. MEACHAM, M. D.
Erysipelas, Scrofula, King's Evil, Tumors, and Salt Rheum.
From a Practicing Merchant of St. Louis, Mo.
Dr. Ayer: Your Pills are the panacea of all the ills that afflict poor humanity. I have been afflicted for years with a scrofulous sore upon my leg, which defied the skill of the most eminent physicians. I have used your Pills, and feel that they have entirely cured me of a disease that has been the bane of my existence for years. My daughter has been severely afflicted with blotches and pimples on her face and neck. After our child was cured, she also used your Pills, and they have cured her.
ASA MORRIS.
Rheumatism, Neuralgia, and Gout.
From the Rev. Dr. Hawkes, of the Methodist Episcopal Church.
Parish House, Savannah, Ga., Jan. 6, 1857.
Honored Sir: I should be ungrateful to the healing skill has brought me if I did not report my case. A cold settled in my limbs and brought on a severe attack of neuralgic pains, which ended in chronic rheumatism. Notwithstanding I had the best of physicians, the disease grew worse and worse, until, by the advice of a prominent agent in Baltimore, Dr. Mackenzie, I tried your Pills. Their effects were slow, but sure. By the time I had used two boxes of your Pills, I felt sensible that they were curing me. I persevered in their use, and the fact is soon I was entirely cured. If they will cure others as they have me, they are worth their weight in gold

The undersigned believes that he need only intimate to this community that he was a partner in the late famous establishment at the old New York store, to ensure him a liberal public tronage; all are aware what a flourishing business was done at that House, while he was a partner in the firm, that is, while he turned the grind-stone, and how that establishment almost disappeared when the motive power was withdrawn. It is not doubted therefore, but that the public will be gratified to know, that the self same power has put in motion a Machine that is now turning out Tables, Bureaus, Bedsteads, Chairs, and all kind of Furniture, with such velosity that will enable him to sell them at prices so low, that will astonish the natives.

Now I would say, to all those who want Cheap Furniture, "come on, now is the time" for I am determined to 'bust' every establishment in town.

THE MASK.

BY ELIZABETH BARRETT BROWNING.

I have a smiling face, she said
I have a jest for all I meet;
I have a garland for my head,
And all its flowers are sweet,
And so you call me gay, she said.

Grief taught to me this smile, she said,
And wrong did teach this jesting bold;
These flowers were plucked from a garden-bed
While a death-chime was tolled—
And what now will you say!—she said.

Behind no prison-grate she said,
Which shuts the sunshine half a mile,
Are captives so uncomforted,
As souls behind a smile.
God's pity let us pray, she said.

I know my face is bright, she said,—
Such brightness, dying suns diffuse!
I bear upon my forehead shed,
The sign of what I lose—
The ending of my day, she said.

If I dared leave this smile, she said,
And take a moan upon my mouth,
And tie a cypress round my head,
And let my tears run smooth,—
It were the happier way, she said.

And since that must not be, she said,
I fain your bitter world would leave.
How calmly, calmly, smile the dead,
Who do not, therefore, grieve!
The yea of heaven is yea, she said.

But in your bitter world, she said
Face-joy's a costly mask to wear,
And bought with pangs long nourished
And rounded to despair.
Grief's earnest makes life's play, she said,

Ye weep for those who weep?—she said—
Ah fools! I bid you pass them by;
Go weep for those whose hearts have bled,
What time their eyes were dry!
Whom sadder can I say?—she said.

Death-bed Advice of the Honorable Simon Smirk.

BY W. C. EATON.

Simon Smirk was on his death-bed.—His son Samuel was standing by his side, and while he was holding his father's hand, his father spoke to him as follows:

'Sammy, I am dying—at the age of fifty-five. I wish you would pay strict attention to my dying advice.'

'Father I will.'

'And I wish you to follow my advice after I am dead.'

'I will father.'

'Sammy, the neighbors and all my friends tell me I haven't an enemy in the world, and I believe I haven't. I want you to understand why I haven't. It is all owing to policy, Sam; policy and nothing shorter. When I was of your age my boy I was as poor as an old broken-down village horse, turned out to die. Age has at last broken me down but I 'aint poor, thank policy! Follow my example and you will become a far richer man than your father, Sammy, and die without an enemy, as I do.'

Samuel Smirk wept as in duty bound. But grief and his handkerchief choked his utterance and so he said nothing.

'It has always been my policy' resumed the dying Smirk, 'to avoid going offence to any one. No matter what people said, or did to me—or any one else—right or wrong—I have always endeavored to forbear and submit, wherever I could; to be calm and cautious on all occasions, and to avoid the exhibition of any sign of resentment. By long experience in this course I have found that by pretending to agree with everybody, and to flatter everybody, skilfully, is a sure eventual guide to universal popularity.'

'But have you never had any difficulty with any one?'

'Not since I was twenty-one' said the dying man gasping for breath. 'Reach me a little water and wet my lips. They are to parched for me to speak plain.—There—there,' he added, as his son obeyed him; 'that will do, and now you shall be initiated into my invariable, invaluable policy.

Be deferential Sam, deferential and control your temper and flatter wherever you can get a chance; have a bow and a smile, and a word, and a shake of the hand for everybody—mark; for everybody—and then you will get along.'

'But I musn't be friendly to villains, must I.'

'Friendly! Hump! Be friendly to nobody; only seem so.

Villians! they compose two-thirds of the community; and they are the most influential. As for the other third, though it is well enough to keep their good opinion, they are only subordinate agents in the building up of a man. But don't get affronted with them. Oh no, Sam, never do that. Never kick a dog unless you are sure he hasn't any owner, then kick away, if you like!"

Though his father was dying, Samuel could not help smiling at this language.

'That's right' said the elder Smirk, 'I like that. Smile again, Sam, smile again. By smiling I have gained many a friend. A smile is a powerful weapon but it must be used with judgment.'

'Do you know, Sam, why I was always such a favorite with the women?'

'No father.'

'I was always careful, in the first place, to feel my way with the women; took care to understand their characters, their sentiments, their particular vanities and hobbies; keeping my own in the background, till I could coincide with theirs. I always took care never to speak disrespectfully of the sex. I never in the presence of a woman, called a woman 'woman' or female. I had but one name—ladies—for all the femenine gender'

'How did you do when they differed and asked your opinion?'

'I would agree with one, and at the same time wink at the other slyly, as much as to say—It's all a humbug what I am saying. If a woman was ugly I would praise her intellect. If she didn't know anything I'd praise her virtue. In this way I seldom missed my mark; for it is very seldom you find a woman that is ugly, immoral and a fool in the bargain. In fact it is hard work to find anybody who hasn't some good point, or who isn't susceptible to flattery in some way or other; and a man must be a fool, who, if determined to flatter and make his flattery acceptable, cant seize hold of some merit, in mind, heart, form or face of the person he wishes to please, and feigning to admire it, make that person friendly.'

'Must I be liberal, or sting?'

'Oh, be liberal—be liberal by all means,' said the dying man with a ghastly smile—'that is—in sentiment. Whenever a generous deed is done, exalt it to the skies. Always praise generous people. Clap your hands for philanthropy and then clap them in your pocket, and keep them there.'

'Suppose a beggar asks alms of me, or I am called on to subscribe to some charitable object?'

'If any person begs, say certainly my poor woman or my man, or my poor child, and then quickly feel in your pockets. You will find no money of course; but you must say with a sigh, and a tear in your eye, if you can scare one up, I am really ashamed to say it, but unfortunately, I haven't a cent about me. If you don't get a God bless you for that I'm mistaken. I never knew it to fail.'

'But a subscription.'

'Read the paper, praise the object, but say that you have just subscribed more than you could afford for another object of a similar nature. If the applicant believes by this, that you are in the charitable line, he will let you off, whereas if refused, out and out, without an explanation, he might abuse you behind your back. I have made myself a great reputation for benevolence merely by refusing to subscribe in this way! This is a queer world Sam.'

Here the old gentleman was seized with a violent fit of coughing, which nearly took him out of this queer world.

'I fear, father, that talking so much will be fatal to you' said Samuel.

'No, no,' resumed his father, 'I'm determined not to die till I get through. As I was saying Sammy, this is a queer old world, and you cant get along in it, without religion.'

'Without what!' exclaimed his son in amazement. He had never heard him mention religion before in his life.

'Without religion. Hire a pew by all means. Talk religion occasionally—you can soon get the hang of it. Profess—and practice when you're obliged to.—But at any rate, profess; it helps a fellow along in business. I got some of my most profitable customers and best friends by professing religion: Pew rent is no object when come to think of that.'

'But if you belong to a Church you will have to defend its doctrines; and religious controversies create enmity, don't they?'

'Sometimes. But whenever I found that I was getting in trouble on account of my religion, I was always careful to yield a point or two, smile in a christian like way and then back out of the scrape. That's the way to do it, Sammy, that's the way to do it.'

'It is the best I suppose, to be some kind of a politician?' inquired his son.

'By all means; but be careful and always be on the strongest side. You can, although rabid as a mad dog in your views, when nobody but your side is present, affect to be very liberal in your sentiments, when you talk with those of an opposite political creed. Mankind love a liberal man, and if you flatter your foes you disarm them.'

'There's a good deal in that' observed Sammy, smilingly, reflecting upon the many instances of its truth.

'That there is,' responded the sick man, nearly exhausted, and his lips as pale as ashes. 'Double dealing, done well, will fix the flints of everybody.—When I lived in Squealbury—a hoggish set there Sam—I was a big gun. I was a general favorite owing to my management—and I had money. They were going to build a Town House. There were two parties, each favored a different site. They sent a committee to ask my opinion. As the parties were about equal in numbers and influence, I hesitated at first, which to favor.'

'And how did you overcome the difficulty?'

'I told the committees that if they would call a meeting of both parties, I would give them my opinion. The meeting was called and I went. 'Smirk! Smirk! Smirk!!' they all cried. I arose, and after complimenting the rowdies generally, the town, its character, and so forth, disclaimed my right, either to the distinguished honor conferred upon me, or to deliver my opinion on the subject.

I was a native of Squealbury and no meddler. I would not express my preference and opinion. I had confidence that the intelligence of the Squealburians would enable them to choose for themselves, and with great affected modesty, I bowed and withdrew, in the midst of cheers from both parties.'

'That was well done father!' said Sam admiringly; 'and was that the reason you was elected to the Legislature?'

'Yes,' said the senior Smirk, faintly, 'I made a hit. My noble mindedness became proverbial. I was compared to Cincinnatus, and General Washington, put up for Representative and elected by both parties. Do as I did Sam, and you'll prosper—Oh!'

'God bless you, my dear father! what's the matter?'

'I'm going Sam! I shall be off in a minute! Call in the minister quick! but remember, policy, Sam, policy!'

And with the unfinished word which had been his guiding star through life upon his lips, the Hon. Simon Smirk expired.

Intelligence of his death was telegraphed all over the Union, and a great many editorial obituaries were written upon him ending with:

"None knew thee but to love thee
None named thee but to praise"

The Way My Mither Did it.

BY MRS. FRANCES D. GAGE.

I stepped into the dining-room, the other day, and found my nice Scotch help arranging the delf (as she calls it) on the shelves of the cupboard, in a fanciful manner. The plates all turned upon their edges against the back, and the saucers bottom up, with each a cup upright, and a spoon inside.

'Why Ann,' I exclaimed, 'don't do so; I don't like it.'

'It's the way my mither did it, in the old country, ma'am, and I think it's so pretty,' she replied, with an earnest, appealing look and the tears starting from her eyes.

'And thy mother taught me to put them up as they were arranged before' said I. 'I think you had better replace them.'

'Just as ye likes,' was her answer, in a subdued and disappointed tone. 'Just as ye likes Everybody likes the ways of a mither, I'm thinking and be-sure you should have your own way in your own house,' And she began to return them to their places with all possible dispatch.

I saw she looked hurt. Old memories were swelling up in her heart; old memories of days gone by, when in her native land, in the simple cottage beside the 'bonnie Byrne,' she had made the most of her 'mither's' scanty table furniture.

She was thinking of the days of her childhood—the merry days, among the heather and the blue bells, upon the brae. Of Robin, who came over the moor, and sat by the 'ingleside,' of a winter evening of the father who played the bag-pipe; and the mother, the good, loving mother, that,

"Wi' her needle and her shears—Gars auld clothes look amaist as weel as new."

And all unconsciously, perchance, had her hands piled up the delf, in fantastic rows. And I had bade her stop. Already I was sorry for the order, so deep and holy a feeling, to my mind, is the love and reverence for a mother.

'Never mind, Ann,' said I: 'never mind, put them up to suit yourself, to-day, and another time I will have them my way.'

'Will I then?' said she turning to me, with a face burning with smiles and thankfulness, while her eyes were swimming in tears "Will I then?. All the day long as I go there, I'll be thinking of my mither, and I'll work all the better for ye, for thinking of her. For she taught me mony a lesson to be true for thosel wrought for. I'ts but a small thing to be sure, but it does my heart good, now and then, to be following her ways. For somehow, I think that she never taught me a wrong thing'

I turned away. There were old memories tugging at my heart-strings, too awakened by this simple incident, which had taught me, in one moment, more of the deep, earnest nature of the girl, than months of the common round of daily duty. Who that had a mother gentle and kind, that does not love, now and then, 'to be following her ways?'

Had I sneered at 'those ways, and touched rudely and roughly that vibrating chord of affection, would Ann have loved me, and gone on with a cheerful willing heart with my work? Would her step have been light, and her song plaintive yet cheerful, through all the day—if I had crushed those upspringing memories of a joyous time, by forbidding her this innocent display of individualism?

Much is written, and much more talked, of the worthlessness of hired girls.—And how shall we remedy evils? is the question everywhere echoing in our ears. Much too, is written and talked, of the tyranny and harshness of employers.

There is wrong on both sides. There are many very worthless girls heartless and unfaithful. Many mistresses of the stamp. But there are those who are are strong, and brave, and true, who, though circumstances compel them to fill a subordinate position, have hearts and minds that would grace any station in life. Who shall measure the value of kindness to them? The sympathetic word in their lonely condition; the smile of encouragement; the yielding now and then, to that earnest feeling of spontanity, that asks an utterance in every true soul. A word a look may bind them to us, and make them fast friends in our hour of need.—Aye lift them up—take their feet from the miry 'slough of despond,' and place them upon the rock of patience and forbearance, and send them onward and upward in the way of duty. A word, and a look, too, may utterly discourage them by tearing away the delicate tendrills of hope and trust, which have been clinging and reaching upward for a higher and better life. And they will fall prostrate trailing all that is beautiful in their natures among the noxious weeds at their feet, with no hand to lift them up, no heart to sympathize with their earnest longing or to support their feeble efforts.

They are lost. Lost to themselves, to goodness and to God, but not to the world around them. For while they grovel, so surely will they drag others down to a level with themselves, and society in generations to come, may feel through its members the wrong done by a word unfitly spoken.

No single class of persons hold the comfort of families so much in their own hands as that called 'servant girls.' If the help in the kitchen is out of tune there is little harmony in the household. A little patient kindness may make all sunshine; a little petulance, haughtiness, pride or contempt may make all storm and darkness.

Strive encouragingly to cultivate the good and root out the evil. Respect their rights as you would have your own respected, remembering that no rights are so sacred as the right to our own thoughts our loves, and our own sweet memories shrined away in our holy of holies—the heart, where no stranger can enter rudely or with the sneer of contempt, and not raise within us antagonism, disgust or dislike. Their sweet and pleasant memories are as dear to them as the cherished of our own—and which, if roughly scoffed aside, simple though they may be, cause them to feel that we are enemies and not friends—spies upon their inner life, and they will be very apt to treat us accordingly. Oh! there are rights higher and holier than those appertaining to dollars and cents. There is a justice which is not weighed by pounds and ounces, or measured by pounds and ounces, or measured by hours and minutes. Thousands may be just, so far as contract goes, living up truly to its very article, yet each and every one be unjust to the true life, unjust to all the better feelings of the soul.

The employer who would abstract a dollar from the pocket of a servant, would deserve and receive the severe rebuke of every honest heart. Yet how many take from those in their employ, without a thought of wrong, that which is more valuable than silver or gold, their hours of leisure and rest, curtail their innocent enjoyment by useless and selfish exactions wound their feelings without a cause, and humble and embarass them with thoughtless impatience; which pierces as deeply and painfully the heart on which it is laid as the like treatment from a superior would their own. Many a servant girl is superior to her mistress, has more true refinement of feeling, more generous impulses more purity of heart, all uncultivated though she may be. It should be the constant effort of those whom fortune has favored, to note every spark of intellect and warm and cheer it into life, that the world may have the benefit of its light and truth. For that which is but a glow-worm speck to-day, may be a brilliant star to-morrow; growing brighter and bolder, as the years roll on, through all the ages of eternity.

An Overwhelming Speech by a Widow.

The Hon George N Briggs, ex Governor of Massachusetts, delivered a temperance address some time since, in the course of which he related the following anecdote with thrilling effect:

Mr. Briggs said this question of the introduction of intoxicating drinks assumed somewhat of a practical form last Spring in a thriving borough in Pennsylvania. The inhabitants had assembled, as was their usual custom, to decide what number, if any, of licenses the town should petition from the county court, from whence they were issued. There was a full attendance One of the most respectable magistrates of the borough presided, and upon the platform were seated, among others, the clergyman of the village, one of his deacons, and the physician.

After the meeting had been called to order, one of the most respectable citizens of the borough rose, and after a short speech moved that the meeting petition for the usual number of licenses. They had better license good men and let them sell. The proposition seemed to meet with almost universal favor. It was an excellent way to get along quietly, and one and then another in their turn expressed their hope that such a course would be adopted.

The president was about to put the question to the meeting, when an object rose in a distant part of the building, and all eyes were instantly turned in that direction. It was an old woman, poorly clad, and whose careworn countenance was the painful index of no light suffering. And yet there was something in the flash of the bright eye that told that she she had once been what she was not. She addressed the president, and said, with his permission, she wished to say a few wards to the meeting She had come because she had heard they were to decide the license question

'You,' said she, 'all know who I am. You once knew me the mistress of one of the best estates in the borough. I once had a husband and five sons; and woman never had a kinder husband—mother never five better or more affectionate sons.—But where are they now? Doctor, I ask where are they now? In yonder burying ground there are six graves filled by that husband and those five sons, and oh! they are all drunkards' graves. Doctor, how came they to be drunkards? You would come and drink, and you told them that temperate drinking would do them good. And you too, Sir,' addressing the clergyman, 'would come and drink with my husband: and my sons thought they might drink with safety, because they saw you drink. Deacon, you sold them the rum which made them drunkards. You have now got my farm and all my property, and you got it all by rum. And now,' she said, 'I have done my errand. I go back to the poor-house, for that is my home. You, reverend Sir, you, Doctor, and you, Deacon, I shall never meet again until I meet you at the bar of God, where you too will meet my ruined and lost husband and those five boys, who, through your means and influence, fill the drunkard graves.' The old woman sat down.—Perfect silence prevailed, until broken by the President, who rose to put the question to the meeting—shall we petition the court to issue licenses to this borough for the ensuing year? and then one unbroken No!'—which made the very walls re-echo with the sound, told the result of the old woman's appeal.

The roads are getting rather muddy.

To our Olden Band.

BY ONE WHO IS FAR AWAY.

Where are ye, loved ones all!
Where are the eyes that were wont to shine
With a lustre out-sparkling Cherruby wine?
Where are the cheeks that were blushing so,
They rivalled the reddening sunset's glow?
Where are the brows, so pure and fair,
And the shining waves of golden hair?
Have they faded neath grief's black pall?

Where are ye, loved ones true?
Where are the hands that were ready and strong
To succor the weary, or crush the wrong?
Where are the hearts, so warm, so true,
The words that distilled like the gentle dew?
Where are the voices of merry play,
That fell on my ear in that halcyon day,
When I wandered, a child, with you?

Where are ye schoolmates kind!
Where is that band of happy girls,
With their faces bright and tangled curls,
Who romped on the green so merrily,
Or sat 'neath the shade of the old oak tree?
Where are the bright-eyed, rosy boys,
Who laughed with glee o'er our girlish toys,
Yet oft in our sports would join?

Where are ye, where are ye, now?
One has lain down to her quiet rest,
Tenderly cradled on Jesus' breast;
Some have spoken the wondrous life-long vow,
And are sober men and matrons now;
Some are toiling, far from their childhood's home,
And are battling bravely the ills that come,
Till the time of the ivy crowned brow.

But wherever our life-barks are driven—
Be the waters calm, or fierce the gale,
Be our way 'mong flowers, or through sorrow's vale,
Or when life, with its transient scenes, has fled,
And we haste to join the gathered dead;
When our spirits fly to the world unknown,—
May we meet in peace at our Father's throne,
And be happy there in Heaven!

EMMA.

The Case Briefly Stated.

The favorite, and th last and only plausible pretext upon which the advocates of the Calhoun fraud in Kansas base their argument, if the allegation that some of the present opponents of that exquisite invention offered to vote at the June election for delegates. We have shown that in nineteen of the thirty-four counties in the territory the people had no chance to vote—a fact which no one denies—and this circumstance was enough to drive hundreds from the polls in those counties where they had a chance. But, on the 4th of last January, enough of the enemies of the Lecompton contrivance did vote for State officers (under a call issued by this very convention) to carry their whole State ticket, Legislature and all.

How has the majority in this case been treated by Calhoun? Simply by rejecting votes sufficient to give the minority the Legislature and the State officers. The object of refusing to make a registry and to take a census in nineteen counties of the thirty-four, in June—all free-State counties—were to give the minority the convention to frame the constitution. This trick succeeded. The object of the Oxford and McGhee frauds in October, when the third Territorial Legislature was chosen, was to give the same minority the Legislature. This trick failed, because Walker and Stanton rejected the returns. The object of making Calhoun the judge of the election returns for the 4th of January, (when State officers and Legislature under the Lecompton fraud, were to be chose,) was to allow him to reject free-State votes in sufficient number to give the minority all those officers and the Legislature. This trick succeeded.

If the people of Kansas trust these desperadoes again, they deserve to be cheated. They have trusted them three times and have been twice betrayed, being only saved from a third betrayal by two pro-slavery men, Walker and Stanton.—Phel. Press.

ESSENTIAL FACTS.—Senator Green, in his report from the committee on Territories in favor of the Lecompton measure states the number of votes registered in Kansas under the act providing for the Lecompton convention at 9,251.—With respect to this registration, Judge Johnson of Kansas,—a democrat, and formerly a judge of the supreme court of the Territory, appointed by President Pierce,—stated some facts at the mass meeting of the Indiana democracy the other day which have not before come under our observation. He said that of the 9,281 names registered but about 4,000 were correct—that the remainder were forged. And this reserve of forged names, he said, was kept to crary elections by changing poll lists as the needs of the Lecompton party might require. Not one third of the free-State men, he averred were registered in Leavenworth county —Det. Free Press.

London, Feb. 5, 1858.

Another reudction has been made in the Bank rate of discount It has lowered from 5 to 4 per cent only a week ago, and has now been put down to 3½.—At that point we may suppose it will remain for some time. The movement was scarcely expected, and consequently its announcement yesterday had a direct effect upon the funds which assumed an appearance of great firmness.

Gold continues to pour in, but some apprehensions are entertained for the Marco Polo, from Australia with nearly $1,500,000, which is about three weeks overdue. She has hitherto been a successful clipper, and the present delay, therefore, is the more serious. Other vessels are due or nearly due with $4,000,000.

The Lecompton Swindle.

There is but one subject at this time, really occupying the attention of the American public, and upon that one there is but little use in our saying a word. The sooner the subject is disposed of, the better it appears to us, will it be for the country, and even for inhabitants of Kansas itself, the mere foot-ball of party, and the victim of a more than Russian despotism.

We must confess however that we look upon the course of the present executive and his advisers with astonishment and disgust. What kind of men must they be who are willing to set themselves up before the eyes of the whole world, as the aiders and abettors, if not in fact the contrivers and investigators, of frauds and crimes against human liberty and right, that are deemed in all civilized countries, only a fit passport to the cells of a penitentiary? And what kind of an executive for a republican government is he, who with equal zeal and aptness is found lending himself to the support of all the enormities of this unscrupulous conspiracy?

We cannot feel otherwise than ashamed and mortified as we are compelled to look upon the sight. We do not fear for the result. We have never doubted for a moment that the right will ultimately triumph, even for defrauded, and insulted Kansas, and that there is in the future, be it sooner or later, a day coming of fearful retribution for the workers of this sceme of iniquity But we deprecate the influence of this degrading spectacle upon the minds of our youth, which all will admit, the true interests of the country require, should be formed to virtue and sound principles.

If there was wisdom in the enactments of a Roman Senate, placing the statutes and effigies of their greatest orators and generals in their Capitol and public halls, in order that their youth in looking upon them might be led to imitate their virtues, and emulate their glory, then would there be equal wisdom in an enactment of our present Congress, requiring that its sessions should be secret, held only under the veil of night, and that the long catalogue of acts, cabals and intrigues of our American President and his Cabinet for the enslavement of Kansas should never be permitted to go forth into the broad light of day to undermine the virtue, or contaminate the morals of our youth.

If such acts must be consummated beneath the broad shield and Aegis of American Liberty, it were better far that it should be in secret, than that a whole nation should be compelled to behold, and to digest, item by item, its disgusting details It were better too that the future legislators of our country were spared this lesson of legislative demoralization and unscrupulous venality.

Never has there been before, until since the commencement of this Kansas fraud and conspiracy, an American Congress that would not have impeached any President, no matter to what party he might have belonged, who should have attempted one tithe of the bribery, and direct official interference, which has been by the present executive brought to bear upon members of Congress, for the support of his Lecompton swindle.

It may be easy now for him to falsify truth and history with regard to Kansas outrages, and Kansas returns, but the day will come when history will defend and verify itself, and in that day such acts of treason as have thus far characterized his administration, towards one of the territories of this Union, will stand forth in the dark catalogue of our national crimes, as only equalled by the infamy of an Aaron Burr, or Benedict Arnold; and in that day to have been called a 'Hartford Convention Federalist' will be esteemed eulogy, when compared with the irradicable disgrace, and badge of utter venality, that will attach to any northern man known to have been a Lecompton Buchananite.

WONT FIGHT.

We have been somewhat amused to see the gusto with which the Detroit Free Press has pitched into the various acts of the last extra session successively, and the indignation which it evinces because none of the partizan presses upon the opposite side, seem disposed to enter themselves for the contest so generously and valiantly offered for their acceptance. It has already taken several issues upon the swamp Land Bill, but as it was passed upon a full and fair compromise of the conflicting interest and wishes of the North and South of Michigan upon that question, no one seems disposed to meddle with its cogitations upon that subject, let them be what they may

It is especially exercised just now with regard to the Tecumseh Bank, lest the Legislature, by some inconsiderate Legislation may have recognized, if not revived, its corporate privileges. We know that in the eyes of the Free Press it is a great wrong, and almost "unconstitutional," for any bank to exist in Michigan outside of Detroit, and what renders the offence the more glaring is the ominous fact, that the Bank of Tecumseh has continued for the year past without interruption to redeem its paper in gold and silver, while all the Detroit Banks have suspended. We hope the people will therefore see the necessity of looking more carefully to their interests in this respect, and not suffer the modesty of the Detroit Press to prevent that city from receiving that share of influence and legislation which justy belongs to it.

General News.

Indianapolis, Feb. 23.

The Anti-Lecompton Convention at the afternoon session was addressed by Hon. H. B. Payne of Ohio, Judge Wickes, Gen. Drake and others. The Indiana attendance was very large. A letter was read in the Convention from H. A. Wise, of Virginia, stating that official duties at the Capitol of Verginia prevented him from being present. The following principal resolutions were adopted.

Resolved that the right of the people to form and regulate their domestic institutions in their own way, should be subject only to the constitution of the United States as guaranteed to Kansas and Nebraska by organic law, address alike to the people of all other Territories of the United States, that the Nebraska act practically applied by Congress is bound to a uniform method of admitting new States into the Union, only upon constitutions which have been ratified at fair elections by the votes of the people for whose Government they are framed. The last resolution adopted by the Convention 8th January, known as popular sovereignty resolution, has been misinterpreted in this State and elsewhere; that the opinion of the Democracy of Indiana, in the plain language of that resolution admits of but one interpretion, namely, that the Democracy of this State re affirm the great doctrine of the Kansas-Nebraska act; that by that doctrine, practically applied, the people of the State or Territory are vested with the right of ratifying or rejecting at the ballot box, any Constitution—the whole of it that may be framed for their government; that after the 8th of January, 1858, whether Kansas or any other Territory; ought not to be admitted into the Union as a State unless the qualified voters thereof have been permitted to exercise such vested right, and a majority have declared in favor of the Constitution accompanying their application for admission; the policy of forcing upon Kansas a Constitution already legally rejected at the ballot box by a large majority of the people for whose government it was framed, is ruinous; that Hon S. A Douglas is entitled to the gratitude and applause of American Democracy for his bold and triumphant vindication of American principles and self-government.

The Democracy of Indiana, in mass convention assembled, hereby do pledge to him firm, undivided support, that the Indiana State Sentinel, by its prevarications and misrepresentations, and inconsistencies, as well as by its betrayal of Democratic faith, and injustice to the members of party, has placed itself outside the Democratic organization of the State, and forfeited the patronage and respect of the party.

The convention recommends a general convention of the North-West, to assemble at Chicago, or some other suitable place.

Another meeting is being held to-night.

Washington, Feb. 16.

The President removed Mr. Price, Postmaster at Chicago, and reappointed Mr. Cook has immediate predecessor.

He has also removed Mr. Miller, Postmaster at Columbus, Ohio, and appointed during the recess of Congress.

Gen. Calhoun to-day placed in possession of the Senate's Committee on Territories his statement relative to the late election. He is preparing an address to the public.

The official statement shows that the whole number of passengers arriving from foreign countries last year, were 261,558, of which 109,000 were females.

All the various propositions, including that to send for persons and papers of the anti-Lecompton members of the House Investagation Committee were last night voted down uniformly by one majority.

They will make further efforts at the meeting to-morrow, though they say with little or no prospect of a thorough investigation of all the Kansas matters embraced in the resolution under which the committee was appointed.

Washington, Feb. 20.

The published statement that Gen. Harney is going to the Pacific to take command of an expedition against the Mormons is erroneous. The War Department has no plans at present, for the conduct of a campaign from the Pacific side; and if it had, it is not likely that Harney would be sent out to supercede his superior officer, Gen. Clarke.

The Administration despairs of getting an additional force for the Utah War, and arrangements are rapidly maturing to send out such reinforcements as can be supplied from the present force.

The 7th Infantry is to be reinforced at once by recruits, and then march from Fort Jefferson to Fort Leavenworth.—Whether they will be ordered thence to Utah, depends upon the President's decision, whether the Mormon rebels or the people of Kansas shall seem most deserving of military subjection.

The President, however, is not blind to the fact that if the present force in Utah should be overwhelmed by the Mormons, he will be held responsible for the catastrophe. He foresees that the country will not accept for appology, the excuse that Congress would not increase the Army, so long as the fact is patent that the Executive keeps a large regular force in Kansas, in the anticipation that the people there may exercise the popular right of revolution against tyranny and oppression.—Correspondent of the New York Times.

From the Boston Post.

Louis Napoleon himself a Member of the secret Society that now seeks his life.

A letter from Paris informs us that it is said some dark hints have been thrown out by Orsini, whose expressions of hope in the ultimate success the of federation to which he belongs are open and undisguised. He declares that the association to which he belongs is no pettifogging Italian conspiracy to overthrow the Mayor of such and such a village, the Governor of such a city—but a grand European bond of brotherhood—to assist each man in claiming his own, in avenging the common wrong, and in the abolishment of all tyrants and their tyrannic rule. To this society we men of '48 belong, all of us Louis Napoleon himself is one of its sworn members—he has violated his oath—he has betrayed us all—he knows the rules of the association—he knew the wording of the oath he took—he knows the penalty he must pay—he knows that he must die!' If such be the truth, and these really be the words of the assassin, much that has seemed strange and mysterious will straightway be accounted for. The Italian section of the secret society, which has ramifications all over the globe, was the one from which the first avenger was to be drawn; and in this section lots will be delivered until the black deed be accomplished.

Such is the account given by the people who profess to know every secret; and from doubtful, it has grown to be considered correct; and is openly talked of as justifying sundry rumors which have gone before, and which had bidden us prepare for the very thing which has just happened.

Ever since the great attempt, the Emperor is seen taking his daily walk in the private garden belonging to the Tuilleries. He leans upon the arm of a strong man, and walks with a thick cane as well. CONGRESSIONAL NEWS.

Washington, March 1.

HOUSE.—Mr. Florence of Pa., presented a memorial from the marine underwriters of Philadelphia, against any alteration of the law establishing the light house system: referred. The House then discused at some length the bill for the re-organization of the Clerks and other employees of the House pending the decision, of which an argument took place. It was decided that the bill should be taken up.

SENATE.—Mr Green, of Mo., gave notice that he should offer a substitute providing for the admission of the States of Minnesota and Kansas, together, hoping thereby to expedite business. He then proceeded to advocate the report of the majority of the Committee, remarking that the leading, controlling facts stated in that document, could not be successfully controverted. An attempt had been made in the minority reports to evade some of them, but they stood unassailed He then passed to a personal explanation, touching the statement in the N. Y. Tribune, in regard to the action of the Committee, which asserted that a majority of the Committe made a positive promise to Messrs. Douglas and Collamer, not to vote till the succeeding Monday, but subsequently violated that agreement; he proceeded to show the falsity of the statement by a detail of the facts in the case,

A discussion of some length ensued between Messrs. Green and Douglas, when the former proceeded. He said he had a substitute for the bill reported by the majority of the committee, which he would offer at the proper time. This substitute provided for the admission of Kansas and Minnesota together, the object being to expedite the business before the Senate, so that other important business might come up for consideration. He then argued the legality of the Kansas constitution, contending that it was republican in form, and that it was the choice of the people. The population of Kansas was sufficient to entitle her to one Representative, and the constitution of the United States prescribes no specific number of inhabitans for the admission of a State. He referred to the unsettled state of the Territory as a powerful and overwhelming reason for admission, as it would restore peace and quietness to the Territory. He had received, to-day, information of a murder committed by parties opposed to the constitution, and that Gen. Whitfield had been driven from the Territory, under threats of assassination This, he said was the reason of the absence of Federal officers in Kansas.—It is useless to cry peace, when there will be none until Kansas comes into the Union.

Mr. Collamer of Vermont followed.—He refered to the Missouri Compromise as having settled the slavery agitation, and it being a fair bargain, he thought it unjust in the South, after receiving her portion of the advantage to repudiate the compact. Who believed, he asked, in 1854, that slavery would exist in Kansas? It was a well settled principle that the power to regulate implied the power to prohibit. Mr. C, quoted instances to show where this power had been ex rised, and referred to a case in Missouri in 1796, as in point. He defended the Emigrant Aid Society, denying that emigrants from the North went to Kansas merely to vote without designing to stay there. He referred to the fraudulent election carried by interlopers from Missouri, and other gross outrages into which the government had never examined.

It is, in truth, the greatest remedy known for Dyspepsia, Jaundice, or general debility that so often baffles the skill of our most eminent physicians.

Dr Sandford has been for a long time one of the eminent physicians of New York, and it is said, most of his cases were treated with the Invigorator with such invariable success that he has been induced to offer it as a family medicine, and let the world have the benifit of his discovery. If those who are troubled with debility, headache, languor, or slow, lingering fever will try a bottle, we think they might save physicians' bills, and days, perhaps years of suffering.

Press Convention.

We should be glad to welcome to our City, on the adjourned day, Wednesday March 24th, every editor in the State. Come let us counsel together. Many of our Editorial friends have never visited our city, and cannot do so at a more favorable time. The day after the convention, the 25th, the annual Medical Commencement occurs, which will be an occasion of much interest. Our friends also, as caterers for the public, ought to visit the University, its library, hall of the arts, museums, observatory, etc.—This is not the 'Ann Arbor College,' as a contemporary recently called it, but a State institution, and if our friends of the Press would visit it they would be better posted concerning its position and the work it is doing. But, this is foreign to our purpose; come to the 'Press Convention,' that's the subject before the house and we move the 'previous question.'—Let all who are in favor of coming COME ALONG.—Ann Arbor Argus.

Pontiac, Jan. 27, 1858.

Dear Sir:—You are hereby requested to give notice through your paper, that there will be an adjourned meeting of the Michigan Press Association at Ann Arbor, on Tuesday, March 23, 1858, at 10 o'clock A. M. The object of the meeting is to perfect the organization of the association.

According to a resolution passed at a meeting of the association, at Jackson, in October last, all editors and publishers in the State, are solicited to become members. You are, therefore, respectfully requested to be present at the adjourned meeting above mentioned, and to become a member of the association.

It is expected that an address will be delivered before the Astociation during the meeting.

This will be a favorable time to visit the University, as the examination of the Medical Class is announced for the 25th of March.

Respectfully,
Z. B. KNIGHT,
Sec'y Michigan Press Association.

SWAMP LANDS.—We learn from the Lansing Republican that there is great eagerness manifested in all quarters to secure farms under the new land, act. Pre-empters and squatters are rushing in by hundreds. Over 7000 acres were entered last week.—Jackson Citizen.

THE WEATHER AT THE SOUTH.—Green peas and new potatoes are abundant in the vicinity of New Orleans. On some plantations the orange trees are putting forth their blossoms, and in others are yielding an abundance of fruit. The Picayune acknowledges the receipt of a mess of ripe strawberries grown in the open air, without the aid of glass. A letter from Florida says: 'Peach trees are in full bloom, and all kinds of trees are out like May. People are very busy gardening.' In Mobile roses and all kinds of flowers are in full bloom.

HONORABLE CONDITIONS.—Many years ago, in what is now a flourishing city in this State, lived a stalwart blacksmith, fond of his pipe and his joke. He was also fond of his blooming daughter, whose many graces and charms had ensnared the affections of a susceptible young printer. The couple, after a season of billing and cooing, 'engaged' themselves, and nothing but the consent of the young lady's 'parient' prevented their union.—To obtain this, an interview was arranged and typo prepared a little speech to astonish and convince the old gentleman, who sat enjoying his favorite pipe, in perfect content. Typo dilated upon the fact of their long friendship, their mutual attachment, their hopes for the future, and like topics, and taking the daughter by the hand, said: 'I now, sir, ask your permission to transplant this lovely flower from its parent bed'—but his 'phecliaks' overcame him, he forgot the remainder of his rhetorical flourish, blushed, stammered, and finally wound up with—'from its parent bed, into my own.' The father relished the discomfiture of the suitor, and after removing his pipe and blowing a cloud, replied: 'Well young man, I don't know as I've any objections, provided you will marry the girl first.'—Granite State Register.

MR. EDITOR.—At a meeting of the Board for the village of Tecumseh on the 8th. inst. the following petition was received and upon motion the village Marshall was directed forthwith to notify the dealers and venders of intoxicating liquors in said village in accordance with the prayer of the petitioners and also that said petition with the names annexed be published in the Tecumseh Herald. F. S. SNELL Clerk. Pro tem

Tecumseh Feb. 8th 1858,

PETITION.

To the President and Members of the Village Board of the village of Tecumseh Lenawee County. Michigan.

The undersigned citizens of the aforesaid village of Tecumseh would respectfully memoralize your honorable body that according to section 1st. of An Act passed by the Legislature of the State of Michigan entitled 'An Act prohibiting the manufacture of intoxicating liquors and the traffic therein." "No person shall be allowed to manufacture or sell at any time, by himself, his clerk, servant or agent directly or indirectly any spirituous or intoxicating liquors, or any mixed liquors a part of which is spirituous or intoxicating, except as heretofore provided." And whereas in section 5 of said Act it is made "the duty of the common council of any City, the village board of any incorporated village &c to commence an action according to law in the name of the people of the State of Michigan against any person guilty of a violation of any of the provisions of this act. &c.

And whereas it is well and publicly known that there are divers persons in this village who are selling and trafficking in intoxicating liquors contrary to law; Your memorialists would therefore respectfully request your honorable body to give notice to all persons in this village who are unlawfully selling or trafficking in spirituous or intoxicationg liquors that they discontinue such unlawful selling or trafficking therein within thirty days from the date of such notice, or they will be dealt with according to law.

Bragg's Arctic Liniment.

This unc omparable Liniment upon which the great mass of afflicted of all lands now rely for relief from the pangs of Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Gout, Erysipelas Cancer, Scrofula, Sprains, Bruises, Burns, Scalds and all cutaneous diseases, is rapidly superceding all similar preparations. The proprietors give for the sincere agreement of sufferers, the following memorandum of a few of the wonderful cures effected by it during the past few months. Certificates from the parties named are in the possession of the proprietors; their length precludes the publication of all but a few.

One Bottle Triumphant.

Mrs. Moffitt, No 345 Morgan Street, St. Louis, having suffered for three years with Rheumatism, and tried many preparations without effect, was cured by one fifty cent bottle of Arctic Liniment.

Out of Purgatory.

Henry Davis, Mound street St. Louis, who says he was "suffering the pangs of purgatory" with neuralgia for months, was cured by three or four applications of the Arctic Liniment.

Pity the Little Children.

A little daughter of Mrs. Lee, residing on Lake St. Chicago was scalded all over by the upsetting of a kittle of boiling water. The Arctic Liniment was applied according to the directions and the fire was instantly extracted, and in a few days the little sufferer was well.

Restored to Beauty.

Mrs George K. Tyler, Canal street, N. Orleans had long suffered from a painful and disfiguring eruption on the face and by the use of one bottle of the Liniment was cured, and restored to her original beauty.

A Horrible Tumor.

Eugene Mallory, Natchez was three years the victim of a horrible tumor on the neck which resisted all remedies until he tried the Arctic Liniment. Three bottles cured him in a few weeks.

Wonderful Cure!

Mrs Bedford, Mobile, was confined to her couch for three years with numb palsy and after being in despair from the failure of all other remidies, was cured by the Arctic Liniment, in a little over a month.

An Explosion.

Memphis, Tenn., Nov., 28th, 1857.

I hereby certify, that having been badly bruised and sealed by the explosion of a Steam Boiler, a friend induced me to try Bragg's Arctic Liniment. The smart was instantly extracted from the scalds, and in a very short time all the pain was gone from the bruises—In two weeks I was well, and able to resume my business.

The Blind see!

Webster City, Iowa, Nov. 9th, 1857.

Dr. A. G. Bragg:—Dear Sir: For more than three years I had been afflicted with inflamed eyes, in an aggravated degree and tried various Physicians, and several nostrums to no effect. I was induced by Dr. Baum to try the Arctic Liniment and in two months was nearly well. My little daughter was afflicted in the same manner for the same time, and during a portion of the time was entirely blind in one eye. I applied your valuable Liniment, and her eyes are perfectly sound. Thus have I with one two-fifty bottle cured my daughter's eyes and my own, besides curing the rheumatism in my back. I would not be without your invaluable remedy in my house. Yours Truly

Wm. RUSSELL.

Webster City, Iowa, Nov., 9th, 1857.

I hereby certify, that I was well acquainted with Wm Russell and with the astonishing cures he mentions, and know his statement to be strickly true.

Good for Animals.

This invaluable Liniment is also equally efficatious in curing the diseases of animals as witness the following certificate; Messrs J & A Arnes, and Lynch, Arnet & Co., keep the two largest livery stables in the west and are generally known throughout the U. S.

St. Louis, Dec 23rd, 1857.

We, the undersigned, having used Dr. Bragg's Arctic Liniment for a number of months, cheerfully testify to its superior efficacy in curing the diseases of horses; so well are we satisfied of the Arctic being the best Liniment made, that we would use no other. We keep and have kept for a number of years, extensive livery stables in this city, and consequently our experience about horses and their diseases is great, and we unhesitatingly say, that the Arctic Liniment is the only one we have ever found ALWAYS EFFECTIVE. We cordially recommend it to all livery stables keepers and others having the care of horses.

Caution.

Many Druggists, having old liniments on hand, will try to sell them to you as the best, but do you positively refuse to purchase them. Ask for "BRAGG'S ARCTIC LINIMENT," and take no other.

Liberal Proposition.

The proprietors agree to furnish each purchaser of a dollar bottle, with a free subscription to the U. S Journal, for one year. This is one of the best N Y illustrated papers. A certificate, entitling the holder to the benefit of this proposition, is enclosed in the wrapper around every dollar bottle. The Arctic Liniment is put up in 25 cent 50 cent and $1 bottles. The 50 cent and $1 bottles contain 50 and 100 per cent more Liniment in proportion to their cost, and are the cheapest. For sale by

DR ROBACK'S BLOOD PURIFIER AND BLOOD PILLS.

DISEASE VANQUISHED.

—BY—

Dr. Roback's Scandinavian Remedies.

AFTER YEARS OF STUDY AND EXPERIMENT Dr. Roback, the eminent Swedish Physician, succeeded in producing a medicine from twenty-three diff rent species of mountain herbs of his native land, which acts directly upon the causes of disease in the blood, and by restoring the corrupted fountain of life, to a condition of health and purity, expels disease from the system, wherever it may be located, or whatever may be its character. Indigestion, nervous complaints, epileptic fits, coughs, consumption in its early stages sore throat, bronchitis, fever and ague asthma, low spirits, sexual incapacity, feminine weakness, prickling of the skin, symptomatic of paralysis, rheumatism neuralgia, tumor, cancer, diabetis, lassitude and debility diarrhœa, and all other disorders of the organs of respiration, the liver, the kidneys, the stomach, the nerves, or the muscular fiber, are unerringly cured by this preparation. It is to the materies morbi or seeds of disease what an alkali is to an acid; it neutralizes them with absolute certainty while at the same time it regulates the secretions, removes obstructions from the bowels, creates appetite, renews bodily vigor and regenerates every animal function. Such is the nature, such are the effects of Dr. Roback's famous Scandinavian Blood Purifier, which, if taken in conjunction with his Scandinavian Blood Pills, will not only obliterate the most painful disease, but prevent their recurrence, and lengthen life beyond the ordinary span.

In the SCANDINAVIAN VEGETABLE BLOOD PILLS Dr. Roback presents the result of twenty years of experience, hard study and experiment as to what a perfect pill should be. No one can doubt their superiority as a tumor on the neck which resisted all remedies until he tried the Scandinavian Blood Purifier. $1 per bottle, or $5 per half-dozen: Scandinavian Blood Pills, 25 cents per box, or five for $1.

Principal Office, Miami Co. Ind. Aug 4, 1857

DR. C. W. ROBACK:—Dear Sir—I have received so much benefit from your scandinavian Blood Purifier and Blood Pills, that I have thought it my duty and it is no less my inclination to give you a plain statement of my case. I was for years afflicted with that bane of all comfort and efficiency in business, dyspepsia. To recapitulate all the so-called remedies which I have used to rid myself of this disease, would indeed make a melancholy catalogue. I also consulted with the best physicians I could hear of. I was induced to try your remedies through the persuasions of a friend, and after using them a few days was greatly benefitted, and in a short time, less than a month, I was entirely and permanently cured. I was also afflicted with the most violent nervous headache, which I suppose was produced by my disordered stomach. For which my dispepsia left me, my headache left with it. I now feel better in every respect than I have for ten years.

Very truly yours,
JOHN S. DEMUTH

From the Rev. Mr. McMULLEN, Pastor of Roberts Chapel:

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct., 5, 1857.

DR. C. W. ROBACK—Dear Sir: I have used your Blood Purifier for a nervous affection, from which I have suffered much at times. While it is pleasant to the taste, it certainly has a happy effect upon the nerves. Please accept my thanks for your kind regards and acts and believe me

Yours, J. W. T McMULLEN.

FROM A WELL-KNOWN STEAMBOAT CLERK.

Louisville, June 4, 1857.

DEAR DOCTOR: Send me half a dozen boxes of your Pills care of H. O. Gard & Co so I can get them next trip. Six weeks ago nothing could have convinced me that a twenty-five cent box of Pills could have relieved my obstinate chronic constipation, with its attending evils. I told you so when I bought them, but I am bound to own that your Pills fill the contract. Why, I have taken as many as six (6) of ——'s and other makers' sometimes without effect and sometimes with too much effect; but I have no trouble with yours—they are just what I want.

CINCINNATI, Friday, Sept. 4, 1857

DR. ROBACK—Dear Sir: Having been afflicted with neuralgia or rheumatism for the past year and a half, and having seen your medicine, called the Scandinavian Blood Purifier, highly recommended by gentlemen with whom I am acquainted, I was induced to try it. Not not before I had used various other medicines. After using two bottles I felt its effect very sensibly, and upon using two more, I found myself perfectly cured. You will allow me, therefore, to congratulate you upon making a discovery in medicine which is proving itself to be a worker of such wonders in the diseases of the human family.

GEORGE S. BENNETT.

INDIANAPOLIS, Wednesday, Sept. 2 1857

DR. C. W. ROBACK. Dear Sir: Having been troubled for several years with extreme debility and weakness so much so that I was unable to attend to my ordinary business at times, and having heard of the wonderful cures that your Scandinavian Blood Purifier and Pills were effecting, I was induced by a friend to try them. I have been using the Purifier for the last twelve months, and find the medicine fully equal to its recommendations. So valuable is Roback's method I cannot now dispense with the use of it at my advanced age of life—seventy-seven years.

I cheerfully give this information for the benefit of those similarly afflicted. MORRIS MORRIS.

Economy in Food.

We have compiled from several sources a table, showing the proportion of solid matter and water contained in some of the principal articles of diet. An equal weight of each article being selected, the proportion of solid matter in 100 parts is as follows, the balance being water:

Wheat	87	Pork	24
Peas	87	Cod	21
Rice	86	Blood	20
Beans	86	Trout	19
Rye	86	Apples	18
Corn	86	Pear	16
Oatmeal	74	Carrots	13
Wheat Bread	51	Beets	13
Mutton	29	Milk	13
Chicken	27	Oysters	13
Lean Beef	26	Cabbage	8
Eggs	27	Turips	7
Veal	25	Water Mellon	5
Potatoes	25	Cucumber	3

It appears from this table that about 75 per cent of our common meats is water. In buying a pound of beef, we get but four ounces of nutritive matter. 'The nutritive matter of wheat,' says Brande's Encyclopedia, 'is chiefly starch and glutten, and in this species of grain the glutten is in much greater relative proportion to the starch, that in barley, oats or rye. In rice there is little else than starch. There can be little doubt that the great value of wheat as an article of food depends upon this excess of glutten, which is a nitrogenous substance, and as not inaptly been termed the vegeto animal principle. In the esculents roots, such as carrots, &c., but especially turnips sugar is the leading nutritive matter.' Peas and beans resemble much in composition the cereal grains, and, indeed afford the most concentrated form of vegetable nourishment. They are also the most economical food that can be purchased, and if properly cooked, are good enough for an epicure. What, for instance, can be more savory than our New England Sunday dish of baked beans? Blessed be the man or woman who invented baked beans! He whose countenance does not beam with joy at the mention of that dish, 'doesn't know beans,'—at least such beans as we know. The roasted 'chick pea' of the East is considered more capable of sustaining life, weight for weight, than any other kind of food, and hence is preferred by travelers across the deserts, as the less bulky and heavy form of diet.

One of the most economical modes of preparing food is a due mixture of the meat and vegetable substances in the form of soup. The French have attained great perfection in this department of cookery, which in this country has never been properly appreciated. A nourishing and savory soup may be made of vegetables alone; but coarse and bony pieces of meat, suitable for this purpose, may be bought very cheap. And here let us give the law of all soups. 'They must be made with cold water, suffered to boil only for a few minutes, and then kept at almost the boiling point—simmering, in fact—for many hourrr. The secret is to make them of cold water, and let them simmer gently for a long time. The theory is this: Hot water sets the albuminious constituents of meat hard, as the white of an egg is set, and prevents the juices from escaping; but cold water softens the fibers, and extracts the albumen and the nourishing juices. But for boiled meat the reverse. The meat should be put into boiling water to set the juices; and then kept under the boiling (which is two hundred and twelve degrees) until quite cooked. To continue it at a boil hardens and spoils it.

Hominy, samp, hulled corn and hasty pudding, are all cheap, wholesome and nutritious kinds of food, worthy the attention alike of both the rich and the poor.

There is a wide field for economy, too, in bread. We make a great mistake in eating so much of the finest flour; and the effects of this mistake are plainly felt both in our health and pockets. Hot bread should never be placed upon the table—it is said to be utterly indigestible, and consequently no nourishment can be derived from it while it may do much mischeif in in the stomach. Fine wheat bread, instead of being the cheif article of the morning, and evening meal, as it is in many families, should be used but sparingly if at all. Bread made of wheat flour, with a mixture of rye or Indian meal, is more wholesome and quite as palatable, if it does not look quite so delicate. Still better, perhaps, is the bread made from unbolten wheat flour, known as Graham bread. Indian cakes are nourishing and are relished by almost everybody. But, after all, no housewife should consider herself a model of the domestic virtues whose ovens do not send forth at least a weekly batch of delicious old fashioned rye and Indian brown bread. The substitution at the morning repast of this for fine white bread, hot cakes, or the vile stuff concocted of flour and saleratus, would make some difference at the end of the year in the bread score, but the gain in the health of the family would be of still greater importance. In an experiment by Magendie, a dog fed exclusively on fine wheaten bread died after forty days; while another dog fed on coarse bread (made with the bran) lived on without any disturbance of his health. We have the authority of Liebig, that 'the seperation of the bran from the flour by bolting is a matter of luxury, and injurious rather than benficial as regards the nutritive power of the bread;' and Youmans, in speaking of fine flour, says, 'we have sacrificed several most important qualities, and gained only whiteness. We trifle with the first conditions of health to gratify a fancy of the eye.'

But, after all, it should be remembered that our nature was made for variety, and that it is not desirable that all should live by the same diet scale, or that individuals should bring themselves into rigid adherance to a certain uniform course of dishes for every day in the week. 'In nature,' says Prof. Youmans, in his 'Handbook of Household Science,' 'we behold inflexible order working out eternal variation; and so in life, methodized habits should give rise to nevercease ing divesities. As respects diet, the materials prepar for us, although marvelously simple in composition and adaptation to our needs are, wonderfully various in form and gustatory properties. We have the widest and freest choice of means to accomplish the same physiological end. Nature thus solicts us to enjoy the bounty of her resouces, which we should wisely do, not tempting the appetite with a parade of culinary enticements, but restricting the dishes at each meal and agreeably varying them at successive times of eating.'

ONE DOLLAR WILL BUY

ONE OF THE BEST PURGATIVE AND LIVER MEDICINES ever before the public, namely DR. SANDFORD'S INVIGORATOR, or LIVER REMEDY, that acts as a Cathartic, Emetic, Sudorific and more effectual than any other medicine known in the world as a Cathartic and to Liver remedy acting first on the Liver to clear its morbid matter then on the stomach and bowels to carry off that matter, thus accomplishing two purposes effectually, without any of the painful feeling experienced in the operations of most cathartics. Its strength on the system at the same time that it purges it and gives it tone taken daily, in moderate doses will build up and invigorate with unusual rapidity. DR SANFORD'S INVIGORATOR is compounded entirely from new articles of medicine, namely

Some idea of the strength of these gums may be formed when it is known that one bottle of the Invigorator contains as much strength as one hundred doses of Calomel, without any of its deleterious effects.

Though possessing rare medical powers, these Gums have been but little known to Physicians and never used in their prescriptions until used in the form of the Invigorator, which met with such unprecedented success as to induce the proprietor to offer it as a family medicine to the world known in its effects. It has rarely ever failed to cure LIVER Complaints in their worst forms.

INDIGESTION being caused by a deranged Liver is cured when the Liver is excited to action.

JAUNDICE is caused by an improper action of the Liver, and as a proof that the Invigorator removes this disease, let any one troubled with Jaundice take the Invigorator regularly one week, and their skin will begin to assume its original color.

COSTIVENESS can be permanently cured by the Invigorator. Take it in small doses on retiring, and it assists nature in her operations. By gradually diminishing the dose, the bowels are left in a healthy and active state, and work as regularly as clock work.

SICK HEADACHE is very soon relieved by taking a double dose of the Invigorator, which corrects all acidity and sourness of the stomach.

For an over-loaded stomach it has no equal, as it relieves all oppressive or uneasy feeling after eating hearthy. For a FAMILY MEDICINE generally, all who use it speak in the highest terms.

DR. SANFORD'S INVIGORATOR come to us recommended as a cure for Liver Complaints, and all diseases arising from a Diseased Liver. The testimonials of so many of our Physicians in its favor, induced us to try it and now conviction is certain that it is one of the greatest blessings ever given to Dyspeptics, for it made a complete cure before the first bottle was taken, and now we can eat anything edible without trouble, while before nothing but the lightest food would digest, and often that gave pain. Now what we want to say to all our readers is, if Liver Complaints or Dyspepsia trouble you, do not fail to try this the greatest remedy in the world.—State Pact.

We take infinite pleasure in recommending this medicine as a preventative for FEVER and AGUE, CHILL FEVER, and all FEVERS of a BILIOUS TYPE. It operates with certainty and thousands are willing to testify to its wonderful virtues.

There has never been tried in our family a remedy which has met with such unbounded success in the cure of diseases incidental to children, as DR. SANFORD'S INVIGORATOR; nor is it alone for diseases of children that we use it; for it acts as a Cathartic so mildly and gently, and seems to operate the system so thoroughly that we think we are doing a service to all in advising them, when they need medicine, to try this remedy. There are cases that have come under our notice where great benefit has been received in diseases of the Liver, Stomach and Bowels, where all other remedies failed to give relief. It had become a household word in our family that we will not be without it.—Jacksonville, Ills. Republican.

AYER'S Cathartic Pills,

(SUGAR COATED,)

CLEANSE THE BLOOD AND CURE THE SICK.

Invalids, Pedlers, Mothers, Physicians, Philanthropists, read their Effects, and judge of their Virtues.

FOR THE CURE OF

Headache, Sick Headache, Foul Stomach,

PITTSBURG, Pa., May 1, 1855.

DR. J. C. AYER, Sir: I have been regularly afflicted with the worst headache any body can have, for years. Your Pills, it seems to me, have freed me of them, they cleanse at once. If I feel a Pill coming on, they relieve me. The fact is worth knowing.

Yours with great respect, ED. W. PEEBLE.

Bilious Disorders

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 1, 1855.

SIR: I have used your Pills in my general hospital practice ever since you made them, and cannot hesitate to say they are the best cathartic we employ. Their regulating action on the liver is quick and decisive, and generally they are an admirable remedy for derangements of that organ. Indeed, I have seldom found a case of bilious disease in which they did not readily yield to them.

Fraternally yours, ALONZO BALL, M. D.,
Physician of the Marine Hospital.

POST OFFICE, HARTLAND, Liv. Co., Mich., Nov. 18, 1855.

DR. AYER: Your Pills are the perfection of medicine. They have done my wife more good than I can tell you. She had been sick and pining away for months. Was laid off to be doctored at great expense, but got no better. She then commenced taking your Pills, which soon cured her, by expelling large quantities of worm (dead) from her body. They afterwards cured her and our two children of bloody dysentery. One of our neighbors had been sick and my wife cured him with two doses of your Pills, while others around us paid from five to twenty dollars doctor bills, and lost much time, without being cured entirely even then. Such a medicine as yours, which is actually good and honest, will be prized here.

GEO. J. GRIFFIN, Postmaster.

Indigestion and Impurity of the Blood

From Rev. J. V. Himes, Pastor of Advent Church, Boston.

DR. AYER: I have used your Pills with extraordinary success in my family and among those I am called to visit in distress. To regulate the organs of digestion and purify the blood they are the very best remedy I have ever known, and I can confidently recommend them as such to my friends. Yours, J. V. HIMES.

WARSAW, WYOMING Co., N. Y., Oct. 24, 1855.

DEAR SIR: I am using your Cathartic Pills in my practice, and find them an excellent purgative to cleanse the system, and purify the fountains of the blood.

From a Forwarding Merchant of St. Louis, Feb. 4, 1856.

DR. AYER: Your Pills are the paragon of all that is great in medicine. They have cured my little daughter of ulcerous sores upon her hands and feet that had proved incurable for years. Her mother has been long grievously afflicted with blotches and pimples on her skin and her hair. After one box of your Pills had cured, she also tried your Pills, and they have cured her. PULASKI HOUSE, SAVANNAH, Ga., Jan. 6, 1856.

HONORED SIR: I should be ungrateful for the benefit of your skill has brought me, if I did not report my case to you. A cold settled in my limbs and brought on excruciating neuralgic pains, which ended in chronic rheumatism. Notwithstanding I had the best of physicians, the disease grew worse and worse, until, by the advice of one of your best agents in Baltimore, Dr. Shackenford, I tried your Pills. Their effects were slow, but sure. By perseverring in the use of them I am now entirely well.

CHESTER CHAMBERS, Baton Rouge, La., 6 Dec., 1854.

DR. AYER: I have been entirely cured by your Pills of Rheumatic Gout—a painful disease that had afflicted me for years. VINCENT GILBERT.

Modern Opera Music on the Piano.

BY AN AGED GROWLER.

List! the piece is about to begin.
Now, observe Miss Mel'linacy come in;
A goddess in flounces, pinched at the waist,
And a look like a statue embellished with paste.
All the keys that can be got at
By the fingers straight are shot at;
Then a soft and gentle tinkle,
One, two, three, four,
Fire, six—run ashore.
Then a stop,
Fingers drop,

Now a rush from top to bottom;
Catch the notes now, while we do! 'em;
Backward, forward, up and down,
Like a monkey or a clown.
Now the close: a gentle strike—
Who did ever hear the like!

Piece commences:
Now begins a merry trill,
Like a cricket in a mill;
Now a short, uneasy motion,
Like a house cat at devotion,
Or a ripple on the ocean.
See the fingers skip about,
Hear the notes as they come out,
How they mingle in the tingle
Of the everlasting jingle,
Like the hail-stones on a shingle,
Or the ding-dong, dangle-dingle
Of a sheep-bell—double, single,
Now they come in wilder gushes;
Up and down the player rushes;
Quick as squirrels, or the thrushes
Darting 'round among the bushes,
Making rattle like the tushes
Of the swine a drinking slushes.
Now the boys begin to clatter,
Like a chorus on a platter,
Or a house-maid stirring batter;
Hear the music that they scatter,
Though 'tis flat and growing flatter;
All is clatter, nought's the matter.
Hark! the strains, for now we're at her;
O'er the music comes a change;
Now we take another range;
Every tone is wild and strange.
Now there comes the lofty tumbling,
Comes the mumbling, fumbling, jumbling,
And the tumbling and the grumbling
Of the thunder, from its slumbering
Just awaking. Now its taking
To the quaking, like fever and ague shaking;
Now it's making such a raking'
Heads are aching—something's breaking.
Goodness! gracious! ain't it wondrous!
Rolling round above and under us,
Like old Vulcan's strokes so thunderous.
Now the rattle of the battle
Deepens deeper, and the cattle
Bellow louder, and the powder
Will be all expended soon.
Such a clanging, whanging, banging—
Slam!—bang!—whang!—
Heavens! how the music rang!
Ah! the harmony so splendid
Is expended, all is ended.
Though I'm frighted, I'm delighted
With this finery, and this foppery,
Of this modern music opera.

Appended Report of the Regents of the University.

[HON. M. A. PATTERSON—in behalf of the Executive and Finance Committee, presented the following supplemental report, which was adopted and ordered to be appended to the reports of the President and Finance Committee, and forwarded with said report to the Superintendent of Public Instruction as the Annual Report of the Regents of the University December 31st, 1857.]

Those of our fellow citizens who were acquainted with the condition of the University on the first of January 1852, will remember that the new Regents who then assumed the management of its affairs, and whose term of office is about to expire, at the very commencement of their duties encountered some perplexing embarrasments, which for a time retarded their efforts to infuse new life and energy into the Institution. They found the University in debt—the entire income for the year anticipated—the warrants dishonored at an empty treasury—one of its most important departments unpopular, and the prominent literary professors who still had charge of their department, smarting under what they and their friends regarded as an insulting public dismissal.

It is with no design of censuring our immediate predecessors that we allude to this state of things. The debt was created in consequence of a laudable desire to enlarge the sphere of usefulness of the Institution, by establishing an important additional department, and it was reasonably anticipated that the increasing income of the University would provide for the increased expenditure. The peculiar organization of the University under the old system, particularly the absence of a permanent executive officer, or President, to watch over and control its internal affairs, more than any other cause, led to the misunderstanding between the former Regents and Professors. Under the existing system we trust a similar misunderstanding will never occur.

One of our first and most important duties was to endeavor to re-establish the financial credit of the institution. Besides the debt of $100,000 originally obtained on the credit of the State, by the issue of University Bonds for that amount, and which was expended in the erection of buildings and adding prepartory schools, called at the time 'Branches of the University,' there was also a domestic debt in the shape of outstanding warrants amounting to $12,761 98. The receipts from the University Interest Fund during the year were but $12,861,50, or $142, 48 less than the domestic debt, leaving the entire support of the University to be provided for, without a dollar of income from the University fund that could be legitimately appropriated to its use during the year. In this state of the finances it was clearly impossible to sustain the University in a reputable manner even for a single term, much less to answer the expectation of the people, or to fulfill the requirements of the constitution by the immediate election of a President, and a thorough re-organization of the University. Whatever others may have expected from the supposed zeal and activity of the new Board recently elected by the people, we were promptly reminded by the importunities of the domestic creditors of the Institution, that without funds a University can no more progress than a railroad, a canal, or any other human enterprise. In this dilemma we were at a loss for a time what to do. To have closed the University, would have been injurious to the reputation of the Institution, and discreditable to the State. To have continued it, in its crippled condition, would have been discreditable to ourselves. The legality of borrowing money on the credit of the University, even for its immediate relief was seriously questioned, as no such power is conveyed by the constitution, or by any act of the Legislature, and it is certainly wise to confine the expenditures of the Institution within its actual income.—We were also reluctant to countenance a precedent that might become a fruitful source of embarassment hereafter. The expedient was finally adopted of changing the form of the outstanding obligations. A consolidated warrant for $10,000 was issued bearing seven per cent. interest, and payable in three years from date. This warrant was placed in the hands of a responsible banker in Detroit, as security, who promptly redeemed the floating University warrants, and thus the treasury of the Institution was relieved, by merely changing the form of the debt, and extending the time of payment, leaving in the meantime most of the income from the University fund to sustain the departments of the University. This income was by no means proportioned to its immediate and urgent necessities, and, on this fact being clearly shown, first to Governor McClelland, and subsequently to Governor Bingham, through their recommendations, and the enlightened policy of the representatives of the people, successive acts of the Legislature were passed relinquishing to the University for a term of years, the annual interest on the University Bonds.

In consequence of the relinquishment of this interest, $700,000 per year, was added to the University interest fund which enabled us to pay the consolidated warrant before it was due, thus saving to the Institution the interest on said warrant or $700,000 per annum.

As soon as the financial condition of the University, and the information in possession of the Board justified the measure, Henry P. Tappan, L. L. D., of New York City was elected President of the University, and by virtue of his office became its principal executive officer, which duty he has steadily performed with honor to himself and profit to the Institution over which he presides. Believing that his views of a proper University education, are liberal, progressive, and adapted to the present age, we have sustained him to the extent of our ability, in all measures for the advancement of the University, and it gives us pleasure to add that we have rarely disagreed with him as to its interests, during the period we have been associated in charge of the Institution.

The prosperity of the University and its adaption to the highest educational wants of the people, can no longer be questioned. The evidence of this, is found in its present freedom from financial embarassment, in the deservedly high reputation it maintains at home and abroad, in its able and efficient corps of Professors and assistant Professors, among whom are as thoroughly qualified educators as can be found in this or any other country, and who aid in attracting to its halls a constantly increasing number of students.

We trust it will not be regarded as improper on this occasion to allude to the fact, that during the period the University has been under our charge, the experiment has been tried, for the first time we believe in the history of any State or nation, whether it is safe to entrust the highest educational interest in the country, to a body of men elected directly by the people. The question has been and may again be seriously asked, whether a Board of Regents elected amid the struggles for party ascendency, and who owe their authority for the time being perhaps, to political preferences, are prepared to act so impartially that their fellow citizens of whatever political party, or religious denomination, shall have no just cause of complaint. The responsibility of being the first to test this important question having devolved upon us, we have not been unmindful of the delicate nature of the duty; and as infallible guides for the management of the Institution, we have constantly kept in view the important consideration, that the University belongs to the whole people of the State—that it was not established for the purpose of promoting the peculiar views of political partisans or religious sects, but that its true mission is, to provide for the people of Michigan an Institution of learning that shall be to them a source of profit, of honor, and pride; so elevated that no other Institution in the country shall excel it, in the means of imparting, in the language of the Statute, "a thorough knowledge of literature, science and the arts"—so impartial, that none need fear the introduction of aristocratic tendencies, or the undue influence of wealth or station, and so moral, that the purest mind need not apprehend the contaminating influence of improper associations within its halls.—This is our idea of a true University for the people, and we believe that an institution whose aim is less than this, will never succeed as a State University.—Conducted on these principles, it will grow with our growth and strengthen with our strength, without a rival in our State, for there will be no cause for rivalry.

The accompanying Reports from the Finance Committee, and from the President of the University, exhibit the state of the finance, and the general condition of the University—number of students, facilities for instruction, &c.

As we are about to close our official duties to this Institution, we are reminded, that of the eight Regents elected six years since, two have died, viz: Lieut. Gov Parsons, and Judge Ely. They were honest intelligent men, unwavering friends of the institution, and prudent councellors at our Board. While we pay this brief tribute to their memory, we also are reminded of the uncertainty of mere human calculations—but if we have aided however imperfectly, in placing one of our admirable Institutions of learning on a foundation somewhat more popular and secure than we found it, the results of our efforts will continue long after we shall have passed from the present field of our labors.

☞ We are informed that another company of young women are soon to visit our village in charge of the Woman's Protective Emigration Society of New York. The object of this Society is to procure homes in the West for a class of young women, who until recently were honest and honored laborers in workshops and stores and have suddenly been cast upon the world homeless and friendless.—This Society have taken the right means to help these poor people, a means at once humane and effectual, it is this:—The labor of these young women, which finds no market in the city is much needed by us at the west, and it is the purpose of the society to promote their emigration here and furnish them with comfortable and happy homes, where their labor can at once be a benefit to themselves and others. This is an enterprise which should receive the co-operation of all, and we feel confident that our citizens will meet the agent of the company upon her arrival here, with their usual promptness and benevolence, and render efficient aid in securing homes to the homeless. Those wishing to procure the services of, and furnish homes to any of these young women can do so by leaving their names with Mrs. David Holmes of this village.—Branch Co. Republican.

QUERY.—Tell me ye winged winds that round my pathway roar, do ye know some quiet spot where hoops are worn no more? Some lone and silent dell some island or some cave, where women can walk three abreast along the village pave? The loud winds hissed kroud my face, and snickering, answered, "nary place."

Flowers are the alphabet of angels wherewith they write on hills and plains mysterious truth.

Quaint old Fuller says: "Let him who expects one class of society to prosper in the highest degree, while the other is in distress, try whether one side of his face can smile while the other is pinched."

History of the Chinese Sugar Cane Seed.

The genuine Chinese Sugar Cane was first introduced into France by Count deMontigny, French Consul at Shanghae, China, as 'the Sugar Cane of the North of China,' by sending a package of seed to the Geographical Society of Paris in 1851. The seed was first confided by the Government to M. Robert, Director of Marine Gardens, at Toulon, an intelligent and careful observer, who planted it but remarkable to say, of the whole package, only one seed germinated.—This produced a large strong cane with six rattoons or suckers from its roots. From this solitary seed are we indebted for all the genuine seed both in Europe and America.

In 1852 the seed thus produced, was entrusted to a careful gardener at Hyeres, for further experiment, who planted it and transferred the crop to Vilmorin, Andrieux, & Co., of Paris. The seed was now in the hands of the intelligent, enterprising and responsible seed man in Europe.

In 1858 the senior partner, Mons. Louis Vilmorin, assumed the supervision, and planted the seed in the Government experimental Gardens. From that time to the present he has particularly devoted a portion of his attention to developing the value of this Sorghum for sugar, Starch, Alchol, Vingar and Dyeing; and the results of his first year's experiments were published in 1854 under the title of 'Researches upon the Sorgho Sucre.'

This publication first opened the eyes of the French People to the great value of this plant.

In 1857 John T. Blois, of Jonesville Michigan, purchased of Messrs Vilmorin, Andrieux, & Co., through his European correspondent, under the ceretificate of M. Vimorin, a portion the seed produced by these experiments.

In 1954 D. J. Browne, agent of the Patent Office, purchased of M. Vilmorin 200 lbs, of seed, which was distributed through the United States, under the name of 'Sugar Millet.'—This is supposed to be the only reliable seed distributed by the office. In '55, Mr. Browne bought several bushels of the seed in France, grown from seed reputed to have been brought by Leonard Wray, from South Africa and supposed to be identical with that obtained in 1854. This seed had in some way become adulterated, so that canes grown from successive ripenings of this seed in 1857 had become nearly tasteless. The demand for seed had become so great in 1857, that the patent office, to supply it, purchased a large amount of Asa Whitney, in Washington, and a considerable amount in France without any critical examination as to its purity.

In addition to the Government distribution in 1857, individuals entered into the business and unscrupulously purchased in France and elsewhere, everything in the shape of sugar cane seed, and in the U. S. From these causes, has resulted the complaints in various parts of the country of inferior quality of the cane.

To exhibit other theories of adulteration, the following extract is made from the Prairie Farmer of Dec. 15th 1857.

'There have been disseminated thro'out the country two kinds of Sorghum, the sweet or true, and the tasteless or false, each resembling each other so nearly in growth, foilage, seed seed-head and general appearance, as generally to deceive the most astute observer, until the cane is actually tasted. The true is the Chinese Sugar Cane or Sorghum Sacharatum, and the false is the Sorghum Vulgare, commonly called Chocolate, Corn, and in some sections Guinea Corn. The Chocolate Corn is a trifle earlier, and grows high erect canes, which are erect because they are light. The sweet Sorghum canes are heavy because they are loaded with sweet, and frequently, for that reason and their high and slender growth, are prostrated by the winds. One plant of the false is sufficient while in bloom to adulterate a whole acre of the true.

In this way: all the sorghums blossom first on the uppermost part of the panicle, and then by degrees follow the panicle to its base, where it ceases. It being a long time in bloom the pollen of the false by the winds and insects, has the first and best opportunity to impregnate the true as it comes into bloom. It can readily be seen, then, how easily a whole field of seed may be adulterated by a few seeds of false, intermixed, without the cultivator having any knowledge of the fact, until a subsequent cultivated crop. I have specimens of the false in my possession which cannot be distinguished from the true seed.

Again this Chocolate Corn has been in the country for years—grown partly for a curiosity and partly for a beverage, and probably much of the genuine has occasionally been adulated by reason of the great inclination of this description of plants to hybridise. Against the unprecedented demand for seed last spring and its scarcity, led the Government to purchase what came in its way for distribution. The Patent Office distributions were in some cases adulterated. Add to this the French history of the Sorghums, showing the prevalence of the common Sorghum in that country derived, as in this country probably from Egypt and the west coast of Africa, where it is known under the general name of Mabaalee or Kaffir Corn, and we can very correctly conclude what must probably be the result of the miscellaneous importations from France last spring, and so generally and unscrupulously desseminated over the country.

It is said to be traditionary with the Pennsylvania Dutch of Southern Ohio, by whom it is often used as a beverage in place of coffee, that the Chocolate or Turkey corn was introduced into this country from Germany by their ancestors; that it was introduced into Germany from Hungary, where it was supposed to grow spontaneously upon the Danube, and that from the circumstance of its growing upon the lower Danube, it was often called Turkey Corn.

I think I have satisfactorily accounted for the complaints, in various parts of the south as well as the north, of the canes occassionally lacking sweetness. How far this has been observed I cannot say. My own experience the past season hes proved it to some extent.

While working up my cane at the mill this fall, I occasionally worked up some small patches for my neighbors who had procured their seed hap hazard and had occasion to notice the frequent difference in the yeild from different piles of cane brought to the mill, showing conclusively the effects of adulteration. One man in an adjoining town bought a package of seed which produced Chocolate Corn without a particle of sweetness in it.

Jonesville, Dec. 1857.

JNO T. BLOIS, ESQ., DEAR SIR:—

In reply to your inquiry in regard to the quality of the Chinese Sugar Cane Seed, I purchased of your last spring's importation. I take pleasure in stating, that I planted a portion of it in my garden, and took every pains with it. Some matured, and some of the seed heads became partially ripe. The freeze of the 19th of Oct., struck it and bent the canes to the ground, before I had time to work it up. I afterward took it to the mill and wrought it into syrup.—There were three and a half gallons of very thick fine Syrup, and the ground on which the canes grew, measured one and one fifth rods, being at the rate of 405 gallons to the acre. It was planted in drills, after the method practiced in France, which takes about one-half as much more seed than when planted in hills.—There can be no doubt that your importation is the genuine unadulterated Chinese Sugar Cane. I wish to say one other thing in regard to your seed, although not in your inquiry. The seed is so plump and well ripened, that every seed germinates. This is a matter of great consequence. Not one fourth of the Sorghum Seed sown ever germinates, owing to immature or imperfect seed. This is the case with Broom Corn, one of the Sorghum family. It is very difficult to procure good germinating seed. I am respectfully yours, WM. M. HAMSON.

It may be remarked in connection, that it takes from half a pound to three pounds of seed to the acre planted in hills four feet apart each way. If the seed is plump and good (first rate,) half a pound is sufficient; otherwise it will take an indefinite amount. This seed is sure to germinate. One hundred seeds were counted out hap hazard last spring, and planted, which produced 100 spears of cane, not one failing. The seed is not only warranted genuine but every seed is warranted to germinate.

The cane juice of 1856 produced one gallon of syrup to four and one third gallons of juice. In 1859, owing to the cold wet season, one gallon of syrup to from 6 to 10 gallons of juice, according to the maturity of the canes. But in ordinary seasons, it may be estimated at one gallon of syrup to five gallons of juice.

The yield per acre varies according to quality of canes, which may be owing to purity of seed, richness of land, and warmth of the season. Where the seed was good, it yielded at the rate of 468 gallons per acre last year; this year as high as 465 gallons—but planted in drills instead of hills—in both cases where 5-7 this only of juice was extracted. But these were extra pieces of cane, and not to be taken as an average. It is thought to be a safer estimate to put the yield from good land, good seed, and an ordinary season, at 300 gallons per acre. In all ordinary seasons, when Indian Corn ripens well, the seed of the Sorghum will ripen and be very abundant.

Experience says that it is as easy to raise Cane as Indian Corn and the canes are as readily worked into syrup as apples into cider, or as maple sap is into molasses. The following is extracted from an article in the Michigan Farmer:

'The expense and trouble of making syrup may be avoided, by some one in every neighborhood erecting a mill and devoting the syrup season to its manufacture. As soon as the seed is ripe, the seed heads should be cut off at the first joint, and the leaves stripped for fodder.

The canes should then stand till the mill is ready to work them up. They will not injure in this condition for many weeks. The canes this season could be worked into syrup for 25cts, per gallon, and in ordinary seasons, for from 15 to 18 cents, or at a good profit at the halves, or if a portable mill, furnace and boiler were owned in a neighborhood, growers might take turns in its use and make their own syrup. Mr. J. S Lovering of Philadelphia, made this season, at the rate of 1231 lbs. sugar and 74 gallons of molasses to the acre, and says that it is as easy to make good sugar from Chinese Sugar Cane as to make a pot of good mush. For nearly all the purposes for which sweetening is used, with the exceptions for tea and coffee, and where refined sugar is indepensable, good sorghum syrup is sufficient, and I am convinced that it must supercede the syrup and molasses of commerce at prime cost of not over 25 or 30 cents per gallon.

From what I have seen the present season, and what I gather from the practical experience of others, I would recommend the following observances:

1st—Select good clean ground with deep soil, plow early, and plant from 15th of May to the 1st of June.

2d—If possible get pure seed, the pedigree of which can be traced through careful hands, otherwise you may have a crop of chocolate corn and no 'sweetening.'

3d—Mark your ground both ways with a sharp pointed marker, so deep that you can cultivate by the marks, before the cane gets up. Do not put on fresh barn-yard manure; hoe, plow and cultivate well.

4th—Be sure, if you are so lucky as to get unadulterated seed to plant it out of the vicinity of all causes of adulteration, such as Egyptian corn, Broom corn, Chocolate corn, Rice corn, or any other Sorghum, if possible at the distance of half a mile, provided you plant on the north-east of any such, as the prevailing south-west winds would be sure to mix it at a much less distance. This precaution is not important to the present crop of canes for saccharine, but only to preserve pure seed for future use. No variety of maize or Indian corn will mix with it, as it belongs to a different family of plants.

5th—Don't cut up your canes when ripe unless the mill is ready to grind them, for, ten chances to one, the canes will ferment and sour, which will ruin the syrup.

COMMENDATION.

From the Jonesville Independent.

We invite the attention of farmers and others to Mr. Blois' notice of the history of the true sugar cane, and his advertisement of the seed imported by him from the French Government Experimental Gardens. This will be a rare chance to supply themselves with the prime article. Our people are all acquainted with Mr. Blois, personally or by reputation, and know his seed will meet the recommendation. By the proceedings of the U. S. Agricultural Society, and other sources, we learn that large quantities of the seed raised in the south, were mixed with Doura corn, that will be thrown on the northern states and sold as pure at any price it will bring, and it is only fit for horse feed. There is no way to detect the cheat as it cannot be distinguished from the true by even good judges. The demand for pure seed will be unlimited and reliable seed scarce. It is estimated by a Member of Congress from Indiana, that not less than 100,000 acres will be planted the ensuing year; in that State. Therefore, secure reliable seed while you have a chance.'

This French Government seed has passed through the most careful hands and is as pure as when first brought from China—probably the most reliable seed in the country. It was thoroughly tested in 1857 in different parts of Michigan and found perfectly pure and the seeds all germinating—in one case yielding at the rate of 652 gallons of syrup to the acre. It is put up in pks. 50ct. and $1, (which will over run the mark at least one half in planting) and warranted genuine and every seed to germinate. Sold by JOHN T. BLOIS, Jonesville, Mich. and TAYLOR & CURTIS, Tecumseh.

Mr. Editor:—Was the 1st and 7th of January a fair index for that month? For February, the 4th and 11th is the index, and there ends a cycle. I can name two days in each month of the year for 19 years that will govern the weather. I can name a day in March, June, September and December that will say thus will and shall the wind prevail. Those laws were formed at the beginning, with an index. Why they have not come to light before now, I know not; but this I know, that bringing them to light is not my work, but the work of invisible power; for no mortal man could arrive at those laws himself; yet I have no evidence of any powers being conferred on me but common with all, except a very singular prediction at my birth (27th of September, 1798.) The author of the prediction gave me the name I now bear which was not the one intended by my honored parents. Why do not the people of this State place me in my proper element on the State Farm, (I am a perfect plowman)—I could give the students useful knowledge—that which has been denied the classic halls of Greece and Rome. I could impart it to them in four lessons—three months to study each lesson. Will you omit it? Forbid it ye sons and daughters who thirst for useful knowledge; forbid it ye farmers and mariners; forbid it ye widows and orphans who mourn for husbands and fathers; forbid it ye who weep at the unheard of sacrifice of lives and property in the loss of the Central America! Some may think I am foolish—I think they are foolish in not noticing these things; yea, I am sure of it if truth be truth.—W. W. RYAN.

ANCIENT PAPER MONEY.—A writer in Hunt's Merchants' Magazine says, that according to Chinese historians, one of the Chinese Emperors issued paper money 119 B. C., called Fay-th tian, or Flying Money, from the ease and rapidity with which it circulated. It consisted of the paper promises of the Government, and went into extensive use, like all paper currency. It was nothing, and issued ad tumbil. When the Empire had been flooded with it, the Government repudiated the whole, and those who had confided in the public fath suffered the consequences.

At a later period, A D. 950, another Emperor conceived the very plausible scheme of receiving from the merchants their gold and silver, to save them the trouble of handling it, and issuing promises to return the same on demand. This currency was denominated Pien-th-tien or convenient money, and very convenient it proved to be—for the Emperor. He got the money and squandered it, but never found it convenient to re-pay them

James, the novelist, has pronounced the equestrian statue of Washington, at Richmond, "not only the finest work of art in the United States, but one as fine as any in the world—one worthy to commemorate a man whose mind was capable of comprehending that duty is superior to glory, patriotism more great than power."

WANTED.—Butter, Potatoes and Wood; a little cash would'nt go bad. If any of our friends conclude to bring us wood, they are requested not to bring Swamp oak, elm or bass-wood.

HEAVEN.

Is there no land in the far off sky,
Where the leaves never fade and the flowers never die,
Where soft winds murmur 'mid fragrant bowers,
In a world that is lovelier far than ours.

Where home may tell of the swift decay
That bears the hope of the heart away,
And the smile that plays on the lip of youth,
Wells up from the fount whose spring is truth.

Where no untold grief in the breast may lie,
To cloud the brow or dim the eye,
No place for the weary spirit pressed
No home of love where the heart may rest!

Lo! o'er my soul in its musings deep
Came a thrill as when winds the harp-strings sweep,
There's a voice of love, in stillness given,
And in accents low it whispered HEAVEN.

LITERARY NOTICES.

Atlantic Monthly.

The March No. of this new and excellent Magazine, is received and welcomed to our exchanges. It is a worthy successor of Putnam, in its palmiests days, and among its contributors numbers some of the best literary talent in the Union—Whittier, Longfellow, Lowell, Holmes, Godwin, Curtis and Emerson are among those enlisted for its support. Published by Phillips, Sampson & Co. Boston, Mass. Terms $3, per annum.

Wellmans' Literary Emporium.

The March No. of this valuable Magazine, edited and published by our indefatigable literary friend J. K. Wellman, at Adrian, Michigan, is duly received. Mr. Wellman, very properly, chooses to rely entirely upon the literary merits of his Magazine for its support, and issues it without ornament or embellishment, but upon good paper and in superior type.—Among the articles of the present number we notice particularly 'The Pleasures of the pen' and 'Circumstantial Evidence.' Address J. K. Wellman, Adrian, Mich Terms $1, per annum. The work is stereotyped and can be procured in bound volumes if desired.

Godey's Lady Book.

Godey's Lady's Book for March has been for some time on our table and should have been noticed before. It is a good number. Embellished by a fine plate engraving, entitled "The Mother's Blessing." It's fashion plates, and work pattern's are always good. The literary matter of this number is excellent. Published monthly by L. A. Godey, Philadelphia. Terms $3,00 per annum. 2 copies $5,00, 12 copies $20,00.

Ladies' Repository.

The March No., of this excellent Magazine is duly received. In contains a fine plate engraving of Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe. The literary articles of the present number are all of a superior character. Of the influence of the magazine we have spoken before spoken in high commendation and do not need to repeat our opinion. Address "Ladies Repository," Cincinnati. Terms $2,00 per annum—Published by Messrs. Swormstedt & Poe. D. W. Clark D. D. Editor.

The Lady's Home Magazine,

The March No., of the Home Magazine is received and is welcome. It is embellishments, pattern and fashion plates are always an attraction. It is well edited by T. S Arthur & Virginia P. Townsend, supported by a fine corps of contributors. Address T. S. Arthur & Co., Philadelphia. Terms $2,00 per annum, 4 copies $5,00. Exchanges of all Magazines should be addressed to the Magazine and not the Editor or publisher otherwise they are subjected to payment of postage.

Washington, March 9.

House.—The House resumed the consideration of Mr. Quitman's bill.

Mr. Faulkner of Virginia, was opposed to sending volunteers to Utah and believed that if they were placed at the disposal of the Executive, he would not find occasion to use them he thought the proposition for the employment of volunteers dictated by outside pressure rather than a conviction of sound policy.

Senate.—Mr. Mason of Virginia, moved for the further consideration of the bill for the relief of Commodore Jones. A discussion ensued.

Washington, March 4.

Senate.—The Senate at once took up the special order, the Kansas bill.

Mr. Hammond, of South Carolina, contended that the Lecompton constitution embodied the will of the people of Kansas; for the Convention was the assemblage of the people in their highest capacity. He said that he understood the Senator from Illinois to have disclosed that he was opposed to the Lecompton constitution only on one point namely: the will of the people of Kansas.

Mr Douglas replied that that was not exactly his position. He thought there were other irregularities, but would waive this if he could be assured that the constitution embodied the will of the people of Kansas.

Mr Hammond said he had understood that Mr. Douglas maintained that all the other irregularities, could be cured by Congress, that that was the sole ground of difference between them; but the question is, how can the will of the people of Kansas be ascertained.

Political Influences.

No young man of sincere purposes and worthy aspirations probably ever yet advanced far upon his political career without a feeling of discouragement and disappointment, at what has seemed to him, the faithlessness and venality of political intrigue and management.

He cannot live long in the world without finding out, that men are always profuse in their profession of the right, but that when it comes to the issue, they are exceedingly cautious about making too great sacrifices for principles, no matter how vociferously they may have heretofore avowed them Now he who should thence conclude that they were at the first insincere, and corrupt in that avowal would do injustice to their true and better motives.

It is not, that they did not at the time, at least, a great majority of them, believe in and adopt the nobler and truer principles then avowed, and so earnestly insisted upon, nor yet that they are now fairly convinced to the contrary, that they are now found in so direct opposition to their former course and principles, but that with the innate infirmity of human nature, principle is made to yield to interest, whether real or supposed.—"When it is prosperous to be just," the better impulses of our human nature are more than sufficiently out-spoken and free, but when it brings only loss, then it is only the martyr spirit that will abide the sacrifice, and let us say what we will, it is and always has been more than evident that the world is not made up of those who are ever ready to offer themselves in sacrifice for the right.

Men may be as severe as they choose, and they cannot be too severe, in their mistrust and condemnation of those sudden political conversions, which take place only that 'thrift may follow fawning' and yet, submit these very men to the same influences and temptations, and, every three out of five of them, at least, would be found falling into the very same inconsistency and dereliction.

No one of course could defend this upon principle, nor ought to,—and yet we should not be so wholly disheartened and disappointed as we are at first inclined to, that it should be found to exist. The perfectability of human nature, is beautiful in theory, but in fact hardly examples enough can be found, to illustrate what that theory means.

Therefore it is that any system of political faith, or theory of practical government founded only upon abstract right, is, and always must be doomed to perpetual defeat and disappointment.—And yet the nearer we come to this the purer and more perfect any government is, and always must be. Let it not be supposed that we would oppose that theory of government; nor yet of any political equality of right. On the contrary such a government and party will always challenge the admiration of the world, but to suppose that the majority of men will therefore, and upon principle, be found, regardless of other and more sinister interests and influences, to adhere unflinchingly to its support, is simply to reverse the entire experience of all human governments, and the earthward proneness of human nature.

The more practical wisdom of political action, is to rely upon the employment of human nature as it is, using skillfully the material of human society within our reach and carefully calculating all the adverse influences that may be found diverting it from the true theory, and the strength of conscious right, alone, as a sufficient guarranty of certain success. Not once alone, but again and again must prosperous error be assaulted, and all its subterfuges of lies exposed; till men from very shame-facedness, shall no longer be found willing to lend it their support. We should not too readily conclude, because that member once, or more that once found untrue to principle, that they are therefore wholly void of moral purpose, nor unsusceptible of moral influences, nor yet because they are for once or more than once found allied with the right, that they may not just as easily be swayed into the wrong. No one is perfectly allied to either, but something to reprove with something to admire exists in each.

There must be practicability as well as theory in every scheme of success. Human nature as it is, must be the essential means employed for carrying out every plan of human amelioration, just as much as of personal gain. No matter that the advocates and promoters of it are to be wholly unbenefited by its success, that it looks only to the benefit of the community at large, still men must be approached in same way, and won to it by the same practical means, reaching for the most part their more earthy are selfish sense of profit or convenience, as upon the introduction of a Patent right, or the organization of a Rail Road Company. Abstract principle and right above and beyond this, they will consent to admire, but nothing more. For its attainment they will, if upon these grounds alone, make no effort, in its behalf no sacrifice. Such is human nature. You may admire or accept it as you choose. But such is always has been, and such it is, and as such you must consent to use it, if at all. The reformer declaims against it and is discouraged,—the politican ignores it, and is defeated, but the wise man understands, and places himself within its capacities, and meeting its condition, accomplishes his purposes of benificence and good.

American Literature.

In the United States, we have not as yet, a distinct class of persons who devote themselves to literature as a vocation. We have not, even in our largest cities those literary fraternities which gathered about the theatres of London in the days of Elizabeth and of the Georges. We never witnessed a Goldsmith starving in a garret and driving his quil simply to support life or an Addison or a Steel devoting their whole time and energies to the acquisition of literary fame.

Those among us who have acquired a literary reputation, have been, with a few exceptions, men trained to some active profession, and to whom literary composition was an accident or an episode. The spirit of society is, of necessity, commercial, in a country like ours, where every thing around beckons us to a life of action and enterprize. Fortune-making inspires every bosom. If there be an unappropriated thought, it is devoted to the acquisition of political honors. All is motion, action and energy. In this ruffled tide, there is no quiet and secluded spot, where the muses may build their temple. A merely literary man is a note quite out of tune in our society. No other than money-getting professions can be held in high repute among us. An American writer, breathing no literary atmosphere, sustained and inspired by no habitual communion with kindred spirits, brings his works into competion with the master-spirits of the old world. His productions are judged by comparing them with theirs. Their literary tribunals furnish his lawyer, court and jury. Thus, though we have achieved our political independence, we are, as to literature, in a state of colonial vassalage. Our father's resisted the transfer of Americans to England for trial; but our books are subjected to this, and the American puplic hold no other than English verdicts to be of authority in this matter. A leading British review once sneeringly asked, "Who reads an American book." There is said to be on the London catalogue more than 500 American books, but from the meaness of publishers, and the prejudices of society, in England many of these are entirely stripped of any thing to indicate their American origin; and are palmed off as English productions. But though we have not a Chaucer, Spencer, Shakspeare, Bacon, or Milton, we have a Sprague, Dana, Bryant, Longfellow and Willis as poets, Irving as an essayist, Cooper and Sedgwick as novelists, and many others known on both sides of the Atlantic. If we must admit, that America has produced no great epic, we may challenge comparison with England in the lighter effusions of the muse, to which species of poetry only has American genius been earnestly directed. But it is acknowledged by the scholars of every country that Prescott and Bancroft as historians have never been surpassed, and we hope that there are many among us who inspired by their example will yet acheive the highest honors in the field of literature.

COMMERCE OF THE LAKES.—The increase in the navigation and commerce of the lakes, within the last few years is perhaps unprecedented. In 1817 there was but one steamboat on the lakes. In 1837 there were but thirty. At the close of 1857 there were about 225. The exact period of the establishment of sail navigation it is difficult to fix, but it was probably not far from the year 1800. In 1837, the sail vessels of all classes and descriptions numbered 150. 1857 closes with a list of about 700 first class sailing vessels, known to be laid up in the principal ports. The number laid up in small ports cannot be ascertained, but will probably increase the number one-third

POPULATION OF DETROIT.—In the year 1610, a little band of Frenchmen and Indians comprised the population of Detroit. In 1701 it was permanently organized into a trading post, and had some dozens, more or less, of inhabitants. In 1805 it contained 1,442—in 1830 it contained 8,222—id 1834 it contained 4,973—in 1837 it contained 9,763—in 1840 it contained 9,102—in 1845 it contained 10,948—in 1850 it contained 21,019—in 1854 it contained 40,373—and in 1858 it contains, including the two newly added wards, full 70,000 inhabitants.

The undersigned believes that he needs no introduction to this community that he was partner in the late Tecumseh establishment at the old Newark York store, to ensure him a liberal public tronage; all are aware of the flourishing business was done at that while he was a partner in the firm, and while he turned the grind-stone, and the establishment almost disappeared when motive power was withdrawn. It is doubted therefore, but that the public will be gratified to know, that the self same has put in motion a Machine that is turning out Tables, Bureaus, Bedsteads, Chairs, and all kind of Furniture, with a velocity that will enable him to sell at prices so low, that will astonish the natives. Now I would say, to all those who want Cheap Furniture, "come on, now is the time for I am determined to 'bust' every competitor in town.

Reduction of Fare to California.—In consequence of the establishment of an opposition line from N. Y. to California, the old Mail Line, via Panama have made a large reduction in their rates of passage. The old rate for the first cabin was $300, and the new rate has not yet been fixed, but the price of tickets for the second cabin has been reduced from $200. to $100, and in the steerage from $130, to $50. This includes the $25, charged each passenger for the transit of the Isthmus, and is certainly bringing the cost of this journey within a very moderate compass, considering the distance of the voyage. The opposition will probably follow this reduction, and possibly go beyond it, so that it is a very pretty quarrel as it stands.

PETITION.

To the President and Members of the Village Board of the village of Tecumseh Lenawee County, Michigan.

The undersigned citizens of the aforesaid village of Tecumseh would respectfully memoralize your honorable body that according to section 1st. of An Act passed by the Legislature of the State of Michigan entitled "An Act prohibiting the manufacture of intoxicating liquors and the traffic therein." "No person shall be allowed to manufacture or sell at any time, by himself, his clerk, servant or agent directly or indirectly any spirituous or intoxicating liquors, or any mixed liquors a part of which is spirituous or intoxicating, except as heretofore provided." And whereas in section 5 of said Act it is made "the duty of the common council of any City, the village board of any incorporated village &c. to commence an action according to law in the name of the people of the State of Michigan against any person guilty of a violation of any of the provisions of this act. &c.

And whereas it is well and publicly known that there are divers persons in this village who are selling and trafficking in intoxicating liquors contrary to law; Your memorialists would therefore respectfully request your honorable body to give notice to all persons in this village who are unlawfully selling or trafficking in spirituous or intoxicating liquors that they discontinue such unlawful selling or trafficking therein within thirty days from the date of such notice, or they will be dealt with according to law.

Bragg's Arctic Liniment.

This uncomparable Liniment upon which the great mass of afflicted of all lands now rely for relief from the pange of Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Gout, Erysipelas Cancer, Scrofula, Sprains, Bruises, Burns, Scalds and all cutaneous diseases, is rapidly superceding all similar preparations. The proprietors give for the encouragement of sufferers, the following memorandum of a few of the wonderful cures effected by it during the past few months. Certificates from the parties named are in the possession of the proprietors, their length precludes the publication of all but a few.

One Bottle Triumphant.

Mrs. Moffitt, No 245 Morgan Street, St. Louis, having suffered for three years with Rheumatism, and tried many preparations without effect, was cured by one fifty cent bottle of Arctic Liniment.

Out of Purgatory.

Henry Davis, Mound street, St. Louis, who says he was "suffering the pangs of purgatory" with neuralgia for months, was cured by three or four applications of the Arctic Liniment.

Pity the Little Children.

A little daughter of Mrs. Lee, residing on Lake St. Chicago was scalded all over by the upsetting of a kittle of boiling water. The Arctic Liniment was applied according to the directions, and the fire was in a day extracted, and in a few days the little sufferer was well.

Restored to Beauty.

Mrs George K. Tyler, Canal st. re. N Orleans had long suffered from a painful and disfiguring eruption on the face, and by the use of one bottle of the Liniment was cured, and restored to her original beauty.

A Horrible Tumor.

Eugene Mallory, Natchez was three years the victim of a horrible tumor on the neck, which resisted all remedies until he tried the Arctic Liniment. Three bottles cured him in a few weeks.

Wonderful Cure!

Mrs Bedford, Mobile, was confined to her couch for three years with numb palsy and after being in despair from the failure of all other remidies, was cured by the Arctic Liniment, in a little over a month.

An Explosion.

Memphis, Tenn., Nov. 28th, 1857.

I hereby certify, that having been badly bruised and scalded by the explosion of a Steam Boiler, a friend induced me to try Bragg's Arctic Liniment. The smart was instantly extracted from the scalds, and in a very short time all the pain was gone from the bruises—in two weeks I was well, and able to resume my business.

The Blind See!

Webster City, Iowa, Nov. 9th. 1857.

Dr. A. G. Bragg.—Dear Sir: For more than three years I had been afflicted with inflamed eyes, in an aggravated degree, and tried various Physicians, and several nostrums, to no effect. I was induced by Dr. Hamm to try the Arctic Liniment and in two months was nearly well. My little daughter was afflicted in the same manner for the same time, and during a portion of the time was entirely blind in one eye. I applied your valuable Liniment, and her eyes are perfectly sound. Thus have I with one two-bitt bottle cured my daughter's eyes and my own, besides curing the rheumatism in my back. I would not be without your invaluable remedy in my house. Yours Truly

Wm RUSSELL.

Webster City, Iowa, Nov. 9th, 1857.

I hereby certify, that I am well acquainted with Wm Russell, and with the astoushing cures he mentions, and know his statement to be strickly true.

Good for Animals.

This invaluable Liniment is also equally effeatious in curing the diseases of animals as witness the following certificate: Messrs J & A Arnot, and Lynch, Arnot & Co. keep the best arged livery stables in the west and are generally known throughout the U. S.

St. Louis, Dec 23rd. 1857.

We, the undersigned, having used Dr. Bragg's Arctic Liniment for a number of months, cheerfully testify to its superior efficacy in curing the diseases of horses; so well are we satisfied of the Arctic being the best Liniment made, that we would use no other. We keep and have kept for a number of years, extensive livery stables in this city, and consequently our experience about horses and their diseases is great, and we unhesitatingly say, that the Arctic Liniment is the only one we have ever found always reserviceable. We cordially recommend it to all livery stable keepers and others having the care of horses.

Caution.

Many Druggists, having old liniments on hand, will try to sell them to you as the best, but do you positively refuse to purchase them. Ask for "BRAGG'S ARCTIC LINIMENT," and take no other.

Liberal Proposition.

The proprietors agree to furnish each purchaser of a dollar bottle, with a free subscription to the U. S. Journal, for one year. This is one of the best N. Y. Illustrated papers. A certificate, entitling the holder to the benefit of this proposition, is enclosed to the wrapper around every dollar bottle. The Arctic Liniment is put up in 25 cent 50 cent and $1 bottles. The 50 cent and $1 bottles contain 50 and 100 per cent more Liniment in proportion to their cost, and are the cheapest. For sale by

DISEASE VANQUISHED.

—BY—

Dr. Roback's Scandinavian Remedies.

After years of study and experiment Dr. Roback the eminent Swedish Physician succeeded in producing a medicine from twenty-three different species of mountain herbs of his native land, which acts directly upon the causes of disease in the blood, and by restoring the normal fountain of life, to a condition of health and purity, expels disease from the system wherever it may be located or whatever may be its character. Indigestion, nervous complaints, ejects its coughs consumption in its early stages sore throat, bronchitis, fever and ague asthma, low spirits, sexual incapacity, feminine weakness, pricking of the skin, symptomatic of paralysis rheumatism, neuralgia, tumor cancer, diabetic, lassitude and debility diarrhea, and all other disorders of the organs of respiration, the liver the kidneys, the stomach, the nurves, or the muscular fiber are unfailingly cured by this preparation. It is to the materies morbi or seeds of disease what an alkali is to an acid: it neutralizes them with absolute certainty, while at the same time it regulates the secretions, removes obstructions from the bowels, creates appetite, renews bodily vigor and regenerates every animal function. Such is the nature such are the effects of Dr. Roback's famous Scandinavian Blood Purifier, which if taken in conjunction with his Scandinavian Blood Pills will not only obliterate the most painful disease, but prevent their recurrence, and lengthen life beyond the ordinary span.

In the SCANDINAVIAN VEGETABLE BLOOD PILLS, Dr. Roback presents the result of twenty years of experience, hard study and experiment as to what a perfect pill should be. No one can doubt their superiority after one single trial. Price of the Scandinavian Blood Purifier, $1 per bottle, or $5 per half-dozen: Scandinavian Blood Pills, 25 cents per box, or five for $1.

Proprietor, Miami Co. Ind., Aug. 4, 1857.

Dr. C. W. Roback: I have received so much benefit from your scandinavian Blood Purifier and Blood Pills, that I have thought it my duty and it is no less my inclination to give you a plain statement of my case. I was for years afflicted with that bane of all comfort, and efficiency in business dyspepsia. To recapitulate all the so-called remedies which I have used to rid myself of this distressing complaint would indeed make a melancholy catalogue. I also consulted with the best physicians I could hear of, all of whom I used to try your remedies through the persuasions of a friend, and after using them a few days was greatly benefitted, and in a short time, less than a month, I was entirely and permanently cured. I was also afflicted with the most violent nervous headache, which I suppose was produced by my disordered stomach, for when my dispepsia left me my headache left with it. I now feel better in every respect than I have for ten years.

Very truly yours, JOHN S. DEMUTH.

From the Rev. Mr. McMullen, Pastor of Roberts Chapel:

Indianapolis, Oct. 5, 1857.

Dr. C. W. Roback—Dear Sir: I have used your Blood Purifier for a nervous affection, from which I have suffered much at times. While it is pleasant to the taste it certainly has a happy effect upon the nerves. Please accept my thanks for your kind regards and acts, and believe me,

Yours, J. W. T. McMULLEN.

FROM A WELL-KNOWN STEAMBOAT CLERK.

Louisville, June 4, 1857.

Dear Doctor: Send me half a dozen boxes of your Pills, care of H. G. Card & ——. I can get them next trip. Six weeks ago nothing could have convinced me that a twenty-five cent box of Pills could have relieved my obstinate chronic constipation, with its attending evils. I told you so when I bought them, but I am forced to own that your Pills fill the contract. Why, I have taken as many as six (6) of ——'s and other makers' sometimes without effect and sometimes with too much effect; but I have no trouble with yours—they are just what I want.

Cincinnati, Friday, Sept. 4, 1857.

Dr. Roback—Dear Sir: having been afflicted with neuralgia or rheumatism for the past year and a half, and having seen your medicine called the Scandinavian Blood Purifier highly recommended by gentlemen with whom I am acquainted, I was induced to try it, but not before I had used various other medicines—After using two bottles I felt its effect very sensibly, and upon using two more, I found myself perfectly cured. You will allow me, therefore, to congratulate you upon making a discovery in medicine which is proving itself to be a worker of such wonders in the diseases of the human family.

GEORGE S. BENNETT.

Local Editor Cincinnati Daily Enquirer.

Indianapolis, Wednesday Sept. 2, 1857.

Dr. C. W. Roback—Dear Sir: Having been troubled for several years with extreme debility and weakness, so much so that I was unable to attend to my ordinary business at times, and having heard of the wonderful cures that your Scandinavian Blood Purifier and Pills were effecting, I was induced by a friend to try them.

I have been using the Purifier for the last twelve months, and find the medicine fully equal to its recommendations. So valuable is it to me that I cannot now dispense with the use of it at my advanced age of life—seventy-seven years.

I cheerfully give this information for the benefit of those similarly affected. MORRIS MORRIS.

MOFFAT'S

LIFE PILLS

AND

Phœnix Bitters

THE BEST FAMILY MEDICINE NOW before the public, for the cure of Scrofula, Ulcers, Scurvy, or Eruptions of the Skin, Fever and Ague, Dyspepsia, Dropsy, and in fact most all diseases soon yield to their curative proprities.

It has been computed that during the last twenty five years upwards of FOUR MILLIONS of persons have been benefited by the use of these medicines; a fact which speaks volumes in favor of their curative properties. a single trial will place them beyond the reach of competition in the estimate of every patient. By their use the BLOOD IS RESTORED TO A HEALTHY STATE and freed from all impurities. The system is not reduced during their operation, but invigorated, and they require no restraint from business or pleasure.

The afflicted have in these medicines a remedy that will do for them all that medicine can possibly effect.

The undersigned believes that he need only intimate to this community that he was a partner in the late famous establishment at the old New York store, to ensure him a liberal public tronage; all are aware what a flourishing business was done at that House, while he was a partner in the firm, that is, while he turned the grind-stone, and how that establishment almost disappeared when the motive power was withdrawn. It is not doubted therefore, but that the public will be gratified to know, that the self same power has put in motion a Machine that is now turning out Tables, Bureaus, Bedsteads, Chairs, and all kind of Furniture, with such velocity that will enable him to sell them at prices so low, that will astonish the natives.

Now I would say, to all those who want Cheap Furniture, "come on, now is the time" for I am determined to 'bust' every establishment in town.

Probate Notice.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee ss. At a session of the Probate Court, for the County of Lenawee, holden at the Probate office in the City of Adrian, on Monday the Eight day February, in the year one thousand Eight Hundred and fifty-eight.

Present, Fernando C. Beaman, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the Estate of ANDREW BOSS, deceased

On reading and filing the Petition, duly verified, of Caspar B. Vanoetius, praying that a copy of the last Will and Testament of said deceased duly proved and allowed in the County of Seneca in the State of New York (a copy of which said Will and the Probate thereof has been produced to the Judge of Probate for said County of Lenawee) may be allowed in this State as the last Will and Testament of said deceased for reasons therein set forth.

Thereupon it is ordered, that Monday, the Eighth day of March next, at Ten o'clock in the forenoon be assigned for the hearing of said Petition and that the heirs-at-law of said deceased and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said Court, there to be holden at the Probate Office, in the City of Adrian, and show cause, if any there be why the Petitioner should not be granted.

And it is further ordered, that said Petitioner give notice to persons interested in said estate, of the pendency of said petition, and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the Tecumseh Herald, a newspaper printed and circulating in said County of Lenawee, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing.

ONE DOLLAR WILL BUY

ONE OF THE BEST PURGATIVE AND LIVER MEDICINES before the public, namely, DR. SANFORD'S INVIGORATOR, or LIVER REMEDY, that acts with Cathartic Watts Liver remedy, stirring free on the Liver to clear it of morbid matter, then on the stomach and bowels to carry off that matter; thus accomplishing two purposes effectually, without any of the painful feeling experienced in the operations of most Cathartics. It strengthens these organs as it purges them, and it is by this double operation that it cures. DR. SANFORD'S INVIGORATOR is compounded entirely from new articles of medicine, namely Gums.

Some idea of the strength of these gums may be formed when it is known that one bottle of the Invigorator contains as much strength as one hundred doses of Calomel, without any of its deleterious effects.

Though possessing rare medical powers, these Gums have been but little known to Physicians and never used in their prescriptions until used in the form of the Invigorator, which met with such unprecedented success as to induce the proprietor to offer it as a family medicine tried and known in its effects. It has rarely ever failed to cure LIVER Complaints in their worst forms.

INDIGESTION being caused by a deranged Liver is cured when the Liver is excited to action.

JAUNDICE is caused by an improper action of the Livers, and as a proof that the Invigorator relieves this disease, let any one troubled with Jaundice take the Invigorator regularly one week, and their skin will begin to assume its original color.

COSTIVENESS can be permanently cured by the Invigorator. Take it in small doses on retiring and it assists nature in her operations. By gradually diminishing the dose, the bowels are left in a healthy and active state, and work as regularly as clock work.

SICK HEADACHE is very soon relieved by taking a double dose of the Invigorator, which corrects all acidity and sourness of the stomach.

For an over-loaded stomach it has no equal as it relieves all oppressive or uneasy feeling after eating heartily. For a FAMILY MEDICINE generally, all who use it speak in the highest terms.

DR. SANFORD'S INVIGORATOR came to us recommended as a cure for Liver Complaints, and all diseases arising from a Diseased Liver. The testimonials of so many of our Physicians to its favorable influence on the Liver, induced us to be certain that it is one of the greatest blessings ever given to Dyspeptics, for it made a complete cure before the first bottle was taken, and no we can eat anything edible without trouble, while before nothing but the lightest food would digest, and often that gave pain. Now what we want to say to all our readers is, if LIVER COMPLAINTS or DYSPEPSIA trouble you, do not fail to try this the greatest remedy in the world.—State Fact.

We take infinite pleasure to recommending this medicine as a preventative for FEVER and AGUE, CHILL FEVER, and all FEVERS of a BILIOUS TYPE. It operates with certainty, and thousands are willing to testify to its wonderful virtues.

Though we never have tried in our family a remedy which has met with such unbounded success in the cure of diseases incident to children as DR. SANFORD'S INVIGORATOR; nor is it alone for diseases of children that we use it; for it acts as a Cathartic so mildly and gently, and seems to renovate the system so thoroughly that we think we are doing a service to all in advising them, when they need medicine to try this remedy. There are cases that have come under our notice where great benefit has been received in diseases of the Liver, Stomach and Bowels where all other remedies failed to give relief. It had become so useful in our family that we will not be without it.—Jackson Sentinel.

R AYER'S Cathartic Pills (SUGAR COATED,)

CLEANSE THE BLOOD AND CURE THE SICK.

Invalids, Fathers, Mothers, Physicians, Philanthropists, read, think, and judge of their Virtues.

FOR THE CURE OF

Headache, Sick Headache, Foul Stomach, Biliousness, Jaundice, Indigestion, Dysentery, Rheumatism, Neuralgia, and Constipation.

DR. J. C. AYER, SIR: I have been troubled for the most headache and sick stomach, for many years of your Pills. It seems to excite from the stomach, they cleanse at once. If you will can others of the same, the fact is worth knowing.

Yours with great respect, REV. W. PRESCOTT, Clerk of Worcester County.

Bilious Disorders and Liver Complaint.

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR, WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 1, 1858.

SIR: I have used your Pills in my family, and in practice ever since you made them, and cannot honestly they are the best cathartic we employ. Their prompt acting on the liver is quick and decisive, and they are an admirable remedy for derangements of that organ. Indeed, I have seldom found a case of bilious disease in one so obstinate that it did not readily yield to them.

Fraternally yours, ALONZO BALL, M. D., Physician of the Marine Hospital.

Dysentery, Relax, and Worms.

POST-OFFICE, HAMPLAND, LEV. CO., MISS., Sept. 10, 1856.

DR. AYER: Your Pills are the perfection of medicine. They have done my wife more good than I can tell. She had been sick and pining away for months. Was off as he doctored at great expense, but got no better. Then commenced taking your Pills, which soon cured her by expelling large quantities of worms (some five feet long) from her body. They afterwards cured her self and two children of bloody dysentery. One of our neighbors had a family, my wife cured him with two doses of your Pills, and others around us paid from five to twenty dollars for the same benefit. Indeed, I have seldom found a case of bowel complaint that your Pills would not cure, when taken in time. Such a medicine as yours, which is actually good and honest, will be prized here.

GEO. J. GRIFFIN, Postmaster.

Indigestion and Impurity of the Blood.

From Rev. J. V. Hynes, Pastor of Advent Church, Lowell.

DR. AYER: I have used your Pills with extraordinary success in my family and among those I am called to visit in distress. To regulate the organs of digestion, and purify the blood they are the very best remedy I have ever known, and I can confidently recommend them to my friends. Yours, J. V. HYNES.

WARSAW, WYOMING CO., N. Y., Oct. 24, 1857.

DEAR SIR: I am using your Cathartic Pills in my practice, and find them an excellent purgative to cleanse the system, and purify the fountains of the blood.

JOHN G. MEACHAM, M. D.

Erysipelas, Scrofula, Ring's Evil, Tumors, and Salt Rheum.

From a Practicing Merchant of St. Louis.

DR. AYER: Your Pills are the panacea of all our ailments. They have cured my little daughter of ulcerous sores on the hands and feet that has been incurable for years. Her mother has been long grievously afflicted with blotches and pimples on her face and her self, After our child was cured, she also took your Pills, and they have cured her. ASA MORGAN.

Rheumatism, Neuralgia, and Gout.

From the Rev. Dr. Hawks, of the Methodist Epis. Church.

PELASKI HOUSE, SAVANNAH, GA., Jan. 6, 1858.

HONORED SIR: I should be ungrateful were I to withhold the relief your skill has brought me if I did not report my case. A cold settled in my limbs and brought an excruciating neuralgic pains, which ended in chronic rheumatism. Notwithstanding I had the best physicians here, who only grew worse and worse, until, by the advice of your excellent agent in Baltimore, Dr. Mackenzie, I tried your Pills. Their effects were slow, but sure. By persevering for a time of them I am now entirely well.

SENATE CHAMBER, BATON ROUGE, LA., 5 Jan 58.

DR. AYER: I have been entirely cured by your Pills of Rheumatic Gout—a painful disease that had afflicted me for years. VINCENT SIBLEY.

For Dropsy, Plethora, or kindred complaints, requiring an active purge, they are the best remedy.

For Costiveness or Constipation, as a Dinner Pill, they are agreeable and effectual.

Fits, Suppression, Paralysis, Indigestion, and even Deafness, and Partial Blindness, have been cured by the alterative action of these Pills.

Most of the pills in market contain Mercury, which, though a valuable remedy in skillful hands, is dangerous in a public pill, from the dreadful consequences that frequently follow its incautious use. These contain no mercury or mineral substance whatever.

AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL

FOR THE RAPID CURE OF

COUGHS, COLDS, HOARSENESS, INFLUENZA, BRONCHITIS, WHOOPING COUGH, CROUP, ASTHMA, INCIPIENT CONSUMPTION,

and for the relief of consumptive patients in advanced stages of the disease.

We need not speak to the public of its virtues. Throughout every section of the United States, and almost every hamlet in the American States, its wonderful cures of pulmonary complaints are known. Its reputation is already established. No family will hereafter be without it, while its life-saving powers are appreciated. Clergymen, editors, lawyers, statesmen, and others, who have been relieved of bronchial affections, or rescued from the grave by its use, are constantly urging us to make known the facts within their respective communities. Nearly every man, woman, and child has friends or neighbors who have been cured by this remedy of some one of the many distressing diseases of the throat and lungs which are incident to our climate. Hence, it is the most powerful antidote for the pulmonary complaints that afflict mankind, and is the safest and surest remedy that can be employed for children. Parents can no longer be persuaded to permit their little ones to suffer and die with the terrible symptoms of croup, when they know that a few doses of this remedy will subdue the disease. Night watches by the bedside of dying children, and bereavements that carry sorrow to the hearts of parents, may be prevented by the timely use of this antidote. Public speakers and singers find great relief from its use in Bronchitis, Hoarseness, and Clergymen's sore throat. Singers and actors will find the Cherry Pectoral a valuable preparation, clearing and strengthening the vocal organs, and removing hoarseness and huskiness, even when caused by a cold. Military companies, traveling in exposed situations, should always provide themselves with this protection against Throat Diseases, Pneumonia, and Consumption. Navigators, Pioneers, Miners, and Settlers in new countries, where Physicians are not to be had, should never be without this reliable remedy. Every steamboat and sea-going vessel should have a supply on board. Its timely use will frequently save the lives of passengers and crew. Many a master mariner has found safety from storm and wreck, and many a ship has been saved from destruction, by the use of this medicine. Its effects are so speedy and certain that it soon becomes the favorite remedy with all who have once tried it. Those who have used it, and have been relieved by it, will not be persuaded to use any other. Why suffer from Coughs, Colds, Hoarseness, Influenza, Bronchitis, Whooping Cough, Croup, Asthma, Incipient Consumption, and Pulmonary Complaints, when you can obtain a remedy that will cure you? Why permit your children to suffer and die from Croup, when this remedy will cure them? Why trifle with Coughs, Colds, Hoarseness, Influenza, Bronchitis, Whooping Cough

Ben Bolt, and Sweet Alice.

"Oh, don't you remember sweet Alice, Ben Bolt?
Sweet Alice, whose hair was so brown,
Who blushed with delight when you gave her a smile,
And trembled with fear at your frown.

In the old church yard, in the valley, Ben Bolt,
In a corner, secluded and lone,
They have fitted a slab of granite so gray,
And Alice lies under the stone."

[English.

"Don't you remember?" Are those three magic words—a key wherewith we may unlock the floodgates of the heart, and send the sweet waters of the past over the plains and down the hills of that fair land, known in our heart experience as by gone? Even so. There rise before us visions of time when the bright deep eyes of the young spring gazed slyly at us from beneath the ermined mantle of winter—when the blue violents stole their first tints from the sky above; when the cowslips of sunny May, and the golden hearted butter cups first jewelled the tender blades of grass, and the hawthorn grew white with its blossoms; when we roamed the woods the whole of that long, warm, loveable June holliday, weaving garlands, and listening to the concert of birds in that dark, misletoe wreath, oaken forest There was one in years gone by that prayed: 'Lord, keep my memory green;' and the clinging tendrills of our hearts go ever back yearningly to this prayer.

But green and fresh as the poets prayer, had the heart of Ben Bolt been kept—From his early boyhood to the hour he sat by his old friend, and listened to the songs of bygone days. Not 'through a glass, darkly,' did he review those scenes of the past, but it was the going back of the boy heart to others of childhood.

There was a little old red schoolhouse, with its dusty windows, and desks that had been nicked many a time trying penknives; its tall, stern looking teacher, whose heavy voice caused the younger ones to tremble; its rows of boys and girls with their heads bent attentively downward to their books and slates, the wild winter wind sang and whistled without, and some few childish hearts tried to find words for its mournful notes, they were too young and happy to know that it carried desolation and heartache in its wail, yet did they learn it in after years.

Then, there came a few light, round snow balls, so tiny that, it must have been the sport of the snow spirits, in their eldrich revels, changing by and by to feathery flakes that danced about ever so gaily. How the children's eyes grew bright, as they looked at one another and thought of the merry rides down the hill, and the snow-balling that would make the ground ring again. The last lessons were said, books and slates put aside, and in the place of silence reighned gay, and glad voices. Kate Ashley shook back her pretty ringlets, and laughed as she gave Jamie Marvin that bit of curl he had teased so long for, because she knew that Jamie had the prettiest sled in the whole school Ah, a bit of a coquette was that same gleeful romping Kate. And there was Sophie Dale, looking as demure as a kitten, too, was she, in spite of her quiet looks; and the stately Elizabeth—Queen Bess, they called her—and I question if Englands queen had a haughtier carriage. But aside from these who were looking eagerly for friends to take them home, stood Alice May—sweet Alice. Very loveable and beatiful was she with her winsome, childish face, blue eyes and soft brown curls. She was so delicate and fragile, you might almost fancy her a snow child or a lost fairy babe.

Nearly all the children had departed, amid the joyful shouts and jingling bells, but yet the sweet little child stood alone, until a rich, boyish voice startled her, saying:

"No one goes your way, Alice do they?"

"No, I guess not, Ben," she replied in her fine bird-like tones.

"Let me carry you home."

"Oh, no, I am too heavy to be carried so far," and she laughed low and sweetly.

"Heavy! no, you're just like a thistle down or a snow flake, Ally; I could carry you to England and back without being at all fatigued; and he tossed the little girl in his arms.

"No, no; let me go; the boys will laugh at you, Ben;" and she struggled.

'What do I care? They may laugh at Ben Bolt as much as they like; and the brave boy drew himself up proundly, and brushed the chestnut curls from his broad forehead; 'but I did not mean to frighten you, Alice,' he continued as he saw how the little girl trembled.

So she put on her bonnet and cloak, and Ben took her in his arms as if she had been a bird, while the tinny little thing nestled down on his shoulder, as he went stumbling through the snow, saying gay, pleasant things, that made the shy little thing laugh; and when, at length, he opened her mother's cottage door, he stood her on the floor saying:

'There, Mrs. May, I brought Alice home lest she should get burried under a snow bank; she's such a weeny thing;' and before Mrs. May could thank him, he was out of sight.

What a brave and glorious snow storm it was, though. The boys built a great snow house, dipping the great chunks of snow into water to harden them, and so they rolled large snow balls for a pyramid until it was higher then the school house. They worked bravely, but the brightest and pleasentest face among them was Ben Bolt's. Such rides as they had down the hill, and though the larger boys and girls said Alice May was too little and timed to join them, because she felt fearful sometimes, yet Ben Bolt held her in his arms, and away they went merrily as any of the rest.

But the winter began to wane, and now and then a soft day would come, and lessen the pyramid and snow house materially. 'Such a pity,' they said, and wished winter would last always, but there was one little wren-like voice that prayed for violets and blue-birds.

The pyramids tumbled down, the snow house grew thither and thinner, and the boys jested about its being on the decline, till one day it disepppeared—faded away, like so many of their childish hopes.

The glad spring came with its larks and daises, and one beautiful day the children went a Maying. Kate Ashley was queen, and a brilliant queen she was, too. But Ben Bolt gathered white violets and braided them in the soft curls of Alice, and told her she was sweeter, dearer than a thousand May queens like Kate. Child as she was, his words made the sunshine brighter, and lent enchantment to the atmosphere of her existence.

Then the long June days came, encircling the green earth with coronal of roses, and making it redolent with perfumes, and in the warm noontide hour, the children strolled to the foot of the hill, and, clustering together, told over their childish hopes of their future. Some were lured by ambition; some dreamed of quiet country repose; some of gay city life; but there was one whose eye kindled and whose face flushed with enthusiasm, as he spoke of the sparkling blue waters, and the brave ships that breasted them so gallantly.

Ben Bolt was going to sea. Captain Shiseley, a generous whole-souled being as ever trod the deck was to take him under his protection for the next five years.—There were exclamations of surprise from the children; old haunts were visited and revisited; they sat down in the shade of the old sycamore, and listened to the musical murmer of the brook and the dreamy hum of old 'Appleton's mill, exchanged keepsakes, and promised always to remember the merry brave hearted boy whose home would be the wild blue ocean.

Alice May did not join them. She was so delicate and timid, and the thought of Ben's departure filled her eyes with tears, so she would steal away alone, fearful of the ridicule of her hardier companions.

But one night Ben came to Mrs. May's to bid them good bye. Alice stood by the window watching the stars—wondering what made them so dim—never thinking of the tears that dimmed her eyes—as Ben told over his hopes so joyfully. She could not part with him there, so she walked through the little yard, and stood beside the gate looking like a golden-crowned angel in the yellow moonlight; and when he told her over and again how large she would be on his return; that he would not dare to call her little Alice, then; as he looked back lingeringly; she laid a soft brown curl into his hand, saying:

'I have kept it for you this long, long time, Ben; ever since the day you brought me home through the snow—do you remember?

He did remember, and with one passionate burst of grief, he pressed the little girl to his bosom; and the brave hearted boy sobbed the farewell he could find no words for.

But five years are not always a lifetime. True it was to the quiet, thoughtful Charlie Allen, whose large dark eyes had stolen brilliancy from his books; and the laughing little Belle Archer—both were laid to sleep in the old church yard, where the night stars shone o'er the graves. Others went to seek a fortune in the gay world, and some grew into miniature men and women by their own sweet firesides; but Alice May was still a child. Yet she was a little taller and her slight form more gracefully developed; but there was the same angel looking through her eyes as had watched there in olden days. She stayed at home now to assist her mother in their chief support; but she was the same shy, sweet Alice that Ben Bolt had carried through the snow.

Ben Bolt had come back. How strange that five years should have passed so quickly, and stranger still that this tall handsome sailor should be Ben Bolt.—Kate Ashley was not thinking of sweet Sabbath day rest as the chime of church bell floated through the village; there she stood before the mirror arranging her shining curls, and fastening her dainty bonnet, with its white ribbons and drooping blue bells, thinking if she could not fascinate Ben with her sparkling eyes, it would be delightful to have his chief attention during his stay.

He thought she did not look very beautiful, as he sat, before service, looking on the olden faces; but there was one fairer than hers, he fancied as he saw the sweet face of Alice May, with the half closed eyes, and long golden edged lashes, shadowing the pale cheek. He carried in his bosom a curl like the one nestling so softly by her temple, and it was a talisman, keeping him from the enchatment of other eyes.

When the service was closed, Ben was thronged about by old familiar faces—they had so much to say so many things to speak of, so much to express at his safe return, that it well-nigh bewildered him. It was very pleasant to be so warmly welcomed by old friends, delightful to chat of by gones, and indeed a Sabbath of joy to Ben Bolt.

Sweet Alice! Ah, how long and weary the time had been to her. Sometimes her heart died within her, as she thought of the broad ocean; but when she looked so shyly at Ben that morning and saw how handsome he had grown, a heart sickness came over her, and the sunshine fell but dimly at her feet. She knew she had hidden away in the depths of her pure heart, a wild early love, and she strove to put it from her; for, would he think of her now? So, it was no wonder she should slip her slender hand in her mother's and steal quietly from the joy-throng.

It was Sabbath eve—one of those balmy, moonlight evenings of the young summer. Mrs. May had gone to visit a sick neighbor, and Alice sat by the window with the Bible open, and her slender white fingers pointing to the words falling so musically from her lips:

'And there shall be no night there; and they need no candle, neither light of the sun; for the Lord God giveth them light, and they shall reign for ever and ever.'

She looked trembling upon the moonlight, for close behind her knelt the manly form of Ben Bolt. There was told a sweet story of love and hope not loss sweet foe being the language of every human heart, and the tinny hands of Alice were clasped in his as he said, very low and sweetly:

'If I live, Ben, when five years more have passed, and you return a second time———'

She did not finish—it was never finished.

So they plighted their troth, that calm holy Sabbath evening; and the buoyant heart of Ben in its gushing sunniness, pictured radiant hopes of the future. He was so young and full of vitality—every pulse of his heart was beating gladly, and the coming five years were more precious to him than all the past.

'If we both live, Ben, God will have us both in his holy keeping,' she said in answer to his parting words; but as he pressed her convulsively to his beating heart, he replied:

'God will be merciful to those who love so dearly, Alice, darling.'

She knew it, but she knew also, that God did not always hear the prayer falling from the hopeful lips. Sweet Alice, Adown the future Ben looked tremblingly, and as he saw her fragile form and spiritual face, with white lillies braided in the soft brown hair, his eyes grew dim with tears, for he know not if 'twas a bridal or a burial for beside the alter was the grave-yard.

They were not wanting who wondered at Ben Bolt's choice, and thought it strange he should take Alice May in preference to the fairest and wealthiest.—Some there were who held their heads loftily when they passed her, but her heart was on the deep blue waters and she heeded it not.

How she watched the summer days in their passing. She noted how the summer waned—how the fields of waving grain grew yellow in the sunlight—she heard the glad voices of the reapers; and when the leaves were falling, the children went nut gathering in the woods; when the noiseless snow fell, and lay on the hill side, as in olden days, until the genial spring tide sun melted it away, and the violets and hare-bells dotted the fields. So passed the year. She was growing fairer and more beautiful—too brilliant for anything earthly. Once she knelt at the altar in the little church, and listened to the words uniting her with the Saviour's redeemed of earth; but it was only an outward form, for her heart had long been in the keeping of angels. Again she watched the waining of the summer days, and when the soft wind swept over the silvery rye fields, she thought of the ocean afar, with its broad waves. All through a winter day she grew more spiritual in her beauty, and the slender white hands were often folded on her breast, and she prayed for those who would soon be left destitute, for she knew that she was dying.

It did not startle her; for she had felt long ago that the fair, green earth would hold her pulseless heart, ere it had left the cloister of girlhood. Life was sweet and beautiful, and in her sinlessness, death had no agony, save her sorrow for those left in loneliness. It was only a little way to the land of rest, and her feet had never grown weary; yet she longed to look once more upon the flowers and have them braided in her hair; and so she lingered till the voice of spring was heard on the hill-tops.

One morning when viewless hands were gathering back the misty curtains of the night and the stars grew dim in the glory of early morn sweet Alice stood on the threshhold of Paradise, and the golden gates were open to the fair, meek girl. There trembled on her lips a prayer and a blessing for Ben Bolt and her mother, giving radience to her fair dead face, and they braided spring flowers in her brown hair.

The church bell chimed softly to the years earth had claimed the stainless soul of Alice May as they brought the coffin in the little old church. How beautiful she looked in her white burial—too fair and sweet for death—too holy, had there not been a ressurrection beyond. Close behind her stood the friends of her childhood, gazing on that young face as if they would fain call her back to life and its sweet love. So they laid sweet Alice to sleep in the old church yard, and those who looked coldly on her, took to their sorrowing hearts a sweet memory of the early dead.

There was agony too deep for utterance when the strong, ardent hearted man, whose guilding star had been the love for that sweet girl, came back to find the cottage home desolate, and Alice sleeping beneath a grey stone in the old church-yard.

But God and time are merciful; and, as years passed away, he came to think of her as garlanded in the golden fruitage of Edenland.

This was the memory that his friend sang of, as they sat in the summer twilight, years afterward, and talked of the face that had glimmered and faded in their early pathway. Now, of all the glad hearts childhood had clustered together, only they two were left. Some slept in jungle depths; others in the forest shade, and beneath the waving prairie grass. Some there were who slept peacefully in the green old church yard; and among these the fairest and the best was 'sweet Alice.' Ah, he could never have forgotten that.

He had heard from the lips of that desolate mother, ere she went to sleep beside her darling, how patient and holy Alice had grown; how she had passed away in her saint like beauty; leaving messages that none but a fond and yearning heart can only dictate. Down in his yearning heart, deeper than any other earthly being, he had lain them, cherishing their beauty and greeness. Many a time had the spirit form of sweet Alice risen before his eyes in all the beauty of that far off land he saw but so dimly, and he knew when that thing called life had merged into immortality, he should meet her again.

Years afterward, they laid Ben Bolt to sleep by the side of 'sweet ALICE.'

MY SOUL AND I.

BY WHITTIER.

And where art thou going soul of mine?
Can't see the end?
And whither this troubled life of thine
Evermore doth tend?

"Whither I go I cannot tell;
A cloud hangs black,
High as heaven and deep as hell,
Across my track.

"I see its shadow coldly enwrap
The souls before,
Sadly they enter it, step by step,
To return no more.

"They shrink, they shudder, dear God! they kneel
To thee in prayer.
They shut their eyes on the cloud, but feel
That it still is there.

"In vain they turn from the dread I sees
To the known and gone;
For while gazing behind them evermore
Their feet glide on.

"Yet at times I see upon sweet pale faces
A light begin
To tremble, as if from holy places
And shines within.

"And at times methinks their cold lips move
With hymn and prayer,
As if somewhat of awe, but more of love
And hope were there.

"I call on the souls who have left the light
To reveal their lot;
I bend mine ear to the wall of night,
Yet they answer not.

"But I hear around me sighs of pain
And the cry of fear,
And a sound like slow a sad dropping of rain,
Each drop a tear.

"Ah, the cloud is dark, and day by day,
I am moving thither;
I must pass beneath it on my way—
God pity me!—WHITTIER!

Ah soul of mine! so brave and wise
In the life-storm loud,
Fronting so calmly all human eyes
In the sun-lit crowd!

Now standing apart with God and me
Thou art weakness all,
Gazing vainly after the things that be
Through Death's dread wall.

Know well, my soul, God's hand controls
Whate'er thou fearest,
Round Him in calmest music rolls
Whate'er thou hearest.

What to thee is shadow, to Him is day,
And the end he knoweth,
And not on a blind and aimless way
The spirit goeth.

Nothing before, nothing behind;
The steps of faith
Fall on a sunning void, yet find
The rock beneath.

The present, the present is all thou hast
For thy sun possessing,
Like the patriarch's angel held it fast
Till it give its blessing.

The Camel's Revenge.

A few years ago, it chanced that a valuable camel, working an oil mill in Africa, was severely beaten by his driver, who, perceiving that the camel had treasured up the injury, and was waiting a favorable opportunity for revenge, kept a strict watch upon the animal. Time passed away, the camel perceiving that it was watched, was quiet and obedient, and the driver began to think that the beating was forgotten, when, one night, after the lapse of several months, the man, who slept on a raised platform in the mill, whilst, as is customary, the camel is stalled in a corner, happening to remain awake, observed by the bright moonlight that when all was quiet, the animal looked cautiously around, rose softly, and stealing towards a spot where a bundle of clothes and a burnous were thrown carelessly on the ground, resembling a sleeping figure, cast itself with violence upon them, rolling upon them and tearing them with his teeth Satisfied that its revenge was complete, the camel was returning to its corner, when the driver sat up and spoke; and then, at the sound of his voice, and perceiving the mistake it had made, the animal was so mortified at its failure and the discovery of its scheme, that it dashed its head against the wall and died on the spot.

GETTING OVER A DIFFICULTY.—A class which graduated not over a thousand years ago, embraced among its members one Tom Elliot, an incorrigible wag, who was not noted for any particular and marked attention to his studies. Mathematics was a particular object of Tom's disregard, and this caused him an occasional jeu d' esprit with the dry professor in conics. On one occasion the professor during the recitation, asked Tom to explain the horisontal parallax of the sun Tom replied:

'I don't know how.'

'But,' said the professor, 'suppose you were appointed by the Government to ascertain it, what would you do?'

'I'd resign,' gravely responded Tom, amid the convulsive laughter of the class and even the professor actually perpetrated a grin.

From the London Times.

Capture of an American Slaver on the Coast of Africa.

"Since my last letter to you in August circumstances have happened of the most stirring kind. Never, on this notorious coast, has humanity been more outraged, or the energy and compassion of British seamen more called for or shown. We continued cruising, looking at the different stations, until the 10th, when, at daylight, we saw a schooner at anchor. We made sail for her; she slipped her cable and ran along the beach. We followed in the Sappho, as near as the depth of water would allow. The wind was light, so the commander took to the boats and soon came up with her; she proved to be a schooner of fully 150 tons, quite prepared for the reception of slaves, and had arrived the preceding day on the coast. The captain had landed, probably with the specie for the purchase of his cargo, as only 28 doubloons were found, rolled up in a man's garters, who looked foolish enough when the master-at-arms hauled them off. We took the schooner to Loando to land the slave crew, then finding her not sea-worthy, we made a target of her to exercise our men, and burned her. This gave us something to talk about until we returned to Loando on the 15th; there we found the Castor, with the Admiral on board, from the Cape; he sailed for Shark's Point, where the ships were collected for Courts Martial.

We left the following day; at 9 in the morning on the 18th, in a thick mist with rain, we closed with a schooner; while boarding her the weather cleared, and a large ship was seen close to the land.—Directly our boats returned we made all sail in chase, the ship making all sail to avoid us, and the chase, became very exciting. The captains said we were gaining, and so they must have thought on board the ship, as he tucked in shore and we after him; then he bore away, running along the edge of the surf, and by help of his large sails was drawing ahead. By this time we were sure he was one of the large American slave ships, and we feared he would escape if he got sea room, so the captain took a boat well manned and armed, and pulled to windward to cut him off, when he would be obliged to take off shore; another boat was sent to leeward, the master, the only officer on board, being left in charge.—The ship was not more than a mile and a half distant close to the surf. Seeing the trap laid for him, and that he could not escape, he ran his ship ashore. We anchored in 4 fathoms; the master took the whale boat close to the ship, and was joined by the other boats. The ship was rolling in the breakers with all her sails flapping about, and appeared to be full of slaves; the master and crew had abandoned her with their boats, leaving the American colors flying. Then we all beheld a dreadful scene; the slaves forced their way from below, jumped overboard, and soon disappeared in the rollers; it was terrible to see them.

Our officers and men, regardless of their own lives, pulled through the surf to leeward of the ship, but her heavy lurching for some time prevented their boarding; when they succeeded the scene was horrifying, the slaves still forcing their way up from the slave-decks with loud yells, running to and fro, and continuing to throw themselves overboard.—All attempts to pacify them were useless, force was necessary to drive them below until preparation could be made for their safety We are told by one of the slaves who could speak Portuguese that they were told the English would eat all their throats. As soon as the boats could be attended to the cutter was backed under the stern and a rope thrown her; then 3 of the slaves were permitted up at a time and lowered into the boat, the whale boat conveying them through the rollers into the large boat, and so on to the Sappho; this continued until 8 P. M. The surf increased, and it was impossible to save more that night. One hundred and eighty were rescued. The master was left with a guard on board. It was an anxious and a sleepless night for all, as death was rapidly decreasing the number of the poor negroes, who starving and naked, died from utter misery,—men, women, boys and girls, more than 200 on board the Sappho, and, as they ceased to breathe, we were obliged to throw them overboard. Poor negroes! I hope conscious in their last moments that English seamen came to save them, and now made a silent prayer over them. Fortunately, we had plenty of rice from the schooner captured, which we fed them with, and placed them as best we could under cover of sails. As food and warmth restored them, in various ways they signified their sense of kindness.

There was one poor creature, with an infant at her breast, naked, cold, and exhausted, apparently dying; a little wine was given her, then some rice, which was forced from her own to her baby's mouth. A sheet was given to cover her; she wrapped her baby in it, and pressed it to her heart with that look of maternal love which God has given to the dark as well as the pale face race. On board the schooner the master and guard were with the remaining negroes in a perilous state; the former passed the night in the forecastle and bowsprit, drenched by the spray of the heavy rollers. At dawn on the 19th, the wind and surf had increased; the ship had driven closer to the beach; numbers of armed people were collected; a signal for assistance was made; the captain went with all the boats manned and armed, when the natives on the beach, led on by the white men, apparently the crew of the ship, commenced firing with the intention of preventing the retene of any more negroes.

This continued an hour before we could clear the beach, some of our shots apparently telling well. On again boarding the wreck she was found breaking up, with her hold full of water. On the tide receding, her hull was nearly dry, and there was no time to spare. The large boats were stationed to keep the beach clear with their guns; the cutter was anchored at the back surf, and by watching the rollers, they succeeded in thrusting her a rope, when the negroes were lowered and hauled through the surf; and conveyed as before to the Sappo, 200 more being rescued; then the wreck was set fire to and our people withdrawn.

We were in such a state, with 380 negroes crowding our decks, the stench was putrefying, and it was impossible to work the ship. In this state the second day closed upon us. We were 40 miles from Sharks' Point; the Captain resolved to go in his boat and ask for assistance.

They pulled all night in heavy rain, and at daylight on the 20th fortunately met the Vesuvius, Commodore Wise, with whom the Captain returned. Commodore Wise took the negroes on board the Vesuvius, to be sent to Sierra Leone in the Alector prize. Having the slaves on board has caused much sickness; it is passing without any fatal case. We are ordered to the Cape, we suppose to cruise in the Mozambique Channel; if so, it is probable our bones will be left there; its efflu-vits, after what we have been through for twenty months on this coast, will be finishing.

I have given you the history of one of the many American ships employed in the slave trade; six, I think have been taken. We seized the Pushta 30 miles up the coast, and sent her to New York. We do not know whether the American Government will condemn her.

GOLD IN OHIO.—Great excitement prevails in Bellevue, ten miles south of Mansfield, Richland Co., Ohio, in consequence of gold having been discovered in a hill about one half mile north-east of that village. It is stated that one day last week the owner of the land where the precious metal was discovered, and his son washed out, in six hours, about seven dollars worth of dust!

☞ CURE for the bite of a mad dog.—A writer in the National Intelligencer, says that spirits of hartshorn is a certain remedy for the bite of a mad dog. The wound, he adds, should be constantly bathed with it, and 3 or 4 doses, diluted, taken inwardly during the day. The hartshorn decomposes, chemically, the virus insinuated into the wound, and immediately alters and destroys its deleteriousness. The writer who resided in Brazil for some time, first tried it for the bite of a scorpion, and found that it removed pain and inflamation almost instantly. Subsequently, he tried it for the bite of a rattlesnake, with similar success. At the suggestion of the writer, an old friend and physician tried it in cases of hydrophobia, and always with success.

"Bury me not at Sea."

"Bury me not at sea."

Was the last request of a youthful boy,
The gentle of whose life had all nearly past,
And upon whose brow were now gently rung fast,
The deep shades of death, with a direful gloom,
Like the clouded sun, at the hour of noon.
Of his companies dear with tearful eye
That all gathered round to behold him die.
"No bury me not in the roundless sea,
Where the deep blue main my lonetomb will be;
Where the green sea weed will enfold my head,
And the cold damp rock will form my bed;
Where the dashing waves will compose my shroud,
And the howling winds with resounding loud,
Or advance and a lowly muttering.
My sad requiem will forever sing;
Where no monument my lone grave will show,
So that none of my resting place may know;
And my fate unknown will forever be,
Save—they buried him far away at sea.
But convey me back to my youthful home,
To the hazel-wood where I used to roam,
And inter me there in the lonely tower,
Where I used to sit in the twilight hour;
On the grassy mound by the silvery stream,
That glides swiftly by, like the lightnings gleam;
Where the summer breeze lowly whispering,
To my memory may ever sweetly sing.
Yes, convey me home that a father's eye
May behold the face of his youthful boy;
That his manly heart with sad grief o'ercast,
Like the the tender leaf scar'd by Autumn's blast,
May o'erlook the crimes, and the evils done,
And forgiveness speak of his truant son,
Who long years ago fled from home away
That a sailors life he might know at sea.
That convey me home that, above all,
A kind mothers tear on my grave may fall,
Like the gentle dew falling from above,
The sweetest proof of a mothers love.
That her tender heart may yet never sigh,
That her own dear boy must forever lie
In the caverns deep, 'neath the oceans wave,
Among monsters huge, there to find a grave.
But convey me back to my youthful home,
To the hazel wood where I used to roam,
And permit me there in a silence to lie,
But bury me not in the boundless sea."

The Crime, Poverty and Police of New York.

The following is the Quarterly report of the New York Deputy Superintendent:

OFFICE OF THE DEPUTY SUP'T,
New York, Feb 1, 1858.

To E. A. Tallmadge, General Sup't;

SIR:—It becomes my duty, in accordance with the law establishing the Metropolitan Police District, to make to you a report of the present condition of the Police force of the city of New York and the doings of the Department during the past quarter, which are the months of November and December of 1857, and January of 1858.

The whole number of the force is 941 divided as follows: 13 captains, 18 sergeants, 876 patrolmen and 34 doormen. The whole number of arrests amounts to 12,778, of which, excluding colored persons, 2,271 were natives, and 10,279 foreigners, classified as follows, Irish 8,000, Germans 1,223, English 577, Scotch 210, French 85, Italians 57, Canadians 55, Poles 16, Spanish 11, Swedes 6, West Indies 5, Cubans 5, Swiss 3, Hollanders 3, Welsh 2, Danes 1, Portuguese 1, Colored persons 225.

41,094 poor and destitute persons have been accomodated with lodgings of whom were foreigners. $13,283,38 in money has been taken from lodgers and prisoners and at the proper time restored to them 752 lost children have been found astray and returned to their parents. 809 stores and dwellings have been found open at all hours of the night, and either the owners notified of the fact or property secured. 61 fires have been extinguished by the aid of the police. The amount of property reported to this office as having been stolen from the citizens in various ways, amounts to $67,196,80, of which $36,333,42 has been recovered, leaving a balance of $30,863 48. 19,420 telegraph messages have passed to and from this office to the various precincts during this quarter, by which six lost women have been restored to their friends, 350 lost children have been restored to their parents or guardians; 112 stray horses, and 13 other animals restored to their owners; 125 fires reported; notices of 33 stolen horses promulgated through the department; 15 attempts at passing counterfeit money, on an apparently large scale, checked in like manner, and 35 arrests made by these notifications, which shows most conclusively the great utility of the telegraph as an auxiliary in acts of humanity, prevention of crime, and detection of criminals."

ADVERTISING.—Some men advertise for a short time after they commence business and think that it is sufficient; others intermit advertising after they have established a flourishing business by its aid. This is a mistake. From the moment a house ceases to advertise, however large its reputation and standing, it begins to decline. The changes are so rapid in this country, the public mind so constantly occupied by new applicants for its favor and its attentions, that to be out of the papers, where everybody seeks for information on every subject, is to be forgotten. The press is daily becoming, more and more a necessity and its usefulness as an advertising medium is as constantly increasing. No man is wise or just to himself, who undertakes to do business without availing himself of its advantages.

The Improvement of our Village.

Once again Spring with all its pleasure and beauty is at hand. The season is approaching when if at all for the year we must add to those long lines of young forest trees, which already line our broad streets and ornament our village.

We have heretofore said much upon the economy and advantage of doing this, and feel well satisfied, that among an intelligent class of community, such as Tecumseh could always boast of, and point to with conscious pride, these arguments need not be repeated. We only allude to the matter that it may not be too long deferred. The time is now rapidly approaching, when those having lots, not already thus ornamented, should arrange definitely, upon the full opening of the Spring, to continue these beautiful rows of maples, butternuts and elms, along the sidewalks in front of their lots. They can in no other way add so much to their value, so cheaply.

The next best and cheapest way to add to the value of those lots, is to petition for and build, a good plank side-walk along the front of their lots, where it is not already built. The building of side walks in front of our lots, is a good deal like building Rail Roads, it brings them nearer the market, and increases their value accordingly. When one gets fairly out upon a good side-walk, it is of but little consequence to him whether he goes twenty five, or one hundred rods, and the value of the more distant lots become forthwith brought into a more immediate competition with those more central.

The Village Corporation, under the action of its last Board, have adopted a liberal policy in this matter. They uniformly build in a good and substantial manner, and corresponding with the rest of the walk, all the street crossings, just so far as the property-holders are disposed to petition for, and build the remainder. There has not always been, and there may not be again, on the part of our Village Board, so liberal a policy in this matter, and would advise those of our citizens wanting side-walks, to secure them while they can.

There is more than a mile of good oak plank side walk already petitioned for, this Spring, and we have no doubt that amount will be doubled before the first of May. A good walk to the north end of the corporation, or Brownville, is much needed, and we understand is pretty sure to be built this Spring. This of itself will be nearly a mile in length.

We hope the Board will take early measure to have the Military Square, just enclosed in front of our new Union School House, properly ornamented with trees this Spring, also that large additions will be made to the forest trees ornamenting the new Cemetery. They are much needed there, and cannot be placed there too soon. The School Board also, we believe propose to supply the Union School ground with trees this Spring—We would suggest, that they extend the improvement to the grounds surrounding each of the three Primary School Houses.

The interest of every citizen of Tecumseh is one and mutual in this matter. It is our home and the home of our children and whatever is added to its comfort and attractiveness is shared equally by us all. Whatever it contains that is properly an object of pride, is equally a compliment to us all.

We owe it is true to its early founders, its beautiful location, its broad streets, and its ample public squares, but they belong to us, and our posterity to enjoy. As nature has given to them a perfect grade, we can well afford to expend at least a portion of what is usually required for this object, in improving and ornamenting them. Our lots are large and we have a fruitful soil. We have indeed a goodly heritage, let us not fail to appreciate and enjoy it. Well may we point with pride to our Schools, our Churches, our beautiful plain, and an intelligent, peace-loving, and moral population. Whatever industry and public spirit can add to the attractiveness of these, we should not fail cheerfully to bestow, until Tecumseh shall be known and felt to be the queen and pride of all the many beautiful rural villages which ornament our State.

Student's Column.

The Lake School Poets.

On account of the great diversity of taste among poets, and the different circumstances by which they have been surrounded, there have always existed various and distinct schools of Poetry.—Each of these has borne its own peculiarities, and has been stamped by the characteristics of its age. The classical yielded to the romantic and chivalric, the romantic and chivalric to the witty and intellectual, that to the impassioned, while the impassioned in its turn gave way to the more simple and natural style of the poets of Grasmere.

Wordsworth, Coleridge, Southey and Lamb, composed this celebrated school. Dwelling among the wild and picturesque scenes of the lakes of Cumberland and Westmoreland, surrounded by all that was lovely, beautiful, and grand in nature, they caught a higher inspiration than was ever breathed into their predecessors. They indeed "found tongues in trees, books in the running brooks, sermons in stones, and good in everything." Lofty mountains towered majestically above them, while sparkling in the golden sunlight, or beaming in the silvery moonlight, the numerous lakes lay scattered like diamonds over the hills and valleys. With souls filled with the beautiful imagery of a region like this, "remote from public haunt," and alone with God and nature, we can not wondor that they discarded the forced simile, and studied expressions of more world worn minds, and went back to almost primitive simplicity! Yet one of the most striking features in this school is derived from the German Literature, the wild mysticisms of which tempered by Christian principles, have acquired a purer and more elevated character, but still retain enough of mystery to touch the hidden chord in our natures, which ever responds to the marvelous and supernatural. Wearied and disgusted by the old conventional forms of expression, these poets sometimes went to the opposite extreme, and the studied simplicity of some of Woodsworth's writings, is as unintelligible to the uneducated, as the extravagant language he so much despised. But in purity of style, beautiful imagery, glowing fancies, and clearness of diction, these poets are unsurpassed.—With them poetry is but the reverent study of nature, they believe that to the true poets, she is constantly and intelligibly speaking, and they need only to listen to hear all the harmony of the great hymn she is ever chanting to her Creator. Their theory is emphatically the science of the beautiful. Their subjects are generally chosen from the simplest and most common incidents of life. Themes, which one would suppose it impossible to invest with any poetical interest, but around the lowliest things a fascination is thrown, which almost unconsciously awakens and rivets the attention of the reader.

Wordsworth's 'Excursion' is his greatest work, yet there seems little in the plan of it to interest or attract. It is simply an account of a walk among the mountains, and sketches of a few characters, with whom he met. But notwithstanding that many inconsistencies appear, and that there is a want of variety for which not even the beautiful and and pathetic scenes, and magnificient descriptions introduced, can entirely aton, still there is such a lofty sublimity of thought, such purity of sentiment expressed, and such a vein of moral truth and Christian feeling pervading the whole that one cannot help dwelling upon it, with ever increasing reverence and delight.

Coleridge's 'Christabel' is the poem by which he is best known. It comes to us like an interrupted vision, filled with wild imagery, mysterious fancies, and thrilling horrors, expressed in the most graceful and fascinating manner. Its irregular harmony and dreamy beauty are perfectly characteristic of the author.—"Thalabar the Astrologer," is the most popular of Southey's longer poems. The subject is taken from an Arabian tale.—The metre is peculiar, and accords well with the character of the poem. Charles Lamb, though properly belonging to this school, and in intimate companionship with them, can hardly be classed among the poets. His "Essays of Elia" are in prose, and abound in pleasant refined wit, quiet humor, and are written in chaste and beautiful language. The "Dream Children," and the Child Angel," are bewitching in their dreamy loveliness.

"The influence of this school of poets has been extremely beneficial, and extensively and lastingly felt. They have banished the exaggerated and impassioned style of their immediate predecessors, have opened a new field for the lovers of poetry—have purified, and elevated the standard of public taste, and devoted the divinely bestowed gift of Poetry to its truest, noblest, and most fitting purpose. Their first efforts were not properly appreciated, yet the literary world is fast learning to do justice to their merit, and those who at first overwhelmed them with ridicule, have now become their most enthusiastic admirers.

General News.

St. Louis, March 15.

John Hartwell, Secretary of Utah, arrived here on Saturday night. He left Camp Scott, January 26th. He reports the troops in comfortable condition and excellent health. Only four deaths had occured since the arrival of the command. In view of the serious, if not insurmountable obstacles presented by the fortifications and cannon of the Mormons, it was thought that an entrance to the valley would be made by another route, a hundred miles longer, but offering no obstructions of any magnitude. Two hundred of the principal men of the Utah Indians had been in the camp, and gave assurance of peace towards the Americans. The Cheyennes also desired peace, with the exception of those along the south side of the South Pass.

Hartwell met with no snow in the route. Grass was expected at an unusually early period. No mail had reached camp since that of Ocober. The mail of November, was at Green River; that of January at Fort Rocky Ridge, and that of February, six miles beyond Ash Hollow.

Washington, March 14.

Judge Douglas has been confined to his house for several days by severe sickness, but will resume his place in the Senate some time this week. He pronounces the reports as to the intention to resign his [illegible] without foundation, and as [illegible] friends that he intends to fig[illegible] in which he is now engaged. [illegible] will not be driven from his position by the threats or frowns of power nor moved from the purposes to which his life has been devoted by inducements proffered from any quarter. He says that with him it is a matter of principle which he will maintain at all hazards. There is no perceptible improvement in the physical condition of Senator Douglas and the partial loss of his eyesight is feared by his friends.

New York, March 15.

The Star of the West from Aspinwall, with San Francisco advices to the 20th ult., arrived here about one o'clock today. She brings the mails, $1,300,000 in specie, and 200 passengers. She connected with the John L. Stevens on the Pacific side, which brought to Panama $1,600,000 in freight.

The U. S. Sloop of war Jamestown, and the British steamer Leopold, are at Aspinwall. The U. S. steamer Fulton sailed on the 6th for San Juan, with despatches to the U. S. Minister at Nicaragua.

The steamship Philadelphia arrived at this port last night, with Havana dates to the 9th inst. They contain no news of importance.

Letters from Nassau mention the arrival at that place, on the 22d ult., of a boat containing 11 fugitive slaves, from Key West, and intelligence had been received of a large sloop being on the Great Bahama, having on board 30 fugitives from St. Augustine. The Bahama Friendly Society have dispatched a vessel in search of the sloop, and the Key West negroes have been provided with employment by the inhabitants of Nassau.

New York, March 15.

The Star of the West brings very little news from California.

The new revolution in Sonora has been baptized in blood. The Government of that State has issued a proclamation calling upon the people to exterminate the Gandara and their roober followers. The Gandara party have gained one victory over the Government troops, causing great destruction of life.

A letter from the Gadsden purchase says the Apaches are friendly, and want to form a treaty with the whites.

It is said that the Mexicans are about to emigrate to Northern Mexico, via the Colorado Valley.

The Government steamer, built for the exploration of the Colorado river, was aground, 150 miles above Fort Yuma.—A light draught boat, dispatched by Johnson & Co., had ascended to the white settlements, 350 miles above Fort Yuma. The river is believed to be navigable for light draught steamers, as far up as the Rio Virgin.

The California Legislature has transacted no business of interest.

The Sacramento Slave case was decided on the 11th, and the slave was handed over to his claimant. The decision is generally condemned by the press.

The Indians in Tuolomme Co., are giving some trouble, by murdering the whites.

Two telegraph lines are projected to run through the southern part of the State.

The counties of Youba, Sutler, Yolo and Solans, offers to raise $650,000 towards a R. R. between Marysville and Benicia.

The small pox was committing some ravages at the U. S. Marine Hospital, near Panama.

Information has been received that the Government of Nicaragua has denationalized Walker and his followers.

He expects to supply all things in this department in a way to meet the claims of Physicians, and the expectations of their prescriptions, so far as it regards the GENUINENESS of the articles.

There will be in constant attendance, at the store, night and day, one who can be relied upon for correctness in his services.

MOFFAT'S LIFE PILLS AND PHOENIX BITTERS.

The very painful symptoms which precede the attacks of fever and ague can be suppressed and all danger arrested, by the use of these valuable medicines. The pills and bitters are also a cure for rheumatism, and every variety of bowel complaint.

Sold by W. B. Moffat, 335 Broadway, N. Y. Taylor & Curtis Agents, Tecumseh.

SORE AND INFLAMED EYES.—These disagreeable complaints are becoming remarkably prevalent of late, and giving any thing but an interesting look to the possessor of the diseased organ. A red and fiery eye is not pretty to look at, and certainly cannot be agreeable to have "for keeps," as the boys say. We can tell these afflicted in this manner how to cure the evil, and won't charge them any thing for the information. Let them get some of BRAGG'S ARCTIC LINIMENT and touch the inflamed part with it a few times, and the work is done. The Arctic Liniment may be obtained at any of the Drug stores in this place.

DR. J. C. AYER, the world renowned Chemist of New England, is now stopping at the Burnet house in this city. He has been making a tour of the Western States, with his scientific associates, to investigate their remedial productions, or such as he can make remedial. We notice he has been received with marked distinction by our leading citizens of the West and are rejoiced to find they have shown a proper estimate of the man who has perhaps done more for the relief of human ills than any other American.—Cincinnati Journal.

The most skeptical people can be convinced by trial that all the family medicines are not humbug, and that among the thousand of butterly life there are a few of great merit, and undoubted worth. Of these, Dr. Sanford's Invigorator, or Liver Remedy stands first and foremost among the remedies of the day that can be relied on as a medicine that is all that is recommended by its proprietors.

It advertises itself on every trial, for there are none who use it but tell their friends to do so, and so it goes from mouth to mouth till all the people of the Union have learned the good of this truly valuable medicine. It is recommended with testimonials to prove its virtue for the cure of liver complaints of every kind, from the worst Dyspepsia to a common headache, and is particularly adapted to Jaundice, Deranged Stomach, Bowel Complaints and diseases of children.

One or two doses are said to cure a cold with severe attacks. It is worth a trial for this alone. It is particularly adapted to use of ladies, particularly those of sedentary habits. Some ladies of the highest standing in society have given their certificates of its efficacy, and we say to all who are ailing, try one bottle, and you will never be without it.

To Whom it May Concern.

Our connection with the Herald will cease the 12th of May next, and we are anxious to settle with all our friends before that day.

☞ The firm of Taylor and Curtis is dissolved. Mr. Taylor continues in the Drug business at Snell's old Store. Curtis & Stilson continue at the old stand.

AUCTION.—Thomas J. Faxon will sell a large amt., of property at public Auction Friday April, 9th at his residence in Raisin.

☞ Wilson Stout has a span of horses, a wagon and harness, to trade for Village property.

CONCERT.—The Ridgeway and Raisin Musical Association, under the direction of Calvin Robertson, will give a concert at the Methodist Church in Ridgeway, Friday Eve, March 19th. Instrumental music by the Tecumseh Orchestra. Admission fifteen cents.

HOWARD ASSOCIATION.—We refer our readers to the advertisement of the Howard Association, of Phil. We find the officers prompt, and take pleasure in recommending them to our friends.

PLEASANTRIES OVER THE TURK.—The visit of the Turkish Rear Admiral to New York, is made the source of much amusement by some of the papers of that city, and acts as a sort of relief to the monotony of the times.—Porter's Spirit, in noticing the attentions of the committee of the council to him, says:

"We are informed that he has remarked that, when the committee were first successful in affecting admission to his apartments; he did not know what kind of company he had got into. He is reported, however, to have been much pleased with the simple and unaffected hilarity of the committee, when, after dinner, one of them sung him a song, and the remainder exhibited their muscular powers in lifting weights, playing leap frog, and jumping over the backs of chairs. The Rear Admiral says that he is already able to detect a striking difference in our institutions, and that the manners of our distinguished men are not at all like the manners of the distinguished men of his own country. The Rear Admiral will probably remain with us for some days. It is said that when he first entered the Governor's room, at the city Hall, he took Mr. Thomas Hyer for the Mayor.

A MILWAUKEE SELL.—The Milwaukee Free Democrat has the following account of a painful tragedy:

"MELANCHOLY AFFAIR.—An individual named T. Hay, from one of the country towns, came into the city a day, with a team and sleigh, and stopped at the Menomonee Hotel—About noon, he went into the barn for the purpose of feeding his horses, and on going into another stall, was attacked by a vicious horse, and bitten several times severely. The ferocious animal also got him or pulled him down, and stamped on him several times before he was rescued. He was insensible when taken out, and his injuries are of such a nature, that it is thought he cannot recover."

It is hardly necessary to say that the full name of the 'individual' is Timothy Hay, a gentleman well known in all the barns of the city.

Michigan Press Association.

An adjourned meeting of this Association will be held in the city Hall in Ann Arbor, on Tuesday, March 23, at 10 o'clock, A. M. The committee on By-Laws, and on the Appointee system, are expected to report. An address will be delivered that day evening, at 7½ o'clock, by J. O. BALCH, Esq., of Marshall.

All the editors and publishers in the State are expected to be present.

Z. B. KNIGHT, Secretary.

Information Wanted.

Of Mr. Stephen Sharp, late of the town of Romsey, Hampshire England. Mrs. Sharp's maiden name was Mary Ann Cross. They emigrated to America in the year 1824. Her niece, Eliza Cross, is anxious to obtain tidings of them. When last heard of, they were in the State of Michigan. Any information respecting them will be thankfully received by their nephew, Richard Mason, care of Maclear & Co., 16 King street, Toronto.

☞ It appears that one of the most fashionable dress makers in New York turns out to be a man. For several years past he has been fitting dresses to the charming forms of the New York ladies, and fitting the ladies to the charming forms of their dresses. He is said to have been extremely popular, and many ladies regret that the discovery of his sex has extended beyond themselves.

A GOOD BOY.—A lad named O'Brien, who obtains a livelihood by peddling apples on the Elyria cars, found a few days since, a package of $5,500 in bank notes, which had been lost in the cars by a Mr. Bishop, who had brought the money from Cleveland for Mr. H E Mussey, of Elyria. The lad was so elated with his good fortune that he took the money to bed with him and sat up all night watching it.—Next day it was given to Mr. Mussey, when the lad was rewarded with a suit of clothes and a deed of 160 acres of land. We understand that Mr. Mussey also offered to give the boy a thorough business education, but the father declined for the present, as he did not wish to part with him.—Cleveland Herald.

☞ The Governor of Florida is calling out more volunteers for "the Billy Bowlegs war" The attempt to make this crooked Indian walk stright, costs a great deal of money.

☞ The trial of the conspirators against the life of the Emperor Napoleon resulted in the conviction of Orsini, Rudio, and Pierri, who had been sentenced to death, and of Gomez, who had been condemned to penal service for life.

☞ Some men cutting ice near Buffalo, actually sawed the body a man in two, without knowing it, until the parts were seen in the blocks of ice after they had been loaded upon the sleigh to be drawn to the ice house.

☞ A Prince of Japan, nephew of the Emperor, is about to visit Europe, to return by the way of America, and among his suite are engineers who are coming to study the system of Railways and the electric telegraph.

☞ At Evansville, In., a grand daughter of a revolutionary hero recently died of starvation, while he himself was suffering for food.

☞ The New york banks are glutted with money, the city with flour, and something like one fifth of the population dependant on charity

CAUGHT NAPPING.—A fellow with a ticket for a station just east of Syracuse, was roused from his slumbers by the Conductor of the night train, after starting east from Utica. The fellow, perfectly astonished, and only partially awake, exclaimed—"The d- -l—I' ain't the man you want—I got off at Chittenango!" The roar of laughter which followed this announcement fully aroused him.

☞ In a town on the line of Essex and Middlesex counties, Mass, a hen-house was entered and robbed. The next morning the owner missed his biddies, but discovered the portmonaie of the thief containing sixty dollars and his name, lying on the floor! No questions were asked.—The hen-fancier is said to pass for a respectable and honest citizen.

☞ Capt. Harrison, who is to command the Leviathan, writes that he is in hopes to be in Portland with his vessel in the latter part of the month of June, and that he proposes to remain there with her seven weeks. An admittance fee will be charged to all visitors on board the vessel.

GET A HOME.—Get a home, rich or poor, get a home, and learn to love that home, and make it happy to wife and children by your own presence; learn to love simple pleasures, flowers of God's own planting, and music of his own; the bird, wind and waterfall. So shall you help to stem the tide of desolation, poverty and despair, that comes upon so many through scorn of little things. O, the charm of a little home; comforts dwell there that shun the gilded halls of society. Live humbly in your little house, and look to God for a grander one.—Emery's Journal of Agriculture.

MAKE READY.—The moment the ground opens in the spring and is sufficiently dry, select a half acre as near as ner the house as possible, and plow it three or four times for a garden. Make it fine and deep with plenty of well rotted, barnyard manure. The earlier you can plant peas, vegetable oysters and parsnips the better. If you have it not, plant out a bed of asparagus; you can get the plants of almost any nurseryman; one hundred plants will be about right for a common family, and will cost from 50 cents to $2.—Emery's Journal of Agriculture.

Bragg's Arctic Liniment.

This unequalable Liniment upon which the great mass of afflicted of all lands, now rely for relief from the pangs of Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Gout, Erysipelas Cancer, Scrofula, Sprains, Bruises, Burns, Scalds, and all cutaneous diseases is rapidly superseding all similar preparations. The proprietors give for the encouragement of sufferers, the following memorandum of a few of the many cures effected by it during the past few months. Certificates from the parties named are in the possession of the proprietors; their length precludes the publication of all but a few.

One Bottle Triumphant.

Mrs Moffitt, No 345 Morgan Street, St Louis, having suffered for three years with Rheumatism, and tried many preparations without effect, was cured by one fifty cent bottle of Arctic Liniment

Out of Purgatory

Henry Davis, Mound street, St Louis, who says he was "suffering the pangs of purgatory" with neuralgia for months, was cured by three or four applications of the Arctic Liniment.

Pity the Little Children.

A little daughter of Mrs. Lee, residing on Lake St Chicago, was scalded all over by the upsetting of a kettle of boiling water. The Arctic Liniment was applied according to the directions and the fire was instantly extracted, and in a few days the little sufferer was well.

Restored to Beauty.

Mrs George K. Tyler, Canal street, N Orleans had long suffered from a painful and disfiguring eruption on the face, and by the use of one bottle of the Liniment was cured, and restored to her original beauty.

A Horrible Tumor.

Eugene Mallory, Natchez was three years the victim of a horrible tumor on the neck, which resisted all remedies until he tried the Arctic Liniment. Three bottles cured him in a few weeks.

Wonderful Cure!

Mrs Botford, Mobile, was confined to her couch for three years with numb palsy and after being in despair from the failure of all other remedies, was cured by the Arctic Liniment, in a little over a month.

An Explosion.

Memphis, Tenn Nov. 28th 1857.

I hereby certify that having been badly bruised and scated by the explosion of a steam boiler, a friend induced me to try Bragg's Arctic Liniment. The smart was instantly extracted from the scalds, and in a very short time all the pain was gone from the bruises.—In two weeks I was well, and able to resume my business.

The Blind See!

Webster City, Iowa, Nov. 9th, 1857.

Dr. A. G Bragg, Dear Sir. For more than three years I had been afflicted with inflamed eyes, in an aggravated degree, and tried various Physicians, and several nostrums to no effect I was induced by Dr. Baum to try the Arctic Liniment, and in two months was nearly well. My little daughter was afflicted in the same manner for the same time, and during a portion of the time was entirely blind in one eye. I applied your valuable Liniment, and her eyes are perfectly sound. Thus have I, with one two-bit bottle cured my daughter's eyes and my own, besides curing the rheumatism in my back. I would not be without your invaluable remedy in my house Yours Truly

Wm. RUSSELL.

Webster City, Iowa, Nov. 9th, 1857.

I hereby certify, that I am well acquainted with Wm Russell, and with the astonishing cures he mentions, and know his statement to be perfectly true.

Good for Animals.

This invaluable Liniment is also equally efficatious in curing the diseases of animals, as witness the following certificate: Messrs J. & A. Arnot, and Lynch, Arnet & Co. keep the two largest livery stables in the west and are generally known throughout the U. S.

St. Louis, Dec 23rd, 1857.

We, the undersigned, having used Dr. Bragg's Arctic Liniment for a number of months, cheerfully testify to its superior efficacy in curing the diseases of horses; so well are we satisfied of the Arctic being the best Liniment made, that we would use no other. We keep and have kept for a number of years, extensive livery stables in this city, and consequently our experience about horses and their diseases is great, and we unhesitatingly say, that the Arctic Liniment is the only one we have ever found ALWAYS EFFECTIVE. We cordially recommend it to all livery stable keepers and others having the care of horses

Caution.

Many Druggists having old liniments on hand, will try to sell them to you as the best, but do you positively refuse to purchase them. Ask for BRAGG'S ARCTIC LINIMENT, and take no other

Liberal Proposition.

The proprietors agree to furnish each purchaser of a dollar bottle, with a free subscription to the U. S Journal, for one year. This is one of the best N Y illustrated papers. A certificate, entitling the holder to the benefit of this proposition, is enclosed in the wrapper around every dollar bottle. The Arctic Liniment is put up in 25 cent and 50 cent and $1 bottles. The 50 cent and $1 bottles contain 66 and 100 per cent more Liniment in proportion to their cost, and are the cheapest. For sale by

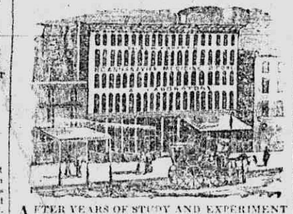
DR ROBACK'S BLOOD PURIFIER AND BLOOD PILLS.

DISEASE VANQUISHED.

BY

Dr. Roback's Scandinavian Remedies.



AFTER YEARS OF STUDY AND EXPERIMENT Dr. Roback, the eminent Swedish Physician, succeeded in producing a medicine from twenty-three different species of roots, herbs and barks of the native land which acts directly upon the causes of disease in the blood, and by restoring the corrupted fountain of life to a condition of health and purity, expels disease from the system wherever it may be located, or whatever may be its character. Indigestion, nervous complaints, epectic fits coughs, consumption in its early stages, sore throat, bronchitis fever and ague asthma, low spirits, sexual incapacity, feminine weakness, pricking of the skin, symptomatic of paralysis, rheumatism, neuralgia, lumpy cancer, diabetis, lassitude and debility diarrhœa, and all other disorders of the organs of respiration, the liver, the kidneys, the stomach, the nerves or the muscular fiber are unerringly cured by this preparation. It is in the majority of cases of seed of disease what an alkali is to an acid. It neutralizes them with absolute certainty while at the same time it regulates the secretions removes obstructions from the bowels, creates appetite renews bodily vigor and regenerates every animal function. Such is the nature, such are the effects of Dr. Roback's famous Scandinavian Blood Purifier which if taken in conjunction with his Scandinavian Blood Pills, will not only obliterate the most painful disease but prevent their recurrence, and lengthen life beyond the ordinary span.

In the SCANDINAVIAN VEGETABLE BLOOD PILLS, Dr. Roback presents the result of twenty years of experience, hard study and experiment at to what a perfect pill should be. No one can doubt their superiority after one single trial. Price of the Scandinavian Blood Purifier, $1 per bottle or $6 per half-dozen; Scandinavian Blood Pills, 25 cents per box, or five for $1.

From Miami Co. Ind., Aug. 4, 1857.

Dr. C. W. ROBACK: I have received so much benefit from your scandinavian Blood Purifier and Blood Pills that I have thought it my duty and it is no less my inclination to give you a plain statement of my case. I was for years afflicted with that bane of all comfort and effective indigestion—dyspepsia. I recapitulate all the so called remedies which I have used to rid myself of this disease, would indeed make a melancholy catalogue. I at last consulted with the best physicians I could hear of. I was induced to try your remedies through the persuasion of a friend, and after using them a few days was greatly benefitted and in a short time less than a month, I was entirely and permanently cured. I was also afflicted with the most violent nervous headache which I suppose was produced by my disordered stomach, for when my dispepsia left me my headache left with it. I now feel better in every respect than I have for ten years.

Very truly yours. JOHN S DEMUTH

From the Rev Mr. McMULLEN, Pastor of Roberts Chapel: INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 5 1857

DR. C. W. ROBACK—Dear Sir: I have used your Blood Purifier for a nervous affection, from which I have suffered much of late time. While it is pleasant to the taste it certainly has a happy effect upon the nerves. Please accept my thanks for your kind regards and acts and believe me,

Yours, J. W. T. McMULLEN.

FROM A WELL-KNOWN STEAMBOAT CLERK,

Louisville, June 4, 1857

DEAR DOCTOR: Send me half a dozen boxes of your Pills, care of H. O. Card & Co., so I can get them next trip. Six weeks ago nothing could have convinced me that a twenty-five cent box of Pills could have relieved my obstinate chronic constipation, with its attending evils. I told you so when I bought them but I am bound to own that your Pills 'fill the contract.' Why I have taken as many as six (6) of ——'s and other makers' sometimes without effect and sometimes with too much effect; but I have no trouble with yours—they are just what I want.

CINCINNATI, Friday, Sept. 4, 1857.

DR. ROBACK—DEAR SIR: Having been afflicted with neuralgia or rheumatism for the past year and a half and having seen your medicine, called the Scandinavian Blood Purifier, highly recommended by gentlemen with whom I am acquainted, I was induced to try it, but not before I had used various other medicines without benefit. I felt its effect very sensibly and upon using two more, I found myself perfectly cured. You will allow me, therefore, to congratulate you upon making a discovery in medicine which is proving itself to be a worker of such wonders in the diseases of the human family.

GEORGE S BENNETT.

Local Editor Cincinnati Daily Enquirer.

INDIANAPOLIS, Wednesday, Sept. 2, 1857.

DR. C. W. ROBACK: Dear Sir: Having been troubled for several years with extreme debility and weakness, so much so that I was unable to attend to my ordinary business at times, and having heard of the wonderful cures that your Scandinavian Blood Purifier and Pills were effecting, I was induced by a friend to try them. I have been using the Purifier for the last twelve months, and find the medicine fully equal to its recommendations. So valuable is it to me that I cannot now dispense with the use of it at my advanced age of life—seventy-seven years.

I cheerfully give this information for the benefit of those similarly afflicted. MORRIS MORRIS.

Denies the Soft Impeachment.

One of our native poets, tickled at a little circumstance that happened in his family, in a sentimental fit rushed into print with it, and attempted to father it upon the carelessness of St. Peter; but the old custodian, it will be seen denies the soft impeachment. The two "plums" are passing among the current literature of the day:

My Child's Origin.

BY DAVID BARKER.

One night as old Saint Peter slept,
He left the door of Heaven ajar,
When through a little angel crept,
And came down with a shining star.

One summer as the blessed beams
Of morn approached, my blushing bride
Awakened from some pleasing dreams,
And found that angel by her side.

Oh! grant but this—I ask no more;
That when he leaves this world of sin,
He'll wing his way to that blessed shore,
And find that door of heaven again.

St. Peter's Reply.

Full eighteen hundred years or more,
I've kept my doors securely tied,
There has no little angel strayed,
Nor has been missing all the while.

I did not sleep as you supposed,
Nor leave the door of heaven ajar;
Nor has a 'little angel' left,
And gone down with a falling star.

Go ask that 'blushing bride' and see
If she won't frankly own and say,
That when she found that angel babe,
She found it in the good old way.

God grant but this—I ask no more;
That should your number be enlarged,
That you will not do as before
And lay it to old Peter's charge.

Old Friends.

REGULARITY OF LIFE.

Forty years ago this present month of October, two merchants of this city, who had been school follows together, met on a bright autumn afternoon after the business of the day was over, in front of the Tontine Coffee House, and as they walked up Wall street together, one said to the other, 'Come and dine with me to day.—Monday always seems a dull day, and my wife and I like to have some one drop in socially, and dine or take tea with us."—The invitation was accepted, and after dinner, as they sat over their wine, (limited to a couple of glasses each,) and talked of their schooling days and of their pleasant intercourse in the year that succeeded they agreed to dine with each other on alternate Mondays, unless prevented by sickness or other causes, SO LONG AS THEY SHOULD LIVE. Time passed on; sons and daughters were borne to them, grew up married and settled in a life; grand children, too, have not been wanting. New York has grown from one of the plainest of little cities, to be one of the greatest cities of the world; her commerce has increase beyond the wildest dream of imagination in former days; hotels and warehouses line her streets, steamers and other shipping her wharves, and private dwellings of more than princely elegance her up-town squares and avenues, all on a scale of such magnificence, that who had prophesied of such things, would once have been thought an enthusiastic dreamer. Our whole country, and indeed the world, has changed in the ratio until the mind is lost in conjecturing what two more score of years will produce. Eleven different Presidents have governed our own nation, and the old nations of the old world have changed their rulers from revolutions and other causes, again and again. Such are the changes time has made, and still these two old friends, hale and hearty yet, may may be seen every Monday afternoon going up the street together to fulfil the mutual promise they made to each other in their early manhood. They set a high standard, at the commencement of their mercantile life, of what an honorable upright merchant should be, and have never departed from it; and if they have not been among the wealthiest of the merchant princes of the Empire City, they have had enough, and have spared not a little when the demands of public and private charities have been presented to them. May they long live to enjoy life as well as at this present period, and set the same good example to younger men who may follow in their footsteps.—Express.

all very bright and beautiful on the other side.'

'Perhaps it is,' said Katie more hopefully.

But now the large drops began to fall very fast, and a thunder-storm, in all its sublimity, burst upon the little travelers. The burdened west was gleaming like an ocean of flame, and the floor of heaven resounded to the solemn tread of the mighty thunder. Still the little children, with clasped hands and pale lips, pressed on, and their angels, who 'do always behold the face of our Father,' watched over them lovingly, and they walked secure in the heavenly company.

At last the busy pattering feet, reached the gloomy entrance, and Katie's sweet copeful lips were pressed close to the cold door.

'Knock,' cried Belle; and with all her strength Katie did knock; and a hollow echo was all her reply, while the dead within heeded not the call from fresh, young, hopeful lips, and the little brother with folded eyes, and pale clasped hands, heard not the sweet imploring cry.

'Charley, dear Charley, it is your sister, your own sister Katie; wont you open the door?'

'He does not hear you Katie, it thunders so' said Belle. "Let us wait a little while,' and they waited.

Soon there was a lull in the storm and again Katie, strong in faith, knocked at the dreary door, and her loving cry, 'Charley, dear Charley,' echoed sadly back.

'Do you hear anything,' asked Belle, with parted lips; 'is he coming.'"

'No,' replied Katie; 'I thought once I heard his little feet, but it was only the rain.'

'Perhaps,' suggested Belle, with large imaginative eyes, 'perhaps he is playing with the angels a great way off, in a beautiful garden.'

'Oh,' sobbed Katie, 'I hope he will not love the little angels more than me!'

'Knock once more, just once,' whispered Belle.

With wavering faith again the little soft hand pleaded for entrance, and a tremulous voice cried piteously, 'Charley, arling, dear, sweet little brother, pleased open the door to your own Katie. Don't love the little angels better than me. Oh Charley, Charley!" She threw herself upon the ground, and sobbed in agony of grief and disappointment.

'Katie,' said Belle, half-frightened at this outburst, 'let us go home now,' and come again to-morrow and try.

"No," said Katie, with touching hopelessness, "I shall never come again. Let us go"

She rose without another sob, or fresh tear, even upon the wet cheek; but the grieved expression of the sweet childish mouth was pitiful to behold.

Back over the dreary way went Katie and Belle. Little shoes wet, little dresses dripping, little heads bent like dewt laden flowers, little hearts very heavy.

At Katie's door stood her anxious mother, peering through the shadows for her darling.

The child sprang to those loving arms, and with one cry that spoke all the agony of bitter doubt that had crept into her young confiding heart, exclaimed,

'Oh, mother, I have been knocking at the door of heaven, and Charley would not let me in.'

Dear, grieved little Katie! refusing to be comforted in this, thy first great sorrow, it may be that ere the violets come again, "God's hand will beckon unawares," and, with a better guide, thou shalt find, indeed, the "door of heaven." Then knock, little pilgrim, and thou shalt be heard amid the the hallelujahs of all the heavenly choirs. Back shall roll the blessed portals, and Charley shall lead thee with eager wings to the feet of Him who loves little children, while the song of angels shall be, 'Of such is the kingdom of heaven."—*N. People may be taken in once, who imagine that an author is greater in private life than other men. Uncommon parts require uncommon opportunities for their exertion.

There is nothing too little for so little a creature as man. It is by studying little things that we attain the great art of having as little misery and as much happiness as possible.

Knocking at the Door.

A TRUE STORY.

The glowing sun of a midsummer afternoon poured through the curtainless windows of the little village school, and small curly heads drooped like delicate flowers in the languid air. Among them all, little Katie's sunny ringlets hung the lowest, and if you had lifted the golden veil, you would have seen that the weary eyes had forgotten to con the long line of hard words in the worn spelling-book and that the silked fringes of the drooping lids were pillowed lovingly upon the sweetest little cheeks in the world. Yes; in the heated air, soothed by the lazy drone of the hungry flies, and restless hum of young student voices, Katie had fallen asleep.

She was dreaming too. She was dreaming of the little brother, darling Charley, who, in the bright spring time—when the violets were just opening their sweet blue eyes after their long sleep—had strayed away from earth, and passed through those gates of glory, always open for the entrance of little feet. And she dreamed that she clasped him to her lonely heart and begged him never to leave her again, and amid the greatness of her joy, she sobbed aloud, and started to find Belle's soft arm around her, and to hear her whisper—

'What is the matter, darling?'

Before poor Katie could well collect her thoughts to answer, the school was dismissed, and she heard the teacher exclaim as she pointed to the darkening west, 'Hurry home children, or you will be caught in the shower.'

But Katie could not hurry, and she walked slowly out of the door, again litt'e Belle's sweet voice cried—'Poor Katie, are you sick?'

Then Katie poured into the sympathizing ear of her little friend all her troubles and finished by saying,

'I could not bear to find it all a dream I feel as if I must see Charley once more.

'Where do you think he is?' asked Belle.

'In heaven I know,' replied Katie; 'and mother says he can't come back to us but we can go to him some time," and her sobs broke out afresh.

'Why don't you go to him now?' said Belle.

'I don't know the way,' said Katie 'I was very sick when they took him away in the little coffin, and I don't know where they went.

'Are you sure they went to heaven?' said Belle eagerly.

'Oh, I know it,' said Katie.

'Then,' said the impulsive Belle, then I can show you the way. I saw where they put your little brother.' The glad light in Katie's tearful eyes was beautiful to behold.

'Will you show me, Belle, now, this afternoon.

'Yes, indeed,' cried Belle, and with clasped hands, unmindful of the gathering gloom, these little pilgrims set forth on their to journey to heaven.

Once on the way a doubt oppressed Belle. 'Are you sure, Katie that you can get in?'

'Ah,' said Katie, with sweet assurance 'how Charley would run to open the door?' and her cheek flushed with anticipation.

'Do you suppose Charley is very happy,' urged Belle.

'Very,' said Katie, emphatically.

'And what does he do all the time?'

"Plays with the angels with such lovely wings,' cried Katie with great animation.

'And they pick up stars, that lie all over the floor of heaven, and play with them. And the rainbows, I suppose they keep them up all the summer; and how Charley used to love rainbows! He cried once because'—

'Dear me,' said Belle, interrupting her in great dismay, 'it rains and we are so far from home; what shall we do?'

'But we're almost to heaven, arn't we? Let us hurry and go in there.'

'Yes,' said Belle, I see the door.'

'Where, where?' cried Katie breathlessly.

'There,' responded little Belle, pointing to the rising ground and iron door of the village vault.

'Oh,' exclaimed Katie, with intense disappointment, is this heaven? Oh Belle it is like a grave,' and her little lip quivered sadly.

'Why,' said Belle, 'that is where they took your brother, the very place, and you said he had gone to heaven; besides,' continued she, brightening, 'when we get through the little, dark door, it may be all very bright and beautiful on the other side.'

'Perhaps it is,' said Katie more hopefully.

But now the large drops began to fall very fast, and a thunder-storm, in all its sublimity, burst upon the little travelers. The burdened west was gleaming like an ocean of flame, and the floor of heaven resounded to the solemn tread of the mighty thunder. A Very Common Case.

Sniffles is, of all unfortunate men, the unfortunatest. Sniffles had just got his wardrobe in apple-pie order, and congratulated himself that he would be able to worry along through the year 1858, without being obliged to suit himself with a tailor, or having an increase of his "bills payable." Most fatal of fallacies,—most redieulous of illusions. Yesterday morning he left home for business. During his absence one of those wandering Hebrew Minstrels, who "always sells goots lesh dan dey costs," rang the front door bell and requested so see Mrs Sniffles. Mrs. Sniffles appeared and the minstrel opened his panniers and displayed, in all their glory, elegant setts of Honiton, Maltese, Valenciennes, Point Applique, Brussels collars, chemisettes, and undersleeves.—Good gracious! didn't Mrs. Sniffles eyes project at this array?—for if Mrs. S. had a taste for anything, it was for laces, and on these points she couldn't be deceived. She was aware however, of the stupendous expense attached to tastes of this description, and retained presence of mind enough to tell him to go right away or she would be distracted, as she had no money. The lace person immediately responded, "I want no monish—only old cloth, only old cloth." At this Madame Sniffles' face grew absolutely radiant.—She ran up stairs and in a few minutes came down with the servant "loaded down to the guards" with clothes of every description. She selected a Honiton lace sett which the Jew said was "cheap at forty dollarsh," and then went with his nose turned up, commenced sorting out the old (?) clothes. He first picked out Mr. S.'s best suit, three silk dresses that Mrs. S. had not worn three months, two every day coats, a spring overcoat, and four linen coats, and said that if Mrs. S. would give him "four dollarsh," he wo'd trade. Mrs S gladly consented, handed over the $4, and the Jew left declaring he was "sheated."

When Sniffles came home to his dinner, Mrs. S. triumphantly exhibited her purchase to the astonished Sniffles, who was so paralyzed at her list of old (?) clothes she had exchanged for the laces, that he could not speak. Finally he found voice and said, "Mrs. S.—wife of my bosom; I have nursed an adder,—you are said adder. The clothes you have sold for these paltry laces were worth, at the least calculation, $140, and the laces would be dear at $7. You gave him $4, so you have sold the $140 worth of clothes for $3.—I'll have a divorce at once." He then sat down exhausted, Mrs. Sniffles having wilted down into a chair during this speech. Mr. Sniffles left the house with a slam to the door that nearly shook the whole front in, and stood out all night at a billiard room, knocking the balls about in a tremendous manner, under the impression perhaps, that he was punching the heads of Jew lace peddlers. He hasn't been home yet, and declares he will have a divorce. Haggard and hollow eyed, he is the very symbol of the effects of misplaced confidence.

THE MOTHER'S INFLUENCE.—The solid rock that turns the edge of the chisel bears forever the impress of the leaf and acorn, received long, long since, ere it had become hardened by time and elements. If we trace back to its fountain the mighty current which fertilizes the land with its copious streams, or sweeps over it with a devastating flood, we shall find it dripping in crystal drops from some mossy crevice among the distant hills; so too, the gentle feelings and affections that enrich and adorn the heart, and the mighty passions that sweep away all the barriers of the soul, and desolate society, may have sprung up in the infant bosom, in the sheltered retirement of home. "I should have been an atheist," said John Randolph, "if it had not been for one recollection, and that was the memory of the time when my dear departed mother used to take my little hands in hers, and caused me on my knees to say 'Our Father who art in Heaven!'"

☞ Two boys of the Ann Arbor Union School, missed no recitation during all of the last term and were tardy but twice.—They walked 4 1-2 miles each morning to reach school. Those boys will make true men.

☞ A lady, wishing the service of a dyer, was referred to an excellent workman. The lady asked: "Are you the dying man?" "No, ma'am, I'm a living man but I'll dye for you."

Dost thou Remember.

(To an old flame.).

Dost thou remember the bright days agone;
When we were in the spring time of our Youth—
When all the earth seemed beautified to us,
And all seemed Truth.

Dost thou remember how our hours were spent,
Rambling together in the deep green woods
Or sitting on the bank of a rippling stream,
In pensive mood?

Dost thou remember all our cherished haunts—
The hillside thicket, and its rustic seat;
The garden with its flowers and evergreens,
Where we did meet?

Dost thou remember how we oft have sat
Neath leafy trees, with naught but stars or moon
To gaze upon our blissful happiness—
At nights fair noon?

And O, dost thou remember how we loved?—
Or how I loved: for I shall ever deem Thine but a passion simulating love—
A cheating dream.

Dost thou remember that sad, wintry night,
(When with a strange sad presentiment,)
I kissed thy cold lips, bidding thee farewell,
And from thee went?

And I have never seen thee since. Thy form
Dwells now amid the visions of my youth.
Alas! by lessons sad I've learned that earth
Is not all truth

LITERARY NOTICES.

Godey's Lady Book.

The April No of Godey is promptly upon our table. Its leading embellishments are "The fishing party" a beautiful colored Fashion plate which is well worthy of being counted an embellishment and the "Old time Grandfather." Its leading contents are—the conclusion of 'Elder's biography of Dr. Kane,' 'Blanche Brandon,' 'Our Two gifts,' concluded, 'Margaret's Home' continued and 'Reminiscenes of Eliza Leslie' Published Monthly by L. A. Godey Philadelphia. Terms $3,00 per annum 2 copies $5,00 5 copies $10,00 and one extra to the person sending the club.

The Lady's Home Magazine.

Arthur's Magazine is received and always welcome. 'The Italian Peasant Boy' is a fine design, also a plate of Popular Flowers. Among its leading articles we notice 'Love's Influence,' 'Only Here' by Miss Townshend and the 'Young Governess continued by T. S. Arthur. Published monthly by T. S. Arthur & Co., Philadelphia Terms $2,00 per annum.—Four copies $5,00.

BEWARE OF A DANGEROUS COUNTERFEIT.—The Albany Journal cautions the public against an admirable counterfeit $5 bill on the Morris County Bank, Morristown, N. J. It was a photograph on good paper, well executed, the red ink penetrating through and as distinct upon the back as on the face, with the names of the cashier and president nearly traced upon the bill. The bill was one of several hundred recently taken by the Police of New York. The bills are so well executed that they were not only taken by the banks in the city of New York, but were also redeemed at the counter of the Morris Co., Bank.

AGRICULTURAL COLLEGES.—Europe has four hundred agricultural colleges.—The United States has one, that in Michigan, with a hundred pupils. Others have been organized in other States, and some promise to be opened during the present year, such as those established in New York, Pennsylvania and Maryland.—Virginia has taken some steps towards one.

THE UNION BANK DEFAULTER.—Brotherson's wife converses freely in regard to him, and stated to a lawyer, who called upon her, that some years ago, previous to her marriage, B. told her that there was a defalcation in the Union bank of $100,000, and asked her if she would marry him knowing this fact! She consented, and has faithfully kept his secret, but she says that it has worried him night and day, and that he has repeatedly resolved to make a confession to the president but could not raise sufficient courage. She says that B. asked for his pistol when he left, but seeing his excitement, she refused to let him have it, and he went away without it, telling her that she would not see him again for many years.

HARD HIT.—An Ohio stumper while making a speech recently, paused in the midst of it and exclaimed—

'Now, gentlemen, what do you think?'

Instantly a man arose in the assembly and with one eye partly close, modestly, with Scotch brogue, replied—

'I think, sir, I do, indeed, sir—I think if you and I would stump the county together, we could tell more lies than any two men in the country, sir, and I'd not say a word myself all the time sir.'

Notice to Postmasters.

The Postmaster General has recently decided that if postmasters do not give publishers of newspapers notice that their papers remain in the post office, without being taken out by the subscribers, within five weeks, they are liable for pay.

A Mexican Protectorate.

It will be seen that the idea of a Protectorate over the affairs of our unhappy and distracted neighbor by this government, is being a good deal urged by a portion of the press about Washington, and it is thought is seriously entertained by the President himself.

Were this a question by itself, unmixed with any other, we should consider it illy advised and unfortunate in our government to entangle itself with Mexican affairs in any way. They are manifestly unfit, as yet, for a republican government. They can neither appreciate, nor are they inclined to sustain one. The Catholic religion, and a Roman Catholic Priesthood, as an element of political power, are inconsistent with the genius of our government.

Divers interests have already sufficiently distracted the councils of the nation, without any special effort on our part to farther extend and increase that diversity.

Those who urge this measure insist that it is rendered especially necessary because England, France and Spain, are upon the verge of establishing a Monarchy there, and sustaining it under a Protectorate from the old world.

We do not believe this, but should they attempt it, we would then show them what we mean by the Monroe doctrine, and show them too that it is not simply the doctrine of a party, but of the whole American people. It is enough and more than enough for the decaying tyranies of a former age to continue for their brief remaining space to cripple and to curse the land that give them birth.

But while we are all united in this, it is much more difficult to bring our minds to recognize a necessity for so great a departure from the original genius and scope of our institutions and government assume ourselves a semi-monarchial control over the institutions and policy of a feebler sister upon our borders. It will be difficult to find in our constitution the warrant for any such course as this, or that the States have any when delegated to the general government the authority necessary to carry it into effect.

We do not say that there might not be circumstances in which it would be the duty of the government to devise means toward the aid and support of a legitimate authority in Mexico as against the intrigues of the corrupt hierarchies and tyrannies of the old world—best we do say that whilst denouncing and opposing tyranny and kingly rule we should long pause before taking a step which cannot fail to bring upon us the obloquy, of aiding and arrogating, one of the first and highest acts of an irresponsible and tyranic sway.

☞ We learn from the Cleveland Herald that the Directors of the C. & T. Railroad Company held a special meeting on Thursday. Dr. Kittridge resigned his office as Cashier, his resignation to take effect April 1st. H. C. Luce, who now is Auditor, was elected Treasurer of the Company, and also Secretary. The successor of Dr. Kittridge as cashier has not yet been chosen. The Treasurer's office is now located in Cleveland. The Transfer Office of course will remain in New York, at the Corn Exchange Bank, at whose counter the coupons of the company are payable.

GREAT WHEAT CROP.—The St. Paul Minnesotian says, on sixty acres of land in Washington County, Minnesota, there was raised this season the enormous yield of three thousand bushels of wheat, or 50 bushels to the acre. The grain is of the finest and heaviest quality, actually weighing four or five pounds more to the bushel than the standard weight. The crop was raised from seed that has long been in the Territory, and was thoroughly acclimated. Winter's cold has no effect on it

SENATOR WADE'S SPEECH.—The speech of Hon. B. F. Wade in the Senate, on the Kansas question, was one of the raciest speeches of the session. It was one of the most effective. Throughout the great Northwest, it will create a particular sensation, and many of its richer points and passages will not soon be forgotten.

RELIGIOUS.—Religious revivals on the Hudson are very animating. At Yonkers over two hundred have been converted. At Peekskill daily meetings are held in the Methodist church, commencing at 5 o'clock A. M., and a whole Firemen's company has been converted. At Hudson revivals are going on, and many have sought and found peace. At Poughkeepsie the churches were filled Sunday night with 'inquirers.' Meetings are held every afternoon from 4 to 5.

Student's Column.

"The Human Verb"

One day as I was sitting at my window, watching the busy throng of people as they hurried by, it occurred to me that people as well as language might be parsed. Just then a young man passed along swinging his arms and casting supercilious glances on those less favored, than himself. This young man or gentleman as he evidently thinks himself, thought I, is in the indicative mood, for his manner indicates that he thinks he is just right and his every motion declares it: passive voice, he certainly has no mind of his own, and present tense, he is like too many of the young men nowadays, first person, always speaking, plural number, he feels himself equivalent to three or four common people.

Then passed an old man, He is in the subjunctive mood, he feels rather doubtful of his situation in society, past tense, he is far behind the times; second person, he is spoken to but does not seem inclined to answer, singular number he denotes but one.

Next passed a blue-eyed fair-haired child of a few summers. Her merry laugh rang out on the air, and her motions were as easy and as graceful as the bending willow.

She was ever glad and happy. This, thought I, is indicative. She is continually asking questions, present tense, she looks neither forward nor backward, her step is ever light and voice tuned to the song of nature.

Then came the student with thoughtful brow and lofty carriage. He sees not the things which might gladden his pathway. This is the future he is ever forming plans for after life, his song is ever "I shall be perhaps great and honored, and my name shall be known and esteemed as I wish it to be."

Amid the busy throng of passers-by, I observed one man that commanded so much of my attention that I placed him in the imperative mood. His word was law. Not on wealth did he stand but on true moral worth.

Then there came a merry laughing boy, bounding along rejoicing in his freedom. He is irregular, active transitive and in the infinitive mood, is enjoying himself in an unlimited manner, is governed by that cross looking nurse who is coming in search of her truant charge.

The next thing that attracted my attention was a splendid carriage, drawn by beautiful horses, containing a gentleman and his family, who seemed to be enjoying themselves, by admiring the different scenes that were presented to their view. It was going so rapidly that before I could parse any more than the gentleman it was out of sight. He, thought I, is potential mood for from the mere glimpse I caught of the Lady he may, can, or must do only as she tells him, present tense, fully up with the times, third person plural, agreeing with his subject, but understood but fully expressed. I turned from my perhaps unprofitable musings and looked with in. 'Life in an avenue of various forms and characters past and present moving on to an unknown future, until that future becomes a present and the present past.

RE-ORGANIZATION OF THE AGRICULTURAL BUREAU.—The reorganization of the agricultural division of the Patent Office has just been completed, and all will be gratified to learn that Commissioner Holt has availed himself of the experience, judgement, and qualifications of D. J. Brown, Esq., as the "director" or "superintendent" thereof. Some one hundred and fifty operatives have been appointed assistants, and are now busily engaged in packing seeds, &c., for distribution. For these places there was quite an army of applicants, the number being doubtless increased largely by the prevailing pressure in money matters, which have thawn out of employ so many worthy persons, young men and old.—In the selections made character and capacity were first considered, then the circumstances.

A new and convenient office for the head of this division is also fitted up in the south end of the hall, on Seventh street. The labors of this new branch have been commenced under most favorable auspices.

Robert Fortune, Esq., employed by the London Horticultural Society to visit China for a collection of seeds, plants, &c., and who introduced the tea plant into British India with great success—several thousand chests of tea having been exported to England therefrom—has been tendered by this agricultural division an appointment to collect for it the seeds of the north of China.—Sun Correspondent.

Washington, March 20.

Mr. Wilson announced his intention to speak on the Kansas question this evening.

Mr. Foote, of Vt. earnestly protested against the Lecompton constitution.—The creature, he said was a long series of frauds, outrages and unmitigated rascality. It was a question rising far above party; one in which he was willing to strike hands with conservative, honorable men of all parties, both North and South.—He denied that parties in Kansas were sectional. The Free State party contained many members from the South, while the Pro-Slavery party, he was ashamed to confess, numbered many adherents from the North; the great Border Ruffian leader being from Mass. Yes, the very worst Border Ruffians in Kansas were from the Free States. He was sorry that truth and justice required the admission, but it was no new thing, for slavery had always done its dirty work through Northern men. Of the members of the Free State Legislature of Kansas, four were from Va. alone, while only 5 were from all the New England States. This, and similar facts, he contended, furnish sufficient answer to the assertions concerning Northen obolition emigration to Kansas. He fortified this position with further illustrations.

CONGRESSIONAL NEWS.

Washington, March 19.

HOUSE.—The Army bill (Mr. Quitman's) as passed, authorizes the President to receive into service one Regiment of Texas mounted volunteers, for the defence of the frontiers thereof, and for the purpose of quelling disturbances in Utah, for the protection of supply and emigrant trains, and the suppression of Indian hostilities on the northern and north-western frontiers. The President is authorized to accept the services of any number of volunteers, not to exceed in all, four regiments. The mounted men, or any portion thereof, to be organized into mounted Regiments or infantry, as the President may deem proper. The volunteers are not to be accepted in bodies less than one Regiment, whose officers shall be appointed in the manner prescribed by law in the several States and Territories, to which said Regiments shall respectively belong.

SENATE.—The Vice-President laid before the Senate, a joint resolution of the Legislature of New Mexico, concurring in the President's views relative to the re-organization of the territory of Arizonia, and suggesting the boundaries of the same. The resolution was referred, and ordered to be printed.

Mr. Foster, of Conn., said the real question can be brought in a narrow compass. He would ask, is this constitution before us in such a shape that it fills all legitimate requirements? If it does, Kansas ought to be admitted. If it does not, she ought to be rejected. He then proceeded to discuss the validity of the various arguments for and against the Lecompton Constitution; contending, that its illegality cannot be controvered.

Taking up the recent Tammany Hall resolution, he pointed to a passage containing, he said, the climax of reason.—James Buchanan, it tells us, can now see the real state of parties, and decide what is to be done, now he is an outsider—thought that recently. Democrats who had borne the burden and heat of the day, were read out of the party because they did not approve of the Kansas Nebraska act; now they are read out because they do. Kingly palaces, he said, were not the places where truth was always spoken. The President is not a king, but some of the most repulsive features of kingly courts attach to his position.—Do the men who attend the President's court, go there to speak the truth? No. They may be likened to toads. If they have the precious jewel, truth, in their heads, they are especially careful not to have it on their tongues. The President therefore, is the one least likely to know the real state of parties. Mr. H. concluded by expressing himself in general terms against the bill.

Mr. Clay of Alabama said, inasmuch as the Legislature of Alabama had passed resolutions to call a convention to decide upon a course of action in the event of the rejection of Kansas, he felt bound to defend the course of that State. After reviewing at length the events in Kansas, he proceeded to inquire into the validity of the Lecompton constitution. Many States, he said, had been admitted without the submission of their constitution, and the Lecompton convention would have acted more in accordance with the principles of the country if it had not submitted the constitution to the people, either in whole or part.

Turning to the question of Slavery, he remarked that property was always the foundation of the social fabric and that in the formation of our Constitution, slave property was specially protected. The Union owed its being to day to the institution of Slavery, and slave property is sheltered under the eyes of the Constitution. Notwithstanding these facts, there is a party in the country pledged to the extension of that property. He proceeded to comment on the principles of the Republican party, as promulgated in their platform, and confessed he looked forward with forebodings to the result, if that party obtain possession of the government. When that happens and protection is taken from slave property the bond of union is broken and the South has no longer a motive for its preservation.—Hence, Alabama has declared it will resist aggression upon her rights. She has acted wisely. When the Union becomes an instrument of oppression to the South he would destroy it at once.

Mr. Houston, of Texas, animadverted upon some remarks of Mr. Clay, against the opposers of the Kansas bill.

Mr. Clay said he intended no personal disrespect. His remarks had only a political bearing. He complimented Mr. Houston on his courage in the field, as well as wisdom in council.

Mr. H. replied, that every American citizen had courage; and if he had ever displayed any in an eminent degree, it was when he stood against the opinions of his friends, and opposed the Nebraska bill. He regarded that bill as a fatal measure, fostered by demagogues, originated by ambition, and intended only to unite the South with a few Northern States, to make a President

SORE AND INFLAMED EYES.—These disagreeable complaints are becoming remarkably prevalent of late, and giving any thing but an interesting look to the possessor of the diseased organ. "A red and fiery eye" is not pretty to look at, and certainly cannot be agreeable to have "for keeps," as the boys say. We can tell those afflicted in this manner how to cure the evil, and won't charge them any thing for the information. Let them get some of BRAGG'S ARCTIC LINIMENT and touch the inflamed part with it a few times, and the work is done. The Arctic Liniment may be obtained at any of the Drug stores in this place

DR. J. C. AYER, the world renowned Chemist of New England, is now stopping at the Burnet house in this city. He has been making a tour of the Western States, with his scientific associates, to investigate their remedial productions, or such as he can make remedial. We notice he has been received with marked distinction by our leading citizens of the West and are rejoiced to find they have shown a proper estimate of the man who has perhaps done more for the relief of human ills than any other American.—Cincinnati Journal.

The most skeptical people can be convinced by trial, that all the family medicines are not humbug, and that among the thousand of butterfly life there are a few of great merit, and undoubted worth. Of these, Dr. Sanford's Invigorator, or Liver Remedy stands first and foremost among the remedies of the day that can be relied on as a medicine that is all that is recommended by its proprietors.

It advertises itself on every trial, for there are none who use it but tell their friends to do so, and so it goes from mouth to mouth till all the people of the Union have learned the good of this truly valuable medicine. It is recommended with testimonials to prove its virtue for the cure of liver complaints of every kind, from the worst Dyspepsia to a common headache, and is particularly adapted to Jaundice, Deranged Stomach, Bowel Complaints and diseases of children

One or two doses are said to cure a cold with scarce a failure. It is worth a trial for this alone. It is particularly adapted to use of ladies, particularly those of sedentary habits. Some ladies of the highest standing in society have given their certificates of its efficacy, and we say to all who are ailing, try one bottle, and you will never be without it.

CAUCUS.

We understand there is to be a Democratic, also a Republican caucus, somewhere in the town, previous to election, if any of our friends should ascertain the place and time of such meeting they are requested to Telegraph the tickets.

☞ DeMott has Harper for April.

☞ We publish this week, a list of Judges and premiums to be awarded at the next Fair of the Northern Lenawee Agricultural Society, for 1858. It will be in pamphlet form April 10.

MISTAKE.—In our hurry, in making up our outside, we have transposed two colums of matter, "Knocking at the Door."

☞ The Tecumseh Sax-Horn Band are anxious of obtaining a Band Wagon. Those of our citizens who are in favor of helping by way of subscription are requested to call on Fred Emerson, and give name and amount. Tecumseh has a Brass Band of which she may well be proud; and we hope they will contribute at once most cheerfully to a cause so much to their interest and benefit.

AUCTION.—James Leonord, will sell a quantity of property at his residence, in Franklin, on Friday March 26th.

C. A. Moulton's sale, one mile west of Waker's Hotel, in Cambridge, Tuesday, April 6th. See Posters.

☞ We call the attention of our readers to the advertisement of A. James & Co., Garden Seeds.

Also, the new advertisement of Henry Taylor.

COMMODORE PAULDING.—We observe by the papers of New Orleans that a subscription has been opened in that city for procuring and presenting Commodore Paulding, a sword of honor, and to the officers and crew of the frigate Wabash a flag, as an evidence of the approval of their act in capturing Gen. Walker and his followers.

Brigham Young tried to induce a Chief of the Snake Indians to join him in fighting the United States.—The reply of the Indian shows that he understands the "neutrality" policy. Said he: "When redskin fight redskin, bluecoat stand by and look on; when bluecoat fight bluecoat, redskin stand by and look on; when bluecoat fight red-skin, redskin turn his back—bluecoat is very great!"

"Mother," said a little three year old, whose nose had been "put out of joint" by the recent arrival of a baby brother, "Mother, if the baby should die, would it go to Heaven?" Certainly, my child," responded the parent. "Then I think Heaven is the best place for him," was the affectionate sister's conclusion!

THE LAST POETRY.—The following sentimental effusion is from a southern paper. It is as good as four-fifths of the rhyming which we find in the magazines and manuals:

Our yaller hen has broke her leg,
Oh! never more she'll lay an egg.
The brindle cow has gone plumb dry,
And sister Sall has left the ri.
This earth is full of sin and sorrow;
We're born to-day and die to-morrow.

Speaking much is a sign of vanity; for he that is lavish in words, is a niggard in deeds.

For the Tecumseh Herald.

Mr. Editor:

The Musical Concert held at Ridgeway on the 19th inst., under the direction of Calvin Robertson of Hillsdale was a rare specimen of cultivated music. The troop consisted of the Ridgeway and Raisin Musical Association, assisted by Mr. Strong and other popular singers of Tecumseh. The instrumental music by the Tecumseh Orchestra added much to the music of the occasion.

The original, independent, and accomplished bearing of Mr. Robertson, was highly commended.

The savor of his faithful devotion to the cause of education among us the past winter, will long remain. His superior skill in teaching the science of music, was demostrated; and recollections of him will be perpetuated in sacred song.

Bragg's Arctic Liniment.

This uncomparable Liniment upon which the great mass of afflicted of all kinds now rely for relief from the pangs of Rheumatism, Neuralgia Gout, Erysipelas Cancer, Scrofula, Sprains Bruises, Burns, Scalds and all cutaneous diseases is rapidly superceding all similar preparations. The proprietors give for the encouragement of sufferers, the following memorandum of a few of the wonderful cures effected by it during the past few months. Certificates from the parties named are in the possession of the proprietors their length precludes the publication of all but a few.

One Bottle Triumphant.

Mrs. Moffit, No 343 Morgan Street, St. Louis, having suffered for three years with Rheumatism, and tried many preparations without effect, was cured by one fifty cent bottle of Arctic Liniment.

Out of Purgatory.

Henry Davis, Second street St. Louis, who says he was "suffering the pains of purgatory" with neuralgia for months, was cured by three or four applications of the Arctic Liniment.

Pity the Little Children

A little daughter of Mrs. Lee, residing on Lake St. Chicago, was scalded all over by the upsetting of a kittle of boiling water. The Arctic Liniment was applied according to the directions and the fire was in a few days extracted, and in a few days the little sufferer was well.

Restored to Beauty.

Mrs George K. Tyler, Canal street, N. Orleans had long suffered from a painful and disfiguring eruption on the face, and by the use of one bottle of the Liniment was cured, and restored to her original beauty.

A Horrible Tumour.

Eugene Mallory, Natchez was three years the victim of a horrible tumor on the neck which resisted all remedies until he tried the Arctic Liniment. Three bottles cured him in a few weeks.

Wonderful Cure!

Mrs Bedford, Mobile, was confined to her couch for three years with numb palsy, and after being in despair from the failure of all other remedies, was cured by the Arctic Liniment, in a little over a month.

An Explosion.

Memphis Tenn., Nov., 28th, 1857.

I hereby certify, that having been badly bruised and scaled by the explosion of a Steam Boiler, a friend insisted on my trying Bragg's Arctic Liniment. The steam was instantly extracted from the scalds, and in a very short time all the pain was gone from the bruises—In two weeks I was well, and able to resume my duties.

The Blind See!

Webster City, Iowa, Nov. 9th, 1857.

Dr. A. G. Bragg—Dear Sir—I have more than three years had been afflicted with ill-formed eyes, to an aggravated degree, and tried various Physicians, and several doctrines, to no effect. I was induced by Dr. Bates to try the Arctic Liniment, and in two months was nearly well. My little daughter was afflicted in the same manner for the same time, and during a portion of the time was entirely blind in one eye. I applied your valuable Liniment, and her eyes are perfectly sound. Thus have I with one two-bitt bottle cured my daughter's eyes and my own besides curing the rheumatism in my back. I would not be without your invaluable remedy in my house. Yours Truly

WM. RUSSELL.

Webster City, Iowa, Nov. 9th, 1857.

I hereby certify, that I am well acquainted with Wm Russell, and with the astonishing cures he mentions, and know his statement to be strictly true.

Good for Animals.

This invaluable Liniment is also equally efficatious in curing the diseases of animals as witness the following certificate; Messrs J & A Arnot, and Lynch, Arnot & Co. keep the two largest livery stables in the west and are generally known throughout the U. S.

St. Louis, Jan 23rd, 1857.

We, the undersigned, having used Dr. Bragg's Arctic Liniment for a number of months cheerfully testify to its superior efficacy in curing the diseases of horses; so well are we satisfied of the Arctic being the best Liniment made, that we would use no other. We keep and have kept for a number of years, extensive livery stables in this city, and consequently our experience about horses and their diseases is great, and we unhesitatingly say, that the Arctic Liniment is the only one we have ever found always reliable. We cordially recommend it to all livery stable keepers and others having the care of horses.

LYNCH, ARNOT & CO.
Chestnut Street.

Caution,

Many Druggists having old liniments on hand, will try to sell them to you as the best, but do you positively refuse to purchase them. Ask for "BRAGG'S ARCTIC LINIMENT" and take no other.

Liberal Proposition.

The proprietors agree to furnish each purchaser of a dollar bottle, with a free subscription to the U. S. Journal, for one year. This is one of the best N. Y. illustrated papers. A certificate entitling the holder to the benefit of this proposition, is enclosed in the wrapper around every dollar bottle. The Arctic Liniment is put up in 25 cent 50 cent and $1. bottles. The 50 cent and $1 bottles contain 50 and 100 per cent more Liniment in proportion to their cost, and are the cheapest. For sale by

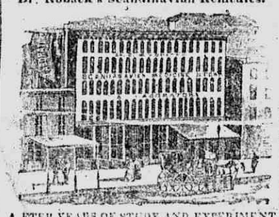
DR ROBACK'S
BLOOD PURIFIER AND BLOOD PILLS.

DISEASE VANQUISHED.

—BY—

Dr. Roback's Scandinavian Remedies.



AFTER YEARS OF STUDY AND EXPERIMENT Dr. Roback the eminent Swedish Physician succeeded in producing a medicine from twenty-three different species of mountain herbs of his native land. which acts directly upon the cause of disease in the blood, and by restoring the corrupted fountain of life to a condition of health and purity, expels disease from the system wherever it may be located, or whatever may be its character. Indigestion, nervous complaints, epileptic fits, sick headache, consumption in its early stages, sore throat, bronchitis, fever and ague, asthma, low spirits, sexual incapacity, feeling weakness, pricking of the skin, symptomatic of paralysis, rheumatism, neuralgia, tumor, cancer, diabetis, lassitude and debility, diarrhœa and all other disorders of the organs of respiration, the liver, the kidneys, the stomach, the nerves or the muscular fiber are unerringly cured by this preparation. It is to the materies medica or seeds of disease what an alkali is to an acid: it neutralizes them with absolute certainty while at the same time it regulates the secretions, removes obstruction from the bowels, creates appetite renews bodily vigor and regenerates every animal function. Such is the nature, such are the effects of Dr. Roback's famous Scandinavian Blood Purifier, which if taken in conjunction with his Scandinavian Blood Pills will not only obliterate the most painful disease, but prevent their recurrence, and lengthen life beyond the ordinary span.

In the SCANDINAVIAN VEGETABLE BLOOD PILLS, Dr. Roback presents the result of twenty years of experience, hard study and experiment as to what a perfect pill should be. No one can doubt their superiority after one single trial. Price of the Scandinavian Blood Purifier, $1 per bottle, or $5 per half-dozen. Scandinavian Blood Pills, 25 cents per box, or five for $1.

Pecu. Miami Co. Ind., Aug. 4, 1857.

Dr. C. W. ROBACK: I have received so much benefit from your scandinavian Blood Purifier and Blood Pills, that I have thought it my duty and it is no loss my inclination to give you a plain statement of my case. I was for years afflicted with that bane of all comfort, and efficiency in business dyspepsia. To recapitulate all the so called remedies which I have used to rid myself of this disease, would indeed make a melancholy catalogue. I also consulted with the best physicians I could hear of. I was induced to try your remedies through the persuasions of a friend, and after using them a few days was greatly benefitted, and in a short time, less than a month, I was entirely and permanently cured. I was also afflicted with the most violent nervous headache, which I suppose was produced by my disordered stomach, for when my dispepsia left me my headache left with it. I now feel better in every respect than I have for ten years.

Very truly yours, JOHN S. DEMUTH.

From the Rev. Mr. McMULLEN, Pastor of Roberts Chapel. Indianapolis, Oct 5, 1857.

DR. C. W. ROBACK—Dear Sir: I have used your Blood Purifier for a nervous affection, from which I have suffered much at times. While it is pleasant to the taste it certainly has a happy effect upon the nerves. Please accept my thanks for your kind regards and acts and believe me,

Yours, W. T. McMULLEN.

FROM A WELL-KNOWN STEAMBOAT CLERK.
Louisville, June 4, 1857.

DEAR DOCTOR: Send me half a dozen boxes of your Pills care of H. G. Child & Co. so I can get them next trip. Six months ago nothing could have convinced me that a two cent box of Pills could have relieved my obstinate chronic constipation with its attending evils. I told you so when I bought them, but I am bound to say that your Pills fill the contract. Why, I have taken as many as six (6) of ——'s and other makers, sometimes without effect and sometimes with too much effect—but I have no trouble with yours—they are just what I want.

CINCINNATI, Friday, Sept 4, 1857.

DR. ROBACK—Dear Sir: Having been afflicted with neuralgia or rheumitism for the past year and a half, and having seen your medicine called the Scandinavian Blood Purifier, highly recommended by gentlemen with whom I am acquainted, I was induced to try it, but not before I had used various other medicines—After using two bottles I felt its effect very sensibly, and upon using two more, I found myself perfectly cured. You will allow me, therefore, to congratulate you upon making a discovery in medicine which is proving itself to be a worker of such wonders in the diseases of the human family.

GEORGE S. BENNETT.
Local Editor Cincinnati Daily Enquirer.

INDIANAPOLIS, Wednesday, Sept. 2, 1857.

DR. C. W. ROBACK—Dear Sir: Having been troubled for several years with extreme debility and weakness so much so that I was unable to attend to my ordinary business at times and having heard of the wonderful cures that your Scandinavian Blood Purifier and Pills were effecting, I was induced by a friend to try them.

I have been using the Purifier for the last five months, and find the medicine fully equal to its recommendations. So valuable is it I see no method I can not dispense with the use of it at my advanced age of life—seventy-seven years.

I cheerfully give this information for the benefit of those similarly affected. MORRIS MORRIS.

THE BEST FAMILY MEDICINE NOW before the public, for the cure of Scrofula Ulcers, Scurvy, or Eruptions of the Skin, Fever and Ague, Dyspepsia, Dropsy, and in fact most all diseases soon yield to their curative properties.

It has been computed that during the last twenty five years upwards of FOUR MILLIONS of persons have been benefited by the use of these medicines; a fact which speaks volumes in favor of their curative properties. a single trial will place them beyond the reach of competition in the estimate of every patient. By their use the BLOOD IS RESTORED TO A HEALTHY STATE and freed from all impurities. The system is not reduced during their operation, but invigorated, and they require no restraint from business or pleasure.

The afflicted have in these medicines a remedy that will do for them all that medicine can possibly effect

CONSTITUTION AND BY-LAWS

OF THE

NORTHERN LENAWEE

AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY

TOGETHER WITH THE LIST OF

JUDGES, PREMIUMS &C.,

FOR THE

Annual Fair for the year 1858.

M. A. PATTERSON, President.

VICE PRESIDENTS.

EDWIN SMITH, Tecumseh,
JOHN BOWARD, Raisin,
WM. H. OSBORN, Macon,
SAML. RAFFERTY, Ridgeway,
ANDREW J. HUNTER, Franklin,
FRANCIS DEWEY, Cambridge.

TREASURER,
ALBERT ANDERSON.

SECRETARY,
B. L. BAXTER.

DIRECTORS,

James V. DePuy, Tecumseh,
Butler Holloway, Raisin,
John Davenport, Franklin,
Stephen Wheeler, Cambride,
Francis Coates, Ridgeway,
John Remington, Macon,
A. D. Hall, at large.

The President, Vice Presidents, Directors, Secretary and Treasurer, constitute the Executive Comittee.

CONSTITUTION

ARTICLE 1. This Society shall be called the Northern Lenawee Agricultural Society, which shall include Horticulture and the Mechanic Arts, and it shall be auxiliary to the Lenawee County Agricultural Society, and shall be composed of the towns of Franklin, Tecumseh, Ridgeway, Raisin, Macon and Cambridge.

ART. 2. Any person may become a member of this Society by signing this Constitution, and paying into the Treasury Fifty Cents on entrance, and Fifty Cents annually thereafter.

ART. 3 There shall be an annual meeting of this Society for the election of Officers, and to transact such other business as may be thought expedient, on the 2d Saturday of January on every year.

ART. 4 The annual meeting of the Society shall be holden at Tecumseh, but other meetings may be holden at such times and places as may be directed by the Executive Committee.

ART. 5. At the annual meeting, there shall be chosen by ballot or otherwise, by the members of this Society there assembled, one President, one Vice President from each township connected with the Association, a Recording and Corresponding Secretary, and Treasurer, and an Executive Committee of a Directors of one person from each township, and one at large, of which Committee the President, Vice President and Secretary shall be members ex officio, and any five of which Committee shall be deemed a quorum competent to transact business.

ART. 6. There shall be an Annual Fair and General Exhibition of Agricultural and Horticultural products, including new and useful improvements in Husbandry, at which time there shall be a Plowing Match, and a distribution of Premiums. Such Fair shall be holden at such times and places as the Executive Committee shall appoint, they giving at least 4 weeks' previous notice of the same.

ART. 7. No premium shall be awarded to any person who is not a member of this Society.

ART. 8. It shall be the duty of the Executive Committee to adopt a code of By-Laws, and publish them with the Constitution, for the benefit of the society.

ART. 9. The Constitution of the Society may be altered or amended at any annual meeting of the Society, by a vote of two-thirds of the members present.

BY-LAWS.

ARTICLE 1. The Executive Committee shall provide suitable accommodations for the Annual Exhibition, and prescribe the rules and regulations to be observed.

ART 2. They shall appoint Judges who shall examine the property and specimens produced by the persons applying for premiums at the Annual Fairs, and shall determine or judge whether any or either of the applicants be entitled to a premium according to the conditions prescribed.

ART 3. The Executive Committee may award discretionary premiums out of any unappropriated funds of the Society. All awards of money shall be accompanied by a certificate signed by the President and Recording Secretary.

ART 4. The Treasurer shall receive and have charge of the funds of the Society, and shall disburse the same under the direction of the Executive Committee, and report at each annual meeting.

ART 5. Every candidate for a premium is especially requested to make his entries for the same, at the office of the Secretary, and receive his numbered certificate therefor from him, as early at least as the day before the Fair, and no entry will be received after 10 o'clock of the morning of the day of the Fair.

ART. 6 All certificates of membership shall include the family of the person to whom they are given and shall entitle them to all the privileges of the Society.

ART. 7. No article or animal upon which a first premium was given last year, shall be entitled to compete for a premium this year in the same class. But articles or animals having drawn a first premium last year, may receive a diploma if superior to other articles or animals of the same kind on exhibition the present year.

ART. 8. An Admission fee of Thirteen Cents shall be charged to all persons except members of the society and their families.

ART. 9 All articles intended for exhibition must be on the ground at 10 o'clock of the morning of the Fair, when person will be in readiness to have them arranged in their appropriate classes.

ART 10. No animal or article can compete for two premiums. When there is but one on exhibition it will receive the first or second premium as it may be adjudged worthy, and no premium will be awarded when the animal or article is not worthy.

ART. 11. Pedigrees of Blood and Blood Stock must be handed to the chairman of the committee of judges on the ground, if not before, otherwise no premium will be awarded.

ART. 12. Persons who enter for premium on crops, must give a full statement in writing, of the number of bushels from a given quantity of ground, the manner and expense of cultivating the crops for which they are competitors, and premiums on such crops as are not mentioned at the time of the annual Fair will be awarded by the Executive Committee at the time of the annual meeting, on a similar statement.

ART. 13. The several Judges will report themselves to the Secretary at 10 o'clock A. M., on the ground on the day of the Fair.

N. B. Feed will be furnished, at the expense of the Society, for Stock brought on the Fair Ground the evening preceding the day of the Fair, by persons to remote from Tecumseh that they cannot reach the fair ground with their Stock by 10 o'clock on the morning of the Fair.

Patent Medicines.

ONE DOLLAR
WILL BUY

ONE OF THE BEST PURGATIVE AND LIVER MEDICINES now before the public, namely DR. SANFORD'S INVIGORATOR, or LIVER REGULATOR, containing Calomel, aloes, antimony and many other medicines now in use. It is not only a cathartic, but a Liver remedy, acting first on the Liver to correct the morbid secretions of that organ, then on the stomach and bowels to expel the impurities from the system. In this way it produces the effect of a cathartic and a liver medicine at the same time. It is not only a cathartic, but an alterative, which changes the morbid action of the system, and restores the healthy functions of life. In fact it is the Great Spring and Fall Medicine, which should be taken daily to prevent disease. In the Spring of the year it is the best medicine that can be taken to expel the effects of the impurities that have settled in the system during the winter months, and which, if allowed to remain, will breed disease and sickness in the summer and autumn. In the Fall of the year it should be taken to prepare the system for the change of weather, which is sure to bring on Dysentery, Diarrhœa, Cholera Morbus, Fever and Ague, Bilious Fever, and many other diseases. In all cases of Dyspepsia, Sick Headache, Jaundice, Piles, Rheumatism, Gout, Erysipelas, Scrofula, Ulcers, Dropsy, Female Complaints, Worms, Fits, Nervousness, Sleeplessness, Pain in the Side, Back and Limbs, Drowsiness, Chills and Fever, Ague in the Face, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Blotches, Boils, Carbuncles, Ringworm, Coughs, Colds, Consumption, Liver Complaint, Dyspepsia, Purifying the Blood, Fever and Ague, and all diseases arising from a Diseased Liver. The testimonials of so many of our Physicians in its favor, induced me to try it in my own family, and I found that it is one of the greatest blessings ever given to Dyspeptics for it undoes completely cures before the first bottle was taken and has never failed in any thing else without trouble, while before nothing but the lightest food would digest, and often that gave pain. Now what we want to say to all our readers is, If Liver Complaint or Dyspepsia, Trouble you, do not fail to try this the greatest remedy in the world.—State Fact.

We take infinite pleasure in recommending this medicine as a preventative of FEVER and AGUE, CHILL FEVER, and all FEVERS of a BILIOUS TYPE. It operates with certainty and thoroughness, and we are willing to testify to its wonderful cures.

There has never been found in any family a remedy which has met with such unbounded success in the cure of diseases incident to children as Fitz SANFORD'S INVIGORATOR. We have given it to our children and we know it to be a safe and sure Cathartic so mildly and gently, and seems to remove the system so thoroughly that we think we are doing a wise act in administering them. when they need medicine to try this remedy. There are cases that have come under our notice where great benefit was derived in diseases of the Liver, Stomach and Bowels where all other remedies failed to give relief. It has become so useful in our family that we will not be without it.—Jackson ville, Ills. Republican.

Nebraska Correspondence.

For the Tecumseh Herald.

MR. EDITOR:

Having a few minutes of leisure time on hand, I have come to the conclusion to employ them in writing to the Herald. But what to write about is the question; I will write however, and leave time and your numerous readers to decide what it is about.

As the weather is generally a subject upon which it is not difficult to open a conversation, it comes to my relief on this occasion, to open my paper talk with you and your readers. Spring is now with us. Indeed we have had so fine a winter that that it is difficult to distinguish the dividing line between it and spring. I have never seen so mild a winter before in a northern climate. The Indians and old traders who have been in the country for years, agree in saying that mild winters are common to the country, Stock have done well this winter without shelter or foddering, having kept in good condition by running on the prairie. There are numerous beds of rushes on the bottoms, which make very sweet, nutritious food, and which cattle prefer to the best of hay. This country is the best adapted to Stock raising of any country I have ever seen. The whole face of the country, in its natural state, is covered with a heavy growth of grass, which makes as desirable hay as timothy; on an average it yields about four or five tons to the acre. As yet agriculture is in its infancy in Nebraska, but not long will it remain so. In a country possessing so large an extent of rich, productive soil, agriculture must and will make rapid strides. The pioneer to this section is not under the necessity of falling trees, burning log-heaps, plowing among roots and stones, before he can raise a crop.—Here the land is already cleared. All that is necessary the first season, is to break the prairie, plant the seed, and harvest the crop, no labor being necessary between planting and harvesting. Already are farms to be seen in this country, which, to judge by the improvements, a novice might think had been settled ten, fifteen, or twenty years, but which in fact have been under cultivation from two to four years only. Immense crops repay the husbandmen for the labor expended. As yet not much wheat has been raised in the Territory, but by another season large quantities will be produced. Last season small quantities of Sorghum were planted by way of experiment; it matured and did so well that preparations are being made to plant quite extensively of it the present season.

Nebraska is one of our largest territories. It would make eighty States as large as New Hampshire. England is a mere pigmy in point of size when compared to Nebraska. If the British Isle were placed in one corner it would hardly be "visible to the naked eye." It would be somewhat like a huckleberry in a hogshead. Comparatively, little of Nebraska is known yet by the whites. The vast domain of Nebaska is mostly the hunting ground of numerous tribes of Indians, some of whom are partly civilized, but the majority of them are yet in a savage state.

Efforts are being made to civilize some of the tribes. The Omahas; a small tribe, have given up many of the habits of savages, and adapted many of the customs of the whites. They are settled on a reservation lying on the Missouri river, having a width of eighteen miles on the river, and extending back thirty miles. They have several hundred acres of land under cultivation, which they till with success, raising yearly a large supply of corn, potatoes, &c., the squaws performing the labor. There is a mission school established among them by the Presbyterians. A large and commodious Mission House is erected on the Reserve at Blackbird, where the rising generation of the tribe are instructed in the American language, and in the common branches of education. But it will take some time to convert these savages to the habits, customs, and manners of the whites. It is useless to think of making converts of the adults. According to an old, homely proverb, you might as well try "to make a whistle out of a pig's tail," as to try to induce an old Indian to give up his old habits and conform to the fashions and habits of the whites.—They will have their war dances, their pow wows, and dog soups, all that the whites may say and do to the contrary, notwithstanding. Polygamy is common among them. It is not uncommon to see one Indian the lord and master of six or eight squaws. As far as my observation goes the squaws seem to live peacably together.

Query. How would it affect the custom of polygamy by introducing crinoline among the squaws? It would be difficult for a squaw, wearing crinoline to the extent that some of the fairer sex among the whites do, to get around in a tent or wigwam six or eight feet in diameter; and then when six or eight come in for accommodation in such a tent, and all arrayed in crinoline, what would be the result? As well might the great steamship Leviathan try to enter an ounce vial, as for them to enter a wigwam. In such a case would the custom of polygamy have to be abolished, on account of want of accommodation? Or would the fashion be in favor of the institution, by enabling every squaw to carry her own tent in the shape of a petticoat? But I will leave this question for others to decide.

I suppose it is needless for me to say that times are pretty hard in this section of country at present; but I think by practising economy, we will get through. Economy is the motto among the settlers now. To show that it is practisd as well as preached, I will give you a bill of fare which appears daily on the table of the St. Nicholas Hotel in the city of F———.

Breakfast.—Corn pancakes, boiled potatoe,, corn coffee, made by parching the corn in the cob, then boiling it, oob and all.

Supper—Indian meal biscuits, corn tea, made by shelling the corn, parching and boiling it.

Dinner—Roast or baked potatoes, corn cake, boiled mush. Pastry, Indian pudding with corn gravy. Drink, corn chocolate, made by shelling the corn, browning, grinding and boiling it.

I will state however that on Sundays they have a change at dinner. Instead of having Indian Pudding with corn gravy for desert, they have tarts made by putting together and filling between with corn sauce.

You can thus see we live economically enough, and that our diet is simple enough to suit the greatest Grahamite, except the Pastry, to which that class of persons might object, as being too rich an article of food.

I will close by giving you a description of a snake, seen last fall by the Rev. Mr S., a Methodist clergyman. As he was one day riding along the Platte Valley on horseback, his horse suddenly stopped, neither could he prevail on the animal to proceed. Not seeing anything to cause his horse to act in this manner, and it being altogether an unusual thing for him to do so, he was at a loss to account for it. At length his attention was arrested by a rustling in the tall grass on one side of the road, and at the same time he saw an immense snake make its appearance, with its head elevated above the grass, which in the Platte valley grows from five to seven feet high. His snakeship proceeded to cross the road some distance ahead of the Reverend gentleman, and as he did so, he had an opportunity of seeing his whole body. He states that if he were to give his candid opinion in regard to the size of the snake, it would be so large that it might be doubted; but he says, cutting down the size as much as his conscience will allow him, he has no hesitation in stating that the snake was as large around as a man's thigh, and twenty-five feet long. If we have no sea serpents or Silver Lake monsters here, still we are "some" on prairie snakes. Some are of opinion that it might have been the old serpent—the d———l—trying to frighten the minister from proceeding to F——t, a flourishing town on the Platte River, whither he was going to hold a protracted meeting; but if it was the old d——l and if such was his object, he failed in it; for the clergyman proceeded, held the meeting, and had the satisfaction of being the instrument in the hands of the Almighty, of arousing many to a sense of their danger, and of seeing them hopefully converted to God.

READERS.—Those who read may be divided into four classes:—1st. Sponges, who absorb all they read, and retain it in nearly the same state, only a very little dirtied. 2d. Sand Classes—who retain nothing, and are content to get through a book for the sake of getting through the time. 3d. Strainbugs—who retain merely the 'dregs of what they read. 4th. Mogul Diamonds—equally rare and valuable—who profit by what they read, and enable others to profit by it also.

Sunrise Comes To Morrow.

True it is that clouds and mist
Blots the clear, blue weather;
True that lips that once have kist
Come no more together.

True that when we would do good,
Evil often follows;
True that green leaves quit the wood,
Summers lose their swallows.

True that we must live alone,
Dwell with pale dejection;
True that we must often mourn
Over crusht affections.

True that man his queen awaits;
True that, sad and lonely,
Woman through her prison grates
Sees her tyrant only.

True the rich despise the poor,
And the poor desire
Food still from the rich man's door,
Fuel from his fire.

True that, in this age of ours,
There are none to guide us;
Gone the grand primeval powers!
Selfish aims divide us.

True the plaint, but, if more true,
I would not deplore it:
If an Eden fade from view,
Time may yet restore it.

Evil comes and evil goes,
But it moves me never;
For the Good, the good, it grows,
Buds and blossoms ever.

Winter still succeeds to Spring,
But fresh Springs are coming,
Other birds are on the wing,
Other bees are humming.

I have loved with right good will,
Mourned my hopes departed,
Dreamed my golden dream, and still
Am not broken hearted.

Problems are there hard to solve,
And the weak may try them,
May review them and revolve,
While the strong pass by them.

Sages prove that God is not,
But I still adore him,
See the shadow in each spot
That he casts before him.

What if cherished creeds must fade,
Faith will never leave us;
God preserves what God has made,
Nor can Truth deceive us.

Let in light, the holy light;
Brothers, fear it never;
Darkness smiles and wrong grows right:
Let in light forever.

Let in light: when this shall be
Safe and pleasant duty,
Men in common things shall see,
Goodness, truth and beauty;

And, as noble Plato sings—
Hear it lords and ladies—
We shall love and praise the things
That are down in Hades.

Glad am I, and glad will be,
For my heart rejoices
When sweet looks and lips I see,
When I hear sweet voices.

I will hope, and work, and love,
Singing to the hours,
While the stars are bright above,
And below, the flowers.

Apple-blossoms on the trees,
Gold-cups in the meadows,
Branches waving in the breeze,
On the grass their shadows;

Blackbirds whistling in the wood,
Cuckoos shouting o'er us,
Clouds, with white or crimson hood,
Pacing right before us:

Who, in such a world as this,
Could not heal his sorrow?
Welcome this sweet sunset bliss,
Sunrise comes to-morrow.

Life for Life.

A SKETCH OF THE REVOLUTION.

'Father, is there no hope for him? Is the British General so heartless as to condemn one so noble, so brave, so young, to die without mercy?'

These words were used by a pale tearful girl of great beauty, in the middle portion of that revolution which gave freedom a home on our loved soil. During that period when cruelty was but too prevalent with both parties—when tories, American-born, were, if possible, more relentless and cruel than the British troops.

The father, a noble-looking man of middle age, turned to glance out of the window, opening towards Long Island Sound, the green waters of which could be seen sparkling beyond a grave that fronted his dwelling, near Hurl Gate. He turned to this to hide from her his emotions, for she was his only child, and he feared that her young heart would break when he told her all the sad news that lay so heavily on his heart.

'Speak, father; tell me, is there no hope? I will go myself, and, kneeling to tyrant, will plead for the life of him whom I love as only woman can love!' she continued.

'Alas! my child, mercy is dead within the British General's breast—his heart is callous to pity! I have risked much by pleading for him, but for your sake would be almost willing to die in Nathan's place!'

'Alas! dear child, nerve yourself for the news. It is already too late!'

'Dead, dead!' shrieked the poor girl—'Oh! father, say that it is not so.'

Alas, my child—I cannot! He was hanged at sunrise, and was even refused a Bible to look at 'ere he was summoned to the presence of his Maker!'

For a moment that pale girl stood silent; not a tear came from her large eyes; but a wild light illuminated them; a flash as bright as fire itself gathered over face and brow—she clenched her fair hands together until the nails seemed to be entering the flesh, and with a cold, bitter tone, she cried—

'Life for life! I shall be revenged—yes, deeply revenged!'

'Child, dear child, be calm,' said the fond parent.

'Father, I am calm—very calm! Calm as he is, almost. But I swear he shall be revenged, if my own hand has to reach the tyrants heart who sealed his doom! I loved, oh! how I loved him—and were not our betrothal vows plighted? I will act as a widow—as the widow of a soldier should act!'

'My dear child, you will bring ruin upon our heads!'

'Not upon yours father; but to me, what is ruin now! But I will not be rash, I will go to my room, and pray and think—think of him who now lies cold in death!'

She turned and left the room, whilst the father still stood looking from the window out upon the waters, which were ashed with a rising storm, and the trees which already began to writhe beneath the force of the rising gale, like some huge giants wrestling with some unforseen power.

Meanwhile his daughter had gone up to her room in one of the cheerful gables of the old fashioned house; and forgetting to pray in the mad tumult of her wronged heart, was also gazing upon the storm, which was not more wild than the tempest within her breast.

From her elevated position she could look over the tree tops and the serried clouds, as like a battling host, enshrined to the charge amid sulpherous flame and smoke, they rose and sped athwart the sky. She could see Hurl's Gate eddying with whirls tossing the foam caps, white as drifting snow, in the air—the breakers tumbling up against the black rocks, as if they would hide their dangers from the mariner's view.

Suddenly the booming sound of a cannon was heard, and, as she looked upon the Sound, she saw that a ship-of-war had hove to above the narrow Gorge of the Gate. A signal for a pilot was flying at the foretop, and the hated cross of St. George flew from her spanker gaff.

With one wild cry of fierce delight the fair girl bounded from the room. 'Life for life'—Nathan Hale shall be revenged!' she cried.

What was her idea? Within another room in that house was the clothing of a brother, who long since had been laid to rest beneath the sod; and to this room she fled, and soon arrayed in a suit of such clothing as young men generally wear when they go on boating expeditions.—Without a hesitation, she cut the long glossy tresses of hair from her head, and, in a very brief period, bore the appearance of a young lad of eighteen, not more than her age. Having made these arrangements with a rapidity that only desperate resolve could cause, she instantly left the house, passing down the avenue towards the Sound, before her father's eyes, he little thinking that the apparantly spruce young waterman, who chose to breast such a storm, was the person of his accomplished daughter.

Hurrying down to a boat-house, which fronted the avenue, she loosened one of those small light skiffs which are still the model of the pilots of Hurl Gate, hoisted a small sail, and, in a few moments, was out upon those angry waters, running upon the last flood tide as freely and boldly as if she had been in a stout ship, instead of so small and frail a boat. It was no new thing for her to be upon the water, being reared so close to it, and hundreds of times had she been dashing over those waves, but never perhaps in such a gale as that. Yet cooly she steered her tinny craft, avoiding the dangerous whirlpools and rocks heading towards the frigate which, impatient for a pilot, had already fired another gun.

Within less than twenty minutes from the time she started, she had luffed alongside of the man-of-war, and having caught the line cast out to her, and fastened the boat, had mounted the vessel's side, and stood upon the quarter-deck, in presence of the commander.

'Are you a pilot?' asked the latter, impatient in tone as well as look.

'I am, sir;' was the reply.

'Young for such business. Could you take us through Hurl Gate?'

'As well as my father, who has been a pilot here these thirty years!' was the reply.

'Why did he not come out, instead of sending a boy like you, in a blow as fresh as this?'

'Because he is laid up with the rheumatism, sir, and then he knows I can pilot you through as well as he can. Sir Henry Clinton knows me sir!'

'Ah, does he—well, that is all right.—Can we bear away yet?'

'No sir; not for an hour—till the tide runs ebb.'

'That is bad—this gale keeps rising—Is there no anchorage hereabouts?'

'No, sir; not within twenty miles above where your anchor would hold.'

'Then we must go through!'

'Yes, sir—as soon as the tide comes.—I would not risk it yet, for if the current should catch you on either bow, you'd go on the rocks, sure!'

'That is true, young man. Let me know the earliest moment that we can go through.'

'Aye, aye, sir!'

And while the English commander turned off to speak to one of his officers, the patriotic pilot calmly went to the main gangway, and looked over the side as if watching for the change of tide.

But what was passing in her heart, then? There were between three and four hundred souls in that ill fated vessel. She had lost the only loved thing, beside her father, on earth, when Nathan Hale was hanged as a spy on that morning.—She was not thinking how many hearts would be broken by her intended act; she was not thinking of the mothers and sisters, and wives in England, who would soon mourn for her deed—she was only thinking that soon, very soon, she would join him in the spirit land, and that dearly would his loss be avenged. For her own life she cared nor thought not—not even did she think of that worshiping father, who sadly paced his room, beleiving that she was praying for patience to bear his loss.

Meantime, there were those three or four hundred hearts beating with gladness that they had got over a long and sickening voyage and soon would be anchored in front of the shores that looked so lovely in their sheen of green, even through the storm-clouds hovered over them.

At last, after looking towards the home in which she was born—and she know that in would be her last look—she turned and went to the commander and said:—

'The tide is slack, it changes suddenly, and we had better fill away at once.'

The commander gave the necessary orders to his lieutenant, and the next moment the main topsail, which had been laid back, was braced around, the head sheets eased away, and the vessel headed for the narrow channel, where a thousand crafts have, ere this, laid their oaken bones.

As they approached the channel, and saw the black rocks, the whirling eddies, the taunting breakers, dashing high on every hand, the officers and crew looked anxiously out upon the danger. But so calm and fearless seemed the young pilot, that re-assurance had a home in every heart—so clear above the gale his bugle-like voice sounded, as he gave his orders, 'Port, steady so—luff a point!' &c., &c.

They were more than half through.—The tumbling breakers of the 'punch bowl' and 'hog's back' had been passed; a few hundred fathoms more, and they would be safe from every danger. Then one quick glance at her home, one murmured prayer, one glance toward heaven, and the disguised girl cried:—"Port—port! Hard!"

The helmsman obeyed. The vessel eased off before the wind and flew on with accumulating speed, for a moment, and no more! With a drash, which sent her tall spars tumbling over her bows—and sent her crew reeling to the deck—she brought up on a huge rock near the perpendicular shore to the right. Then, amid the rush of waters, the curses of officers, and the shouts of frightened men, was heard the pilot's shrill cry:

'If one of you survive this wreck, go tell your British General that NATHAN HALE is AVENGED, and that by a woman too! Sink—sink! and may my curse go with you!'

And before hand could reach her, had they wished it, she leaped into the eddying tide; and ere she sunk, the proud frigate, with its shivered spars and sails, its flags still flying, and its crew of stout men, was going down into the cold, dark waters, and the murdered HALE was avenged.

And thus this brief sketch is closed.—The guns of the sunken frigate rust beneath the tide of Hurl Gate; but the memory of the Patriot Pilot lives in more than one breast yet.

The Voice of Fame.

And what is fame? I've heard them tell
Of games that never die,
Of heroes, how they fought and fell,
And my young spirit owned the spell,
And sighed me there to lie.
Deluded not be we here now,
For crimson shafts untrue his brow
And what is fame? Betrayed's breath
Awaits the patriot's soul,
The great are swallowed up in death,
And proud the deeds oblivion hath.
Not may to earth reveal:
I've knelt before ambition's shrine,
But oh! how false a deity was mine.

And what is fame? They told of me
From radiant worlds on high,
And he stood on earth alone,
And bought us with his dying groan
A mansion in the sky,
His love to win, with life to reign,
Is more than power, or wealth, or fame

An Affecting Scene.

A friend relates to us an affecting incident which occurred at Xenia on Wednesday. Amongst the passengers on the train from Cleveland was a young man of perhaps twenty, and a lady some few years his senior. The gentleman was plainly clad, but the girl was dressed in the extreme of fashion, and rouged beyond even brazen wantonness.

It was frequently observed by the passengers that the young man appeared to be earnestly remonstrating with the girl and seemed to be deeply affected At Xenia both left the cars, and it was apparent that the course of each lay in different directions—the man to this city, and the girl to the west. As the cars were about starting, the young man kissed her a hasty good-bye, and both burst into tears. The conductor, seeing that there was some deep grief at heart, invited the gentleman to a seat in the baggage car, as more secluded from the crowd. 'Any where,' said he, 'only come with me—I must speak to some one, or my heart will break.' After becoming a little calmed he said:—'That lady and myself were raised together; with moss for carpets, acorns for cups and saucers, and pebbles for walks, we played in childhood She was a few years older than myself, but we were inseparable. She grew up to womanhood, was married, then separated from her husband and sought the city, and became a wanton, a heartless, disgraceful courtezan. Steeped in sin as she is, shameless as she be, I could not but kiss her good bye, for she is my sister.' She has already hurried a loving mother to the grave, and brought disgrace upon her brothers and sisters But while she acknowledges it all, and sheds tears of apparent contrition and regret, no remonstrance can change her course She has just been home to make us a visit, but has left again for her residence in the city, to drown in the wanton's life the remembrance of what she was and might have been. Do you blame me then,' turning to the sympathizing conductor, "for weeping as I do, over one so loved and fallen?"

It was no tale of fiction. It was a painful truth. Fallen, disgraced, and shameless, she still shared a brother's love, who would win her back to virtue's path at any sacrifice. A brief career of pleasure, and we shall find the erring sister amongst the daily habitues of the Police Court and the Prison.—Cin. Gazette.

A Young Lady Shot by her Lover

On Saturday last at 2 o'clock P. M., Robert Schmidt, of Theresa, in Dodge county, shot down in a street of that place, Harriet Sedler, a young lady about 20 years of years ago. The parties were engaged to be married about one year ago, and Schmidt had come over from St Paul Van Buren county, Michigan, where he had resided about a year, to fulfill the engagement—but the parents of the young lady objected to the marriage in consequence of which it was arranged between the lovers that Schmidt should first shoot her and then himself He executed his design, so far as the young lady was concerned, but failed to shoot himself on account of the loss of the cap of his gun.

After failing in this, he ran and threw himself into the river, with the intention to drown himself, but was rescued by persons who saw him. He is now arrested and awaits a trial. The charge, which was fine shot, entered the left breast of the young lady, and inflicted a horrible wound, of which she expired Sunday morning about 2 o'clock: She had her senses up to the last, and charged her parents with being responsible for the awful deed, and acquitted her lover of all blame. The parties, as their names indicate, were Germans. We are indebted to S. H. Emmons, who was an eye witness of the awful spectacle, for the above facts.—Ind. Sen.

THURSDAY, APRIL 1 1858.

Educational Courtesy.

Since the initiation of our Union Schools and the formation of our teachers associations, the educational interests of our State have taken a far wider range, and assumed a much more distinct, and better recognized character before the public than they ever before possessed. The friends of the cause, uniting with the practical educators of the land have labored, not unsuccessfully, to bring the public to appreciate, the vast importance to themselves, and to their children, that only thorough and competent instructors should be placed in charge of their schools, and the miserable economy there is in employing an incompetent instructor, for the sake of saving a few dollar's difference in expense.

The result of these efforts are more than sufficiently manifest. Our schools have within the last few years improved in character and efficiency more than 100 per cent and the competition for good teachers is such as to have raised the salaries of our first class Principals from 300 or $400 to an average of from 800 to $1,000 per year. We do not find fault with this, for we have labored with the rest for its consummation.

But it becomes us to guard against excess in this, as in every other direction. We recognize us fully as any one that an indifferent teacher is dear at any price, and a superior one cheap at almost any price.

But we would respectfully submit whether the prices now attained are not already sufficient to call into the field a sufficient amount of the first educational talent of the land They are nearly equal to the salaries of the Professors of our eastern colleges, and fully equal on an average to those of our Clergymen Lawyers and Physicians.

But to come to the point at once, we wish to submit to those gentlemen who have in charge the educational interests, and especially the Union Schools of this state, whether they will subserve their own ultimate interests, by so eager an attempt to secure for themselves superior teachers, as shall lead them to disregard the ordinary demands of educational courtesy, and going into the schools already in charge of some teacher of this character, seek by an increase of salary, to draw him thence into their own employ. It may for the time subserve the purpose. But it is a two edged sword which they are handling and they must not find fault with it if they should sometimes find it turned upon themselves.

We object to this course for these reasons. It is discourteous and not likely to secure harmony and co-operation among the educational men of our State. It will only increase the salaries (which as we have said before we believe already fully equal to the other professions, and quite sufficient to call into our State a fair share of the educational talent of the country,) without increasing the capacity or efficiency of our teachers. It will unsettle our schools, by leading to a constant competition for, and change of teachers, which, even when there is no difference in the capacity of the teacher employed, can never be done without serious loss. It will react upon the teachers to their own serious detriment, by over crowding the State with applicants for the schools and eventually lead to a reduction as unreasonable as an increase is now uncalled for. And it will re act upon the public, and will we fear destroy that sympathy and cordial co-operation which is now our chief element of success.

Now we are but one of many, and it is not for us to dictate. But in view of these considerations, we would suggest whether a mutual understanding and co operation is not desirable in this matter, and whether it were not better for us in the first place to determine, as by mutual consent, that we will not go into a school in this or any other State, already in successful operation, and seek to draw from it teachers which they desire to retain, to supply our own want. That we will always pay our instructors amply and to our best ability, but that we will never, make an increase of salary a matter of competition among ourselves, but when a teacher is thrown upon the market we will secure the best we can. This we believe would be found to promote mutual harmony and subserve the mutual interests not only of the Schools, but of the teachers also.

The reverse of this, if persisted in, may for a time secure to a few favorite teachers, salaries of $1,500; or even $2,000, per annum, secured however by the disruption of our educational harmony, and the unsettling of very many of our schools, and in a manner which will in the end force the public, we fear, into a reaction that shall drive us as far in the other direction.

Washington March 29.

Senate.—Numerous memorials and private bills of an uninteresting nature were presented.

The consideration of the Minnesota bill was resumed, the question being on a motion to amend the section relating to the number of Representatives.

After considerable debate, Mr. Mason's amendment of Mr. Douglas amendment that Minnesota have but one Representative was negatived.

Mr. Wilson's amendment was then put, namely: To give one Representative now; that a census be taken forthwith and an additional Representative allowed on the basis of the returns: carried. Yeas 22; nays 21.

The following are the yeas: Messrs Biggs, Broderick, Brown Cameron, Chandler, Collamer, Crittenden, Dixon, Doolittle, Douglas, Durkee, Fessenden, Foster, Hale, Harlan, Houston, Hamlin, King, Simmons, Wade and Wilson.

Adjourned.

House.—Mr. Hill was satisfied with the legality of the Lecompton Constitution. Its framers having discharged their duty with signal ability.—As a southern man, he said, he never expected that Kansas would be a Slave state. He therefore thought the repeal of the Missouri Compromise unwise, and calculated to produce serious strife.

Mr. Wade, of Ohio, contended that the present agitation grew out of the conflict between free and slave labor. The party to which he was oposed was seeking to extend the latter in the most odious form. When the two shall be reconciled, the political millenium will have arrived. He charged upon the Democracy the deliberate purpose to cheat freedom out of its rights in Kansas.

Mr. Ready, of Tenn., argued in favor of the Lecompton Constitution, and justified the repeal of the Missouri Compromise.

Mr. Gooch, of Mass, argued that the Lecompton Constitution was not in fact the will of the people of Kansas, and has not the authority of law, and is polluted by fraud and violence. It could not be amended for eight years without a revolution To follow the President's recommendation in this particular; would inevitably result in civil war in Kansas, and this precedent will produce similar consequences in other Territories.

Mr. Taylor, of La, made a speech to show the superiority of capital over labor, contending that the south was the only portion of the country in which white labor receives due honor.

Mr. Olin, of N. Y., argued that the Kansas Nebraska bill was never designed to recognize popular sovereignty. It was mere machinery in the hands of corrupt men, to control the affairs of the territory, irrespective of the will of the people. He maintained the right of Congress to govern the territories.

Mr. Bennett of N. Y., and Mr. Wilson of Ind, severally opposed the Lecompton movement.

Washington March 30.

Senate.—Nothing of interest took place during the morning except the presentation, by Mr. Doolittle, of the joint resolutions of the Wis. Legistature, in favor of the admission of Minnesota.

Considerable time was occupied in amending the bill valueing the lands for the Washington Aqueduct, when it is passed.

At one o'clock Mr. Hale moved that instead of the Minnesota bill being taken up the Senate go into executive session on the appointment of marshall for the District of Columbia, saying that it was a shame that the government wheels of the District should be stopped.

House.—The House went into com. on the deficiency appropriation bill.

Mr. Bocock said that 28 gentleman desire to express their views on the Kansas question, as only two days were to elapse before the bill would be up. He thought it proper to state the fact in order that members might govern themselves accordingly.

Mr. Sandige, of La. spoke for an hour in defence of Southern society and institutions.

Mr. Walbridge, made a speech in opposition to Lecompton.

Washington March 30

The City Council to-night passed a joint resolution declaring that the Government of the City of Washington is unable to preserve order under existing circumstances, and appointing a Committee to appeal to Congress for the establishment of a permanent police to be under the direction of the Secretary of the Interior. Also a resolution for a temporary police of 100 men—25 of whom to be mounted, armed and equipped.

Richmond, March 27.

Fifteen freight cars on the sea board and Roanoke R. R. were precipitated into the creek on Thursday last by the breaking down of the bridge near Suffolk. No person injured. The cars were freighted with dry goods and groceries, valued at about $10,000, and intended for the Gaston and Raleigh Rail Road.

The weather has been very mild [illegible]

A complete assortment of recently purchased Chemicals and Medicines, selected with particular reference to purity, are being received at DEMOTT'S Drug Store, one door above the Post office.

He expects to supply all things in this department in a way to meet the claims of Physicians, and the expectations of their prescriptions, so far as it regards the GENUINENESS of the articles

There will be in constant attendence, at the store, night and day, one who can be relied upon for correctness in his services.

MOFFAT'S LIFE PILLS AND PHOENIX BITTERS.

The very painful symptoms which precede the attacks of fever and ague can be suppressed and all danger arrested, by the use of these valuable medicines. The pills and bitters are also a cure for rheumatism, and every variety of bowel complaint.

Sold by W. B Moffat, 335 Broadway, N. Y. Taylor & Curtis Agents, Tecumseh.

SORE AND INFLAMED EYES.—These disagreeable complaints are becoming remarkably prevalent of late, and giving any thing but an interesting look to the possessor of the diseased organ. "A red and fiery eye" is not pretty to look at, and certainly cannot be agreeable to have "for keeps," as the boys say. We can tell those afflicted in this manner how to cure the evil, and won't charge them any thing for the information. Let them get some of BRAGG'S ARCTIC LINIMENT and touch the inflamed part with it a few times, and the work is done. The Arctic Liniment may be obtained at any of the Drug stores in this place

DR. J. C. AYER, the world renowned Chemist of New England, is now stopping at the Burnet house in this city. He has been making a tour of the Western States, with his scientific associates, to investigate their remedial productions, or such as he can make remedial. We notice he has been received with marked distinction by our leading citizens of the West and are rejoiced to find they have shown a proper estimate of the man who has perhaps done more for the relief of human ills than any other American.—Cincinnati Journal.

The most skeptical people can be convinced by trial that all the family medicines are not humbug, and that among the thousand of butterly life there are a few of great merit, and undoubted worth. Of these, Dr. Sanford's Invigorator, or Liver Remedy stands first and foremost among the remedies of the day that can be relied on as a medicine that is all that is recommended by its proprietors.

It advertises itself on every trial, for there are none who use it but tell their friends to do so, and so it goes from mouth to mouth till all the people of the Union have learned the good of this truly valuable medicine. It is recommended with testimonials to prove its virtue for the cure of liver complaints of every kind, from the worst Dyspepsia to a common headache, and is particularly adapted to Jaundice, Deranged Stomach, Bowel Complaints and diseases of children

One or two doses are said to cure a cold with scarce a failure. It is worth a trial for this alone. It is particularly adapted to use of ladies, particularly those of sedentary habits. Some ladies of the highest standing in society have given their certificates of its efficacy, and we say to all who are ailing, try one bottle and you will never be without

BUFFALO.—The ice in the lake is breaking up and separating somewhat.—An occasional streak of blue water exhibits itself in the almost interminable field and pack, and it is growing very rotten. A cake of it, when struck smartly, will fall with a crash into lance-like splinters, and beautiful crystals. All we want now is a wind up the lake which will soon separate the decaying masses, and open navigation, which we do not doubt will be in full vigor before the middle of April, unless we have severer weather than appearances at present portend.—Republic.

In Book "B" of Deeds, in the Register of Deeds Office, Green Bay, Wisconsin, is found the following copy of a Deed, executed by Wabisipine, (The Eagle) and Le Tabac Noir, (Black Tobacco) and Two Beavers, to Dominique Ducharme. The original and the registry are in French, and the signatures are executed by tokens representing an Eagle, a hen Eagle, a black Duck and a male and female Beaver:

DEED.—[Translation.]—"In one thousand seven hundred and ninety-three, appeared Wabisipine and Black Tobacco, who have voluntarily abandoned and ceded to Monsieur Dominique Ducharme, from the upper end of the portage at Calcalin to the end of the prairie below, by forty arpents in depth; and upon the other side, opposite the portage, four arpents wide by thirty deep; which grantors acknowledge themselves to be satisfied with four kegs of rum.

The following is a verbatim copy a letter writen by the principal King of Siam to an American gentleman The original has been lithographed, and displays a good handwriting:

Royal Chamber grand palace. Bangkok, 19 May, 1857.

No. 160. Ex Majore Rege Siamensium

To S. E Burrows, Esquire,

an American old gentleman visited me yesterday.

SIR:

When you have been entertained with me yesterday evening, I beg to state truly that I observed that you are of good characters; indeed, and your conversation in regard to the occurrence at Canton was proving your being a righteous person of real honesty and what you have stated that you have conversed with Sir John Bowring the superintendent of British trade in China for accedable provision of the Anglo-Siamese treaty moreover it is best and more favorable to all powerless and defendless nations. I beg to offer my great sincere thanks for your so good friendly feeling and also for your kind present of a few bottles of good American Champaines. I have nothing to be presented you in return and expression of my thanks to you except these a few lines in myself own royal hand sealed with my private and usual royal seals or stamps which I doubt not will be pleased to you much for acceptance and keeping in your hand for my remembrance on future and for showing to your friends of Europe and America.

I have the honor to be your worthy good friend

EARLY NAVIGATION.—The steamer Dart, from Detroit, was our first arrival this season We find in the Detroit Tribune an account of her safe return to that city, and of the condition of the western end of the Lake. It appears that the Dart took advantage of the opening made by a strong westerly wind the dart through the channel thus opened between the shore and the ice. On her return, the wind having changed, she had to 'hug the shore' closely, and by extra speed and and sharp management she got through barely two hours before the channel was closed again by the returning ice field. The condition of this and of the Lake accounts for there having been no arrivals, thus far, since that of the gallant little steamer above mentioned

Bragg's Arctic Liniment.

This unequarable Liniment upon which the great mass of afflicted of all lands now rely for relief from the pangs of Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Gout, Erysipelas Cancer, Scrofula, Sprains, Bruises, Burns, Scalds and all cutaneous diseases, is rapidly superseding all similar preparations. The proprietors give for the encouragement of sufferers, the following memorandum of a few of the wonderful cures effected by it during the past few months. Certificates from the parties named are in the possession of the proprietors; their length precludes the insertion of all but a few.

One Bottle Triumphant.

Mrs. Moffitt, No 545 Morgan Street, St. Louis, having suffered for three years with Rheumatism, and tried numerous remedies without effect, was cured by one fifty cent bottle of Arctic Liniment.

Out of Purgatory.

Henry Davis, Mound street, St. Louis, who says he was "suffering the pangs of purgatory" with neuralgia for months, was cured by three or four applications of the Arctic Liniment.

Pity the Little Children.

A little daughter of Mrs. Lee, residing on Lake St. Chicago was scalled all over by the upsetting of a kittle of boiling water. The Arctic Liniment was applied according to the directions and the fire was instantly extracted, and in a few days the little sufferer was well.

Restored to Beauty.

Mrs George K. Tyler, Canal street, N Orleans had long suffered from a painful, and disfiguring eruption on the face, and by the use of one bottle of the Liniment was cured, and restored to her original beauty.

A Horrible Tumor.

Eugene Mallory, Natchez was three years the victim of a horrible tumor on the neck, which resisted all remedies until he tried the Arctic Ligiment. Three bottles cured him in a few weeks.

Wonderful Cure!

Mrs Bedford, Mobile, was confined to her couch for three years with numb palsy and after being in despair from the failure of all other remidies, was cured by the Arctic Liniment, in a little over a month.

An Explosion.

Memphis, Tenn. Nov. 28th, 1857.

I hereby certify that having been badly bruised and scaled by the explosion of a Steam Boiler, a friend induced me to try Bragg's Arctic Liniment. The smart was instantly extracted from the scalds, and in a very short time all the pain was gone from the bruises. In two weeks I was well, and able to resume my business.

The Blind See!

Webster City, Iowa, Nov. 9th, 1857.

Dr. A. G. BRAGG.—Dear Sir: For more than three years I had been afflicted with inflamed eyes, in an aggravated degree, and tried various Physicians, and several nostrums, to no effect. I was indnged by Dr. Baum to try the Arctic Liniment, and in two months was nearly well. My little daughter was afflicted in the same manner at the same time, and during a portion of the time was entirely blind in one eye. I applied your valuable Liniment, and her eyes are perfectly sound. Thus have I with one two-bitt bottle cured my daughter's eyes and my own besides curing the rheumatism in my back. I would not be without your invaluable remedy in my house. Yours Truly

WM RUSSELL.

Webster City, Iowa, Nov., 9th, 1857.

I hereby certify, that I am well acquainted with Wm Russell, and with the astonishing cures he mentions, and know his statement to be strickly true.

Good for Animals.

This invaluable Liniment is also equally effectious in curing the diseases of animals as witness the following certificate; Messrs J & A. Arnot, and Lynch, Arnot & Co., keep the two largest livery stables in the west, and are generally known throughout the U. S.

St Louis, Dec 22d, 1857

We the undersigned, having used Dr Bragg's Arctic Liniment for a number of months, cheerfully testify to its superior efficacy in curing the diseases of horses; so well are we satisfied of the Arctic being the best Liniment made, that we would use no other. We keep and have kept for a number of years, extensive livery stables in this city, and consequently our experience about horses and their diseases is great, and we unhesitatingly say that the Arctic Liniment is the only one we have ever found ALWAYS EFFECTIVE. We cordially recommend it to all livery stable keepers and others having the care of horses.

DR ROBACK'S BLOOD PURIFIER AND BLOOD PILLS.

DISEASE VANQUISHED.

—BY—

Dr. Roback's Scandinavian Remedies.

AFTER YEARS OF STUDY AND EXPERIMENT Dr. Roback, the eminent Swedish Physician, succeeded in producing a medicine from twenty-three different species of mountain herbs of his native land which acts directly upon the causes of disease in the blood, and by restoring the corrupted fountain of life to a condition of health and purity, expels disease from the system, wherever it may be located, or whatever may be its character. Indigestion, nervous complaints, cplectic fits coughs consumption in its early stages sore throat bronchitis, fever and ague asthma, low spirits, sexual incapacity, feminine weakness, pricking of the skin, symptomatic of paralysis, rheumatism neuralgia, tumor cancer, diabetis, luxitude and debility, diarrhea, and all other disorders of the organs of respiration, the liver, the kidneys, the stomach, the nerves, or the muscular fiber are unerringly cured by this preparation. It is to the materies morbi or seeds of disease what an alkali is to an acid; it neutralizes them with absolute certainty while at the same time it regulates the secretions, removes obstructions from the bowels, creates appetite renews bodily vigor and regenerates every animal function. Such is the nature, such are the effects of Dr. Roback's famous Scandinavian Blood Purifier which, if taken in conjunction with his Scandinavian Blood Pills, will not only obliterate the most painful disease, but prevent their recurrence, and lengthen life beyond the ordinary span.

In the SCANDINAVIAN VEGETABLE BLOOD PILLS, Dr. Roback presents the result of twenty years of experience, hard study, and experiment at last what a perfect pill should be. No one can doubt their superiority after one single trial. Price of the Scandinavian Blood Purifier, $1 per bottle or $5 per half-dozen; Scandinavian Blood Pills, 25 cents per box, or five for $1.

PERU, Miami Co. Ind., Aug 4 1857.

DR. C. W. ROBACK: I have received so much benefit from your scandinavian Blood Purifier and Blood Pills that I have thought it my duty and it is no less my inclination to give you a plain statement of my case. I was for years afflicted with that bane of all comfort and efficiency in business dyspepsia. To recapitulate all the so-called remedies which I have used to rid myself of this disease, would indeed make a melancholy catalogue. I also consulted with the best physicians I could hear of. I was induced to try your remedies through the persuasions of a friend, and after using them a few days was greatly benefitted, and in a short time, less than a month, I was entirely and permanently cured. I was also afflicted with the most violent nervous headache which I suppose was produced by my disordered stomach for when my dispepsia left me my headache left with it. I now feel better in every respect than I have for ten years.

Very truly yours, JOHN S. DEMUTH.

From the Rev. Mr. McMULLEN, Pastor of Roberts Chapel:

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Oct. 5, 1857.

DR. C. W. ROBACK—Dear Sir: I have used your Blood Purifier for a nervous affection, from which I have suffered much at times. While it is pleasant to the taste, it certainly has a happy effect upon the nerves. Please accept my thanks for your kind regards and acts and believe me,

Yours, J. W. T. MCMULLEN,

FROM A WELL-KNOWN STEAMBOAT CLERK.

Louisville, June 4 1857

DEAR DOCTOR: Send me half a dozen boxes of your Pills, care of H. G. Card & Co., as I can get them next trip. Six weeks ago nothing could have convinced me that a twenty-five cent box of Pills could have relieved my obstinate chronic constipation, with its attending evils. I told you so when I bought them, but I am bound to own that your Pills "fill the contract." Why I have taken as many as six (6) of ——'s and other makers' sometimes without effect and sometimes with too much effect; but I have no trouble with yours—they are just what I want.

CINCINNATI, Friday, Sept. 4, 1857.

DR. ROBACK—Dear Sir: Having been afflicted with neuralgia or rheumatism for the past year and a half, and having seen your medicine, called the Scandinavian Blood Purifier, highly recommended by gentlemen with whom I am acquainted, I was induced to try it, but not before I had used various other medicines—After using two bottles I felt its effect very sensibly, and upon using two more, I found myself perfectly cured. You will allow me, therefore, to congratulate you upon having a discovery in medicine which is proving itself to be a worker of such wonders in the diseases of the human family.

GEORGE S. BENNETT.

Local Editor Cincinnati Daily Enquirer.

INDIANAPOLIS, Wednesday, Sept. 2 1857.

DR. C. W. ROBACK. Dear Sir: Having been troubled for several years with extreme debility and weakness so much so that I was unable to attend to my ordinary business at times, and having heard of the wonderful cures that your Scandinavian Blood Purifier and Pills were effecting I was induced by a friend to try them. I have been using the Purifier for the last twelve months, and find the medicine fully equal to its recommendations. So valuable is it to me that I cannot now dispense with the use of it at my advanced age of life—seventy-seven years.

I cheerfully give this information for the benefit of those similarly affected. MORRIS MORRIS.

MOFFAT'S LIFE PILLS AND Phœnix Bitters

THE BEST FAMILY MEDICINE NOW before the public, for the cure of Scrofula, Ulcers, Scurvy, or Eruptions of the Skin, Fever and Ague, Dyspepsia, Dropsy, and in fact most all diseases soon yield to their curative properties.

It has been computed that during the last twenty five years upwards of FOUR MILLIONS of persons have been benefited by the use of these medicines; a fact which speaks volumes in favor of their curative properties. A single trial will place them beyond the reach of competition in the estimate of every patient. By their use the BLOOD IS RESTORED TO A HEALTHY STATE and freed from all impurities. The system

AGRICULTURAL.

From the Genesee Farmer.

What Shall we Plant?

At this time, to many farmers in Western New York and elsewhere, this is a perplexing question. Nearly everything in the way of crops has become uncertain and unsettled, by reason of depreciation in the market value, or the uncertain yield of some, and the very material injury to or wholly crop by the ravages of the weevil.

I think it is safe to predict that wheat will not prove a certain or profitable crop for some years to come wherever the weevil has made its appearance, as there is no reason to suppose its stay to be brief. As long as the wheat crop furnishes animal food for the swarms of insects of this family, so long may farmers expect to be visited by them. I doubt not they may be less severe some years or in some particular locality, than in others; but that they will continue to prey upon the wheat crop, seems a fixed fact. And, what is worse, they continue, like the 'star of empire,' to travel westward. Passing through New York and Canada, the farmers of Ohio, Michigan, and other western wheat-raising States, may prepare for their destructive visit. Many years may intervene before these distant points may be reached, but it is the part of wisdom to apprehend and prepare for the scourge, that it may be measurably averted. I do not now propose to offer any suggestions upon the destruction or dispersion of the weevil. One thing is certain: wherever the weevil has fairly made its appearance, it will not be advantageous to sow wheat as a main crop. This has been done too long already. It has been one of the vital errors of American farming as I view it, that they have in the different localities made some one crop a specialty, to the almost entire exclusion of every other. As a natural consequence, whenever that crop has either failed from any cause or has not commanded the expected price, the farmer has for that year found his expectations far from being realized; and probably the result has been, leaving him with no surplus if not really in debt. This has been and will continue to be, the result where the main business of the farm has been devoted to growing only one crop, whether it be wheat, corn, beans, stock, or the dairy business.

The first and most rational answer, therefore, to the question with which I began, would be, "Plant a diversified crop." While it may be sound common sense, and good farming economy, to devote a large part of the land under tillage to some one crop, common prudence and a cursery knowledge of the laws of demand and supply will strongly urge the necessity of planting different fields to different crops, that if one fails or does not command the requisite price, another may, and thus enable the husbandman to reap a fair reward for his toil.

Agricultural editors and chemists assert that a crop of wheat, or any other crop, takes from the soil in which it is grown certain elements—constituents of the growing and perfect grain; but that different crops—as corn, clover, barley, millet, and others—take up different proportions of these constituents. It would seem, therefore, to be a matter of necessity having in view the good of the land, that every farmer should pursue a mixed husbandry; and as a consequence, plant or sow in rotation by some regular course, as to let clover follow wheat, corn after clover, and barley or some root crop after corn, to be succeeded again by wheat and clover to grafs, and then to meadow and pasture. I do not propose to indicate a course, but only the good sound sense of rotation and some reasons why it should be pursued.

I have no doubt that the dilemma in which to many farmers now find themselves—poor crops and nothing to sell—would have been more than half averted at the outset, had it been their practice to diversify their crops so as to have enabled them to realize a profit on one if the others failed. There is too much risk—too much at stake—to jeopard the use of the farm and the expense of its cultivation upon the success or faiure of a single grain crop; and, sooner or later, those who do this will experience the bitter fruits thereof, as thousands in Western New York are now doing.

In the best farming districts of Europe, where the land is under rental, experience has taught the necessity, as it has shown the wisdom, of a 4 or 6 course system; not only as it regards the annual profits of the farm, but also as the more surely preserving and indeed improving the fertility and consequent productiveness of the soil. It is essentially an improved system of agriculture, and one to which the wheat growers of New York, as well as the corn-producers of the great West, can not too soon adopt.

Patent Medicines.

ONE DOLLAR
WILL BUY

ONE OF THE BEST PURGATIVE AND LIVER MEDICINES now before the public. DR. SANFORD'S LIVER INVIGORATOR. It is not only a Cathartic but a Liver remedy, and will go to the Liver to correct its morbid action, without any of the painful feelings experienced by the use of most Cathartics, or strengthen the system by the use of those that it purges. It is the Cheapest and best pill ever offered to the public, and which taken daily in moderate doses will strengthen and build it up with unusual rapidity. DR. SANFORD'S INVIGORATOR is composed entirely from new articles of medicine, namely Gums.

Some idea of the strength of these gums may be formed when it is known that one bottle of the Invigorator contains as much strength as one hundred doses of Calomel, without any of the debilitating effects which follow.

Though possessing rare medical powers, these Gums have been but little known to Physicians until used in and never used in their present form, with such the form of the Invigorator, which with such unprecedented success as to induce the proprietor to offer it as a family medicine relief and knows its effects. It has rarely ever failed to cure Liver Complaints in their worst forms.

INDIGESTION being caused by a deranged Liver is cured when the Liver is restored to action.

JAUNDICE is caused by an improper action of the Liver, and as a proof that the Invigorator relieves this disease, let any one troubled with jaundice take the Invigorator regularly one week and their skin will begin to assume its original color.

COSTIVENESS can be permanently cured by the Invigorator. Take it in small doses on retiring, and it assists nature in her operations. By gradually distributing the dose, the bowels are left in a healthy and active state, and work as regularly as clock work.

SICK HEADACHE is very soon relieved by taking a double dose of the Invigorator, which corrects all acidity and sourness of the stomach.

For an over-loaded stomach it is equal to an emetic, as it delivers all oppressive or uneasy feeling after eating heartily. For a FAMILY MEDICINE generally, all who use it speak in the highest terms.

DR. SANFORD'S INVIGORATOR came to us recommended as a sure cure for Liver Complaints and all diseases arising from a Diseased Liver. The testimonials of many of our Physicians in its favor, induced us to try it, and now conviction is certain that it is one of the greatest blessings ever given to Dyspeptics. for it made a complete cure before the first bottle was taken, and no we can eat anything edible without trouble, while before nothing but the lightest food would digest, and often that gave pain. Now what we want to say to all our readers is, if Liver Complaints or Dyspepsia trouble you, do not fail to try this the greatest remedy in the world.—State Paper.

We take infinite pleasure in recommending this medicine as a preventative for FEVER and AGUE CHILL FEVER, and all FEVERS of a BILIOUS TYPE. It operates with certainty and thousands are willing to testify to its wonderful virtues. There has never been tried in our family a remedy which has met with such unbounded success in the cure of diseases incident to children as DR. SANFORD'S INVIGORATOR; nor is it adapted to diseases of children that we use it; for it acts as a Cathartic so mildly and gently, and at the same time operates the system so thoroughly that we think we are doing a service to all in advising them, when they need medicine, to try this remedy. There are cases that baffle every other remedy, and for Liver, Stomach and Bowels, where all other remedies failed to give relief. It has become a needful in our family that we will not be without it.—Jacksonville, Ill., Republican.

OPPOSITION.

Cabinet & Chair Shop,

[One door south of Tecumseh Academy.]

The undersigned believes that he need only intimate to this community that he was a partner in the late famous establishment at the old New York store, to ensure him a liberal patronage; all are aware what a flourishing business was done at that House, while he was a partner in the firm, that is, while he turned the grind-stone, and how that establishment almost disappeared when the motive power was withdrawn. It is not doubted therefore, but that the public will be gratified to know, that the self same power has put in motion a Machine that is now turning out Tables, Bureaus, Bedsteads, Chairs, and all kind of Furniture, with such velocity that will enable him to sell them at prices so low, that will astonish the natives.

Now I would say, to all those who want Cheap Furniture, "come on, now is the time" for I am determined to 'bust' every establishment in town.

Invalids, Fathers, Mothers, Physicians, Philanthropists, read their Facts, and judge of their Virtues.

FOR THE CURE OF

Headache, Sick Headache, Foul Stomach,

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., May 3, 1855.

DR. J. C. AYER. Sir: I have been repeatedly cured of the worst headache and bilious attacks by one box of your Pills. It soothes to rest from a fast of 24 hours. Other cathartics do not. If they will cure others as they do me, they will be worth their weight in gold. Yours with great respect, ED. W. PERRIN,
Clerk of Masonic Union.

Bilious Disorders and Liver Complaints.

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
WASHINGTON, D.C., Feb., 1856.

SIR: I have used your Pills in my general and hospital practice ever since you made them, and cannot hesitate to say they are the best cathartic we employ. Their vegetable action on the living system is prompt, safe, and consequently they are an admirable remedy for derangements of that organ. Indeed, I have seldom found a case of bilious disease so obstinate that it did not readily yield to them.

Fraternally yours, ALONZO BALL, M.D.,
Physician of the Marine Hospital.

Dysentery, Relaxation, and Worms.

POST OFFICE, HARTLAND, LIV. CO., MICH., Nov. 16, 1855.

DR. AYER: Your Pills are the perfection of medicine. They have done me more good than I can tell you. She had been sick and pining away for months. Was off to be doctored at great expense, but got no better. She then commenced taking your Pills, which soon cured her, by expelling large quantities of worms (dead) from her body. They effectually cured her and cur two children of bloody dysentery. One of our neighbors had it bad and my wife cured him with two doses of your Pills, while others around us paid from five to twenty dollars doctors' bills, and lost much time, without being cured entirely even then. Such a medicine as yours, which is actually good and honest, will be prized here.

GEO. J. GRIFFIN, Postmaster.

Indigestion and Impurity of the Blood.

From Rev. J. V. Himes, Pastor of Advent Church, Boston.

DR. AYER: I have used your Pills with extraordinary success in my family and among those I am called to visit in distress. To regulate the organs of digestion and purify the blood they are the very best remedy I have ever known, and I can confidently recommend them to my friends. Yours,
J. V. HIMES.

WARSAW, WYOMING CO., N. Y., Oct. 24, 1855.

DEAR SIR: I am using your Cathartic Pills in my practice, and find them an excellent purgative to cleanse the system, and purify the fountains of the blood.
JOHN G. MEACHAM, M.D.

Erysipelas, Scrofula, King's Evil, Tetter, Tumors, and Salt Rheum.

From a Housewifing Merchant of St. Louis, Feb. 4, 1856.

DR. AYER: Your Pills are the panacea of all that is great in medicine. They have cured my little daughter of ulcerous sores upon her hands and feet that had persisted incurable for years. Her mother has been long grievously afflicted with blotches and pimples on her skin and in her hair. After our child was cured, she also tried your Pills, and they have cured her.
ASA MORRIDGE.

Rheumatism, Neuralgia, and Gout.

From the Rev. Dr. Hawles, of the Methodist Epis. Church.

PULASKI HOUSE, SAVANNAH, GA., Jan. 6, 1856.

HONORED SIR: I should be ungrateful for the relief your skill has brought me if I did not report my case to you. A cold settled in my limbs and brought on excruciating rheumatic pains, which ended in confirmed rheumatism. Notwithstanding I had the best of physicians, the disease grew worse and worse, until, by the advice of some friends, I sent post haste to Baltimore, Dr. Jayne's agent in that city, for a box of your Pills. Their effects were slow, but sure. By persevering in the use of them I am now entirely well.
VINCENT SLIDELL.

SUSANNE CHAMBERS, RATON ROUGE, LA., 8 Dec., 1854.

DR. AYER: I have been entirely cured by your Pills of Rheumatic Gout—a painful disease that afflicted me for years.

For Dropsy, Plethora, and Kindred Complaints, requiring an active purge, they are scarcely less remedy.

For Costiveness or Constipation, and as a Dinner Pill, they are agreeable and effectual.

Fits, Suppression, Paralysis, Inflammation, and even Deafness, and Partial Blindness, have been cured by the alternative action of these Pills.

Most of the pills in market contain Mercury, which, although a valuable remedy in skillful hands, is dangerous in a public pill, from the dreadful consequences that frequently follow its incautious use. These contain no mercury or mineral substance whatever.

AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL

FOR THE RAPID CURE OF

COUGHS, COLDS, HOARSENESS, INFLUENZA, BRONCHITIS, WHOOPING COUGH, CROUP, ASTHMA, INCIPIENT CONSUMPTION,

and for the relief of consumptive patients in advanced stages of the disease.

We need not speak to the public of its virtues. Throughout every town, and almost every hamlet of our American States, its wonderful cures of pulmonary complaints have made it already known. Any, few are the families in any civilized country on this continent without some personal experience of its effects; and fewer yet are the communities any where which have not among them some living trophy of its victory over the subtle and dangerous diseases of the pulmonary organs. While no more powerful antidote has yet been known to man for these dreadful and dangerous diseases of the pulmonary organs, it also the pleasantest and safest remedy that can be employed for infants and young persons. Parents should have it in store against the insidious enemy that may lurk in the throat. We have abundant proofs that upon them unprepared, it never saves more lives by its use, believe the Cherry Pectoral saves more lives by its use, than all other medicines put together. Keep it by you, and cure your colds, while they are curable, not neglect them until no human skill can master the incurable canker that, fastened on the vitals, eats your life away. All know the deadly fatality of lung disorders, and all they know to be the terror of this remedy, we need but to assure them it is still made the best it was possible to make it. We spare no cost, no care, no toil to produce the most perfect possible, and thus afford those who rely upon it the best agent which our skill can furnish for their cure.

ADDRESS

Delivered before the Association of Editors and Publishers of the State of Michigan, held at Ann Arbor March 23 1858 by

J O. BALCH, ESQ.

BRETHREN:—In addressing you on this occasion, it will not be so much my endeavor to present to you an oration decorated in the tropes and figures of studied rhetoric, as to refer you to some historical facts and to relate a few personal reminiscences in relation to our art, calculated to interest, I cannot hope to instruct this enlighened assembly. I shall also make a few suggestions, which may not be considered unprofitable by the Association in promoting its welfare and usefulness And in doing this, if my remarks shall appear to be disconnected and desultory, the great variety of subjects which naturally obtrude themselves upon the attention and which are intimately connected with our art, must plead for such defect. The old Roman, Cicero, in his day, saw the chain of connection which binds the arts and sciences together in intimate dependence, when he said that "all the useful arts, which embellish life, and contribute to its enjoyments, have a certain relationship one with another." The printing press has always been the hand-maid of science and literature, which owe to this mighty engine the ailments by which they are sustained and animated.

Brethren, we are members of an honorable profession, which may claim, without a blush, an equal rank with any other, in point of usefulness and respectability.—Ours is the "art preservative of all arts;" and well befitting is this title, since it has preserved from the all devouring ravages of time all we know of ancient knowledge and wisdom, so invaluable to the modern scholar, statesman and philosopher. It has done more; it has transmitted to us, incorrupt, the oracles of Divine Truth, and sent them forth to mankind clothed in many existing languages, to instruct enlighten and prepare the hearts of man to become recipients of truths, essential to know, in order to secure eternal, and profitable to know, to promote earthly happiness. The press in all countries, is the efficient agent to advance the cause of science and literature in their several departments of investigation and range of research. It has not only stimulated genius to push its inquiries into the arcana of nature, and to interrogate her with all the eagerness which its luminous perceptions are calculated to inspire—but the same potent agent has given wings to thoughts conceived in the closet, but rendered world wide by its disseminating power. It has brought mind in communion with mind, and bound together, by ties of brotherhood, the mentally gifted of every clime.

Such are some of the benefits which the operation of the press has conferred upon the world. But its freedom is essential to enable it to accomplish all the good of which it is capable. It should be matter for unfeigned congratulation that, in this happy country, it is free and unfettered to pursue its labors in enlightening, humanizing and polishing society—in disseminating pure principles of morality and religion, and in sustaining all our institutions legitimately emanating from our republican form of government.

But a free press is sometimes accused of licentiousness—of disturbing the order of civil governments, and of propagating principles deletorious to the permanency of established rule. In reply to such accusations—which are often insincerely made, and always with selfish feelings—it is only necessary to answer: Where is there any earthly good without some concomitant evil, and why complain that established order is sometimes disturbed and destroyed by the result of free discussion when that order is inherently wrong; productive of tyranny and oppression and destructive of human rights and human happiness.

Authentic history does not distinctly inform us in what remote age, or by whom the alphabet was invented. The origin of this living monument of human production like that of the pyramids of Egypt lies hid in obscure antiquity, and is lost in the lapse of ages. It is probable that, like most other discoveries, it was gradually developed, at first imperfectly and afterwards improved, as deficiences were experienced, new ideas conceived, and new symbols were found necessary to represent different sounds; thus proceeding on the principles of phonography.—Noah Webster, who, you know, was a man of letters and words, too, informs us that Cadmus a learned prince of Thebes introduced into Greece sixteen letters of the alphabet.' Now, whether this learned Theban be a myth or not, it is a sensible conclusion that somebody commenced this invaluable discovery. If it was Cadmus who began this work of the brain,, he has since been outdone by a Cherokee Indian, who, a few years ago, invented what the Theban prince did not—a whole alphabet for his language, and completed it by the force of his genius. The stately erections of antiquity shall yet perish; imperial palaces and all material works of human industry. and skill shall crumble into dust; but the alphabet, with its latent, magical power to reveal knowledge and truth, will remain to the latest period of recorded time; and our art, the actual exponent of alphabetic efficiency will share the same enduring fate.

The Greek language having been rendered as perfect as any other that ever existed, its harmonius and musical sounds were reverberated in temple and forum, and were listened to by a people who appreciated in a high degree the power of real eloquence While the Grecian orator, charmed by his sweet and captivating utterances, the sensitive ears of his auditory, he impelled at his will, by the force and vigor of his speech. that spirited and lively people to deeds of valor and heroism celebrated in history. Athens was the seat of ancient learning, of ancient refinement, and of most of the knowledge which the world then possessed. It was there that architecture received its grandest designs and most decorations, which were executed with a style and finish, exciting the admiration and wonder of all succeeding generations—it was there that sculpture arrived at the highest perfection, challenging imitation by all the modern artists, who are most gifted in giving the delicate touches of the chisel It is the Greek language in which Plato discoursed to his Disciples on his sublime philosophy, almost divine—in which Socrates taught his lessons of wisdom—in which Demosthenes shook Senates, awed Kings, and stirred the hearts of his countrymen to acts of astonishing valor in the field—it was that language in which Homer sung in heroic verse, whose cadences fell upon the ear 'in link'd sweetness,' charming the souls of his listeners—but, alas! Greece had no Printing Press to preserve her profound wisdom from being prttially lost to succeeding times, or to hand down to posterity the lettered productions of her elegant scholars. Fragments of these alone remain with us to tantalize our curiosity to know more of her precious attainments. Of these, after the wreck of her fortunes, the remains took their flight to rising Rome, and she was stripped of her elegance to decorate another people and another age. She lost her pre-eminent grandeur, and was left as Byron found her—

"——Greece—but LIVING Greece no more."

A learned historian has relatad in stately language, the rise and fall of the Roman Empire, and lamented, with the feelings of a true scholar, the degeneracy of her last days, and the barbarism into which she fell. The medœval age of darkness had covered, as with a pall, the the mental treasures committed to the keeping of fragile and perishable materials. A few souls, enlightened above their age, emerged from the prevailing darkness, to rescue from total oblivion, the remains of ancient learning, in the hands of the curious, or buried in the damp cells of monastic cloisters, or lying hid amidst the worthless and superstitious trash of the vatican Of these enthusiastic scholars and antiquarians, Petrarch was the chief. As Wickeliffe was the "morning star" of the Reformation, so was the former that of the revival of learning. To his labors is the present age chiefly indebted for what remains of the genius of ancient sages, and for opening the stores of ancient learning, on the verge of eternal oblivion. It was he, who, as if inspired with a fore-knowledge of a great coming event, prepared the way for its successful mission. Hallam, the philosophical writer on this epoch, says: "While the learned of Italy were eagerly exploring these recent acquisitions of manuscripts, deciphered with difficulty and slowly circulated from hand to hand, a few obscure Germans had gradually perfected the most important discovery recorded in the annals of mankind."

The discovery, above alluded to by our author, was the art of Printing, which burst upon the world like "Minerva, who, leaping upon the earth in her divine strength and radiant armor, ready at the moment of her nativity, to subdue and destroy her enemies."

Printing was first discovered about the middle of the 15th century, and, from the best authority, we must give to John Guttenburg—a German—the renown of being the first to cast separate types in matrices engraved for the purpose. This is the essence of the discovery; and its apparent simplicity should not excite surprise that it was not before invented, as many important discoveries have been made even in more enlightened times, appearing quite as simple, after they were found out. The era, in which printing on moveable types was invented, was prolific of other inventions, which because we every day experience their convenience, we forget were unknown before that comparatively late period. The same may be said of more modern inventions, which, from habit, have become indispensable to us, but which, within our recollection, were hardly "dreamed of in our philosophy."

Indeed, the imagination would not be put to a very hard task were it to attempt to figure to itself the barren condition in which mankind would have been placed at the present day, if the alphabet, if paper, if printing, had remained among those things that are not. It is something for the hand to execute a curious machine after a sample of it is presented to the attention, but it is still more the evidence of genius to conceive in the mind an original mechanism fitted to accomplish a given object, and, at the same time, to embody it in material form.—John Guttenberg did all this, and thereby immortalized his name. He had a genius impelled by noble utilitarian aims, as well as religion in his heart, to encourage him to do good; stimulated by a desire to assist the Reformation, then just dawning on the civilized world, his days and nights were continually employed in contriving a mode by which copies of the Bible might be multiplied in the shortest possible time, and the tedious process of copying by the pen avoided. Having perfected his art, in a surprising short time he accomplished his purpose—the Bible came forth from the press of our first printer, in all the habiliments of book-making. Thus our art became a 'fixed fact.' So eagerly were the facilities offered by it, seized upon in all parts of Europe, that within thirty years from its invention, printing presses were erected in almost every kingdom, and from them were issued editions of the old classic authors, dressed in all the luxuries of typography.

Although the art of printing came from the hands of its inventor in wonderful persection, and, like the fabled Bacchus in his cradle, was in its infancy endowed with rhe energies and functions of riper age; it has, as have other arts, been the subject on which the spirit of modern improvement has largely bestowed its favor; the result of which is, that the type is more than formerly symmetrical and beautiful in form, which adds attractions to the printed page. The mechanism of the press has also been essentially improved, and its capacity to execute greatly, yes, astonishingly enlarged These improvements have been gradual, and each in its turn valuable, from the wooden press to that of iron—from the cylinder press by hand, to the double and four fold cylinder by steam—from its laboriously throwing off three hundred impressions in an hour, to multiplying copies in the same length of time, by as many thousands. Such a revolution in printing on a large scale, has taken place, that if predicted even a quarter of a century ago, it would have been listened to with the same incredulity which would then have attended the announcement that the telegraph wires would annihilate time and space. And, what is no small honor to American genius, these facilities to save manual labor and to multiply with so much rapidity printed matter, are the results of the intelligent and ingenious mind of one of our countrymen, assisted, no doubt, with knowledge imparted to him by practical printers. Hoe's presses, (especially his newspaper presses,) have been carried to a degree of perfection which may defy all future improvements. They are sought for in Europe, even in France. where it might be supposed, the press of any kind is not needed, under the present national rule—where it has been pronounced a nuisance, offensive to imperial sensibilities, and where despotism dictates and prætorian bands enforce on the people, by their pikes, obedience to public measures, however oppressively tyranical—even into France Hoe's presses have been, or are about to be introduced. In England, also, the thunders of Jupiter tonans, seated on the Olympus of the British Empire are soon to be rendered more terrific by the genius of Hoe.

Shade of Ramage! Rest in Peace!—Although the effulgence of thy fame be obscured by the greater brightness of that of our successors, still shall thy name be kept in sorrowful recollection while one afflicted sufferer shall remain to remember thy last groans. But all this way by of episode.

The inventions of printing and of the mariners compass, were nearly coincident. They simultaneously occurred at a period when the human mind was struggling with mighty throes, to free itself from the restraints of ignorance, bigotry and superstition—when the bands which had bound it up from expansion, were about to give away, and it began to feel the influence of its native elasticity. From the one discovery, the arts and sciences sprang into life and activity—and a flood of light from awakened genius was poured upon the world; from the sensitive vibration of the needle to the pole, navigation was emboldened to launch her bark on oceans hitherto unexplored, and Commerce to dip her wings in every sea, and visit every clime. Intercourse was soon established between nations before unknown, and a New World added its treasures to the Old.

At the epoch referred to, the world of mind was rejuvinated by the operations of the press, with new vigor, and impelled by new motives, to recover its native dignity. Nor are we authorized to set any boundary to its onward course. It may be that its careerr in the acquisition of knowledge will not stop until,

Peace to the world its fairest fruits shall bring,
And earth shall bloom in one eternal spring.

We will now take leave of the Old World, which we have seen furnished with a moral lever, unlike that which Archimedes desired to move the world of matter, but one of equal power to move the world of mind. It is time that we cross the Atlantic, and take a view of our art as it has existed in the New-World. Let us embark, in imagination,—on board of the vessel which conveyed the first printing press and printing apparatus, set up at Cambridge. Of this, the Rev. Mr Glover was owner, who embarked with it, designed as a gift to Harvard College.—He dying on the passage, the press became the property of President Dunster, who employed Stephen Daye as its manager—the first American printer this side of the Gulf of Mexico; for presses had before been established in Mexico and Lima. Our ancient fellow craftsman is said to have been a good pressman, but an awkward and bungling compositor and proof reader. However this may be, (which is somewhat doubtful, considering how liable are the conductors of presses to be slandered, even in our day) Mr. Daye, as the first production of his press, printed the "Freeman's Oath," in 1639. In 1640, appeared the first British American book—The "Bay Psalm Book," with "Spiritual songs." This publication is laid up in the archives of the Massachusetts Historical Society, an extract from which I will read—

Jael the Kenite, Heber's wife, bove woman blest shall be
Above the women in the tent,
a blessed one is she,
He water ask'd, she gave him milk;
in lordly dish she fetch'd
Her butter forth; unto the nail
she forth her left hand stretch'd;
Her right hand to the workman's maul
and Sissera hammered;
She pierced and struck his temples through,
and then cut off his head.
He at her feet bowed, fell, lay down,
he at her feet bowed where
He fell; whereas he bowed down
he fell destroyed there.

We would not, by any means, be understood to intend, in reciting this specimen of New England sacred poetry of ancient times, to ridicule our fore-fathers. They were pious and good men, and if the poetic muse had not inspired them to indite in strains so imaginative as those which charm modern ears to higher flights of fancy, it was because they thought that "God's altar needs not our polishing"—which was their expression. They, therefore, in turning any portion of scripture into rhyme, adhered, with religious scrulosity, to the original literal expression, But anxions to find any apology for their apparent want of taste and artistic skill in poetic composition,—we would fain ascribe as a cause the sea-sickness, which the muse must have experienced in recently crossing the Atlantic to these shores, from which discomposing malady she had not yet quite recovered. Whether indeed, the goddess has yet overcome the effect of that sea voyage which brought her to Cambridge, may admit of a question, if we take Longfellow's 'Hiawatha,' which was said or sung under the shades of Harvard, as a fair specimen of her subsequent inspirations.

The Pilgrim Fathers at Plymouth brought no printing press with them, but they brought the Bible, and with it pious stout and resolute hearts. They brought more--minds, deeply embued with principles of civil and religious liberty, and, immediately on their arrival on these shores, put in practice the principles which they professed. To them are we indebted for the solution of the problem in that age generally considered insolvable—Whether a State can exist without a King, and a Church without a Bishop? How well they have existed in this, their untried experiment, is attested by the triumphant career of republican institutions, which were practically adopted by the pious, unsophisticated, self sacrificing men who disembarked from the Mayflower to land on barren shores, beaten by ocean waves on the one hand, and flanked by a howling wilderness on the other.

Now that we have fairly set the Press—the great civilizer—in motion at New England, let us take a slight glance at times more recent, and within the memory of the 'oldest inhabitant.' But before we do this, we will not forget the Boston Printer's Boy, who commenced at the case, to gather into the store-house of his capacious and practical mind that fund of useful knowledge which made his name a household word in the civilized world—who was subsequetly honored in the courts of kings, and sought as a companion by statesman and philosophers of every nation. The world is his debtor as the discoverer of the common properties of lightning and electricity—a discovery which subsequent genius has improved to work out results which would have been deemed, at no distant day, in the past, visionary and impracticable. "Poo Richard!"—the Promethean kite! What age will forget the productive genius of Benjamin Franklin? Glorious name!—the Philosopher-the Statesman-the Printer-by which appellation he was pleased to be called, What printer does not feel proud of his profession to name him as a brother, and what American does not feel equally proud to call him his countryman?

My first acquaintance with letters (I mean those metallic ones which speak as they are bidden,) carries my memory back nearly fifty years, and enables me to recall to mind many incidents, which related, may interest you. The Press at Boston had just entered upon a pretty extensive business of printing standard works on theology and general literature. The metropolis of New England reflected the rays of science and literature shed upon it by Old Harvard, and was the centre where men of taste and learning 'most did congregate.' This originated common saying, "Solid men of Boston," having reference to their mental wealth especially; though it was then as now, the depositary of great material wealth, if the panic has not rendered the latter unreal. But to return to the press. The newspapers of that day owed their value not to original matter so much as to extracts from foreign and domestic publications, items of shipping news and advertisements. The printers of them were also their own editors, who used the 'scissors' oftener than the pen.

The newspaper press of Boston and of New England was generally presided over by practical printers. Who has not heard Isaiah Thomas, of the Massachusetts Spy published at Worchester, and his "Farmers' Almanac," published for nearly half a century? Who has not heard of the "Antiquarian Society," whose founder he was, the library of which contains rare and valuable books in all languages, ancient modern? To this library the learned Blacksmith is indebted for that fund of linguistical acquisition, which has made his name so famous. There was Ben Russell, autocrat of the old federal party, with his "Boston Centinel,"—Sentinel beginning with a C—I know not by what orthographical authority. His coryphæus in politics was Caleb Strong, who was elected Governor of Massachsetts many years in succession, and for as many years appeared, in Russell's paper just before election, the stereotyped appeal to the voters: "A Strong pull, a long pull, and a pull altogether." This was argument enough—Gov, Strong was re elected. The "Indipendent Chronicle," whose principal writer was Ben. Austin, and whose magnus Apollo was Thomas Jefferson. He made himself noted, by his attacks, in that paper, on Chief Justice Parker, who displeased him on account of a charge to the jury, which tried one Selfridge for shooting Austin's son. Indeed this unhappy affair was drawn into the partisan division of the times, and caused in New England almost as much popular excitement as the abduction of William Morgan in late times.

The 'Boston Patriot' was established by the influence of the Adamses—father and son—who had seceded from the old federal party, and identified their political views with those of the Republican party. In this office your humble servant was a juvenile compositor, and was frequently furnished with copy in the cramped hand writing of president Adams, the elder.—He made a 'lower case' i when it occured at the beginning of a sentence. Of that paper David Everitt was editor, who had previously gained a literary reputation by his popular writings, one specimen of which maintains its popularity to the present time, showing what trifles of the brain will sometimes seize upon public feeling, and secure lasting impressions thereon, without possessing any other merits than those of naturalness and felicitous expression. The piece to which I refer is the juvenile declamation—

You'd scarce expect one of my age
To speak in public on the stage

As to periodicals, pretending to take the lead in improving public taste in polite literature, there were few in Boston, and indeed in the Union. The "Monthly Authology" had some pretentions to claim respect from the cotemporary litterati.—It was conducted by a few scholars desirous of raising the standard of literary taste—among these was that precocius genius and popular pulpit orator, Rev. Jos. S. Buckminister. This paper was the precursor of the 'North American Review,' which owes its deserved celebrity to a succeeding dynasty of literary gentleman, of whom the elegant Everett was the principal. There was also the 'Polyanthos,' whose flowers for a time, continued to bud and blossom under the culture of our brother, Jos. T. Buckingham, who still lives to honor the profession.

There was still another periodical in Boston, the 'Omnium Gatherum,' gotten up by a journeyman printer, the design of which was to arrest fugitive productions of other pens, without aiming at the dignity of leading the public mind by much original writing.

It would be erroneous to say, that at the period of which I treat, there were no eminent scholars and men of genius, who contributed to the press. There were a few who, as writers, have secured a lasting fame with posterity, such as the accomplished Fisher Ames, the orator and statesman, and John T. Kirkland, the profound theologian and finished scholar, who afterward, presided over Harvard University, and whose life of Ames, written con amore, to transmit to posterity the memory of his late friend and cotemporary, is to be found in every well selected library. Ames' speech in Congress, in '98, on the British Treaty, will be read and admired, when the harangues of some modern politicians delivered in our national legislative halls will be forgotten and neglected as superficial stuff

Here I must close my reminiscences of the press of New England and cognate subjects—except to remark that the sturdy virtues, the intelligence, the enlightened enterprise, and the learning, cultivated with so much assiduity by the progenitors of most of us, on the mother soil and aided in their growth by their free press, have been inherited in a large degree by the offshoots of the original stock which have taken root in new States formed in the west. Let us, then, foster and nurture those institutions which tend to uphold civil society in its purity—which are the strong pillars of Freedom—which develop and render useful the mental faculties, and which raise humanity to its native dignity. The common school, the independent and enlightened press, the pulpit endowed with pure religion, the subsidiary seminaries to a higher cultivation, our excellent University, with its thorough scientific and literary teachings—these are the fountains, whence are to flow all these blessings, which can confer on ourselves and posterity, real substantial enjoyment and prosperity. And may the State government continue to cherish, by all proper aid, all such educational institutions as depend upon it—may the muses ever love to hover over the groves of our flourishing seat of learning, and may it be the alma mater of many a youth who shall do honor to the State and impart blessings to society.

One more reference to nascent American literature in the first decade of this century. It was then facetiously and invidiously asked by an eminent cousin of ours on the other side of the Atlantic. Who reads an American book? How ever applicable such a question then was, it is no longer so, as our literature, if it has not earned the standard of a distinctive national character, is certainly, in the estimation of the republic of letters, stands probably in comparison with that of other nations. Indeed, before has been paid to American genius by the most learned scholars of the Old World, and Irving, and Prescott, and Bancroft, and Hallam, in historical research as well as in elegance of composition, are read and admired by the cross-atlantic reading public, and quoted as authorities, too, by trans-atlantic authors. In the science of jurisprudence our Story's works upon that subject are text-books in England, and in natural science, Agassiz is read and referred to all over Europe by the most learned philosophers. In foreign literary coteries, the former question is reversed, and it is now asked, "Who does not read American Books?"

I shall not detain you long by extended remarks on the history of Printing in this state; and this would be superfluous, since the most of you are as well acquainted with the subject as I am. As has always been the case, in the settlement of a new country, Americans have always been sedulous to plant the civil and religious institutions, with which they are familiar, at the seat where they have chosen to make a permanent settlement; and these institutions, at eligible points have been followed by the printing press. This was the case in Michigan, and thus, early in its settlement, at each county seat of any importance, a newspaper was established. It is believed this State has now a competent supply of these valuable vehicles of intelligence, and, it may be, too many, at certain points, to prove pecuniarily profitable to their proprietors in every instance. A remedy for this evil is not easily to be found, as the spirit of party will not be rebuked in putting in force at every hazard the means by which it can accomplish its ends. The "ins" want to keep in office, and the "outs" want to get in, and so each party resorts to the press for aid in gaining the objects it may have in view. So eagerly and recklessly has this contest sometimes been carried on, that demagogues, of whatever party, have frequently cajoled the unsuspecting printer into an enterprise which has proved ruinous to himself—fortunate, perhaps, to his calling, but amounting to little good to the State. From such friends let the young printer flee, as from his worst enemy. The multiplication of presses has produced a competition in the business, cheapening letter press below its real value, and consequently lessening the price of labor, in that line—indeed, there is no other pursuit which is not more remunerative.

This is one of the evils which demands your attention to remedy. Another is, to promote that esprit du corps—that harmonious action in regulating a tariff of prices which is essential to the prosperity of every productive pursuit. And this your Association is designed to bring about. I will not here enter into particulars in relation to the desirable reforms which are necessary to be made, to render printing adequately remunerative. That is more especially the duty of the Association to discuss in concise, and therefore, I shall leave the subject for your deliberation.

There is one subject, however, which I would urgently press upon your attention.

I mean the selection of apprentices to the printing office. They are too often selected with little or no reference to their advance in education. It is true that more than one example is afforded on record as well as in contemporary biography, of men of commanding intellect, which, to others would be insurmountable, and of writers of eminence in our profession, and becoming ornaments of enough consequence as well as notoriety. But such instances are rare. Every apprentice deserves a Franklin. The printer's boy should be well acquainted with all the branches of elementary learning, at least, and if further advanced in higher attainments, so much more profitable would he be to his employer, and then his business will essentially assist him to improve his mind, and to imitate the bright examples set before him.

The early printers, who lived soon after the invention of the art, were men of deep learning, especially in the dead languages, and able translators of them into their own vernacular tongues. Pope says:

"A little learning is a dangerous thing;
Drink deep, or taste not the Pierian spring;
There shallow draughts intoxicate the brain,
And drinking largely sobers us again."

Perhaps Pope meant this language to apply to poetic composition, but it is inapplicable in any sense, and I know not, in Pope's writings, any other four lines which contain so much of false sentiment. Pope was a great poet, and as such, has availed himself largely, in this instance at least, of the poet's license of sacrificing sense to sound. A "little learning" certainly is better than none at all, and this little will naturally stimulate the mind to acquire more. It is true that "drinking largely" at the fountain of knowledge is calculated to teach us our limited capacity to understand the essence of matter, the constitution of the human mind or the laws which governs the creations of God. It is no argument, because we cannot exhaust the fountain of pure water, that we should not drink of it at all. Let the young apprentice get as much knowledge as he can, and let it not be his fault, if he shall not, in future life, become a Webb, a Weed, a Greely, or a Barns or a Storey.

Brethren, we live in an age of strange events—some to cheer and encourage, others to make the heart sick. With these our profession leads us to become more or less acquainted. In reviewing what is transpiring in our own country, there is nothing which should damp patriotism, or render the prospect of durability to our institutions less cheering—if our political horizon seems overcast with some lowering clouds, which disturb public tranquility, such a state of things is the effect of the working of our institutions. It is better, perhaps, that such should be the case. The principles of our government are [illegible] zeal, earnestness, and surpassing ability. These principles need to be tried and tested, that they may have their due weight and influence with our citizens.—If they have been perverted and wrested to accomplish objects inconsistent with the welfare of the Union, and the enjoyment of personal rights guaranteed to a free people, no one should despair of the Republic. They have, in their very nature, a living, recuperative energy, which can never die, if, occasionally, they seem, in the midst of conflicting opinions, to be prostrate and bereft of their original, native force and power, it is the patriot's hope that they may yet recover new strength, and, like the fabled Antæus, arise from their prostration refreshed and invigorated to work out their legitimate ends of promoting good government.

One more topic and I close. Journalism in this country, occupies a position, scarcely second in importance to that of any other of our institutions. Indeed, as the motive power to influence and direct public action on every question or subject which affects the masses, it is the most powerful of all the public agencies now at work. It is the organ of public opinion, which is the basis of all public action whether it be in politics, morals or social refinement. If the pulpit has its appropriate duties committed to its charge, viz: to inculcate the truths of religion, and to educate the religious affections, so has the press its duties to perform, in giving force to pure, moral and political sentiment, and in upholding our civil institutions. Both are or may be made efficient in their spheres of action to promote the objects which fall under their supervision, and both have an irresistable influence in social life.

No one, whose memory reaches past time not very remote, can fail to discover great improvements in the manner in which newspapers are conducted—in the improved courtesy of their language, and in the more utilitarian character of their productions. And it is no mean praise, that the press of our State has partaken largely of this spirit of improvement. Let it be your ambition and aim, still to foster this worthy spirit.

The duties of an editor are indeed responsible. He is a public character to whom the public look for the removal of innumerable evils to which society is heir. He is the conservator, who is called upon incessantly to uphold established order and to invite attention to public wants.—If laws are passed distasteful to portions of the community, he is expected to move heaven and earth to procure their repeal. If a restless demagogue steps forth on the arena of political strife, to offer his humble services to the "dear people"—"the editor" is expected to devote his pen to that modest individual's cause, and to lash his competitor through the world with thongs of scorpions, and put him down. If a nuisance of any kind, happens to offend the delicate taste of the public, he must assume the vigilance of the police, to hunt it out of existence by the power of his quill. By the effect of the same instrument, he is expected to detect every horse-thief, arrest every counterfeiter, expose every fraud, and act the part of a reformer generally. All this is to be done, while it may be, his household is not too well supplied with food.

For such varied labors, after all, what are his rewards? Small, indeed, in comparison with those which other pursuits receive. The lawyer is well paid for helping his client to cheat somebody, or lying that "same somebody" into jail or out of it. The Congressman, whom "the editor" has got into office, is well paid for making Buncombe speeches to save the country from tetetal ruin. The State politician has obtained office through the influence of his county print, and the editor of it is insulted by the promise of being appointed to the dignified office of Notary Public, as recompense for his patriotic services—but in the mean time, during all his labors, he must rely upon delinquent subscribers for the expectancy of his daily bread. Is this right? Why should the printer not be paid as adequately for his labors as anybody else. Is it not, in part, your own fault, that it is not so. In the language of Hamlet to the players, I say to you—

"Reform it—Reform it altogether."

Finally, brethren, in the technical language of our craft, when our case shall have been emptied—our last stickful set—our forms composed in the coffin and laid in the tomb—may our work, proved, corrected and revised by our Master Workman on High, be acceptable to Him.

THURSDAY, APRIL 8, 1858

The Michigan Press Association.

The address of Mr. Balch of Marshall, delivered before the recent meeting of the Press Association at Ann Arbor, and which appears in this weeks' issue, is the production of an able pen, and will well repay a careful perusal.

We have adhered firmly to this plan and idea of a Michigan Press Association from the first, for we have believed it capable of accomplishing much good, not only to the craft, where all must admit concert of action is much needed, but also to the editorial fraternity, and thereby to the public at large. If a public press is needed, for the promotion of public interests, the should it be placed upon such a basis as always, under suitable management, to make it an independent self-supporting concern. It should have no delinquent subscribers, no defunct advertisement lists, no unpaid paper bills.—There should be no competition among printers or publishers to see which can first starve the other out, by doing work for less than cost, neither should the craft be prejudiced by the unprincipled acts of some in irregular and unscrupulous overcharging. Association, can and may, to a great degree, remove thes cever present impediments to successful newspaper publishing. Incompetant hands should never be employed, and imperfect work, half done, at half price, should never be permitted to go forth as a standing disgrace and blotch upon any press however humble. The use of type should from the first be held sacred in the eyes of those who handle them, and devoted only to the honor of the profession and the welfare of the world. A venal press should be cast out from every honorable association, and held in scorn by every honorable man. The reply of the honest voter whose suffrage was sought by bribery, should be the only reply of any and every printer, when solicited to any act of dishonesty or meanness for the personal benefit of any man, party, or partizan.

They knew that I was poor
And they thought that I was base
And would readily endure
To be loaded with disgrace—
Oh, shame upon my betters (!)
Who would thy conscience buy;
Shall I endure their fetters!
Not I, indeed, not I.

This however would only apply to a press that is really poor, as it is well known a large majority of the country presses really are. It is said that this is because the public are ungrateful. But why should printers, any more than any one else attempt to live upon public gratitude. No wise man will do anything of the kind.

The selfishness of man is the only thing that can safely be relied upon for patronage or support anywhere. Make it for the interest of men to do a thing and you may generally depend upon its being done, but not otherwise. It is for the printers themselves then, to fix the standard of public gratitude, by fixing their own estimate upon their own services, and by a thorough and efficient combination, make them alike unavailable to all, except at a fair and remunerative price, and for such pay as they can always use without discount or delay. A poor press is no less a curse to the public than to the craft, and should not longer be permitted to remain among an intelligent and independent people, to the disgrace of either.

Lady Hester Stanhope.

The life history of Lady Hester Stanhope often called the "Queen of the Desert" is singularly strange and romantic. She was the niece of the second William Pitt and resided with her uncle for some time, acting as his private secretary, and often was the chosen confidant of his political plans and schemes. After his death, and her own consequent loss of the high position and great influence which her close connection with so celebrated a statesman had given her, she became gloomy and misanthropic, and society lost all charms for her. She scorned the frivolity and heartlessness of the fashionable world in which she lived, and longed for a wider freer range. Leaving behind her the irksome chains of custom and etiquette which chafed her restless spirit in the highly cultivated society of England she fled to the East, where in the boundless deserts and lonely wilds of Asia Minor she hoped to find that freedom from observation, and liberty to follow the bent of her own wild will, for which she so much longed. On the summit of Mount Lebanon, she discovered the ruins of an ancient convent, which she took possession of, and fitted up in magnificent style. From thence she issued her mandates to the tribes of the desert, over whose simple minds she contrived to obtain an almost unbounded influence by her wealth and liberality, and still more by assuming supernatural power. Here surrounded by her faithful Arabs, she despised the Pasha of Egypt within whose jurisdiction her castle stood, and extended protection to all the outlawed and oppressed of the surrounding tribes. At one time a number of Albanian's had taken refuge in her fortress. The Pasha repeatedly commanded her to deliver them up, her only reply was, "come and take them." But he admiring her boldness and courage, and awed somewhat it may be, by her reputed supernatural powers, sufferred her to remain unmolested. The irregular withdrawal from all civilized society and establishment in this remote part of the world, made her an object of universal interest to which the mystery that surrounded her added not a little—She was always visited by travelers in the East, but rarely could any obtain admission to her presence. She usually refused to see all who had not some especial claim upon her, but when she condescended to admit a guest, she was always very hospitable and entertaining. Lamartine was one of the favored few who succeeded in obtaining an interview, and he has given a most interesting account of his "Pilgrimage to the Holy Land."

The circumstances attending the death of this eccentric woman, are melancholly in the extreme. She was entirely deserted during her last illness by her attendants and all those whom she had so long protected and benefitted. Her house was rifled of all its contents, and was left entirely alone to die. The mysteries of that solitary death-bed can never be unfolded, no eye witnessed it, save His who never slumbers, but we can easily imagine what tumultuous and varied emotions must have agitated that proud soul thus left alone to wrestle with the last dread foe. What visions of her once happy English home, of the friends whom she had deserted, what impotent rage against the ungrateful creatures of her bounty who had thus deserted her dying pillow! And in those lonely hours let us hope that her heart once more turned to the holy faith of her childhood, that she remembered again that God and [illegible] whom she had learned to reverence in her native England, and that she found peace for her troubled soul even at the eleventh hour. Her death was first discovered by some English travellers who went to visit their countrywoman. They found the house pillaged and deserted. They passed through the silent rooms till they reached the one where lay her lifeless form. It was evident that her influence was still felt, that even in death she was feared, for though everything else of value was gone, the ornaments on her person remained undisturbed. At midnight they buried her in the garden, and there far away from home, kindred and country, she rests in peace.

Mrs. Swisshelm.—The St. Paul Times says that the Visitor, a paper edited by Mrs Swisshelm, at St. Cloud, Minnesota, was broken up on the night of the 24th ult., the press taken to pieces and carried off, and the type scattered and thrown into the river. A large meeting of the citizens was convened to express their disapprobation of this riotous act. Mrs. S. made an address in which she showed that her comments upon certain Democrats, to wit—Gen. Lowrie and James Shepley, was the cause of this outbreak. The meeting condemned the outrage, and resolved that the Visitor shall be sustained.

Mr. B. L. Baxter, Vice President, took the chair.

The President presented a communication from the Faculty of the University, inviting the Association to visit the College at three o'clock in the afternoon, or at such other time as may suit their convenience.

The business of the forenoon session was of a local character: Mr. Balch was announced to deliver an address to the association at 7 o'clock in the evening. A communication from the faculty of the University was received inviting the Association to visit the College. The committee on apprentices made a report, also committee on Phonetics. The two reports were referred to the committee on business, when the Association adjourned to 2 P. M.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

The Association met pursuant to adjournment.

The minutes of the morning session were read and approved.

Mr. Woolnough from the committee on Business, reported as follows:

The Business Committee of the Association, recommend the acceptance of the invitation of Prof. Tappan to visit the University. Time of visiting 4 o'clock.

The committee, after the full deliberation on the report of the Committee on Phonetic printing, recommended that said report be laid on the table, and that the following resolutions be substituted as the sense of this Association.

Resolved, That we recommend to all engaged in the printing business a thorough acquaintance with the phonetic short hand writing as a means by which the profession and the public at large may be vastly benefitted; but that this Association do not deem it to be within the province of its duties to take any steps with reference to recommending the introduction of phonetic reading in our Schools, deeming this branch of the subject irrevalent to the objects for which this Association was organized.

Resolved, That we reiterate and affirm the principles embodied in the resolutions passed at the convention held at Jackson in September last, and that we renew our recommendation to our brethren of the craft to adhere in all possible cases to the principle features of the same, believing such course to be advisable in view of its benefits to the profession, but is imperative as a matter of justice and right.

Resolved, That we deem it imperative, and that we will require payment in advance for all newspaper subscript ons received hereafter.

Resolved, That all transient and foreign advertising should be paid in advance or secured to be paid by a responsible agent, and at the same rates paid for other advertising.

Resolved, That we will not advertise for any newspaper or periodical on terms different from those required of commercial and business men.

Resolved, That we deprecate the practice of employing inadequate journeyman and runaway apprentices, believing that it is the cheapest and most honorable to employ only good workmen at fair, living prices.

Resolved, That we recommend to the craft in different localities the adoption of scales of prices for job wark and advertising to be adhered to in the transaction of such business.

Resolved, That the Editors of the several journals in this State are invited to forward the Recording Secretary as complete a history of the press in their respective counties, with such other matters of interest pertaining to the craft, as they may think proper.

Resolved, That the practice, now very frequent of inserting quack medicine and other advertisements in the reading or editorial columns of the country press, is one calculated to perpetuate a fraud upon the reader, is a growing evil and that we will abandon it.

Resolved, That all Publishers and Editors in this State are requested to publish the proceedings of this Convention, and those not already members are requested to authorize the Secretary to enter their names as such.

Also reported back the following, with a recommendation that it be adopted by the convention:

The committee appointed by the convention held at Jackson in September last, to recommend some regulation in regard to apprentices, have had the subject under consideration, and beg leave to offer the following reports—There is perhaps no publisher present who has not to a greater or less extent suffered from the evils growing out of the present system of apprenticeship. It is the crying evil of the time. It is not confined in its bad effects to the master printers, but has a serious influence upon the trade. There is no one cause now operating so well calculated, and which has been found so certainly to result in the degradation of the business of printing as the syste n under consideration. It is the parent of half the botches and half the bad habits which are regarded by some as incident to the craft and in the opinion of your committee it is the prolific source of incalculable mischief.

It is useless to al ude to instances, as proof of its bad effects. There will occur to the mind of every member of the craft [illegible] experience of publishing one year; and if some remedy can be found which if it cannot wholly eradicate it, your committee feel confident that one step will be taken toward elevating the business to which we are engaged to that standard which its importance in all the relations of life would seem to entitle it to.

Your Committee therefore recommend that whenever an apprentice shall have honorably served his time, or whenever he shall receive an honorable discharge from his obligations to fulfil his contract to that effect from his employer, and, we hereby each and every one of us, pledge ourselves that we will not employ a runaway apprentice, or one that does not possess a certificate of the character alluded to and that the time of apprenticeship shall not be less than five years, nor shall any one be admitted as an apprentice unless he shall possess a good know ledge of Orthography, Grammar, and Arithmetic.

W. W. WOOLNOUGH,
G. V. DeLAND,
J. M. GRISWOLD,
} Committee.

The reports were accepted, and laid on the table. They were then taken up from the table seperately, and after discussion, unanimously adopted.

On motion of Mr Conover, after some debate, it was

Resolved, That in the opinion of this convention the employment of personalities in the discussion of public topics is improper, and should be discouraged, and the usefulness and dignity of the press are best secured by preserving the impersonality of the press.

On motion of Mr Barnes, the chair was authorized to appoint a committee of three to procure the preparation of an address, a paper in reference to the History of the Press of the State and such other business as they may deem proper to bring before the Association at its next Convention.

The Chair appointed Messrs Barnes G W Pattison, and Wm W Osgodby, all of Detroit, said committee.

On motion of Mr Pattison,

Resolved, That when this convention finally adjourn, it be to meet at Detroit on the first Thursday in December next.

Wednesday, March 24th.

The Association met pursuant to adjournment and on motion of C. V DeLand it was

Resolved, That the Secretary pro tem, be authorized to revise and correct the proceedings for publication, and that the Editors throughout the State be requested to insert the same in their respective newspapers.

On motion the convention adjourned to meet again on the first Thursday in December next at Detroit.

Washington, April 6.

Senate—Mr. Bigler from Pa, presented from Amos Kendall, Chairman, &c. a supplementary memorial, asking for further protection against competing Telegraph Companies.

The business of the Senate to-day although it took a long time, could be expressed in a few words.

Slidel of La, having filed with the Secretary, on Friday last, a written declaration that he intended to move to reconsider the vote to disagree with the House on the Kansas bill, which motion yesterday and to-day he renewed verbally, with out any action being taken, claimed the right to keep the bill back three days for that purpose.

Stuart moved to enforce the order that no single Senator shall have the power to obstruct business.

The bill for the admission of Minnesota was called up as the special order.

Previous to the discussion, Fitch of Ind; read an extract from the Globe, confirmatory of the words exchanged between him and Mr. Douglas yesterday, implying a luke-warmness on the part of the latter, in regard to Minnesota.

Douglas warmly replied, asserting his zeal in the cause of Minnesota.

The subject was a matter of trifling import, but flat contradictions were interchanged.

Mr. Green, of Mo., confirmed Douglas's statement and the matter subsided.

Pugh moved an amendment to the preamble of the Minnesota bill, and appealed to Mr. Douglas to know if he was not aware that no man was allowed to vote on the Minnesota Constitution except on the same ticket as State officers?

Douglas explained that the mode of submission was full, fair, and free. The voters put what names they chose on the tickets, and their votes were not controlled in any way.

Eventually, Pugh withdrew his suggestions respecting the preamble, on Mr Douglas' striking out the words "in pursuance of an act of Congress."

The preamble was thus agreed to.

There being no other amendments pending, the bill was ready to be reported to the House, but previously Mr. Kennedy explained that he would vote against the bill, because the Constitution of Minnesota was directly at variance with the Constitution of the United States, and diametrically opposed to the party he represented. Alien suffrage and squatter sovereignty, he said, must be repudiated. His remarks were strongly American.

Johnston, of Tennessee, replied, arguing the right of States to fix the qualifications of their own voters, independent of Federal naturalization.

Our Ports.—The vessels in port are beginning to 'plume themselves' for another season's service. The propeller Elmira is in trim ready for her cargo, and Capt Travis informs us, will probably leave for Dunkirk during the present week. The scow Pontiac is ready for business. The Markwell is also in trim, and others will soon be able to be out.—The steamer Arrow is making daily trips to Detroit, and the steamer Belle makes two trips a day between this city and Perrysburg. The schooner Republican will sail for Chicago to-morrow.—Blade.

The very painful symptoms which [illegible] the attacks of fever and ague can be suppressed and all danger arrested, by the use of these valuable medicines. The Phoenix bitters are also a cure for rheumatism, and every variety of bowel complaint.

Sold by W. B. Moffat, 335 Broadway, N. Y. Taylor & Curtis Agents, Tecumseh.

Sore and Inflamed Eyes.—The most agreeable complaints are becoming wonderfully prevalent of late, and giving rise to but an interesting look to the person the diseased organ. "A red and sore eye is not pretty to look at, and certainly cannot be agreeable to have "for keeps," as the boys say. We can tell those afflicted in this manner how to cure the evil, and we will tell them any thing for the information, let them get some of Bragg's Arctic Liniment and touch the inflamed part with it three times, and the work is done. This Liniment may be obtained at any of the stores in this place.

Dr. J. C. Ayer, the world renowned Chemist of New England, is now in this city, the Burnet house in this city. He is making a tour of the Western States, and his scientific associates, to investigate remedial productions, or such as may make remedial. We notice he has received with marked distinction by the leading citizens of the West and are glad to find they have shown a proper respect for the man who has perhaps done more for the relief of human ills than any other American.—Cincinnati Journal.

The most skeptical people can be convinced by trial that all the family medicines are a humbug, and that among the [illegible] butterly life there are a few of great merit and undoubted worth. Of these, Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry, Ford's Invigorator, or Liver Remedy, and Dr. Ayer's first and foremost among the remedies of the day that can be relied on as a medicine, is all that is recommended by its proprietors.

It advertises itself on every trial, and there are none who use it but tell their friends to do so, and so it goes from mouth to mouth, till all the people of the Union have learned the good of this truly valuable medicine. It is recommended with testimonials of its virtue for the cure of liver complaint of every kind, from the worst dyspepsia to common headache, and is particularly recommended to Jaundice, Deranged Stomach, Complaints and diseases of children.

One or two doses are said to relieve with scarce a failure. It is worth a trial for this alone. It is particularly adapted to the use of ladies, particularly those of sedentary habits. Some ladies of the highest respectability in society have given their certificates of its efficacy, and we say to all who are afflicted, try one bottle, and you will never regret it.

FIRE.—On Monday Evening last, between 10 and 11 o'clock, the Mich. House was discovered to be on fire, and by 12 o'clock it was entirely consumed. The building and part of the furniture was the property of Mrs. Hoeg, and valued at $3000—insured in the ÆTNA for $1600.

Mr. Smallage had a lease of the Hotel for five years; his loss of Furniture, provisions, &c., will amount to nearly $1200—no insurance.

By this fire our village has lost its Hotel. We hope soon to announce to the public, that a No 1 Hotel is to be built in our village—one that will soon gain a reputation as extended as our beautiful Union School builing has attained. A good Fire Engine, would be a curiosity, as well as an ornament to our village. Who will buy one?

The Post Office is removed into the store formerly occupied by J. E. Hall as a Jewelry store.

A New Spade was taken from the Tecumseh Nursery a few days since by some person, who is requested to return it as soon as convenient.—Charles says a stitch in time will save nine.

☞ Mr. John Richards of Raison, who has been for a number of years, afflicted with deafness, has procured an instrument, which upon full trial, he has found to be so successful in aiding the hearing that he is induced to reccommend the same to others like afflicted. They may be examined and tested by calling upon him or at C. DeMott's Drug Store, Tecumseh.

NEW PATENT CORN HUSKER.—D. C. Smith, Esq., of this village, has just invented a simple machine for this purpose, which for ingenuity and utility, is seldom excelled. He filed an application for a patent for the same to March last. The construction is simple, being made wholly of wrought iron, and weighing when complete only three pounds, and is furnished at a cost of five dollars. It is attached to the body by a belt around the waist, and will we are informed enable a single hand to husk with ease, from the shock 100 bushels per day, and take suitable care of the stalks, and from the hill, 150 bushels. It does the work neatly and without injury or loss. It leaves the husks upon the stalk and can be worked well with mittens on.

Hungarian Grass Seed.

The Hungarian Grass Seed is not identical with any millet that has been grown in this country. Its seed is smaller and more like that of other grasses. It has to be sown annually, from April 15th to June 1st, according to climate, &c. In the latitude of Central New York, it may be sown at any time in may. A bushel of seed is enough for 3 acres It produces from 25 to 30 bushels of seed to the acre and from 3 to 6 tons of the best quality of hay. It was introduced into Iowa, about 2 years ago, by a Hungarian exile, and it is now creating a great excitement in all the west, No seed has been brought East we believe, except what we have purchased at the West. The express charges on it are heavy and we but barely cover cost at $10 per bushel. We will plead our reputation now and forever, that this grass is no humbug; and it was not till we met with the most conclusive evidence of its great superiority over other grasses, that we offered it to our subscribers. We can still fill orders by the bushel, or at 50 cents per quart. The hay is not greatly injured by cropping the seed, and as the price of seed will be high for some years, it is certainly a good investment for any farmer to make—say from a quart to a bushel of seed this year.—Miner's Rural American.

Mr. J. J. Lyon has the above seed for sale; at $4,00 per bushel. He will sow about one hundred acres this spring, in the vicinity of this village and will be prepared to fill orders this fall, for a large quantity.

☞ WHEAT in this vicinity is pronounced beautiful by our farmers.

Bragg's Arctic Liniment.

This uncomparable Liniment, upon which the great mass of afflicted of all lands now rely for relief from the pange of Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Gout, Erysipelas Cancer, Scrofula, Sprains, Bruises, Burns, Scalds and all cutaneous diseases, is rapidly superceding all similar preparations. The proprietors give for the encouragement of sufferers, the following memorandum of a few of the wonderful cures effected by it during the past few months. Certificates from the parties named are in the possession of the proprietors; their length precludes the publication of all but a few.

One Bottle Triumphant.

Mrs. Moffitt, No 345 Morgan Street, St. Louis, having suffered for three years with Rheumatism, and tried many preparations without effect, was cured by one fifty cent bottle of Arctic Liniment.

Out of Purgatory.

Henry Davis, Mound street, St Louis, who says he was "suffering the pangs of purgatory" with neuralgia for months, was cured by three or four applications of the Arctic Liniment.

Pity the Little Children.

A little daughter of Mrs. Lee, residing on Lake St Chicago, was scalled all over by the upsetting of a kittle of boiling water. The Arctic Liniment was applied according to the directions, and the fire was instantly extracted, and in a few days the little sufferer was well.

Restored to Beauty.

Mrs. George K. Trier, Canal street, N Orleans had long suffered from a painful and disfiguring eruption on the face and by the use of one bottle of the Liniment was cured, and restored to her original beauty.

A Horrible Tumor.

Eugene Mallory, Natchez was three years the victim of a horrible tumor on the neck, which resisted all remedies until he used the Arctic Liniment. Three bottles cured him in a few weeks.

Wonderful Cure!

Mrs Bedford, Mobile, was confined to her couch for three years with numb palsy and after being in despair from the failure of all other remedies, was cured by the Arctic Liniment, in a little over a month

An Explosion.

Memphis, Tenn., Nov., 25th, 1857.

I hereby certify, that having been badly bruised and scaled by the explosion of a Steam Boiler, a friend induced me to try Bragg's Arctic Liniment. The smart was instantly extracted from the scalds, and in a very short time all the pain was gone from the bruises—In two weeks I was well, and able to resume my business.

The Blind see!

Webster City, Iowa, Nov. 9th, 1857.

Dr. A. G. Bragg—Dear Sir: For more than three years I had been afflicted with inflamed eyes, in an aggravated degree, and tried various Physicians, and several nostrums, to no effects, I was induced by Dr. Bacon to try the Arctic Liniment, and in two months was nearly well. My little daughter was afflicted in the same manner for the same time, and during a portion of the time was entirely blind in one eye. I applied your valuable Liniment, and her eyes are perfectly sound. Thus have I with one two-bitt bottle cured my daughter's eyes and my own, besides curing the rheumatism in my back. I would not be without your invaluable remedy in my house. Yours Truly

WM. RUSSELL.

Webster City, Iowa, Nov. 9th, 1857.

I hereby certify, that I am well acquainted with Wm Russell, and with the astonishing cures he mentions, and know his statement to be strickly true.

D. P. BUNNELL.

Good for Animals.

This invaluable Liniment is also equally efficatious in curing the diseases of animals as witness the following certificate; Messrs J. & A. Arnot and Lynch, Arnot & Co., keep the two largest livery stables in the west and are generally known throughout the U. S.

St. Louis, Dec. 23rd, 1857.

We, the undersigned, having used Dr. Bragg's Arctic Liniment for a number of months, cheerfully testify to its superior efficacy in curing the diseases of horses; so well are we satisfied of the Arctic being the best Liniment made, that we would use no other. We keep and have kept for a number of years, extensive livery stables in this city, and consequently our experience about horses and their diseases is great, and we unhesitatingly say, that the Arctic Liniment is the only one we have ever found always effective. We cordially recommend it to all livery stable keepers and others having the care of horses.

LYNCH, ARNOT & CO
Chestnut Street.

Caution.

Many Druggists, having old liniments on hand, will try to sell them to you as the best, but do you positively refuse to purchase them. Askfor BRAGG'S ARCTIC LINIMENT," and take no other.

Liberal Proposition.

The proprietors agree to furnish each purchaser of a dollar bottle, with a free subscription to the U. S. Journal, for one year. This is one of the best N. Y. Illustrated papers. A certificate, entitling the bpiter to the benefit of this proposition, is enclosed in the wrapper around every dollar bottle. The Arctic Liniment is put up in 25 cent 50 cent and $1, bottles. The 50 cent and $1 bottles contain 50 and 100 per cent more Liniment in proportion to their cost, and are the cheapest. For sale by

DR ROBACK'S BLOOD PURIFIER AND BLOOD PILLS.

DISEASE VANQUISHED.

—BY—

Dr. Roback's Scandinavian Remedies.

AFTER YEARS OF STUDY AND EXPERIMENT Dr. Roback, the eminent Swedish Physician, succeeded in producing a medicine from twenty-three different species of mountain herbs of his native land, which acts directly upon the cause of disease in the blood, and by restoring the corrupted fountain of life to a condition of health and purity, expels disease from the system, wherever it may be located or what ever may be its character. Indigestion, nervous complaints, epileptic fits, coughs, consumption in its early stages, sore throat, bronchitis, fever and ague asthma, low spirits, sexual incapacity, dimness of sight, weakness, pricking of the skin, symptomatic of paralysis, rheumatism, neuralgia, tumor, cancer, diabetis, lassitude and debility, disease, and all other disorders of the organs of respiration, the liver, the kidneys, the stomach, the nerves, or the muscular fiber are unoriginally cured by this preparation. It is to the moderate use or excess of disease what an alkali is to an acid; it neutralizes them with absolute certainty while at the same time it regulates the secretions, removes obstructions from the bowels, creates appetite, renews bodily vigor and regenerates every animal function. Such is the nature, such are the effects of Dr. Roback's famous Scandinavian Blood Purifier, which, if taken in conjunction with his Scandinavian Blood Pills, will not only obliterate the most painful disease, but prevent their recurrence, and lengthen life beyond the ordinary span.

In the SCANDINAVIAN VEGETABLE BLOOD PILLS, Dr. Roback presents the result of twelve years of experience, hard study and experiment as to what a perfect pill should be. No one can doubt their superiority after one single trial. Price of the Scandinavian Blood Purifier, $1 per bottle, or $5 per half dozen. Scandinavian Blood Pills 25 cents per box, or five for $1.

PERU, Miami Co., Ind., Aug. 4, 1857.

DR. C. W. ROBACK: I have received so much benefit from your Scandinavian Blood Purifier and Blood Pills, that I have thought it my duty and pleasure, no less my inclination to give you a plain statement of my case. I was for years afflicted with that bane of all comfort, and efficiency in business—dyspepsia. To recapitulate all the so called remedies which I have used to rid myself of this disease, would indeed make a melancholy catalogue. I also consulted with the best physicians I could hear of, but nothing availed. By your remedies through the persuasions of a friend, and after using them a few days was greatly benefitted, and in a short time less than a month, I was entirely and permanently cured. I was also afflicted with the most violent nervous headache, which I suppose was produced, by my disordered stomach, for when my dispepsia left me, my headache left with it. I now feel better in every respect than I have for ten years.

Very truly yours, JOHN S. DEMUTH

From the Rev. Mr. McMULLIN, Pastor of Roberts Chapel.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Sept. 6, 1857.

DR. C. W. ROBACK—Dear Sir: I have used your Blood Purifier for a nervous affection, from which I have suffered much at times. While it is pleasant to the taste it certainly has a shipper effect upon the nerves. Please accept my thanks for your kind regards and acts, and believe me,

Yours, J. W. T. McMULLEN.

FROM A WELL-KNOWN STEAMBOAT CLERK.

Louisville, June 4 1857

DEAR DOCTOR: Send me half a dozen boxes of your Pills, care of H. G. Curd & Co., so I can get them next trip. Six weeks ago nothing could have convinced me that a twenty-five cent box of Pills could have relieved my obstinate chronic constipation, with its attending evils. I told you so when I thought them, but I am bound to own that your Pills fill the contract. Why, I have taken as many as six (6) of ——'s and other makers' sometimes without effect and sometimes with too much effect, but I have no trouble with yours—they are just what I want.

CINCINNATI, Friday, Sept. 4, 1857.

DR. ROBACK—Dear Sir: Having been afflicted with neuralgia or rheumatism for the past year and a half, and having seen your medicine called the Scandinavian Blood Purifier, highly recommended by gentlemen with whom I am acquainted, I was induced to try it, but not before I had used various other medicines. After using two bottles I felt its effect very sensibly, and upon using two more, I found myself perfectly cured. You will allow me, therefore, to congratulate you upon having a discovery in medicine which is proving itself to be a worker of such wonders in the diseases of the human frame.

GEORGE S. BENNETT.

Local Editor Cincinnati Daily Enquirer.

INDIANAPOLIS, Wednesday, Sept. 2, 1857.

DR. C. W. ROBACK—Dear Sir: Having been troubled for several years with chronic debility and weakness, so much so that I was unable to attend to my ordinary business at times, and having heard of the wonderful cures that your Scandinavian Blood Purifier and Pills were effecting, I was induced by a friend to try them.

I have been using the Purifier for the last twelve months, and find the medicine fully equal to its recommendations. So valuable is it to me that I cannot now dispense with the use of it at my advanced age of life—seventy-seven years.

I cheerfully give this information for the benefit of those similarly afflicted. MORRIS MORRIS.

MOFFAT'S

LIFE PILLS

AND

Phœnix Bitters

THE BEST FAMILY MEDICINE NOW before the public, for the cure of Scrofula, Ulcers, Scurvy, or Eruptions of the Skin, Fever and Ague, Dyspepsia, Dropsy, and in fact most all diseases soon yield to their curative proprities.

It has been computed that during the last twenty five years upwards of FOUR MILLIONS of persons have been benefited by the use of these medicines; a fact which speaks volumes in favor of their curative properties, a single trial will place them beyond the reach of competition in the estimate of every patient. By their use the BLOOD IS RESTORED TO A HEALTHY STATE and freed from all impurities. The system is not reduced during their operation, but invigorated, and they require no restraint from business or pleasure.

The afflicted have in these medicines a remedy that will do for them all that medicine can possibly effect.

OPPOSITION.

Cabinet & Chair Shop,

[One door south of Tecumseh Academy.]

The undersigned believes that he need only intimate to this community that he was a partner in the late famous [illegible] establishment at the old New York store, to ensure him a liberal publi[illegible]tronage; all are aware what a flourishing business was done at that House, while he was a partner in the firm, that is, while he turned the grind-stone, and how that establishment almost disappeared when the motive power was withdrawn. It is not doubted therefore, but that the public will be gratified to know, that the self same power has put in motion a Machine that is now turning out Tables, Bureaus, Bedsteads, Chairs, and all kind of Furniture, with such velocity that will enable him to sell them at prices so low, that will astonish the natives! Now I would say, to all those who want Cheap Furniture, "come on, now is the time" for I am determined to 'bust' every establishment in town.

FOR THE CURE OF

Headache, Sick Headache, Foul Stomach,

PITTSBURGH, PA., May 1, 1855.

DR. J. C. AYER. SIR: I have been repeatedly cured of the worst headache by only one dose of your Pills. It seems to act from a full conviction when they cleanse so thor. If they will cure others as they do me, the fact is worth knowing.

Yours with great respect, ED. W. FREELS, Clerk of Steamer Clarion.

Bilious Disorders and Liver Complaints

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,

WASHINGTON, D. C., 7 Feb., 1858.

DR. AYER: Your Pills are the perfection of medicine. They have done my wife more good than I can tell you. She had been sick and pining away for months. Was off to be doctored at great expense, but got no better. Has then commenced taking your Pills, which soon cured her, by expelling large quantities of worms, (dead,) from her body. They afterwards cured her and our two children of bloody dysentery. One of our neighbors had it bad, and my wife cured him with two doses of your Pills, while others around us paid from five to twenty dollars doctors' bills, and lost much time, without being cured entirely even then. Such a medicine as yours, which is actually good and honest, will be prized here.

Fraternally yours, ALONZO BALL, M. D., Physician of the Marine Hospital.

Dysentery, Relax, and Worms.

Indigestion and Impurity of the Blood

From Rev. J. V. Hewes, Pastor of Advent Church, Boston.

DR. AYER: I have used your Pills with extraordinary success in my family and among those I am called to in distress. To regulate the organs of digestion and the blood they are the very best remedy I have known, and I can confidently recommend them to my friends. J. V. HEWES.

Erysipelas, Scrofula, King's Evil, Tetter, Tumors, and Salt Rheum.

From a Forwarding Merchant of St. Louis, Feb. 4, 1856.

DR. AYER: Your Pills are the paragon of all that is great in medicine. They have cured my little daughter of ulcerous sores upon her hands and feet that had proved incurable for years. Her mother has been long grievously afflicted with blotches and pimples on her skin and by her hair. After our child was cured, she also tried your Pills, and they have cured her. ASA MORGRIDGE.

Rheumatism, Neuralgia, and Gout.

From the Rev. Dr. Hedges, of the Methodist Epis. Church.

PELASKI HOUSE, SAVANNAH, Ga., Jan. 8, 1856.

HONORED SIR: I should be ungrateful for the relief your skill has brought me if I did not report my case to you. A cold settled in my limbs and brought on excruciating neuralgic pains, which defied all remedies. Notwithstanding I had the best of physicians, the disease grew worse and worse, until, by the advice of your excellent agent in Baltimore, Dr. Mackenzie, I tried your Pills. Their effects were slow, but sure. By perseverring in a use of them I am now entirely well.

SENATE CHAMBER, BATON ROUGE, La., 6 Dec., 1855.

DR. AYER: I have been entirely cured by your Pills of Rheumatic Gout—a painful disease that had afflicted me for years. VINCENT SLIDELL.

For Dropsy, Plethora, or kindred Complaints, requiring an active purge, they are an excellent remedy.

For Costiveness or Constipation, and a Dinner Pill, they are agreeable and effectual.

Fits, Suppression, Paralysis, Inflammation, and even Deafness, and Partial Blindness, have been cured by the alterative action of the Pills.

Most of the pills in market contain Mercury, which, although a valuable remedy in skilful hands, is dangerous in a public pill, from the dreadful consequences that frequently follow its incautious use. These contain no mercury or mineral substance whatever.

AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL

FOR THE RAPID CURE OF

COUGHS, COLDS, HOARSENESS, INFLUENZA, BRONCHITIS, WHOOPING COUGH, CROUP, ASTHMA, INCIPIENT CONSUMPTION,

and for the relief of consumptive patients in advanced stages of the disease.

We need not speak to the public of its virtues. Throughout every town and almost every hamlet of the American States, its wonderful cures of Pulmonary complaints have made it already known. Say, few are the families in any civilized country, but what some of them have some personal experience of its effects; and fewer yet is the community any where which have not among them some living trophy of its victory over the public enemy. Its virtues as a remedy for the various pulmonary complaints of throat and lungs, which are the most powerful outlooks yet known to mankind, are indeed wonderful, and the protection it affords from dangerous and dangerous diseases of the throat and lungs, by timely use of this Cherry Pectoral, should not be neglected by any person who has the slightest cough, or any pulmonary complaint whatever, as it is also the incipient stage of the most fatal diseases that afflict humanity. Prudence dictates that every family should have it in the house, as they have abundant grounds to believe that it will protect them against attacks of the insidious diseases that steal upon the unwary, sometimes never more liver by the time they feel them until no human skill can master the insidious enemy that fastened on them. Many a mother has had the anguish to see her darling child, that fastened on her affections, pine away and die, when a few doses of this Pectoral would have saved it. All know the wonderful healing of lung disorders, and they know that the virtues of this remedy, we need not more than to assure them it is still made the best it can be. We spare no cost, no toil to produce it the most perfect possible, and thus afford those who rely on it the best agent which our skill can furnish for their cure.

Song of the Flume.

BY MRS. A. M. SHULTZ.

Awake! awake! for the flaming East
Is red with the coming day;
My struggling breast disdains its rest,
And I haste o'er the hills away.
Up from the valley! up from the plain!
Up from the river's side!
For I come with a gush, and a torrent's rush,
And there's wealth in my swelling tide.

I am fed by the melting rills that start
Where the sparkling snow-peaks gleam;
My course is free, and with fiercest glee
I leap in the sun's broad beam.
Though torn from the channels deep and old,
I have worn through the craggy hill,
Yet I flow in pride as my waters glide,
And there's mirth in my music still.

I sought the shore of the sounding sea
From the fur Sierra's hight,
With a starry breast and a snow-capped crest
I traced my path of light;
But then I was patience in a winding way,
They [illegible] like a slave,
And as much of old were exchanged for gold?
So they barter my soul-stained wave.

Through the tunnel, dim, in the dark shaft,
Search for the shining ore!
Hoist it away to the light of day
Which it never has seen before!
Spade and shovel, mattock and pick,
Ply them with eager haste.
For my golden shower is sold by the hour,
And the drops are too dear to waste.

Lift me aloft to the mountain brow!
Fathom the deep blue vein!
And I'll sift the soil for the shining spoil,
As I sink to the valley again
The swell of my swarthy breast shall bear
Pebble and rock away,
Though they brave my strength they shall yield at length,
But the glittering gold shall stay.

Mine is no stern and warrior march,
Nor stormy trump and drum;
No banners gleam in my darkened stream,
As with conquering step I come;
But I touch the tributary earth
Till it owns a monarch's sway,
And with eager hand, from a conquered land;
I bear its wealth away.

Awake! awake! there are loving hearts
In the land you have left afar;
There are tearful eyes in the homes you prize,
As they gaze on the western star
Then up from the valley up from the hill!
Up from the river's side!
For I come with a gush, and a torrent's rush,
And there's wealth in my swelling tide!

"Unless you are Unavoidably Separated."

The New Orleans Crescent, of February 5th, prints a letter from a lady in Memphis to a sister in New Orleans, giving an account of the festivities on the occasion of the marriage of a brace of favorite slaves, which letter the Crescent commends to the "careful perusal of Northern friends, who are so much interested in the 'wretched' slaves." The account is a very spirited one of a happy wedding between favorite slaves of kind and humane owners, but no comment is needed upon Northern sympathy for slaves, when one of the opening sentences of that letter is read. The audience is in the Church awaiting the arrival of the bridal party, and the writer says:

About 10 o'clock the Rev. Mr. Collins came in, and they soon followed. First, Lewis and Caroline Lawrence, with two bridesmaids and groomsmen, took their places, and Mr. C. performed the service beautifully—the whole service of the Methodist Church, (very much like our service,) but it made me very sad indeed, when, instead of the words, "until death do ye part," he used the words, "unless you are unavoidably separated."

Then follows a description of the party, thus:

Lewis looks extremely well in his black suit and white vest, and his bride was really beautiful. She possesses good features and a fine figure, and from the glimpse I got of them, I judge her to have fine eyes also. Her dress was of the thinnest white tarleton, beautifully trimmed—all in white—and on her head a wreath of orange buds and roses, with a flowing illusion veil. Her two bridesmaids were too white to look well, but they had fine forms and good features. They were dressed like Caroline, with the exception of their quiet.

"Unless you are unavoidably separated."—Where did that recreant Priest, who, at man's dictation forsies his vows to his God, get his warrant for that interpolation. The strongest support slavery has, is a cowardly, hypocritical ministry.

For Emery's Journal of Agriculture.

A Journal in the Wilderness.

BY JENNY RICHMOND.

A DEAR friend, now residing at Puget Sound, Oregon, has given me permission to publish a few extracts from her journal, which she has kept since leaving her home in New England.

Aug. 11th. I write in my journal to-night with peculiar feelings, for it is probably the last time that I shall record my thoughts in the character of a young girl. To-morrow, should an allwise Providence smile upon our intentions, I expect to be married. Married, and to a widower, with three children. I can scarcely believe that I am not dreaming, for it wo'd once, but a little while ago, have seemed impossible to me. He is forty years of age, I am twenty-four. His eldest child, a boy, has already numbered half my years for his own.

Many will wonder how I could take such a responsibility upon myself—I wonder often—but I have taken it, and may Heaven help me to bear it aright. My husband elect, Capt. John Sawyer, is what refined and well educated persons might term "a pretty rough customer." He is rough, I never saw a seaman who was not, but his smile and voice are as genial, his heart is as warm and generous as his hands are coarse and his mind shrewd.

He is well off, that is, he owns his vessel, and has laid by sufficient money to purchase a large lumber tract in Oregon. Thither we shall remove immediately after our marriage. And this seems even stranger to me than that I should marry one so much older than myself, for I used to say that nothing would tempt me to go to the 'far West' to live. How circumstances do alter cases. Here am I, a poor sewing girl, wearing out life in ill-paid and enervating labor, yet deeming it preferable to the physical activity necessary to life in a new country, very thankful at least, to take upon himself the cares and perplexites of married life, of a step mother, of, making a home in a new country, all for the sake of the one true, manly heart, which, whatever be its fortunes, will provide the best it can for me.

A life in the far West is a life of labor—we all know that, but we must look at its most cheerful side. To live, one must labor anywhere Amid the busy world of the Eastern States, a tradesman, a mechanic, a seamstress, or a factory girl, may work on, day after day, earning their living, perhaps saving a little for a "rainy day," but there is little or no room for them to rise. They may be industrious and persevering, but after all, only a "favored few" ever arrive at wealth or distinction. But let them go to a newly opened settlement, carrying with them health, faculties, and what money they can command, and begin life with the place, if they would see the fruit of their labors.

Yet they may not see it in their lifetime. Rome was not built in a day.—They may toil and delve, and grow old and die, before the comforts which the future has held temptingly before them, have come within their grasp, but their children will take their places. For them they have prepared the way. A few generations and the log houses of their ancestors give place to modern, comfortable, even elegant residences, the honies of a healthy, happy and prosperous population who, with pride and blessing, trace their origin to the "hardy pioneer of the West."

Sept 20th. On board our vessel the "Jane Sawyer." Yes, we are fairly out of sight of home. I was married on the twelfth of August, and in less than a week after, left my native place, perhaps forever, with my husband and the children, (which henceforth are to be mine,) in the Jane Sawyer, named for my husband's first wife. He concluded that it would be best for us to go by sea as he wished to take his vessel with him, (he intends carrying on the lumber trade,) and several workmen. The voyage must necessarily be a tedious one, but I try to be as cheerful as possible and cheer up the children, poor things, who feel it even more than I do.

Among those who go out with us, are Nancy Drake, a girl who has kept house for Mr. Sawyer, and his nephew, Harry Sawyer, a dear good fellow who is going as overseer in the saw mill. There are also a carpenter and his wife, a pleasant, bustling woman, and a number of workmen.

It has been so still thus far, that we have made slow progress. I hope the wind will freshen soon.

Dec. 30th. At home at last. How queer that seems, after so long thinking that I place home but my birthplace. I have already had letters from friends at the East, full of kind wishes and longings to hear from us.

We are settled, and have commenced housekeeping in a very good log house, containing three rooms and an unfinished garret, also a good cellar. Our house is much the largest and most convenient in the settlement, my husband being the principal man, and largest land owner.

On our first floor, we have a kitchen and closets, and my husband, ever considerate for me, has had the water from the well, brought into the kitchen, in a pump. The sitting room is not quite so large as the kitchen, uncarpeted of course and is furnished with several braided mats, my own handiwork, and a turn up bed, with chints curtains, for company. It also contains a luxury, in the shape of a large rocking chair, a present from my husband, purchased at San Francisco.—The third room is my bedroom, which I have striven to make the 'prettiest place about here. I brought with me a small carpet, not a very nice one, but it just fits this room and gives it an air of neatness which nothing else could. The white curtains and the patchwork quilt are the result of my own industry. Harry boards with us, as do two of the mill hands. The garret is partitioned off to afford very good sleeping rooms for them, also for Nancy and the children.

Jan. 29th. They are getting on gradually with the mill, it will soon be completed. It stands in a little clearing not far from our house, on the bank of a stream from which the water will be taken to supply it with steam. The 'Jane Sawyer' has made a trip to San Francisco, to get materials and supplies. We have not as yet been troubled by the Indians, though some of our neighbors within twenty miles or so, have suffered from their depredations. We try to be very cautious, for their thieving propensities are well known, and nothing seems to come amiss to them. Clothing, money, food, and particularly tools, have to be guarded with watchful care.

March 15th. The mill is now in full and successful operation, and our little place presents quite a business-like appearance. The men can ill spare the time that is necessary for cultivation—We have quite a farm cleared and there is a garden spot attached to every house, or cabin, more properly. Nancy and I have planted nearly all that has been planted of our garden, and in addition to the vegetables I mean to have to have a few flowers on the sunny side of the house; it will look so cheerful and will please the children. I brought a few seeds from home.

Speaking of the children, makes me think again, as I have thought many times, that they miss their school more than anything else. They ought not to be suffered to grow up running wild in these woods, yet it is not worth while to have a teacher to come here as they are the only children who are old enough to go to school. I must try to teach them, but how to get the time is the question.—I employ every moment of my time now, and am tired enough when night comes.

But it ought to be done. Jimmy, the eldest, is almost as wild as a young Indian now, and little Nancy would rather help put up rail fences or play in the mill, than read a bo or learn to sew. We have not many books and what we have would not interest them, with the exception of a few primers of their own. I must talk to John about it; it he will bring a few suitable books from San Francisco, I will undertake to devote a little time each day to teaching the children.

June 7th. How time flies, and how our place grows. It seems but yesterday that I made my last record here. Now the trees have put on their most beautiful summer garments, our table is supplied with an abundance of good and wholesome vegetables and my little flower garden is truly "blooming like a rose in the wilderness."

Two or three more cabins have sprung up, for as the season advanced, our business demanded more workmen, and besides those employed in the mill, and there are twenty or thirty employed cutting lumber and hauling it to the mill with ox teams. These teamsters are a rough set, hired from all parts of the country round about, drinking, swearing low fellows, many of them; but one is glad to glad to get such help as one can, here.

Two or three of these men have married squaws and live in cabins in our settlement. From what I have seen, I judge that the squaws make them very good wives. They are obedient, can sew and cook pretty well, and they certainly mind their own business, which is a virtue that their white sisters would do well to emulate. They retain many of their natural traits of character of course, among which cunning is conspicuous.

I have had little acquaintance with them, except as they have been to the house, when I have always endeavored to treat them well. There is one, however, whose appearance has rather prejudiced me against her. She is a young squaw, not over seventeen, and rather pretty after the style of her tribe. But she has such a watchful, and rather envious manner, that I have instinctively distrused her.

By envious, I mean that when anything in my house pleases her, she will look at it, and handle it, and ask what I paid for it, with an air that plainly indicates covetousness. A favorite remark of hers on such occasions as that is, "Such be good for white folks, but not do for poor Indian."

* * * * * *

Aug. 12th. This is the second aniversary of my wedding day. Two years have slipped away with the rapidity of the wind, it would seem. And what have they brought us? Some trials, much of comfort and prosperity. My husband's business has been excellent, we have all enjoyed good health, our crops have been good, the people have been contented; surely the "The Lord hath dealt bountifully with us."

The children have made very good progress in their studies, as in their physical growth. James is now a tall, active boy of fourteen, and is quite a help to his father in keeping accounts. Mary is a neat sewer, and a good child to assist me. Fred says he is not a baby any more, he is going to work in the mill some day like cousin Harry.

What a comfort Harry has been to us. He is so intelligent, so kind hearted and lively. We could not do without him, yet I suppose he must leave us for a while this Fall, as he is going home to be married to Fanny Wood, a lovely girl who has been waiting for him this two years or more.

Aug 18th. Only one week has passed since I wrote that paragraph about Harry, and what a change that week has wrought. Truly, "We know not what a day or an hour may bring forth." On Thursday afternoon as Harry was attempting to place the band on a wheel in the mill, his sleeve caught in the machinery, and he was drawn in. The mill was stopped almost immediately, but not before he had been carried around twenty times, so great is the velocity of the wheel. He says that he was conscious during all the time, and has been so since, but there is no hope.

He talks continually of his mother; he is her only son, his loss will be irreparable to her. Of Fanny, he speaks often and affectionately, but though he does not say so, it would seem as if the thought that another might, in time, supply his place to her, but to his mother, never.—He has requested that his property be divided between his mother and sister, securing a legacy for his poor Fanny.

Aug. 23d. Poor, dear Harry breathed his last at noon yesterday, and was buried at sunset. We had had the coffin made and prepared just after he was injured, for we knew that it would be wanted and that the circumstances would admit of no delay. It seemed so sad, so dreadful, to think that there was a coffin ready and waiting for him. The last time he went to San Fransisco, he purchased several articles as gifts to his mother and sister, among the rest a beautiful white silk shawl for Fanny. When I looked into the plain, unpolished coffin which was the best we could procure for him, my heart ached. I could not bare to have him rest in so rude a bed, and with my husband's consent, I stuffed it and lined it with the shawl which was to have been Fanny's bridal gift. It was a sad solemn scene. His is the first death in our midst, indeed so little have we thought of death, that no place had been cleared for a burial ground, until the trees were felled to dig Harry's grave.

As soon as it was known that he was dying, the mill was closed and the stillness of the sabbath has rested on the place since. At sunset the procession, composed of all in the place, formed and bore the body on a bier to the grave. A few flowers and leaves were scattered over it, and Nancy and myself, with a few other women, wore black dresses and walked in the procession. To-day my husband raised a small wooden cross above poor Harry's head, and I have hung a wreath of evergreens upon it.

Oct. 20th. Letters from home to-day. Among the number one for me from Fanny Wood. Poor girl, the letter is blotted with tears, and over and over again, she blesses me for contributing to give "dear Harry, Christian burial." She says she would rather a thousand times that her shawl should envelope his dead form, than have had it sent to her; it is such a consolation that something of hers was near him.

Feb. 17th. We have been much annoyed of late by the petty theiving of a number of Indians who have encamped about two miles from us. They come up here in bands of from three to a dozen and hang around apparently to beg, or from motives of curiosity, and we are sure to miss various articles after they depart. I have several times suspected that Yuba, the young wife of one of our teamsters, is not as friendly to the white people as she would have us believe, and I would not vouch for her honesty, since I have lost several articles that I felt convinced she took. I sometimes think she may be in communication with her dusky brethren, and encourage their thievish propensities.

Not long ago when I was one day tak some candles from the moulds, Yuba was sitting near and watching me closely as she always does when I am about my work, and appearing to admire the new candles much. I seldom leave her alone, but being suddenly obliged to leave the room, I returned just as she was in the act of secreting two of the candles. I asked her if she wanted them, and told her she was welcome, but I wished she would ask. I also offerred to teach her to make them. She heard me out without any reply, but whem I had done, she threw down the candles and left the house. I have not seen her since, and presume she will not call again very soon.

April 10th. Something must be done. I fear for our lives and the safety of our property. The Indians have not left our neighborhood. Their begging and thieving has become such a nuisance, that we have been obliged to deny them everything in the hope that they would go away, but it has only made them angry. Taking offence at something which some of the lumbermen have done, they last night broke into the mill and so disaranged the works that it will take some days to start again. Our men talk of getting together and routing them out. I fear they will have to do so.

April 12th. Matters look threatening This morning Yuba's husband told Mr. Sawyer that he had "kind 'o thought Yuba was hankering after her folks, but could not say for certain," till last night when he accidentally encountered her in the woods coming from the encampment. With various threats, such as taking her back to her tribe, selling her to somebody else, and I dare say much harsh treatment that he did not mention, he made her promise to keep away from the Indians, and also elicited the very valuable information that they intend setting fire to the mill to morrow night, providing that Mr. Sawyer sails for San Francisco to-morrow. Of course he will not sail, on the contrary everything is being got ready to take the Indians by surprise, should they make any such attempt. We are well provided with firearms, they have few if any.

April 21st. Last night there was a watch kept, and about 11 o'clock forms were seen flitting hither and thither amongst the trees the other side of the brook. About one o'clock two or three were seen approaching the mill, and in a few moments a light was seen low down at one corner of it. My husband gave the order and a large body of our men immediately charged upon them. They were pursued across the stream and fired upon. The woods were found to be alive with them, and they answered the firing from every quarter with every description of missile. Quite a skirmish ensued, in which several Indians were killed but none of our men. One fellow had his leg bruised so that he will not be able to work for a day or two, but that was the extent of the damage to our side. Had the wretches succeeded in lighting the mill, there is knowing where they would have stopped. As it was, they were glad to come to terms, and their chief held a parley with Mr. Sawyer (who is the only white man among us that they will hold any talk with), and they agreed to leave the neighborhood entirely, if their arms were restored, and a small stock of provisions. This has been agreed to, and I hope we shall be troubled with their company no longer.

Quite an amusing incident, yet a serious one occurred to-day. Yuba came to me with many tears and protestations of better behavior, and wished me not only to forgive her numerous thefts but to use my influence with her husband, who has discovered her dishonesty, and threatened to make her go with the Indians. Poor child, ignorant and deceitful as she is, she is fond of her husband (though he is not always kind to her), and is, like most all them, proud of being a white man's wife. I sent for her husband, and talked with him, and begged him to use his influence kindly in reforming and educating his wife, and mentioned her fidelity and fondness as a proof that she would make an apt scholar.

Yuba does not understand all my language, but her black eyes wandered from his face to mine unceasingly. When I had finished, her husband drew a quarter dollar from his pocket and gave it to her with a good natured grin, saying, 'Come now, guess you do think something of your old Jack; let's go home, and you be a good gal after this.'

She seized the coin, which was something which he never gave her unless he was pleased, and gave him a vigorous hug, which she would have repeated, had he been willing, and with many expressions of delight and gratitude to me, she departed with him.

July 17th. Two years more have sped, making this the fifth in our new home. It is quite home-like now. Our little place has become a village. There are two sawmills now and a machine shop there is also a schoolhouse, and better still, we have Sunday services. A young minister and his wife are settled here. His wife teaches the school, and he preaches in the schoolhouse every Sunday. How I have longed for both these things! I waited patiently and they came.

Our house has been enlarged and improved. There are also a few others as good in the place, for Mr. Sawyer does not now carry on all the business himself. Quite a number of our old friends and neighbors have come out here to live, besides many from other places. Among the former, are Fanny Wood and Lucy Sawyer, Harry's sister. Both are married to enterprising young men. Harry's mother is dead; she died of a broken heart. Fanny has married well, and makes a good wife, but she never visits that quiet spot in our burying ground without tears.

I have lost my great help and comfort Nancy. She was married a month ago to a young man who for some time has taken Harry's place as an overseer. Her's was our first wedding in the wilderness, and quite a merry one we had. We had entertainment for all who chose to come. We had a fiddler and a dance in the barn and had the rafters hung with evergreen and festooned with dried pumpkin. We had a generous supper table in the kitchen, and in the night after the bride and groom had retired to their own house, the mill-hands gave them an original serenade.

I shall miss Nancy, but my work will not be any harder, for I shall dismiss my boarders, as she intends to take several boarders, her house being of good size and comfortable.

How differently I feel about being out West from what I once did. It is true we have had many disadvantages, and have still, but how very much to be thankful for. A kind Providence has blessed all our efforts and given us as much as we desire. After all, industry and cheerfulness are the keys of happiness.

AN HONEST CONFESSION.—The Charleston Mercury thus explains the practical result of the vote in Kansas upon the Lecompton Constitution:

"We differ, too, with the President as to what is submitted to the vote of the people. We do not think that the question of Slavery or no Slavery is submitted to the vote of the people. Whether the clause in the Constitution is voted out or voted in, Slavery exists, and has a guaranty in the Constitution that it shall not be interfered with, whilst, if the Slavery party in Kansas can keep or get the majority of the Legislature, they may open wide the door for the immigration of the slaves."

To Elizabeth B——.

I've strayed in the field of thought long, long to gather a garland for thee,
I've wandered by the bright streaming song and the muses have whispered to me.

They've told me to fare well to breathe to thee kind words that my heart knows before,
But my trembling lips denied to speak 'til our last sad parting was o'er.

Can it be that we're parted forever, that I am never to see thee again,
The thought filling my soul with anguish, and my tears are falling like rain.

Thou will go to the home of thy childhood heaven's blessings will follow thee there,
Kind angels will be thy guardians earth's happiness thou highest share,

If thy heart was not too sensitive to endure life's bitter woe,
Thou should'st be enwrapped at eve in the gorgeous clouds which the day-god rises below,

And live on a sunbeam Libbie and I fairy queen,
Would dispel the clouds around you should any more be seen,

But I am not a fairy, sunset clouds you can never possess,
We must live in this cold cold world learn to banish wild unrest,

Learn that earth's brightest sweetest hopes are naught but fading dreams,
And that her fairest purest joys are heaven's far-off beams,

Let us try while o'er earth we wander to walk in the "narrow way"
That when our hearts are cold in death we know glorious day.

Farewell may it not be forever if on earth I meet thee no more
May we meet where the [illegible] bright eternal shore.

A Priest Mistaken.

A priest was looking for a Roman Catholic family whose children he heard were attending the Mission school; and being misdirected entered the house of a respectable Protestant. Thinking he was in the presence of the person he sought, the priest began to scold and abuse the poor woman in the most violent manner, for sending the children to the mission school. Mrs —— mildly informed him that he must be under some mistake, as she had no children. The priest contradicted her telling her that she lied. "It is no lie," she indignantly replied, "and, besides, as I am a Protestant myself, even if I had children, it is to a Protestant school I would naturally send them. 'That's a bare-faced lie, too,' said the priest, 'you are no Protestant, but a turncoat; I see the marks of Antichrist on your forehead.' A crowd of people attracted by the angry words, and the lend tone of voice in which they were uttered, had collected about the door by this time, and some cried out, 'Oh your reverence, that's a real Protestant, you are mistaken; Mrs. —— was always a Protestant.' 'Mrs ——,' the priest replied, 'Mrs. —— is your name Mrs. ——?' Why bless my soul, I have made some mistake, surely, and I am very sorry. I am looking for a person by the name of ——; do you happen to know her? 'I do, well,' replied the woman; 'but as you told me you saw the mark of Antichrist on my forehead you must listen now to what the Scriptures say upon the subject.' She then proceeded to quote 1 Tim iv. 1, 3, which the priest did not relish, particularly in the presence of so many Roman Catholics, who had the door so completely blocked as to destroy all hope of the hasty departure which he evidently wished to accomplish at the moment. Meanwhile the insulted woman continued quoting and commenting upon the passage of Scripture alluded to. At length the priest became perfectly furious and making a great dash through the crowded doorway, ran off shouting, "for mercy's sake let me away from this heretic."

A Yankee Outwitted.

A Hoosier correspondent of the Western (Indiana) Herald, tells in the following, a good one, how a Yankee notion pedlar was taken in by the Spencervillians of Spencerville, in that State:

Notions drove into town and commenced trade, when a merchant stepped up and selected goods to the amount of one dollar, and carried them into his store, and returned with a coon skin and says—

'Sir, here is the pay for your goods.'

'But hold on,' says Notions, 'I dont take coon skins for my goods.'

'Can't help it now,' says the merchant 'the trade is made, and coon skins are a dollar here, legal tender!'

'Well,' said Notions, 'if them are your laws here, I guess I can stand it,' and at once concocts a plan to get his coon skin into something available. Getting the coon skin into as small a compass as possible, he makes for a saloon, and there concludes to spend a quarter. Holding one hand under his coat, with the other he beckons up three or four suckers, and after drinking all around, throws down the coon skin and demands seventy-five cents change.

'Yes,' says Boniface, 'that is a good dollar,' and handed him out three muskrat skins, saying—'Here, sir, is your change.'

Notions took his change and started.

Honor.—'Now, George, you must divide the cake honorably with your brother Charles.' 'What is honorable, mother?' 'It means that you must give him the peice.' 'Then, mother, I'd rather that Charley should divide it.'

The Acquisition of Cuba.

We have had several times shadowed from Washington letter writers and others the fact that the President has, and will shortly introduce a plan for the acquisition of Cuba. We do not of course know what that plan may be, or what it may contemplate, but if it is to be at all in the spirit of the "Ostend Manifesto" we do hope, that it will receive little countenance or support from the American public.

It is not in accordance with either the principles or genius of American Freemem to seek to acquire anything by robbery or plunder. It is not in consistency with the bill of rights which they avowed before the world when they first demanded and proeclaimed their own independence. They hold, and justly too, that public robbery is no better, than private plunder and so long as they shall continue to doom thieves and highwaymen to a felon's cell, so long will they scorn and denounce any government, or any chieftain, who shall [illegible] or attempt the same crime though under some more specious name.

We have had fillibustering enough in all conscience, and we have little doubt that the entire nation, if we want anything we can afford to do something more magnanimous and honorable, than thus to acquire it.

We do not know that the plan of the President contemplates anything of the kind. We hope that it does not. But we do know that the 'Ostend Manifesto' did publicly avow this very thing; and many public statesman are still looking eagerly towards its consummation.

As with regard to Kansas, so also as to Cuba, Nicaragua, or Mexico, or whatever other country, may seem to come within the reach of an American alliance, we are proud to believe, that the American public are only in favor of an upright forward and manly policy, and will accept of, nor support any other. We have had more than sufficient exhibitions of official intrigue, treachery and fraud within the last few months, to satisfy any admirer of Punic faith, and the unequivocal fiat of the people has gone forth, stamping it every where with infamy and defeat. We had hoped that the unmistakable expression of the popular voice in that regard, was sufficiently marked and intelligible to relieve our statesmen from any ambition to call forth again its withering utterance, but if not, then let them proclaim the seizure of Cuba, and our opinion is, that they will soon hear it in tones which they will learn to respect and understand.

If however it is only designed as another effort in behalf of Slavery, then let them remember Kansas—and the hecatombs of aspirants who found in its intricate policy their political death, and look well to their laurels, before they venture them too far upon the control of a slave market in Cuba. Upon this issue the die is cast. America has made her last sacrifice for the support of this human disgrace and degradation. The [illegible] of the South have forced the people to a verdict upon it in the affairs of Kansas, and in the face of patronage and power they have made it, and will abide by it. From the stand there taken they will not recede. It is not party, but the people who have triumphed—and wo betide the man or men who are so blind as not to understand or accept that verdict.

☞ The death of Thomas B Cumming, Esq., Secretary of Nebraska, and acting Governor, is announced as having occurred on the 23d ult. Mr. C. was a son of Rev. Mr. Cumming, of Grand Rapids, and a graduate of the University of Michigan.

ANOTHER VICTIM.—Miss Isora Reese aged about 18, was burned to death near Gallatin, Tenn., last Monday week, by the ignition of her clothing. She wore hoops, and it was found impossible to extinguish the flames. In her fright she ran from room to room, uttering the most piercing shrieks. She died the next morning in great agony.

M. S. R. R.—RESIGNATION OF OFFICERS.—We learn that Charles Minot, Resident Manager of the M. S. & N. I. R. R., residing in Chicago, and E. H. Williams, Division Superintendent, W Div, residing in Laporte have resigned their offices to take effect on the 1st day of April.

Mr. Williams, we understand, has received the appointment of Assistant Superintendent of the Milwaukee and Mississippi R. R.

It is expected that several other changes of officers will take place immediately after the annual election which takes place at Toledo on the 28th of April.—Adrian Watchtower.

All the ideas of King William III were military. Being told that Dean Swift was a very clever fellow, and had done great service to his majesty the King replied, 'Very well, then I'll give him a troop of light dragoons.'

Student's Column.

Friday an Unlucky Day.

Is it? So it is asserted and believed to be by thousands who never think for themselves, and should you, ask them why it is so considered, they could only answer, "because it is, for we have always heard it said so." Poor weak minds! which have no higher authority for anything they believe than that it is somebody of other's "I've dared." Seamen are said to be the firmest believers in this ill-Friday theory. They will never start on a voyage on this day it possible to avoid it. Should you tell them this is all nonsense, they will quote you instances in abundance, of ships that have been launched on Friday, that have sailed on Friday, and that have assuredly either been shipwrecked, burned, or have met with some terrible disaster.

Sailors may quote, innumerable instances of unlucky Fridays may be cited, but even the overwhelming, all convincing argument advanced by some writers, (who of course know all these things,) that Adam and Eve ate the forbidden fruit on Friday, can not make us believe it anything else than an idle superstition, of the same class as believing in the right time of the moon to do this or that.

It is always a good and useful work, to remove prejudices, for to show the fallacy of aught that is untrue, is to render due allegiance to that august lady who is said by some learned men to live "in the bottom of a well." Some sensible person has attempted this work for poor much abused Friday. He shows us by his investigations that Americans at least have no reason to fear this day. "For on Friday, August 21st, 1492, Christopher Columbus sailed on his great voyage of discovery, on Friday, October 12th, 1492, he first discovered land, on Friday, June 2d, 1493, he sailed on his return to Spain, which if he had not reached in safety, the happy result would never have been known, which led to the settlement of this vast continent, on Friday he arrived in Hispania in safety, on Friday, June 13th, 1497, he though unknown to himself, discovered the continent of America. On Friday, Sept. 7th, 1565, Melendez founded St. Augustine, the oldest town in the United States, by more than forty years. On Friday, Nov. 10th, 1620, the May Flower with the Pilgrims made the harbor of Province Town. On Friday, Dec. 22d, 1620, the Pilgrims made their final landing at Plymouth Rock." On Friday, Dec. 22d, George Washington, the Father of American freedom, was born On Friday, June 16th, Bunker Hill was seized and fortified. On Friday, Oct 7th 1777, the surrender of Saratoga was made, which had such power and influence in inducing France to declare for our cause. And on Friday, Oct. 19th, 1781, the surrender at Yorktown occurred, that crowning glory of American arms."

Thus we see that some of the most important events and circumstances connected with the early history of our country belong rightfully to Friday. And if Friday was so honored in early times, seemingly of all other days the chosen one, how much greater, immensely, undeniably greater, is the honor conferred upon it now!—Look at the Fridays of our times, our day of all other days, the chosen one in American schools, when throughout the length and breadth of the land, the walls of every institution of learning re-echo and reverberate to the thunders of American eloquence.—Everywhere these "lava streams of molten eloquence" are poured forth, from the lowly, low-roofed log schoolroom to splendid structures like ours, pointing with turret and spire 'higher, still higher.' When we think of the mighty, the stupendous work, that Fridays are accomplishing, in the unfolding, developing and strengthening gigantic power, that will, that must control the destiny of the nation, powers that will accept no inferior station, act no mean part in the future of our country, when we think of this brilliant prospect, can anything convince us that Friday is an unlucky day? Friday an unlucky day! Fridays that are but so many birthdays of genius and eloquence! that will undoubtedly surpass those of a Webster, a Clay, or an Everett! And if in years to come, when the continued history of our country shall be written, the nineteenth century shall stand out alone, conspicuous above all others proceeding it, celebrated for the production of mighty master minds, giant intellect, extraordinary, astonishing men—can we, dare we, indulge the hope that justice will be done, that all honor and praise will be given to this blessed institution, these glorious Fridays?

SUICIDE AT ANN ARBOR.—Oscar Otis, of Lower Town, Ann Arbor, committed suicide on Wednesday morning by hanging.

The propeller Jefferson, arrived here last night, from Cleveland. The Welland Canal is in good condition, and vessels are passing through freely.

New Orleans, April 10.

The steamer Tennessee, from Vera Cruz, is coming up the river. She brings important news from Mexico. Gen. O'Sollo took the city of Guadaluxara, capturing the entire Government force under Suarez. Juarez and his officers were permitted to leave the country.—O'Sollo was on his way back to the City of Mexico, and would probably be declared President. Vera Cruz still holds out for the Constitutionalists. Tampico was beseiged by Garsa.

St. Louis, April 10.

The foundry of Newman Graham was burned last night. Loss $40,000. Insured $6,000.

A well attended meeting held here this noon, for the purpose of making appropriate arrangements to do honor to the memory of Thos. H Benton Eulogies were pronounced by several gentlemen, appropriate resolutions adopted, and a committee of prominent citizens appointed to take such action as may be necessary for a public demonstration of respect for the remains of the deceased when brought hither for interment.

New York, April 10.

The Vanderbilt and City of Baltimore sailed to-day for Europe. The former took out $225,000, and the latter $5,000 in specie.

The Commercial understands, though not officially, that the mission of Mr. Moran has been so far successful, that the Erie R. R. will extricate itself from the present embarrassment attending its suspended floating debt, and that it is now paying it off by instalments.

Sandusky, April 10.

The storm and high water yesterday caused considerable damage to docks, store houses and lumber yards. The Cleveland & Toledo Railroad lost nearly two-thirds the cribbing across the east end of the Bay, also one mile of track near Port Clinton. Trains will be able to resume their trips in three days. Water not known to have been so high in many years.

The steamer America arrived at Boston yesterday, and her mails reached this city this morning.

Washington, April 11.

The Union says that the interview between Colonel Benton and the President was protracted, and the latter expressed exceeding gratification at the visit. Col. Benton spoke of his extreme solicitude for the condition of public affairs and his painful sense of the imminent danger which threatened the country, and exhorted the President to rely on the Divine support and guidance, and not upon that of men, who would deceive him.

The Secretary of the Treasury has invited proposals to the 10th of May, for the issue of any, or the whole of five million dollars in Treasury notes, in exchange for gold.

The remains of Colonel Benton go west to-morrow afternoon, via Baltimore & Ohio R. R. to Wheeling.

Washington, April 12.

On motion, the House immediately after the reading of the Journal, adjourned, in order to afford members an opportunity to attend the funeral ceremonies of Col. Benton this afternoon.

Nearly all the members, who, after the House adjourned, lingered in the Hall conversing in groups or in their seats, were startled by a fight between Craige of N. C., and Mr. Helper, author of a book, entitled the Impending Crisis, and from the same State. They had just before, been angrily engaged in conversation. Crowds of members and others rushed in and separated the combatants, while they were engaged in dealing heavy blows. Mr. Helper was temporarily taken in charge, by the Sergeant-at-Arms. A number of ladies who were on the floor and witnesses of the proceedings, were very much frightened.

A pistol and nife were found on Mr. Helper. Iqvestigation was held this P. M. Senators Hale, Montgomery, and Blair were appointed as his counsel. The Justice held him in bonds to keep the peace.

St. Louis, April 12.

Col St. Vrair arrived here yesterday, from Santa Fee, in advance of the mail. He reports that Capt. Marcy left his camp ground, forty miles from Fort Union, on the 16th of March. He had about 1200 animals, mostly mules, abundant supplies, forage, and provisions enough for the men. He had 150 regular troops and the same number of mountaineers and herds with him. He expressed entire confidence of being able to reach Camp Scott without difficulty.

New York, April 11.

Gen Cass has completed his letter on the African slave trade, and will communicate it to Lord Napier to-morrow.

Messrs Powell and McCulloch, Commissioners to Utah, started on their journey, but when they arrived at the cars, they were overtaken by a messenger from the President with an order to stop.

Col Benton's funeral services will be performed to morrow, Monday, at 2 o'clock. The pall bearers selected are: Senator Floyd, Senator Houston, Gen. Jessup, Mr. W. H. Appleton, Mr. John B. Rives, Mr. James B. Clay, Mr. W. W. Seaton, and Mr. Jacob Hall of Mo.

A granddchild of Col Benton, Mrs. Jones' son, died this morning.

Col. Benton's will was opened yesterday. His residence here is bequeathed to Mrs. Jones, and his library to Carey Jones as literary legatee. The residue of the estate is distributed among their children. The executors are:

Wm. Carey Jones, John C. Fremont, Richard T Jacobs, Montgomery Blair, and Philip Lee.

The President distinctly disclaims all intention of supporting the Crittenden amendment. He has been misrepresented.

Memphis, April 12.

Bolton has been acquitted of the murder of McMullen.

Washington, April 12.

Senate.—A message was received from the House, announcing its adherence to its vote on the Kansas bill: also, that it had passed the deficiency appropriation bill.

Mr. Green, of Mo. gave notice that he would move to take up the Kansas bill to-morrow at one o'clock.

Mr Hale, of New Hampshire, presented the petition of the inmates of the Military Asylum asking for a subsistence, instead of continuing within the Asylum, in which they complain of abuses. Referred to a special Committee, with power to report any bill and to send for persons and papers.

The senate then adjourned to attend Col. Benton's funeral.

The funeral service of Mr. Benton was attended, among others, by the President, members of Cabinet, Foreign Ministers, and members of Congress. The corpse was conveyed to the cars for transmission to Missouri.

Senator Bigler to-day presented to the President, from the Adjutant General of Pa., a regiment of volunteers.

The Cabinet held a long session to-day with reference to affairs of Utah. It is said the President contemplates sending a message to Congress on the subject.

New Orleans April 12.

The river continues very high, and has run over the levees in several places on this side, near the city; but it has all been repaired. On the opposite side, the water is overflowing the plantations. Other crevices are reported above doing much damage.

A heavy rain fell yesterday, completely flooding the streets in this city, for two hours and it was accompanied by a high wind.

Washington, April 9.

The Printing Investigating Committee met this evening, and substantially agreed on the Bill of the Hon. Geo. Taylor, to establish a Government Printing office, under a Commissioner and the Secretary of the Interior, where the printing, binding and engraving of Congress, the Departments, and every branch of Government will be executed.—The Committee will probably be ready to report early next week, and the report will make the most interesting developments, showing the profits hitherto made. It is said that Wendell pays twenty thousand dollars a month for the bare privilege of executing the work for other parties.

The passage of the deficiency bill to-day was achieved by a liberal use of inducements as to the acceptance of new regiments. Kentucky gave several votes on this consideration and Ohio two or three. I think the vote to-day nearly settles the proposition that the Ohio and Kentucky regiments will be accepted. The Administration feel greatly relieved and elevated.

The Administration is using its power to the full extent to insure success in this final struggle. Promises of embassies and other offices of fat contracts, and, of Southern votes for favorite measures before Congress, are freely made to members who are supposed to be wavering.

Secretaries Cobb and Thompson threaten to resign if Lecompton fails, which threat tends to cool rather to inflame the Lecompton ardor of certain Southern members, by getting them to speculate on the successorship of the vacant post.

After the defeat of Lecompton, a week ago, the President wrote to Gov. Wise a very long letter, deploring the evil which this Lecompton business had brought upon the Administration, asking his advice, and beseeching the Gov to help save the Administrasion and the Democratic party, telling him, at the same time, that the Union was not Mr. Buchanan's organ, and that he had not approved its proscriptive and vituperative course. The Richmond Enquirer immediately came out against the course pursued by the Union.

New York, April 11.

The passage by the Legislature of the bill legalizing future contracts in stocks was announced to the Board this afternoon, and it was received with great applause.

☞ The Superintendent of public Instruction has appointed Dr. SAMUEL NILES, of Niles; K. C. KNIGHT, Esq., of Detroit; and H. L. MILLER, Esq., of Saginaw, Visitors to the University for the current year.

☞ A new town has been erected in Hillsdale county and named after it.

These wonderful Medicines are entirely vegetable, leave no bad effects, and can not by any possibility injure the most delicate constitution. Never, was a good Spring Medicine so necessary as now, for in addition to the skin diseases and deranged Stomach and Liver, which every winter produces, it is most evident to all who are accustomed to note the powerful influence for good or ill that the mind has upon the body that the anxiety of mind caused by the late wide spread money troubles, has injured the general health of almost every one. Then cleanse, strengthen and purify your system with the Scandinavian Bloodlets, and you will probably save yourself from serious illness the coming Summer.

MOFFAT'S LIFE PILLS AND PHOENIX BITTERS.

The very painful symptoms which precede the attacks of fever and ague can be suppressed and all danger arrested by the use of these valuable medicines. The pills and bitters are also a cure for rheumatism, and every variety of bowel complaint.

Sold by W. B Moffat, 335 Broadway, N. Y. Taylor & Curtis Agents, Tecumseh.

SORE AND INFLAMED EYES.—These disagreeable complaints are becoming remarkably prevalent of late, and giving any thing but an interesting look to the possessor of the diseased organ. "A red and fiery eye" is not pretty to look at, and certainly cannot be agreeable to have "for keeps," as the boys say. We can tell those afflicted in this manner how to cure the evil, and won't charge them any thing for the information. Let them get some of BRACE'S ARCTIC LINIMENT and touch the inflamed part with it a few times, and the work is done. The Arctic Liniment may be obtained at any of the Drug stores in this place.

DR. J. C. AYER, the world renowned Chemist of New England, is now stopping at the Burnet house in this city. He has been making a tour of the Western States, with his scientific associates, to investigate their remedial productions, or such as he can make remedial. We notice he has been received with marked distinction by our leading citizens of the West and are rejoiced to find they have shown a proper estimate of the man who has perhaps done more for the relief of human ills than any other American.—Cincinnati Journal.

The most skeptical people can be convinced by trial that all the family medicines are not humbug, and that among the thousand of butterly life there are a few of great merit, and undoubted worth. Of these, Dr. Sanford's Invigorator, or Liver Remedy stands first and foremost among the remedies of the day that can be relied on as a medicine that is all that is recommended by its proprietors.

It advertises itself on every trial, for there are none who use it but tell their friends to do so, and so it goes from mouth to mouth till all the people of the Union have learned the good of this truly valuable medicine. It is recommended with testimonials to prove its virtue for the cure of liver complaints of every kind, from the worst Dyspepsia to a common headache, and is particularly adapted to Jaundice, Deranged Stomach, Bowel Complaints and diseases of children.

One or two doses are said to cure a cold with scarce a failure. It is worth a trial for this alone. It is particularly adapted to use of ladies, particularly those of sedentary habits. Some ladies of the highest standing in society have given their certificates of its efficacy, and we say to all who are ailing, try one bottle, and you will never be without it.

BROOM MANUFACTORY.—Thos. W. Clark is making the necessary arrangements to carry on the manufacture of brooms, in our village, this fall. He will manufacture but one kind, "A No. 1" a sample of which was shown us a few days since, and we think it will soon establish Mr. Clark's reputation. Persons raising broom-corn this season will find a sale for it at Mr. Clark's Manufactory.

LARGE VERDICT.—The Ann Arbor JOURNAL says the case of Davis AGT. the M. S. & N. I. Railroad, which has been on trial in the Washtenaw Circuit Court for about two weeks, was closed on Saturday. The jury gave a verdict for the plaintiff of $32,066,66 The plaintiffs declaration was for work done on the Tecumseh and Jackson branch.

☞ The Detroit incest case was terminated on Tuesday. The jury brought in the defendant Jenness, guilty, but recommended him to mercy. A motion was made for arrest of judgement and a new trial, and notice given of an appeal to the Supreme Court in the event a new trial is denied. It strikes us that the jury was "mixed;" if the prisoner was guilty and in that respect we think the verdict correct—why recommend mercy? No leniency should be shown in such cases, the full rigor of the law falling short of justice.

The "Sands of Life" Run Out.

Dr. Hall of the Journal of Health who has investigated the matter and analyzed the drugs, finds that the mixture for which Old Sands of Life charges $2, when made from the very purest and most expensive materials used, costs exactly 16 cents—bottle and all. And he furthermore charges, as do many others, that it is a deleterious article at best. The following from the Gleaner is a very severe rap:

Messrs Editors:—Permit me thro' your columns to bear testimony to a valuable medicine. My great aunt has been striving to reach heaven for twenty years. Having a cough, she finally fell into the hands of the "retired physician," whose "sands of life have nearly run out." She purchased a bottle of his Cannabis Indica, from which she gained strength.—On taking the second bottle her strength so increased that she was able to cough day and night without interruption; the third bottle landed her in heaven. Thus in a brief space of time, the fond hopes and anticipations of more than a quarter of a century are realized for the sum of $7 twelve and one half cents.

In view of this and other facts that are almost daily coming to light, it is no more than an act of justice to that pious, conscientious, old, "retired physician," whose sands of life continue to run from him, to recommend his wonderful medicines to all who are afflicted with coughs, colds, asthma, brown creatures, lonesliness of the gall bladder, inflammation of the florax, refusal of the kidneys to respond to the jerks of mucous membrane, vacant feelings in the head, &c. To those persons of changing worlds, or changing husbands and wives, and all who are anxious to visit t'other side of Jordan, this medicine is confidently recommended. To those persons who take a lively interest in natural history, I would advise them to throw themselves into the arms of the "retired physician," and they may be assured they will see the elephant and the rhinoceros.

This just fills out the column.

The Mormon War.

No later advices are received from Salt Lake City by the Moses Taylor, but we have obtained some reliable intelligence respecting Mormon designs and purposes in the present opposition to the Federal Government, The following private letter to a gentleman in this city, illustrates the temper of the Mormon people, and proves very clearly that they are determined to obey their chief even to the extremity of war

Great Salt Lake City,
Wednesday, Jan 6, 1858.

Aside from business I have but little to write, as here all is peace and quietness. The Saints have plenty to eat; they have their religion and the Lord is blessing them in all things. We have a Prophet in our midst, even Brother Brigham, who is filled with wisdom, and what he predicts always comes to pass. I will give you an example of his wisdom on passing events. On the 24th of July, the anniversary of the arrival of the Pioneers in these valleys, the news arrived that the Government had stopped our mails, and 2,500 soldiers were on their way here.—Brother Brigham answered and said, if the troops got here we should have to help them in. They came as far as Fort Bridger. When he told them to stop, they swore they would come in and hang the leaders of the Church, and showed the boys the ropes. Brigham then sent fifty horsemen to wait upon the troops. He told them before their departure that the soldiers were ignorant and to spare their lives, if possible, and though the troops might fire upon them, not one hair of their heads should be hurt; that the Lord would be with them as with his servants anciently, when surrounded by their enemies, and though in reality a small number, they would appear as thousands. Well the boys went, and to stop the progress of our enemies, burnt up 76 of their wagons and took 1,700 of their cattle and mules. The soldiers have fired over 500 guns at them, but never hit one of them They are now camped on Fort Bridger for the winter, and are completely whipped. They will never attempt to come in here. The boys said, while the soldiers were shooting at them, if they had had the privilege they would have used them up before breakfast.

Do not be alarmed for our safety, as the soldiers will not come in here. Fort Bridger is about 113 miles from here; and besides, they will have to come thro' Echo Canon. Now, this Echo Canon is a queer sort of place for an enemy to come through. I have been out three weeks this winter. I will try to describe it: It is upwards of thirty miles long, and at the widest part of it not more than 100 yards from mountain to mountain.—The sides of the mountains are solid rocks nearly perpindicular, and 300 yards high. We have dug a canal across, which we can fill with with water in three hours.—On the walls we have built forts, where we can have a fair chance against superior numbers There they cannot touch us When they have passed through Echo Canon, they will have to attempt the passage of Emigration Canon, which is no flowery passage to our city. In fact, for the 2,500 soldiers out at Bridger, we do not think them worth bothering with.

Let the Government send on their hundred thousand, and they will find immediate attention.

The Indians are hard on the Gentile emigration between here and California. They have taken many lives and much property The first company that went through shot at every Indian they saw.—The Indians resolved on retaliation, fell upon them, and killed 150, and have now their women and children prisoners—They never disturb a Mormon.

JURY VERDICTS—ANOTHER MINISTERIAL DEFEAT.—In Lower Canada the agreement of nine jurors out of twelve, is sufficient in all civil cases. This has long been the law of Scotland, and is also the law of France. Where the rule has been tried it is approved; a majority of three-fourths giving as good or better satisfaction than requiring twelve men to agree. A bill to establish the three-fourths jury in Upper Canada is before Parliament, and is opposed by the Attorney General, argued at much length against the proposed change in the Upper House, but the bill was carried against the Ministry on the second reading by a vote of 24 to 4. The Globe supposes public opinion in Upper Canada is in favor of the proposed change, and that when the bill comes down to the Assembly it will receive the support of the majority, in spite of the opposition of the Ministry.

SUICIDE IN CALHOUN CO.—The Battle Creek Journal says that a man named Rinson Quick, aged 26 years, working for a widow lady named Mrs Martha Styles, living in Emmett, Calhoun Co., about 3 miles east of Battle Creek, committed suicide by taking opium on Monday night last. He was much attached to Mrs Styles, and an engagement of marriage existed between them For some cause she desired a postponement, which so preyed upon his mind as to lead to his taking opium. He was found in his bed on Tuesday morning insensible, and all efforts to restore him to consciousness failed.

Bragg's Arctic Liniment.

This unequalled Liniment upon which the great mass of afflicted of all lands now rely for relief from the pangs of Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Gout, Erysipelas Cancer, Scrofula, Sprains, Bruises, Burns, Scalds and all cutaneous diseases is rapidly supercoding all similar preparations. The proprietor,give for the encouragement of sufferers, the following memorandum of a few of the wonderful cures effected by it during the past few months. Certificates from the parties named are in the possession of the proprietors; their length precludes the publication of all but a few.

One Bottle Triumphant.

Mrs. Moffitt, No 544 Morgan Street, St. Louis, having suffered for three years with Rheumatism, and tried many preparations without effect, was cured by one fifty cent bottle of Arctic Liniment.

Out of Purgatory.

Henry Davis, 2 second street St Louis, who says he was "all ring the pangs of purgatory" with neuralgia for months, was cured by three or four applications of the Arctic Liniment.

Pity the Little Children

A little daughter of Mrs. Lee, residing on Lake St. Chicago, was scalded all over by the upsetting of a kittle of boiling water. The Arctic Liniment was applied according to directions, and the fire was instantly extracted, and in a few days the little sufferer was well.

Restored to Beauty.

Mrs. George R. Tyler, Canal street, N. Orleans had long suffered from a painful and disfiguring eruption on the face, and by the use of one bottle of the Liniment was cured, and restored to her original beauty.

A Horrible Tumor.

Eugene Mallory, Natchez was three years the victim of a horrible tumor on the neck which resisted all remedies until he tried the Arctic Liniment. Three bottles cured him in a few weeks.

Wonderful Cure!

Mrs Bedford, Mobile, was confined to her room for three years with numb palsy and after being in despair from the failure of all other remedies, was cured by the Arctic Liniment in a little over a month.

Cured in Egyptian.

Memphis Tenn., Nov. 28th. 1857.

I hereby certify, that having been badly bruised and scaled by the explosion of a Steam Roller, a friend induced me to try Bragg's Arctic Liniment. The smart was instantly extracted from the scalds, and in a very short time all the pain was gone from the bruises. In two weeks I was well, and able to resume my business.

The Blind See!

Webster City, Iowa, Nov. 9th. 1857.

Dr A. G Bragg.—Dear Sir. For more than three years I had been afflicted with inflamed eyes, in an aggravated degree and tried various Physicians, and several Nostrums, to no effect. I was induced by Dr Baum to try the Arctic Liniment and in two months was nearly well. My little daughter was afflicted in the same manner for the same time, and during a portion of the time was entirely blind in one eye. I applied your valuable Liniment and her eyes are perfectly sound. Thus have I with one two-bitt bottle cured my daughter's eye and my own head—scaring the rheumatism in my back. I would not be without your invaluable remedy in my house. Yours Truly

Wm. RUSSELL.

Webster City, Iowa, Nov. 9th. 1857.

I hereby certify, that I am well acquainted with Wm Russell, and with the astonishing cures he mentions, and know his statement to be strickly true.

Good for Animals.

This invaluable Liniment is also equally effectious in curing the diseases of animals as witness the following certificate; Messrs J & A. Arnot, and Lynch, Arnot & Co., keep the largest livery stables in the west and are generally known throughout the U. S.

St Louis, Dec 23rd, 1857

We the undersigned having used Dr Bragg's Arctic Liniment for a number of months, cheerfully testify to its superior efficacy in curing the diseases of horses; as well are we satisfied of the Arctic being the best Liniment made, that we would use no other We keep and have kept for a number of years, extensive livery stables in this city, and consequently our experience about horses and their diseases is great, and we unhesitatingly say that the Arctic Liniment is the only one we have ever found ALWAYS EFFECTIVE. We cordially recommend it to all livery stable keepers and others having the care of horses

DR ROBACK'S BLOOD PURIFIER AND BLOOD PILLS.

DISEASE VANQUISHED.

—BY—

Dr. Roback's Scandinavian Remedies.

AFTER YEARS OF STUDY AND EXPERIMENT Dr. Roback the eminent Swedish Physician, succeeded in producing a medicine from twenty-three different species of mountain herbs of his native land which acts directly on the causes of disease in the blood, and by restoring the corrupted fountain of life, to a condition of health and purity, expels disease from the system wherever it may be located, or whatever may be its character Indigestion nervous complaints, episodic fits coughs consumption in its early stages sore throat, bronchitis, fever and ague asthma, low spirits, sexual incapacity, feminine weakness, pricking of the skin, symptomatical paralysis rheumatism neuralgia, tumor cancer, diabetic, lassitude and debility diarrhœa and all other disorders of the organs of respiration the liver the kidneys the stomach, the nerves or the muscular fiber are unerringly cured by this preparation. It is to the materia medica of modern science what an alkali is to an acid: it neutralizes them with absolute certainty, while at the same time it regulates the secretions, removes obstructions from the bowels, creates appetite, tones bodily vigor and regenerates every animal function. Such is the nature, such are the effects of Dr. Roback's famous Scandinavian Blood Purifier which if taken in conjunction with his Scandinavian Blood Pills, will not only obliterate the most painful disease, but prevent their recurrence, and lengthen life beyond the ordinary span

In the SCANDINAVIAN VEGETABLE BLOOD PILLS, Dr. Roback presents the result of twenty years of experience, hard study and experiment as to what a perfect pill should be. No person can doubt their superiority after one single trial. Price of the Scandinavian Blood Purifier, $1 per bottle, or $5 per half-dozen. Scandinavian Blood Pills, 25 cents per box, or five for $1

PERU, Miami Co Ind., Aug. 4, 1857.

DR. C. W. ROBACK: I have received so much benefit from your Scandinavian Blood Purifier and Blood Pills that I have thought it my duty and it is no less my inclination, to give you a plain statement of my case. I was for years afflicted with that bane of all comfort, and efficiency in business dyspepsia. To recapitulate all the so called remedies which I have used to rid myself of this disease, would indeed make a melancholy catalogue. I also consulted with the best physicians I could hear of. I was induced to try your remedies through the persuasions of a friend, and after using them a few days was greatly benefitted, and in a short time, less than a month, I was entirely and permanently cured. I was also afflicted with the most violent nervous headache, which I suppose was produced by my disordered stomach for when my dispepsia left me my headache left with it. I now feel better in every respect than I have for ten years.

Very truly yours, JOHN S. DEMUTH.

From the Rev. Mr. McMeakes, Pastor of Roberts Chapel.

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 5, 1857.

DR C. W. ROBACK—Dear Sir: I have used your Blood Purifier for a nervous affection, from which I have suffered much at times. While it is pleasant to the taste it certainly has a happy effect upon the nerves. Please accept my thanks for your kind regards and acts and believe me.

Yours, J. W. T. McMULLEN

FROM A WELL-KNOWN STEAMBOAT CLERK.

Louisville, June 4 1857

DEAR DOCTOR: Send me half a dozen boxes of your Pills care of H O Curd & co and can get them next trip. Six weeks ago nothing could have convinced me that a twenty-five cent box of Pills could have relieved my obstinate chronic constipation with its attending evils. I tell you so when I bought them, but I am bound to own that your Pills fill the contract! Why I have taken as many as six (6) of ——'s and other makers' sometimes without effect and sometimes with too much effect: but I have no trouble with yours—they are just what I want.

CINCINNATI, Friday, Sept. 4 1857

DR. ROBACK—Dear Sir: Having been afflicted with neuralgia or rheumatism for the past year and a half, and having seen your medicine called the Scandinavian Blood Purifier, highly recommended by gentlemen with whom I am acquainted, I was induced to try it, but not before I had used various other medicines—After using two bottles I felt its effect very sensibly and upon using two more, I found myself perfectly cured. You will allow me, therefore, to congratulate you upon having a discovery in medicine which is proving itself to be a worker of such wonders in the diseases of the human family.

GEORGE S. BENNETT.

Local Editor Cincinnati Daily Enquirer.

INDIANAPOLIS, Wednesday, Sept. 2, 1857

DR. C. W. ROBACK—Dear Sir: Having been troubled for several years with a extreme debility and weakness, so much so that I was unable to attend to my ordinary business at times, and having heard of the wonderful cures that your Scandinavian Blood Purifier and Pills were effecting; I was induced by a friend to try them.

I have seen using the Purifier for the last twelve months and find the medicine fully equal to its recommendations. So valuable is it use to me that I cannot now dispense with the use of it at my advanced age of life—seventy-seven years.

I cheerfully give this information for the benefit of those singularly afflicted MORRIS MORRIS

MOFFAT'S

LIFE PILLS

AND

Phœnix Bitters

THE BEST FAMILY MEDICINE NOW before the public, for the cure of Scrofula, Ulcers, Scurvy, or Eruptions of the Skin, Fever and Ague, Dyspepsia, Dropsy, and in fact most all diseases soon yield to their curative proprities.

It has been computed that during the last twenty five years upwards of FOUR MILLIONS of persons have been benefited by the use of these medicines; a fact which speaks volumes in favor of their curative properties. a single trial will place them beyond the reach of competition in the estimate of every patient. By their use the BLOOD IS RESTORED TO A HEALTHY STATE and freed from all impurities. The system is not reduced during their operation, but invigorated, and they require no restraint from business or pleasure.

The afflicted have in these medicines a remedy that will do for them all that medicine can possibly effect

Patent Medicines.

ONE DOLLAR WILL BUY

ONE OF THE BEST PURGATIVE AND LIVER MEDICINES now before the public, namely, DR. SANDFORD'S INVIGORATOR, or LIVER REMEDY; that acts as a Cathartic, easier, milder and more effectual than any other medicine known. It is not only a Cathartic, but a Liver remedy, acting first on the Liver to eject its morbid matter, then on the stomach and bowels to carry off that matter, thus accomplishing two purposes effectually, without any of the painful feeling experienced in the operations of most Cathartics. At the same time it is the strengthens the system at the same time that it purges it, and when taken daily in moderate doses will strengthen and build it up with unusual rapidity

DR. SANFORD'S INVIGORATOR is compounded entirely from new articles of medicine, namely, Gums.

Some idea of the strength of these gums may be formed when it is known that one bottle of the Invigorator contains as much strength as one hundred doses of Calomel, without any of its deleterious effects.

These gums possessing rare medical powers, these Gums have been but little known to Physicians and never used in their prescriptions until used in the form of the Invigorator, which met with such unprecedented success as to induce the proprietor to offer it as a family medicine tried and known in its effects. It has rarely ever failed to cure Liver Complaints in their worst forms.

INDIGESTION being caused by a deranged Liver is cured when the Liver is excited to action.

JAUNDICE is caused by an improper action of the Liver; and as a proof that the Invigorator relieves this disease, let any one troubled with Jaundice take the Invigorator regularly one week, and their skin will begin to assume its original color.

COSTIVENESS can be permanently cured by the Invigorator. Take it in small doses on retiring and it assists nature in her operations By gradually diminishing the dose, the bowels are left in a healthy and active state, and work as regularly as clock work.

SICK HEADACHE is very soon relieved by taking a double dose of the Invigorator, which corrects all acidity and sourness of the stomach.

For an over-loaded stomach it has no equal, as it relieves all oppressive or uneasy feeling after eating heartily. For a FAMILY MEDICINE generally, all who use it speak in the highest terms.

DR. SANFORD'S INVIGORATOR came to us recommended as a cure for Liver Complaints, and all diseases arising from a Diseased Liver. The testimonials of so many of our Physicians in its favor, induced us to try it, and now conviction is certain that it is one of the greatest blessings ever given to Dyspeptics, for it made a complete cure before the first bottle was half used, and now we can eat anything edible without trouble, while before nothing but the lightest food would digest, and often that gave pain. Now what we want to say to all our readers is, if you have Complaints or Dyspepsia trouble you, do not fail to try this the greatest remedy in the world.—State-Fact.

We take infinite pleasure in recommending this medicine as a preventative for FEVER and AGUE CHILL FEVER, and all FEVERS of a BILIOUS TYPE. It operates with certainty, and thousands are willing to testify to its wonderful virtues.

There has never been tried in our family a remedy which has met with such unbounded success in the cure of diseases incident to children as DR. SANFORD'S INVIGORATOR; nor is it alone for diseases of children that we use it, for it acts as a Cathartic so mildly and gently, and seems to renovate the system so thoroughly that we think we are doing a service to all in advising them, when they need medicine to try this remedy. There are cases that have come under our notice where great benefit has been received in diseases of the Liver, Stomach and Bowels where all other remedies failed to give relief. It had become so useful in our family that we will not be without it.—Jacksonville Illustrated.

OPPOSITION.

Cabinet & Chair Shop,

[One door south of Tecumseh Academy]

The undersigned believes that he need only intimate to this community that he was a partner in the late famous establishment at the old New York store, to ensure him a liberal publi tronage; all are aware what a flourishing business was done at that House; while he was a partner in the firm, that is, while he turned the grindstone, and knew that establishment almost disappeared when the motive power was withdrawn. It is not doubted therefore, but that the public will be gratified to know, that the self same power has put in motion a Machine that is now turning out Tables, Bureaus, Bedsteads, Chairs, and all kind of Furniture, with such velocity that will enable him to sell them at prices so low, that will astonish the natives.

Now I would say, to all those who want Cheap Furniture, "come on, now is the time" for I am determined to 'bust' every establishment in town.

℞ AYER'S Cathartic Pills (SUGAR COATED,)

ARE USED TO

CLEANSE THE BLOOD AND CURE THE SICK.

Invalids, Doctors, Mothers, Physicians, Philanthropists, and their Effects, and Judge of their Virtues.

Headache, Sick Headache, Foul Stomach,

Dr. J. C. AYER, Sir: I have been repeatedly cured of the worst headache any body can have by a dose or two of your Pills. It seems to arise from a foul stomach, which they cleanse at once. If they will cure others as they do me, the fact is worth knowing. Yours with great respect, REV. W. PERKINS, Clerk of Steamer Clarion.

Bilious Disorders and Liver Complaints,

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR, WASHINGTON, D. C., 7 Feb., 1856.

SIR: I have used your Pills in my general and hospital practice ever since you made them, and most cheerfully say they are the best cathartic we employ. Their prompt, yet mild action on the liver is quick and decisive, and controlled by they are an admirable remedy for derangement of that organ. Indeed, I have seldom found a case of disease in some so obstinate that it did not readily yield to them.

ALONZO BALL, M. D., Physician of the Marine Hospital.

Dysentery, Relax, and Worms.

POST OFFICE, HARTLAND, Liv. Co., MICH., Nov. 18, 1856.

DR. AYER: Your Pills are the perfection of medicine. They have done my wife more good than I can tell you. She had been sick and pining away for months. Would off to be doctored at great expense, but got no better. She then commenced taking your Pills, which soon cured her by expelling large quantities of worms (dead) from her body. They afterwards cured her and our two children of bloody dysentery. One of our neighbors had it bad, and my wife cured him with two doses of your Pills, while others around us paid from five to twenty dollars doctor bills, and lost much time, without being cured entirely even then. Such a medicine as yours, which is actually good and honest, will be prized here.

GEO. J. GRAVES, Postmaster.

Indigestion and Impurity of the Blood

From Rev. J. V. Himes, Pastor of Advent Church, Boston.

DR. AYER: I have used your Pills with extraordinary success in my family and among those I am called to visit in distress. To regulate the organs of digestion and purify the blood they are the very best remedy I have ever known, and I can confidently recommend them to my friends. Yours, J. V. HIMES.

WARSAW, WYOMING CO., N. Y., Oct. 24, 1856.

DEAR SIR: I am using your Cathartic Pills in my practice, and find them an excellent purgative to cleanse the system, and purify the fountains of the blood.

JOHN G. MEACHAM, M. D.

Erysipelas, Scrofula, King's Evil, Tetter, Tumors, and Salt Rheum.

From a Remarkable Merchant of St. Louis, Feb. 4, 1856.

DR. AYER: Your Pills are the panacea of all the great in medicine. They have cured my little daughter of ulcerous sores upon her hands and feet that had become incurable for years. Her mother has been long grievously afflicted with blotches and pimples on her skin and in her hair. After our child was cured, she also tried our Pills, and they have cured her. ASA MORGRIDGE.

Rheumtism, Neuralgia, and Gout.

From the Rev. Dr. Hawks, of the Methodist Epis. Church.

PLEASANT HOME, SAVANNAH, GA., Jan. 6, 1856.

HONORED SIR: I should be ungrateful for the relief your skill has brought me if I did not report my case to you. A cold settled in my limbs and brought on excruciating neuralgic pains, which ended in chronic rheumatism. Notwithstanding I had the best of physicians to attend me, I grew worse and worse, until, by the advice of my friends, I sent specially to Baltimore, Dr. Mackenzie, I tried your Pills. Their effects were slow, but sure. By persevering in the use of them I am now entirely well.

SENATE CHAMBER, HARRIS HONOR, La., 5 Dec. 1856.

DR. AYER: I have been entirely cured by your Pills of Rheumatic Gout—a painful disease that had afflicted me for years. VINCENT SLIDELL.

For Dropsy, Plethora, or kindred complaints, requiring an active purge, they are a most excellent remedy.

For Costiveness or Constipation, and a Dinner Pill, they are agreeable and effectual.

Fits, Suppression, Paralysis, Inflammation, and even Deafness, and Partial Blindness, have been cured by the alterative action of these Pills.

Most of the pills in market contain Mercury, which, although a valuable remedy in skilful hands, is dangerous in a public pill, from the dreadful consequences that frequently follow its incautious use. These contain no mercury or mineral substance whatever.

AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL

FOR THE RAPID CURE OF

COUGHS, COLDS, HOARSENESS, INFLUENZA, BRONCHITIS, WHOOPING COUGH, CROUP, ASTHMA, INCIPIENT CONSUMPTION,

and for the relief of consumptive patients in advanced stages of the disease.

We need not speak to the public of the wonderful efficacy of this world-renowned remedy. Throughout every town and almost every hamlet of the American States its wonderful cures of Pulmonary complaints have made it already known. Nay, for are there families in any civilized country on the habitable globe in which some living trophy of its victory over the subtle and fatal disease does not exist and bless its name? While of the numerous diseases of the throat and lungs, which are cured by this most powerful antidote yet known to man, there are many formidable and dangerous diseases of the pulmonary organs, which, although not entirely subdued by this remedy, are so much relieved by it as to warrant the hope that can be indulged in also the pleasurable belief that many of them are completely cured by it. Hence it is employed for hopeless and dangerous cases, with the most astonishing success. Parents should have it in store against the insidious coming that may at any moment fasten upon their offspring, and save them from premature graves. We have abundant grounds for the belief that it prevents more than those it cures. Keep it by you, and cure your colds while they are curable, not let them until no human skill can master the incurable cancer that, fastened on the vitals, eats your life away. All know the dreadful fatality of lung disorders, and all they know too the virtues of this remedy, we need not say more than to assure them it is still made the best that can be. We spare no cost, no care, nor pains in our endeavors to render it the most perfect possible, and thus afford those who rely upon it the best agent which our skill can furnish for their cure.

"The Right Must Win."

"The following beautiful lines we found in a Roman Catholic work containing all the hymns of the Roman Breviary and Missal"—[Inquirer.

Oh, it is hard to work for God,
To rise and take his part
Upon this battle-field of earth,
And not sometimes lose heart.

He hides himself so wondrously,
As though there were no God;
He is least seen when all the powers
Of ill are most abroad.

Or he deserts us at the hour
The fight is almost lost;
And seems to leave us to ourselves
Just when we need him most.

Ill master's good—good seems to change
To ill, with greatest ease
And, worst of all, the good with good
Is at cross purposes.

It is not so, but so it looks;
And we lose courage then;
And doubts will come if God hath kept
His promises to men.

Ah! God is other than we think
His ways are far above,
Far above Reason's hight, and reached
Only by child like love.

The look, the fashion of God's ways.
Love's life-long study are;
She can be bold, and guess, and act,
When Reason would not dare.

She has a prudence of her own;
Her step is firm and free;
Yet there is cautious science too,
In her simplicity.

Workman of God! oh, lose not heart,
But learn what God is like;
And in the darkest battle-field,
Thou shalt know where to strike.

Oh, blessed is he to whom is given
The instinct that can tell
That God is on the field, when he
Is most invisible!

And blessed is he who can divine
Where real right doth lie,
And dares to take the side which seems
Wrong to man's blindfold eye.

Oh, learn to scorn the praise of men:
Oh, learn to love with God!
For Jesus won the world through shame,
And beckons thee his road.

God's glory has wondrous thing,
Most strange in all its ways,
And of all on earth least like
What men agree to praise.

Muse on his justice, downcast soul!
Muse, and take better heart;
Back with thine angel to the field;
Good luck shall crown thy part.

God's justice is a bed, where we
Our anxious hearts may lay,
And weary with ourselves may sleep
Our discontent away.

For right is right, since God is God;
And right the day must win;
To doubt would be dis oyalty,
To falter would be sin!

"MEET LIZZIE AT SIX."

That was all the dispatch contained.—Four little words; yet what excitement they caused in the household at Maple Cottage; the quiet, sober household, whose members, at the moment of its reception, were on the point of going to rest for the night.

"Meet Lizzie at six!" Was our darling indeed so near us? Two years and three months had passed since our eyes had been gladdened with her girlish beauty, since her voice had mingled with the bird music that floated all the long summer days among the maples. Two years and three months she had been buried among books, in a far-away city, bowing her sunny curls over algebra and geometry, grammar and philosophy, astronomy and botany, French and Latin; patiently at first, because her parents desired it; afterward cheerfully, to please the teachers she had learned to love; and at last, zealously, from pure thirst for the treasures these studies unlocked to her. But it was over now—these toilsome years—and she was on her way to us once more—our Lizzie—our pet and pride—we should meet her at six."

She had left B. in the morning; had journeyed without stopping, all day; this was guessed at once; and at eight in the evening, finding a hasty opportunity, she had telegraphed to us the words above.—At six, the Eastern train arrived at our station; Lizzie was to ride all night, for the sake of reaching home thus early.—It was like her, impulsive, warm-hearted child that she was!

How little we slept that night! What slight sounds arouse us; how early we were all astir—even the baby, and the white haired grandfather; "Meet Lizzie, eh!" he said; "aye, indeed will we!"—And the old man's voice caught a youthful tone, and his crutches an elastic movement, as he hobbled about the house, giving orders, as if all the responsibility rested upon him, to be sure.

There was Hannah, too, bewildered the mother about breakfast. "Did Lizzie like coffee or cocoa best?" And would she make biscuits or waffles? And the mother smiling all the time, nodded her head to everything, and went hurrying about, with the grid-iron in one hand, and the egg-boiler in another, coaxing Fanny to curl the baby's hair, and looking at the clock every five minutes.—But Fanny, with mysterious apronfuls of something, was flighting up stairs and down, leaving a book here, a flower there a daguerreotype on the table, or a rosy-cheeked fall apple in the window—something for Lizzie to see and smile at. Only the father seemed undisturbed. We noticed, to be sure, the dimples in his cheeks, which Lizzie always said she made with her fingers when she was a babe, looked deeper when he smiled, and that his voice was a little less steady when he told Thomas to bring the horses; but he did not like to be considered a demonstrative man, so we only looked at each other and said nothing. Still waters are sometimes very deep.

At last the carriage came around, and we got in, two of us, beside the father, who was to drive. There was room for more; but it was quite out of her line, the mother said, to go on a dashing drive before breakfast; so we left her on the piazza, with the pickle-dish in her hand, and wiping her eyes with her apron.

It was half a mile to the depot, and the sun not quite risen when we started. How balmy and pure the air was, that soft September morning. We thought, egotists as we are, in our happiness, that nature sympathized with us. It seemed as if there never had been so fair a sunrising before, and as if half the glory of the morning would have been wasted, had Lizzie not been coming home.

The cars had not arrived, when we stopped at the station, but we heard the whistle of the locomotive, not very distant; and those few, sweet, waiting moments—what a world of blessed anticipation they held. The sun was rising—ah, Lizzie! Lizzie!

At last the train came up—stopped.—We looked at the windows; only a row of sad faces! Lizzie must have sat on the other side. A few passengers come out, solemn-faced and silent. We pressed forward—so did those who were going out on the train. The conductor appeared, and waved everybody back, then motioned to some one in the car. Two men came out, and slowly descended the steps, bearing a lifeless body—a woman; her features covered by a veil. They bore it into the saloon, and laid it reverently upon the sofa. Still the conductor waved the crowd back—except our party! He knew us, and turned away his face as we approached.

Then we knew how it was; all except the father; he could not believe! Firmly he raised the veil from the dead face.—Oh, God! All merciful! Is it thus we meet thee, Lizzie, darling, our best beloved, idol of our heart!

In a brief time we learned the story, learned how the angel of the Lord had 'met Lizzie' before us, in the still twilight of that autumn morning, and after one pang, terrible we know, but brief, had wafted her gentle spirit to those who waited for her in the home of angels.

At the very last stopping place, Lizzie had left the car to procure some food for a little child, who had fretted all night in the arms of a wearied mother. The train stopped but a moment; it was dusk, and none of the officials had seen her leave it She returned hastily to find it moving, made a misstep, fell forward—and the rest—it is a common tale, such as newspapers chronicle every week. The beautiful head with its sunny curls was—what we saw at the station-house!

We shed no tears at first, though it seemed as if a drop could save our hearts from bursting—it would not come. Not even when one who, we afterwards learned, was on his way to a wedding party, and who, journeying with Lizzie but a few hours, had yet learned to know her good as beautiful, came up and laid, in tearful silence, a bouquet of pure white rose-buds upon her bosom. We buried them with her—the stranger's kindly offering of sympathy and respect.

Blessed be God for tears! They came at last; came when we saw the mother! That scene is too sacred for detail. But the old grandfather's mind wandered when he heard the tidings, and all day he sat in his arm-chair on the porch, listening for the whistle of the train, as his dull ear faintly distinguished it: "I reckon Lizzie's aboard that. Has anybody gone to meet the gal!" When told again, he would seem to comprehend for a few moments, and once he called the creeping baby to him and patting its white shoulders, said, "Grandsir's old, and lame, and blind; he couldn't go the station, but grandsir's going to see Lizzie first after all. Yes, yes—grandsir's not so far from his little gal as the rest of them, but we're all following fast!"

Blessed lost one! How prone we are to forget this. How hard for our faith to "put back the dead love from her arms," and looking upward, upward, to the glory that encompasseth thee forever.—We mourn thee always, Lizzie; our idolatrous hearts yield but slowly to the Father's chastening, yet in it we feel the earnest of joy to come; we know the clinging earth-garments cannot hold us back from thee forever; we know that we shall yet "meet thee at six," at the glorious sunrise of the resurrection morning.—Ohio Statesman.

Death of Chris. Lilly.

The Panama correspondent of the Bulletin furnishes that paper, with the official evidence of the death of Chris. Lilly.

After being banished by the Vigilance Committee, he took passage, with his wife for Nicaragua. Here he established a monte bank and won all the ready money of Walker's officers. Then he purchased a vessel and loaded it with coffee in Costa Rica and sailed for San Juan del Sur, where he sold some of it to Walker. He next went to Realejo, where he found Commodore Knote in command of the Mexican squadron. Knote advised him to take his vessel to La Union for repairs offering to tow him up to port, which offer Chris., being afraid of arrest, as a fillibuster at Realejo, accepted. The correspondent continues;

"On his arrival at La Union, Knote took Lilly on board and put him in irons. He was seen in this condition on board the Santiago by an American gentleman, who interceded with Knote for his release. Knote replied that he would be glad to accede to his request, but he had orders from his Government to send him to the capital A couple of months subsequently, Knote informed the same gentleman that he had released him. This proved to be false. By order of the Guatemalian commander, Lilly and Yates were taken down into the hold while in irons, where a volley from five marines commanded by a sergeant, was fired into them. Lilly fell dead at the first fire but Yates, being a very powerful man, was not immediately killed. In his agony he dashed his manacles at the head of his dead companion, and scattered his brains about the hold. Yates was finally despatched, and then the vessel raised an chor and went out to sea, to sink the bodies. Knote sold the coffee for his own benefit and likewise robbed Lilly of the 1500 dollars in cash he had with him. These murders were for a long time kept secret, but are not now disputed by any one. No doubt Knote committed these murders for the sake of the spoils as Lilly had no trial, and the government, it is believed were not even informed of the execution.

"Lilly's wife is in New York. Yates was from Massachusetts. I have heard that his name was David—but this is not known positively. Knote calls himself an American. I believe he is a son of a former United States Consul, at Malaga."

PRUSSIAN FUGITIVE.—Edward Desling, a Prussian, charged with forgery and fraud, was arrested under the extradition treaty, on the 5th, at Paducah Ky. He was arrested by a Prussian detective, a New York lawyer and a Chicago detective. Great excitement grew out of the event as it was claimed he was only a political, refugee. A lady, passing for his wife—a theatrical character—is with him, and lately played an engagement in Chicago. He assumed the name of LeRoy.

REJOICING.—The people of Leavenworth, Kansas, had a gay old time of it when the news reached there of the passage of the Crittenden amendment. The town was illuminated, and the firing of cannon, and the burning of powder, and the making of speeches, and the shouting and every possible demonstration of joy lasted all night.

THE LEVIATHAN.—There are 1750 men at work on this ship, and it is intended to have her ready for sea in July. Her first trip will probably be to America—the port of Portland, Maine.

THE LITTLES MURDER CASE.—The trial of Ira Stout and Mrs. Littles for the murder of the husband of the latter commenced at Rochester on Monday afternoon.

The Old Meeting House Revisited

It was at the close of a fine day in September, that I reached the village where my childhood and youth were past, and where I had not been seen for more years than I care to mention.

I had been wandering a score of years or more among the cities and people of the world, and with a sort of pilgrim feeling, now came back to the old hearthstone and the hills that had been with me as a picture, wherever I had rested or travelled since I was a boy. It was curious that my first interview should be with the sexton, and my first visit in the old graveyard. So it was. He was sitting on the stile over which he had just stepped from the yard, and wearied with his toil, for he had just finished another grave, and was now leaning forward on his spade as he sat on the steps. I knew him at once, and approaching him; said, "Your name is Enoch, but I suppose you have forgotten me."

The old man looked up to me as he raised his head slowly from its rest, and answered—

"Yes, that's my name; but I don't remember you."

No, he did not know me. The old man was old when I was young, and he had now grown old; it seemed strange to me that a man who had so long and so often been in the grave, should be out of it yet. I took a seat by the side of him on the other side of the fence, and looking at the tomb stones within reach, began to call over the names of those whom I had left among the living.

"There are old Mr. and Mrs. Doubleby, and there's Mrs. Wilson, and here lies Clara Robinson, and there is the grave of Archie McAuley, and, dear me! they must be all here Is there anybody alive around here besides you, my old friend?"

"O yes, sir, but if you know these folks, you must have been gone a long time; I declare I can't make out who you may be."

"I suppose not," said I, "but you remember Mr. Rogers, who used to preach in the old white meeting house?"

"I guess I do, and now I know you, his son Richard."

"Right for you, Enoch, the very same."

"And you are the boy that rode on the pulpit in prayer-time, and used to be up to all manner of mischief; you Dick Rogers, well, I wouldn't have believed my old eyes."

"You are right, my good friend, the boy is back again, and has never forgotten these streets and this old burying-ground; to tell you the truth, Enoch, I always wanted to be buried here, and perhaps you may yet do me the favor."

"And that is just what I would not like to do; tell me where your father is, and if he is ever coming here again.—There's a sight of folks that would give more to see him than a show."

'He came with me, Enoch; you will see him along here presently, and next Sunday you will hear him preach.'

'And that will do me more good than a little. I should like to hear his voice once more.'

I walked into the yard. It was full.—There seemed to be room for no more graves. Long rows of sleepers, whose families were resting side by side, and had filled up the vacant places that I remembered distinctly, so that I was quite sure there were more of my old friends under ground than aboye. Some of them I did long to see again; some of them I hope to see hereafter. What is that name? Mary Lindley! Yes, I recollect it now. Died December 23rd, 1831; so soon after we went from the village! and she has been under this sod almost twenty years. Well, her heart has not ached half so often as it would if she had lived, and I believe her epitaph is true—'She sleeps in Jesus.' Precious is the sleep of those who rest in his arms.—And here is the grave of Charley Lee.—He was a schoolmate of mine; a sickly, suffering boy, but he lived, it seems, to early manhood and died But he died here at home, and love soothed his pillow, and closed his dying eyes. There were some of our set who perished far away, and were buried in a strange land, and more of them will be. I was much affected as I strolled among these graves to find so many of the old people lying in pairs. They came back to me as I used to see them in their farm houses, and at their daily labors, contented pious people, the salt of the earth, the blessed of God.—They prayed for me every day, and often with me, for I was a frequent visitor at their houses when I was a boy.

The sun was sinking while I thus walked and meditated among the tombs, and it was now getting dark, so that I was obliged to leave the dead and seek the living. As I turned to come out of the grave-yard, there was a feeling of pain that startled as it struck me. I did not want to go. It was so quiet here—just in the rear of the house of God—and so calm, so holy, sacred to the memory of so many that I revered and loved, that I felt desirous to stay with my old friends rather than to go out into the world again, and rough it, as I must, with those who are yet in the battle of life.

I walked to the parsonage. It was once 'our' house. It was very strange to knock at the old door and wait to be admitted to a home that would once almost have opened of itself at my coming. But they were not strangers altogether, who were now its rightful and excellent tenants. they had drawn me here by a pressing invitation, and now gave me a welcome so cordial and earnest that I was instantly at home again Blessed is the charm and grace of refined and Christian hospitality. It was as freely tendered at my coming as if an "angel were to be entertained," and not "unawares."

It was so strange to lie down at night in the same room, and in the same corner of the room where I slept when a child; and the power of association was never to me so peculiarly illustrated, as by the recollection of incidents that had been buried deep under the accumulations of so many years, and never thought of from childhood; now they started up instantly as I opened the chamber door, as if they had happened yesterday. I cannot invest them to other eyes with the interest they wear in my own, they should be recorded on the spot. They were fresh and dear to me, and came thronging my memory, as I tried in vain to lose myself in sleep.

But the next morning came, and then I wandered out among the trees, and fields, and streams that were once my most familiar haunts. The shade trees around the parsonage I had helped to plant. They were now wide-spreading,—their branches meeting overhead, though we had set their trunks wide asunder.—Here were four maples in a row; they were planted for, and by four brothers of us, and each in the order of his age had a tree of his own, which he watered and watched with fraternal care. The trees are all living; of the brothers one has been transplanted to a better soil and a fairer clime. He was a fine boy; well do I remember how he, the youngest of the four, a mere child, was pleased to have a tree of his own, how proud to fill the trench around it with water, and to see that his tree, (they were all set out in full leaf,) did not wilt. But he withered and died before his sun had reached its noon. He went to college, and when returning home from his spring vacation was seized with fever in a strange city and among strangers died. Poor boy! no, rather let me say, blessed was he that his Father took him so early to his bosom and spared him the trials and struggles the rest of us have had to meet and bear. And it was a pleasant circumstance to me, and one I did not know of till it was told me here under the shadow of my departed brother's tree, that the young pastor, now dwelling here and enjoying the shades, was my brother's friend and class-mate in college, and had mourned his untimely fall, How strange the mutations and commingling of this world!

But these hills have not changed.—These hills are the same; the everlasting hills; the forests crown them yet, and these streams at their base flow on as they did thirty years ago, when I walked in them, or sat on their banks and angled for trout in the summer sun. It is good to look nature in the face again, and to see some scenes that have not changed with the changes of an ever-changing world.

And these dwellings, though older somewhat, yet, as they were old when I was here last, now look very much as they did then. Let us enter one of them, and see if there are any here who will remember me. This is the house of a wealthy farmer, whose children were companions of my childhood. I hear that his daughter has been an invalid for nearly twenty years. Yes, she remembers me, and tells me that she has been comforted in years of languishing by the presence of Him who was with the children in the furnace. Eighteen years to be sick; a prisoner at home. Yet there the Lord can shower his selectest favors, and make the chamber of suffering a dwelling place of light and joy.

Lines on the Decease of W. Edwards.

In peace he reposes from earth's cares released,
He now sweetly rests in a haven of peace;
He is freed from all sorrow, affliction and pain;
Then who back to earth would recall him again?
He rests from all labor, how gentle his sleep.
Kind angels around him their vigils now keep.
The Saviour in kindness has called him away,
From the troubles of earth, at his right hand to stay.

Then grieve not dear friends, though his presence be mine
Shall gladden the home he made happy before,
But hush every murmur suppress every sigh,
For to those who are good 'tis but rapture to die.
His kindness and love and his efforts to please
We'll cherish 'till life and its memory cease.
And though that dear form is now moldering to dust
We will not deplore him for bright is our trust.

Yes soon you will meet him in that happy home,
Where affliction and sorrow never can come;
Will meet with the loved ones who have gone before,
In an unbroken band to part no more
Farewell then—but soon again you will meet
When released from the grave then how sweet
To be welcomed by angels in your heavenly home
Where the chilling death parting again cannot come

Letter from a Dying Wife to her Husband.

The following most touching fragment of a Letter from a Dying Wife to Her Husband, was found by him, some months after her death, between the leaves of a religious volume, which she was very fond of perusing. The letter which was literally dim with tear marks, was written long before the husband was aware that the grasp of a fatal disease had fastened upon the lovely form of his young wife, who died at the early age of nineteen.

"When this shall reach your eye, dear George, some day when you are turning over the relics of the past, I shall have passed away forever, and the cold white stone will be keeping its lonely watch over the lips you have so often pressed, and the sod will be growing green that shall hide forever from your sight the dust of one who has so often nestled close to your warm heart. For many long and sleepless nights, when all beside my thoughts was at rest, I have wrestled with the consciousness of approaching death until at last it has forced itself upon my mind; and although to you and to others it might seem but the nervous imaginings of a girl, yet, dear George, it is so! Many weary hours have I passed in the endeavor to reconcile myself to leaving you, whom I love so well, and this bright world of sunshine and beauty and hard indeed it is to struggle on silently and alone, with the sure conviction that I am about to leave all forever, and go down alone into the dark valley! "But I know in whom I have believed," and leaning up on his arm 'I fear no evil.' Do not blame me for keeping even all this from you. How could I subject you, of all others, to such sorrow as I feel at parting when time will so soon make it apparent to you: I could have wished to live, if only to be at your side when your time shall come, and pillowing your head upon my breast, wipe the death damps from your brow, and usher your departing spirit into your maker's presence, embalmed in woman's holiest prayer. But it is not so to be—and I submit. Yours is the privilege of watching through long and dreary nights for the spirit's final flight, and of transferring my sinking head from your breast to my Saviour's bosom! And you shall share my last thought; the last faint pressure of the hand, and the last feeble kiss shall be yours; and even when flesh and heart shall have failed me, my eye shall rest on yours until glazed by death; and our spirits shall hold one last communion, and gently fading from my view—the last of earth—you shall mingle with the first bright glimpses of the unfading glories of that better world, where partings are unknown. Well do I know the spot, dear George, where you will lay me, often have we stood by the place, and as we watched the mellow sun-set as it glanced in quivering flashes through the leaves, and burnished the grassy mounds around us with stripes of burnished gold, each perhaps has thought that some day one of us would come alone, and whichever it might be your name would be on the stone. But we loved the spot; and I know you'll love it none the less, when you see the same quiet sun light linger and play among the grass that grows over your Mary's grave. I know you'll go often alone there, when I am laid there, and my spirit will be with you then, and whisper among the waving branches "I am not lost but gone before.—Knickerbocker.

A WOMAN'S REVENGE.—An Illinois border ruffian editor, smitten by the charms of a matron of the village in which his sheet is published, addressed her a long and passionate letter filled with rhapsodies on her beauty and his love lorn helplessness. The lady, we suppose, with the advice and consent of her lord, sent the missive to the rival country paper, in which it appears—names dates and all. It is understood in Iroquois county that the editor has a country printing office for sale.—Chicago Tribune.

Sources of Political Opinion.

How is, and how should be, political opinion formed, in this country, where all are sovereigns, and where that opinion carried to the ballot-box, becomes, not only in theory, but in fact, the supreme power of the State, becomes very properly a matter of serious inquiry and paramount importance.

How it is, and has of late been, for the most part formed, it is not difficult to see and know. For it has been almost wholly directed and controlled by partizan leaders, and a partizan press.

And yet it will be readily seen, that these are not by any means disinterested, nor always the most safe guides to the popular mind. If any one will consent for a time to stand aloof from all party prejudice and party views and become for the nonce, only a looker on in Venice," he will see that they are oftentimes, far oftener than otherwise, controlling and guiding it, for the promotion of their own individual and selfish purposes, than for any higher or more public ends. This is human nature, and it is useless to forget or deny it. We would not find fault with it even, but only learn to act in view of it.

The admitted fact however, will and must forcibly suggest itself to us, that such may not always be the most proper source from whence to derive the political sentiments that are to advance or retain those selfish ends, nor are they always the persons from whom it will be the most safe to take them on trust. Next to partizan leaders, a partizan press is a powerful and prominent instrument used in making up sentiments and political opinions for men to live by, vote by, and swear by.

Now in like manner neither are they disinterested witnesses. They are for the most part the mere creatures of party. By it they live, and with it they rise or fall. No wonder then that they should so often be found more anxious for the success of party, than of right, and sometimes but too unscrupulous of means to the attainment of that success. Very many of those which are to a certain extant even allied to party, are found to stand above and independent of all this, and whenever, and wherever, they do so, they are sure to find for themselves in the public mind an additional influence and respect.

We would not by any means ignore, or reject, these two sources of political opinion, for every wise man will to a certain extent, regard them, but only have mem know and feel that they are not disinterested parties to the course and plans they advocate, and therefore duly canvass and determine, each one by himself, and for himself, the different propositions which they from time to time present. Many of them will be found good and desirable, if you think so, support the n, others will be found only specious, but base and injurious, and if you think so, then in the name of humanity, and your common country, reject and oppose them, no matter what party or party leader it may weaken or defeat.

Do not take them all alike upon trust, and blindly, and unthinkingly, so far as you are concerned, support them all alike, thus ignoring your own manhood, and making your political suffrage, which is the right of a sovereign, the mere football of party, and yourselves, at times, the unwitting instruments of wrong, instead of what you ought to be, only the almoners and ministers of good.

QUICK WORK.—The N. Y. Central Railroad Propeller, Euphrates, Captain George Long, left for Buffalo on Thursday at 3 P. M., with the following load, viz: 2,968 bbls flour, 200 bbls highwines, 804 bbls potatoes, and 330 bbls pork; including 21,039 lbs sundries; in all, over 475 tons. The time occupied was but 22 hours, in discharging a cargo of some 75 tons merchandise, and taking on the above load, which may be called quick work. Capt. George is 'one of 'em,' and hard to beat in any place.

The Rocket, in the same line, also left yesterday morning, having discharged some 25 tons merchandise, and taken on the following load in just 94 hours, viz: 2,249 bbls flour, 139 bbls potatoes, 841 bbls and tierces pork, 68,981 lbs sundries—in all, 475 tons. The New York Central Propellers are 'around' every time, and we predict for them a successful season's business.

CHEAPER.—Owing to the opposition that has sprung up between railroad and propeller lines, cattle are transported from Albany to New York at the rate of 25 cents a herd, and sheep and hogs in proportion. The winter fare was $1,25 a head.

EARLY BARLEY.—Last year, a quantity of new barley, from Southern Illinois, was sold on the 27th of June. This season promises to be one or two weeks earlier. The Chicago Press looks for the "first offerings of Egypt" as early as the middle of June.

Student's Column.

The Jewish Ruler.

Darkness with her attendant train of shadows had encircled the holy land, enveloping hill and valley alike in gloom.—The ever twinkling stars in all their beauty and brightness were hidden from view, behind dense clouds, that had been gathering in the heavens ever since the last gleam of twilight had departed in the west. The fair, pale moon ventured not to show her silvery light, lest she should behold the storm that was approaching, soon to burst forth in all its fury.

At length flash after flash of lightning illuminated the heavens, and revealed the cities and towns of ancient Palestine.—Jerusalem, with all her proud palaces and glittering spires, her stately towers and temples stood conspicuous. The loud and rolling thunder was followed by fast falling rain drops, as though the windows of heaven were opened to send a second deluge upon earth.

In a rich and sumptuous dwelling of that eastern clime, surrounded by every luxury that wealth and power could command, and reclining on a couch, was one of her proudest sons.

The chamber was supplied with everything that heart could wish, yet amid all this, he was restless and disturbed, and in vain sought repose to suppress the anxious thoughts that had arisen and overwhelmed his mind.

At last the storm ceased, the clouds dispersed, and one by one the beautiful stars were disclosed to view, like glittering gems, and the gentle moon scattered her silvery brightness over hill and vale, to enliven the scene. Flowers, such only as bloom in eastern lands, shed their perfume around, and all nature seemed to speak of peace. The darknesss and gloom which had obscured the earth, had passed away, and all was beauty and brightness.

Not so with the doubts and fears which troubled the mind of Nicodemus. There had long been a shadow on his brow, a grief in his bosom, unrevealed, and in the halls of state he seemed gloomy and abstracted.

He had heard of the meek and lowly Jesus, and of his many miracles. He had learned how he restored the sick, and raised the dead, and many doubts had arisen in his mind, as he thought of a future state which awaited him. He thought of the laugh and scorn of his people, if he should renounce the religion of his fathers, and said to himself, 'darkness is not a suitable time to unveil the soul," but as his doubts and anxieties increased, his thoughts became insupportable, and he resolved to seek the Nazarene, of whom he had heard so much, and who had already gained so many flowers by his holy teachings.

He sought the abode of Christ and uttering the simple word, "Rabbi," was admitted into his presence.

As he listened to his wise counsels, fear fled, doubts vanished, and o'er his heart there stole a sensation of peace and happiness never before experienced. He knelt and worshipped in sincerity, and when the first gleam of the rising sun was visible in the heavens, he left his divine Instructor, and sought his home hereafter to live for that fadeless crown which is reserved for those who serve God.

Centuries have passed away, since then Jerusalem has long ceased to exist, except in memory, but the precepts of that great Teacher have been handed down to us, and now, as then, bring peace and happiness to those who love and cherish them.

Descent on a Newspaper Office.

The Mayor's police, under Sergeant Berney, yesterday waited on the persons connected with The Golden Prize, a weekly literary journal, bearing the names of "Becket & Co., Publishers," and "Dean & Salter, Proprietors." The office was at No. 335 Broadway. Salter Dean and Becket were arrested and taken before the Mayor on the charge of carrying on an illegal business. The paper was published on the "Gift" principle. According to the printed prospectus, 'a gift 'worth from 50 cents to $500 in gold will 'be presented to each subscriber immediately on receipt of the subscription money.' This is presented as a memento of 'friendship, and not as an inducement to 'obtain subscribers.' This disinterestedness was not without its reward, for the subscriptions literally poured in. Of course no valuable presents were ever given, although watches lockets, bracelets, brooches, ear drops, breast pins, sleeve buttons, studs, &c., were promised in profusion. A gift was promised to each subscriber.

The operators, when brought before the Mayor, stated that they had no systematic way of distributing their prizes, but that they took for their guide in this respect the old saying, 'Kissing goes by favor,' and accordingly they gave their prizes by 'favor' to whomsoever they pleased.

The gifts were of the cheapest brass and galvanized jewelry, and were utterly worthless.

Dean, Salter, Becket & Co., promise to give up the gift part of their business stating that they have a bona fide circulation of 35,000, and can therefore afford to publish their paper as a legitimate enterprise.

Ex-President Commonfort has written a letter to the Herald, denying indignantly that he is concerned with Walker, or other parties in their filibustering schemes. He says he don't know Walker, or any other persons said to be engaged in these schemes, nor anything about their intentions, as none of them has been guilty of the offence of speaking to him of projects in which no man of his principles can take a part.

Eighteen British gunboats are now stationed along the coast of Cuba, to prevent the landing of slaves. Several American vessels had been boarded and searched by them.

Washington, April 19.

The meeting of the Conference Committee on Saturday resulted only in obtaining from the Senate side the promise of offering a plan of compromise. Mr. English on the House side said they would wait for propositions from the Senate, but unless something was offered on Monday, they would report their inability to agree. In this contingency it is the intention of the Senate to ask another Conference.

Gen. Cushing supercedes Judge Hughes as counsel for Judge Watrous in the impeachment case.

Senator Briggs is to be immediately made District Judge of North Carolina, and will be succeeded in the Senate by Mr. Clingman by the Governor's appointment.

Washington, April 19.

The House Committee on Foreign affairs this morning, directed Mr. Clingman to report a resolution abrogating the Clayton Bulwer treaty, condemning it in both its American as well as British construction, and authorizing the President to take immediate steps for its abrogation.

The report that the Senate Committee on Commerce had unanimously agreed to report against all appropriations for river and harbor improvements, is incorrect Mr. Hamlin did notagree to the proposition.

The joint committee of conference, on the Kansas bill, met this morning; all being present. Mr Green on behalf of the majority of the Senate Committee, submitted several proposed modifications of the Senate bill, none of which proved acceptable to the House Committee.

Propositions were then solicited from the House Committee.

Mr. English responded that at the next meeting he would submit a new bill the precise character of which has not transpired, but it is understood to be on a new line, proposing a substitute for the Lecompton ordinance, and that the question of admission under the Lecompton Constitution be referred to a fair vote of the people of Kansas at an early day.

If the majority vote for Kansas to come into the Union, it will come in at once, under the President's proclamation. If they vote against it, then the bill provides for the formation of a new Constitution whenever the population there equals the number required for a member of the U. S. House of Representatives.

The Committee adjourned till to-morrow.

There is some reason to believe that Mr. English's bill will be agreed to by both Houses.

HOUSE.—The House went into Committee of the Whole on the Washington police bill.

FRANCE.—The Emperor inaugurated the Boulevard Sebastopol on Monday.—He appeared on horseback in front of his escorts, and was loudly cheered. Everything passed off tranquilly.

ITALY.—The trial of Lucia, of the Leghorn insurgents, resulted in the condemnation of eight to death, and 11 to imprisonment. Five of the latter, were Sardinian subjects. The Independent, at Turin, insists upon the necessity of Sardinia adopting such measures as are necessary to maintain friendly relations with France.

MONTENEGRO.—Prince Danilo interdicts under severe penalties the slightest hostility to the Ottoman territory.

In the Liverpool market, American cotton was ⅛ per pound higher. Sales of two days, 1200 bales including 1500, for speculation, and export. Wheat was held for advance of 1 a 2d for 70 lbs., and flour 6d per barrel, which checked sales, and the market could only be called the term dearer. Indian corn easier, at 23 a 23s 6d for all descriptions.

There is nothing doing in the open market at London, and private contracts show inactivity and no change in rates.

London papers announce the failures of Messrs. Militant, Twing & Co., in the China trade, and Newcomen, Noble & Co., in the India trade. Liabilities large but satisfactory results expected.

LIVERPOOL, 6th.—Richardson, Spence & Co., say that business in breadstuffs since Thursday, has been confined to some large sales of French flour reported at about 3 s a 36s 6d for 380 pounds for choice quality. Any quantity of good western obtainable at 21 a 21s 6d per bbl—has also been taken to hold. At to-day's market the attendance was small and the business done was limited, without change in prices. Beef in the merest retail inquiry at late rates. Pork slow of sale at about 70s for prime. Bacon still in limited request and meets quite a retail sale at previous quotations. Lard is more inquired for and again 1s dearer; 52s has been paid for fine qualities—53s for choice brands.

New York, April 20.

The Hamburg steamer 'Saxonia,' from Hamburg via. Southampton, on the 6th, arrived at an early hour this morning. The pilot boat 'Jacob A. Washington April 20.

It is generally believed that the President will accept the two regiments of volunteers offered from Ky. and Ohio. The regiment from Ohio consists of five companies from Cincinnati, one from Columbus, one from Toledo, one from Springfield, one from Mt. Gilead, and one from Coshocton. Nearly all the officers and many of men served in the Mexican war. The entire regiment can be ready for the field at short notice.

☞ A complete assortment of recently purchased Chemicals and Medicines, selected with particular reference to purity, are being received at DrMOTT'S Drug Store, one door above the Post office.

He expects to supply all things in this department in a way to meet the claims of Physicians, and the expectations of their prescriptions, so far as it regards the GENUINENESS of the articles.

There will be in constant attendence, at the store, night and day, one who can be relied upon for correctness in his services.

SPRING MEDICINE.

GET THE PUREST,
GET THE CHEAPEST,
GET THE MOST EFFICACIOUS

In short, get THE BEST, which are Dr. Roback's SCANDINAVIAN BLOOD PURIFIER AND BLOOD PILLS. These wonderful Medicines are entirely vegetable, leave no bad effects, and can not by any possibility injure the most delicate constitution. Never was a good Spring Medicine so necessary as now, for in addition to the skin diseases and deranged Stomach and Liver, which every winter produces, it is most evident to all who are accustomed to note the powerful influence for good or ill that the mind has upon the body that the anxiety of mind caused by the late wide-spread money troubles, has injured the general health of almost every one. Then, cleanse, strengthen and purify your system with the Scandinavian Remedies, and you will probably save yourself from serious illness the coming Summer.

MOFFAT'S LIFE PILLS AND PHOENIX BITTERS.

The very painful symptoms which precede the attacks of fever and ague can be suppressed and all danger arrested, by the use of these valuable medicines. The pills and bitters are also a cure for rheumatism, and every variety of bowel complaint.

Sold by W. B. Moffat, 335 Broadway, N. Y. Taylor & Curtis Agents, Tecumseh.

SORE AND INFLAMED EYES.—These disagreeable complaints are becoming remarkably prevalent of late, and giving any thing but an interesting look to the possessor of the diseased organ. "red and fiery eye" is not pretty to look at, and certainly cannot be agreeable to have "for keeps," as the boys say. We can tell those afflicted in this manner how to cure the evil, and won't charge them any thing for the information. Let them get some of BRAGG'S ARCTIC LINIMENT and touch the inflamed part with it a few times, and the work is done. The Arctic Liniment may be obtained at any of the Drug stores in this place.

DR. J. C. AYER, the world renowned Chemist of New England, is now stopping at the Burnet house in this city. He has been making a tour of the Western States, with his scientific associates, to investigate their remedial productions, or such as he can make remedial. We notice he has been received with marked distinction by our leading citizens of the West and are rejoiced to find they have shown a proper estimate of the man who has perhaps done more for the relief of human ills than any other American.—Cincinnati Journal.

The most skeptical people can be convinced by trial that all the family medicines are not a humbug, and that among the thousand of huttery life there are a few of great merit, and undoubted worth. Of these, Dr. Sanford's Invigorator, or Liver Remedy stands first and foremost among the remedies of the day that can be relied on as a medicine that is all that is recommended by its proprietors.

It advertises itself on every trial, for there are none who use it but tell their friends to do so, and so it goes from mouth to mouth till all the people of the Union have learned the good of this truly valuable medicine. It is recommended with testimonials to prove its virtue for the cure of liver complaints of every kind, from the worst Dyspepsia to a common headache, and is particularly adapted to Jaundice, Deranged Stomach, Bowel Complaints and diseases of children.

One or two doses are said to cure a cold with scarce a failure. It is worth a trial for this alone. It is particularly adapted to use of ladies, patticularly those of sedentary habits. Some ladies of the highest standing in society have given their certificates of its efficacy, and we say to all who are ailing, try one bottle, and you will never be without it.

DO YOU EVER WANT ANY THING FROM NEW YORK?

IF SO, SEND YOUR ORDER TO

F. S. CABOT & CO.,

BUYERS, 85 BARCLAY STREET.

Almost every one, certainly every merchant, has sometimes very strongly wished that he had a reliable correspondent and friend living in that great metropolis to whom he could send for the transaction of some business or the purchase of some article, that he could not make it convenient to go to himself, with full confidence that they would do, or to buy himself, with full confidence that the business would be well done, and at a reasonable expense to him. Having become satisfied by a considerably extended observation and experience that this is an almost universal want, we have established a home to supply it. We have found that thousands of persons from Maine to Georgia are constantly making to us to execute orders, involving purchases ranging in amount from 25 cents to as many hundred dollars, and we believe in every case, those employing us have been satisfied both with the quality of the articles ordered and the equity of our charges. We assure that our charges, shall in all cases be fair, and reasonable, being predicated on the minimum Labor cost. It is certain, that being constantly in the market, buying largely for cash, we can BUY BETTER than a single purchaser can. In fact, we are to our friends much more in prices than the commission we charge. No man, who only occasionally comes here can be familiar with a market so extensive as this. We being here all the time, are thoroughly acquainted with it, and know where to go to find everything in first hands and at the lowest rates. We have found that many of our distant friends, wish to send us country produce to sell, sometimes the proceeds to be invested in goods sometimes in money. Accordingly we have made the very best arrangements to enable us to do justice to those who may consign to us. Our charges for selling are a usually five per cent., although in special cases of very large or very small transactions, equity might require it to be varied from that. We have given a giving more at length the scope and plan of our business with statement of our charges for buying many of the leading articles, which will be sent on application.

Letters of inquiry only should contain stamps to prepay the replies.

EMIGRANTS FOR KANSAS.—The steamer Skylark, from Pittsburg, had on board three hundred cabin and one hundred and twenty-five deck passengers, on their way to Kansas and Nebraska. There were also six hundred and fifty tons of freight, including forty-seven horses.

☞ Governor Chase of Ohio issued a proclamation appoining a thanksgiving day. To make sure of being right on the subject in hand, the governor composed his proclamation almost exclusively of passages from the Bible, which he did not designate as quotations, presuming that every one would recognize them and admit the fitness of the words as well as his taste of their selection. A learned editor of a democratic paper (the governor is on the other side) pounced upon the proclamation—declared that he had read it before—could'nt exactly say where—but he would take his oath that it was a downright plagiarism from beginnig to end! That would have been joke enough for a while and perhaps longer; but the next day the republican paper came out valiantly in defense of the governor, pronounced the charge false and libellous, and challenged any man living to produce one single line of the proclamation that had ever been in print before!

☞ A correspondent of the Newark, O. Advertiser, thus describes Miss Lane, the lady of the White House:

"Though not classically beautiful, she certainly has some irresistible charms. She is rather above the medium height, was simply attired in black, with less regard to the display of the material than of her finely developed figure and cheerful face, which constantly beams with good nature and intelligence. She is evidently aware of her charms, and displays more of them than usual, though to do this she rather outstrips the rest of her sex—her dress being down some two or three inches below the turn of her finely rounded shoulders, which are of ivory whiteness, and challenges the sculptor's skill as well as the amateur's enthusiasm.

The Ohio Statesman is shocked, and remarketh:

We have never seen Miss Lane, but unless there is general delusion prevalent on the subject she is one of the most accomplished and estimable of ladies. We think that he who writes about the lady of the house in which he is entertained being "aware of her charms," and displaying "more of them than usual, though to do this she rather 'outstrips' the rest of her sex" and then goes on to estimate how many inches her dresses are cut below the level of her shoulders, sho'd be shown to the door, if ever he presents himself in the parlor again.

New York Correspondence.

NEW YORK, April 15, 1858.

I ought not, perhaps for charity's sake, to rend in twain the veil of the Temple of the World's Industry, wherein the great Charity Ball was given last week. That occasion was both a failure and a success. As a ball it was the greatest since "the great globe itself" was tossed into space and went spinning in the planetary dance round the sun; but, unlike its orbicular antetype, it did not whirl in the giddy mazes of the dance with the harmony and regularity of planetary law, and soon fell into chaos.

At midnight, the time when the greatest number was present and the best order prevailed, the scene was one of unequalled splendor. More than 15,000 people must have been on the floor and in the galleries at that hour. In the centre of the palace ranged on a circular scaffolding were the band and orchestra, who alternated in discoursing the music of the spheres. From the axis of this rythmic rotundity the ball departed from the curvilinear and took on a rectangular form. Four double lines of dancers, each line more than a hundred feet long and a thousand feet strong, extended from the orchestra as a center to each point of the compass, forming a perfect cross, glittering with the twinkle of 15 or 20,000 "light fantastic toes." The other spaces of the floor were crowded with promenaders and lookers on. From the front angle of one of the galleries, nearly over the orchestra, I obtained a coup d'œil of the whole massive, moving panorama at once, and as the evolutions of the dancers produced at every interval a measured and methodic change, I seemed for the moment to be gazing in upon a vast and vivid colored kaleidescope. Then scattered here and there stood various groups of statuary in marble. The Amazon, on horseback in deadly conflict with a tiger, and especially the majestic proportions of the equestrian statute of Washington towered up among the crowd like giants among pigmies. Various flags, banners and devices floated from the main pillars of the building, and over all, the glare and glitter of 5000 gas jets lighted up a scene of the rarest splendor and magnificence But it was too brilliant to keep. The demon of discord was thrown among this happy throng in this wise. Thede was a temple within a temple, consecrated to His Jolliness and many went therein to worship, some to "smile" and others to harden their hearts; but all came out infuriated and unreasoning devotees, singing praise to their god, and announcing in poetic numbers that they "would'nt go home till morning." Thereupon several thousand resolved to go home at once, and then there was a rush for the cloak and dressing rooms, bully protectors of fainting ladies broke over all rules and railing in quest of feminine overgear, waiting-girls became confused and swooned, shelves came down with a crash, and the ticketed bundles tumbled into an indiscriminate mass of millinery and dry goods, from which theirer now broke through and stole the choicest, and the balance by cart loads was taken possession of by the police, while the real owners had to go home bonnet and shawless, or enveloped in the overcoats of their companions. The mass of clothing occupied the sleepless attention of the Executive Committee for the balance of the week to classify, select and return to the rightful owners. Such was the breaking up of this, in several senses, monster Ball. The projection was well managed up to the sale of the last ticket, and then the reins of rule and management were dropped, and the concern was left as if it was a huge brass clock to whizz and whirl and run itself down as fast as it liked. The result, however to the charitable fund was a decided success, a clear profit of nearly $10,000 which covers a multitude of sins, and affords consolatory reflections to the myriads of uncovered backs

Our Catholic friends tried the same method of replenishing the treasury of their Orphan Asylum on Monday even of this week, at the same Crystal Palace, and having the frightful example of their Protestant brethren before their eyes, they of course danced out the night with less confusion and—less cash

The sympathisers with Orsini the last brave victim of the French guillotine, whose bombs only slightly killed Louis Napoleon, but made thorough work of the English ministry, are soon to have a public demonstration here, torch-light procession and all that, in commemoration and honor of the patriotic and self-sacrificing regicide.

One of our Police Justices, Jas. H Welsh, is down on the masked balls which manager Ullman has so extensively advertised at the Academy of Music. He has written the manager a vigorous letter apprising him of their illegal character, and their liability to be suppressed by the authorities. He says—"The right of a person's face is, to a certain extent, a guaranty of his conduct and a protection against his designs, and it is seriously felt that the present is not a time to lend dis guises to the vicious and to afford new facilities for the perpetration of crime" That's good strong English, Squire Welsh, which will no doubt "scotch the snake" in the grass, or rather in a mask. Mr. Ullman will now be compelled to leave the masks out of his masquerades, and do his dancing with visors up.

Business with the country at large, however, is decidedly on the increase. The city is crowded with country buyers, and in many branches of the wholesale trade, the receipts will equal those of the same time last year. Profits, however, are generally reduced.—Dry goods of American manufacture, especially cotton, promise to pay well by mid summer, and we may therefore look for a renewal of activity in the manufacturing districts in a few months more. The unemployed here, are in nearly as bad a condition as they have been at any time during the winter; as the unsettled state of affairs leads people to operate with the greatest caution. The "Hunter Woodis" charity, seems likely to turn out a great charity to the managers: how much good the poor may get of it remains to be seen.

FROM THE SOUTH.—A subscriber in Tennessee, in sending his yearly subscription, writes as follows in regard to crops in that State: "The wheat crop in Tennessee never looked better than it does at the present time. There will be wheat cut in Tennessee the present season in May, unless we have more frost. The Peach crop will be a very large one; the trees are loaded with young Peaches about the size of large peas."

Bragg's Arctic Liniment.

This uncomparable Liniment, upon which the great mass of afflicted of all lands now rely for relief from the pangs of Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Gout, Erysipelas Cancers, Scrofula, Sprains, Bruises, Burns, Scalds and all cutaneous diseases, is rapidly superceding all similar preparations. The proprietors give for the encouragement of sufferers, the following memorandum of a few of the wonderful cures effected by it during the past few months. Certificates from the parties named are in the possession of the proprietors; their length precludes the publication of all but a few.

One Bottle Triumphant.

Mrs. Moffitt, No 343 Morgan Street, St. Louis, having suffered for three years with Rheumatism, and tried many preparations without effect, was cured by one fifty cent bottle of Arctic Liniment.

Out of Purgatory

Henry Davis, Mound street, St. Louis, who says he was "suffering the pangs of purgatory" with neuralgia for months, was cured by three or four applications of the Arctic Liniment.

Pity the Little Children.

A little daughter of Mrs. Lee, residing on Lake St Chicago, was scalled all over by the upsetting of a kittle of boiling water. The Arctic Liniment was applied according to the directions, and the fire was instantly extracted, and in a few days the little sufferer was well.

Restored to Beauty.

Mrs. George K. Tyler, Canal street, N Orleans had long suffered from a painful and disfiguring eruption on the face, and by the use of one bottle of the Liniment was cured, and restored to her original beauty

A Horrible Tumor.

Eugene Mallory, Natchez was three years the victim of a horrible tumor on the neck which resisted all remedies until he tried the Arctic Liniment. Three bottles cured him in a few weeks.

Wonderful Cure!

Mrs Bedford, Mobile, was confined to her couch for three years and with numb palsy and after being in despair from the failure of all other remidies, was cured by the Arctic Liniment, in a little over a month.

An Explosion.

Memphis, Tenn., Nov. 28th, 1857.

I hereby certify, that having been badly bruised and scaled by the explosion of a Steam Boiler, a friend induced me to try Bragg's Arctic Liniment. The smart was instantly extracted from the scalds, and in a very short time all the pain was gone from the bruises—in two weeks I was well, and able to resume my business.

The Blind See!

Weber City, Iowa, Nov. 9th, 1857.

Dr. A. G. BRAGG.—Dear Sir: For more than three years I had been afflicted with inflamed eyes, in an aggravated degree and tried various Physicians, and several nostrums, to no effect I was induced by Dr. Baum to try the Arctic Liniment and in two months was nearly well. My little daughter was afflicted in the same manner for the same time, and during a portion of the time was entirely blind in one eye. I applies your valuable Liniment, and her eyes are perfectly sound. Thus have I with one two-bitt bottle cured my daughter's eyes and my own, besides curing the rheumatism in my back. I would not be without your invaluable remedy in my house Yours Truly

Wm. RUSSELL.

Webster City, Iowa, Nov. 9th, 1857.

I hereby certify, that I am well acquainted with Wm Russell, and with the astonishing cures he mentions, and know his statement to be strickly true.

Good for Animals.

This Invaluable Liniment is also equally efficatious in curing the diseases of animals, as witness the following certificate, Messrs J. & A. Arnos, and Lynch, Arnot & Co., keep the two largest livery stables in the west and are generally known throughout the U. S.

St. Louis, Dec 23rd, 1857.

We, the undersigned, having used Dr. Bragg's Arctic Liniment for a number of months, cheerfully testify to its superior efficacy in curing the diseases of horses; so well are we satisfied of the Arctic being the best Liniment made, that we would use no other. We keep and have kept for a number of years, extensive livery stables in this city, and consequently our experience about horses and their diseases is great, and we unhesitatingly say, that the Arctic Liniment is the only one we have ever found ALWAYS EFFECTIVE. We cordially recommend it to all livery stable keepers and others having the care of horses.

LYNCH, ARNOT & CO
Chestnut Street.

Caution.

Many Druggists, having old liniments on hand will try to sell them to you as the best, but do you positively refuse to purchase them. Ask for "BRAGG'S ARCTIC LINIMENT," and take no other.

Liberal Proposition.

The proprietors agree to furnish each purchaser of a dollar bottle, with a free subscription to the U. S. Journal, for one year. This is one of the best N. Y. illustrated papers. A certificate entitling the holder to the benefit of this proposition, is enclosed in the wrapper around every dollar bottle. The Arctic Liniment is put up in 25 cent 50 cent and $1 bottles. The 50 cent and $1 bottles contain 50 and 100 per cent more Liniment in proportion to their cost and are the cheapest. For sale by

DR ROBACK'S

BLOOD PURIFIER AND BLOOD PILLS.

DISEASE VANQUISHED.

—BY—

Dr. Roback's Scandinavian Remedies.

AFTER YEARS OF STUDY AND EXPERIMENT Dr. Roback, the eminent Swedish Physician, succeeded in producing a medicine from twenty-three different species of mountain herbs of his native land which acts directly upon the causes of disease in the blood, and by restoring the corrupted fountains of life to a condition of health and purity, expels disease from the system, wherever it may be located or whatever may be its character. Indigestion, nervous complaints, epileptic fits, coughs, consumption in its early stages, sore throat, bronchitis, fever and ague asthma, low spirits, sexual incapacity, feminine weakness, pricking of the skin, symptomatic of paralysis, rheumatism, neuralgia, tumor cancer, disbetis, lassitude and debility, diarrhea and all other disorders of the organs of respiration, the liver, the kidneys, the stomach, the nerves, or the muscular fiber are unerringly cured by this preparation. It is to the materies morbi or seeds of disease what an alkali is to an acid; it neutralizes them with absolute certainty while at the same time it regulates the secretions, removes obstructions from the bowels, creates appetite, renews bodily vigor, and regenerates every animal function. Such is the nature, such are the effects of Dr. Roback's famous Scandinavian Blood Purifier which if taken in conjunction with his Scandinavian Blood Pills, will not only obliterate the most painful disease, but prevent their recurrence, and lengthen life beyond the ordinary span.

In the SCANDINAVIAN VEGETABLE BLOOD PILLS, Dr. Roback presents the result of twenty years of experience, hard study, and experiment as to what a perfect pill should be. No one can doubt their superiority after one single trial. Price of the Scandinavian Blood Purifier, $1 per bottle, or $5 per half dozen; Scandinavian Blood Pills, 25 cents per box, or five for $1.

PARK, MIAMI CO. Ind., Aug 4 1857.

DR. C. W. ROBACK:—I have received so much benefit from your scandinavian Blood Purifier and Blood Pills that I have thought it my duty and it is no less my inclination to give you a plain statement of my case. I was for years afflicted with that bane of all comfort and efficiency in business dyspepsia. To recapitulate all the so-called remedies which I have used to rid myself of this disease, would indeed make a melancholy catalogue. I also consulted with the best physicians I could hear of. I was induced to try your remedies through the persuasion of a friend, and after using them a few days was greatly benefitted, and in a short time, less than a month, I was entirely and permanently cured. I was also afflicted with the most violent nervous headache, which I suppose was produced by my disordered stomach, for when my dispepsia left me, my headache left with it. I now feel better in every respect than I have for ten years

Very truly yours, JOHN S. DEMUTH.

From the Rev. Mr. McMULLEN, Pastor of Roberts Chapel:

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 5, 1857.

DR. C. W. ROBACK—Dear Sir: I have used your Blood Purifier for a nervous affection, from which I have suffered much at times. While it is pleasant to the taste, it certainly has a happy effect upon the nerves. Please accept my thanks for your kind regards and acts, and believe me,

Yours, J. W. T. McMULLEN.

FROM A WELL-KNOWN STEAMBOAT CLERK.

Louisville, June 4, 1857

DEAR DOCTOR. Send me half a dozen boxes of your Pills, care of H. G. Card & Co. so I can get them next trip. Six weeks ago nothing could have convinced me that a twenty-five cent box of Pills could have relieved my obstinate chronic constipation, with its attending evils. I told you so when I bought them, but I am bound to own that your Pills 'fill the contract.' Why I have taken as many as six (6) of ——'s and other makers' sometimes without effect and sometimes with too much effect, but I have no trouble with yours—they are just what I want.

CINCINNATI, Friday, Sept. 4, 1857.

DR. ROBACK—Dear Sir: Having been afflicted with neuralgia or rheumatism for the past year and a half, and having seen your medicine called the Scandinavian Blood Purifier, highly recommended by gentlemen with whom I am acquainted, I was induced to try it, but not before I had used various other medicines—After using two bottles I felt its effect very sensibly, and upon using two more, I found myself perfectly cured. You will allow me, therefore, to congratulate you upon making a discovery in medicine which is proving itself to be a worker of such wonders in the diseases of the human family

GEORGE S BENNETT.

Local Editor Cincinnati Daily Enquirer.

INDIANAPOLIS, Wednesday, Sept. 2, 1857

DR. C. W. ROBACK, Dear Sir: Having been troubled for several years with extreme debility and weakness, so much so that I was unable to attend to my ordinary business at times, and having heard of the wonderful cures that your Scandinavian Blood Purifier and Pills were effecting, I was induced by a friend to try them

I have been using the Purifier for the last twelve months, and find the medicine fully equal to its recommendations. So valuable is it to me that I cannot now dispense with the use of it at my advanced age of life—seventy-seven years.

I cheerfully give this information for the benefit of those similarly affected. MORRIS MORRIS.

THE BEST FAMILY MEDICINE NOW before the public, for the cure of Scrofula, Ulcers, Scurvy, or Eruptions of the Skin Fever and Ague, Dyspepsia, Dropsy, and in fact most all diseases soon yield to their curative proprities.

It has been computed that during the last twenty five years upwards of FOUR MILLIONS of persons have been benefited by the use of these medicines; a fact which speaks volumes in favor of their curative properties, a single trial will place them beyond the reach of competition in the estimate of every patient. By their use the BLOOD IS RESTORED TO A HEALTHY STATE and freed from all impurities. The system is not reduced during their operation, but invigorated, and they require no restraint from business or pleasure.

The afflicted have in these medicines a remedy that will do for them all that medicine can possibly effect.

AGRICULTURAL.

From the Rural American.

Sowing Clover Seed.

MR. EDITOR:—There is a time for every thing; and therefore there is a proper time for sowing clover seed.—Now some farmers suppose the best mode of sowing it, is immediately after harrowing in the oats or rye; the seed is to be sown after this process and harrowed over. This makes extra labor without compensating results. Other farmers finish the harrowing in of the oats or rye; then sow the clover seed, and pass the rollers over the surface of the field. This answers an excellent purpose, when the season is wet, or rains are frequent, and of course the surface of the ground is moist; the seed germinates and a crop of clover may be expected.

But I am persuaded that the best time to sow clover, is after the fall of much rain. I had a large field which I wished to seed with clover. Part of this field had in the previous autumn been sown with rye. Much rain fell in the spring, so that the surface of the ground was beaten very hard. This part of the field I mowed with clover seed about the time I sowed the other part. This latter part had just been sown with oats. Now mark the result. Judge of my surprise on harrowing my crops, to find the clover on the part where the rye was, decidedly better than on the part where the oats were; and yet the soil in the former case was no better than in the latter.

Some farmers pretend to say that the proper time to sow, is in the "old of the moon," but I have never found such a time of any benefit to the springing and growth of grass or grain.

I may here be permitted to add that I have had an instrument or machine constructed for harvesting clover, according to the one described in the Northern Farmer for July last. After repeated trials of it, I have found the following conditions essential to its working well: 1st. Clover ripe enough to thresh; 2d. Dry enough; 3d. Free from thistles, mullens and other large weeds; 4th. Standing upright or nearly so. Under these circumstances a man will collect the heads as fast as man can thresh the mown clover. G. T. B.

GREAT SHOW OF POULTRY.- A large show of poultry was made at the Crystal Palace during the second week of January. Some idea of its extent may be formed when we state that nearly two thousand pens of choice birds were exhibited, and among these about four hundred cages of fancy pigeons. The Dorking and Game fowls were the favorites, yet Cochin and Spanish fowls were well represented and much admired.

SULPHER AND THE POTATO DISEASE. Within the influence of sulphur from the smelting furnaces, which has proved so injurious to vegetation generally, it has been found that the potatoes are uniformly healthy. The turnips are suffering from a disease very similar to the potato rot.

VERMONT SHEEP.—It is stated that Geo Campbell, of West Westminster, Vt., recently sold ten Spanish Merino bucks to go to Buenos Ayres, South America. Three years ago he sold twenty bucks and ten ewes to the same individual, and arrangements are now made for future exportations.

The farmer who gives his cattle only food enough to keep them from starvation, is like the steamboat captain who puts in only coal enough to stem the tide, without making any progress and the engineer who applies only sufficient fuel to keep the train from running backward on the rising grade.

TO MAKE GOOD SOAP.—For 25 lbs. of soap, 6 oz. sal soda, 2 oz. rosin, and ½ oz. salt. Put these ingredients into 5 quarts of rain water, and place the mixture over the fire until dissolved. Then boil 50 minutes, and add 6 qts. more rain water, and ½ oz. spirits turpentine. This is excellent soap, as I have tried it.

MELONS AND CUCUMBERS.—Don't be deceived by a few pleasant, warm days, and plant your melons and cucumber seeds before the proper time. In this latitude from the 10th to the 15th of May is quite early enough.

REMEDY FOR CHOKED CATTLE.—[illegible]her a long auarriman, of Orland, prorhapsodies on [illegible]owing remedy for chokedlorn helplessne[illegible]e has practiced for 20 with the advic[illegible]erfect success: Take a scut the missive[illegible]rope, pass it forward of per, in which it[illegible] of the animal, then all. PROSPECTUS
WEEKLY
TOLEDO BLADE.

During the past year this old and popular Newspaper has been

GREATLY IMPROVED

In typographical appearance, and in the character and variety of its contents; and it now, in the extent and variety of its matter is

UNSURPASSED

By any Paper within the range of its Wide Circulation.!

The publishers refer with pride to the improvements of the past as the guarantee that its future will be one of continued progress.

The aim of the publishers of

The Weekly Blade

Will ever be to make it a

High Toned, Useful and Instructive JOURNAL.

And they will, therefore, exclude from its columns whatever has a tendency to debauch the morals or enervate taste. At the same time great care will be taken to please its readers by Providing for their entertainment whatever seems appropriate from the abundant stores of modern literature.

Among the topics thus embraced may be mentioned—

A WIDE RANGE OF NEWS ITEMS
POLITICAL NEWS AND ARTICLES,
SCIENTIFIC MATTERS,
RECENT INVENTIONS,
SKETCHES, POETRY, TALES, &c.

Patent Medicines.

ONE DOLLAR
WILL BUY

ONE OF THE BEST PURGATIVE AND LIVER MEDICINES now before the public, namely, DR. SANFORD'S INVIGORATOR, or LIVER REMEDY, that acts as a Cathartic, easier, milder and more effectual than any other medicine known. It is not only a Cathartic, but a Liver remedy, exciting first on the Liver to eject its morbid matter, then on the stomach and bowels to carry off that matter, thus accomplishing two purposes effectually with any of the painful feeling experienced in the operations of most cathartics. It strengthens the system at the same time that it purges it, and when taken daily in moderate doses will strengthen and build it up with unusual rapidity.

DR SANFORD'S INVIGORATOR is compounded entirely from new articles of medicine, namely Gums.

Some idea of the strength of these gums may be formed when it is known that one bottle of the Invigorator contains as much strength as one hundred doses of Calomel, without any of its deleterious effects.

Though possessing rare medical powers, these Gums have been but little known to Physicians, and never used in their prescriptions until used in the form of the Invigorator, which [illegible] with such unprecedented success as to induce the proprietor to offer it as a family medicine tried and known in its effects. It has rarely ever failed to cure Liver Complaints in their worst forms.

INDIGESTION being caused by a deranged Liver is cured when the Liver is excited to action.

JAUNDICE is caused by an improper action of the Liver, and as a proof that the Invigorator relieves this disease, let any one troubled with Jaundice take the Invigorator regularly one week, and their skin will begin to assume its original color.

COSTIVENESS can be permanently cured by the Invigorator. Take it in small doses on retiring, and it assists nature in her operations. By gradually diminishing the dose, the bowels are left in a healthy and active state, and work as regularly as clock work.

SICK HEADACHE is very soon relieved by taking a double dose of the Invigorator, which corrects all acidity and sourness of the stomach.

For an overloaded stomach it has no equal, as it relieves all oppressive or uneasy feeling after eating heartily. For a FAMILY MEDICINE generally, all who use it speak in the highest terms.

DR SANFORD'S INVIGORATOR came to us recommended as a cure for Liver Complaints, and all diseases arising from a Diseased Liver. The testimonials of many Physicians in its favor, induced us to try it, and now conviction is certain that it is one of the greatest blessings ever given to Dyspeptics, for it made a complete cure before the first bottle was taken, and now we can eat anything edible without trouble, while before nothing but the lightest food would digest, and often that gave pain. Now what we want to say to all our readers is, if LIVER COMPLAINTS or DYSPEPSIA trouble you, do not fail to try this the greatest remedy in the world.—State Fact.

We take infinite pleasure in recommending this medicine as a preventative for FEVER and AGUE, CHILL FEVER, and all FEVERS of a BILIOUS TYPE. It operates with certainty, and thousands are willing to testify to its wonderful virtues.

There has never been tried in our family a remedy which has met with such unbounded success in the cure of diseases incident to children as DR SANFORD'S INVIGORATOR, nor is it alone for diseases of children that we use it, for it acts as a Cathartic so mildly and gently, and seems to renovate the system so thoroughly that we think we are doing a service to all in advising them when they need medicine, to try this remedy. There are cases that have come under our notice where great benefit has been received in diseases of the Liver, Stomach and Bowels, where all other remedies failed to give relief. It had become so useful in our family that we will not be without it.—Jacksonville. Ala. Republican.

Cabinet & Chair Shop,
[One door south of Tecumseh Academy]

The undersigned believes that he need only intimate to this community that he was a partner in the late famous establishment at the old New York store, to ensure him a liberal publi tronage; all are aware what a flourishing business was done at that House, while he was a partner in the firm, that is, while he turned the grind stone, and how that establishment almost disappeared when the motive power was withdrawn. It is not doubted therefore, but that the public will be gratified to know, that the self same power has put in motion a Machine that is now turning out Tables, Bureaus, Bedsteads, Chairs, and all kind of Furniture, with such velocity that will enable him to sell them at prices so low, that will astonish the natives.

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 1854.

DR. AYER: Your Pills are the perfection if such they have done my wife more good than I can tell. She had been sick and pining away for months. Was off to be doctored at great expense, but got no better, then commenced taking your Pills, which soon cured by expelling large quantities of worms (dead) from her body. They afterwards cured her and our two children of bloody dysentery. One of our neighbors had it and others around us paid from five to twenty dollars doctor bills, and lost much time, without being cured at even then. Such a medicine as yours, which is so good and honest, will be prized here.

For Costiveness or Constipation, as a Dinner Pill, they are agreeable and effectual.

Fits, Suppression, Paralysis, Inflammation, and even Deafness, and Partial Blindness, have been cured by the alterative action of these Pills.

Most of the pills in market contain Mercury, which though a valuable remedy in skilful hands, is dangerous in a public pill, from the dreadful consequences that frequently follow its incautious use. These contain no mercury or mineral substance whatever.

AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL
FOR THE RAPID CURE OF
COUGHS, COLDS, HOARSENESS, INFLUENZA, BRONCHITIS, WHOOPING COUGH, CROUP, ASTHMA, INCIPIENT CONSUMPTION,
and for the relief of consumptive patients in advanced stages of the disease.

We need not speak to the public of its virtues. Throughout every town, and almost every household in the American States, its wonderful cures of pulmonary complaints have made it already known. Nay, few are the families in any civilized country on this continent that have not some personal experience of its effects; and few communities any where which have not among them some living trophy of its victory over the most dangerous diseases of the throat and lungs. This is the most powerful antidote yet known to our fatal climate for those double and dangerous diseases of the pulmonary organs. It is also the pleasantest and safest remedy that can be employed for infants and young persons. Parents should not permit the insidious croup to fasten its fangs upon them unprepared. We have abundant proof to believe the CHERRY PECTORAL saves more lives by preventing consumptions than those it cures. Keep it by you, and cure your colds while they are curable, and neglect them until no human skill can master the lung disease that, fastened on the vitals, eats your life away. All know the dreadful fatality of lung disorders, and how few they know too the virtues of this remedy, we need say no more than to assure them it is still made the best it can be. We spare no cost, no care, no toil to produce the most perfect possible, and thus afford those who rely on it the best agent which our skill can furnish for the cure of disease.

The Musician's Marriage.

After having passed the summer in visiting the principal towns of Germany, the celebrated pianist Liszt arrived at Prague in October, 1846.

The day after he came, his apartment was entered by a stranger—an old man, whose appearance indicated misery and suffering. The great musician received him with a cordiality which he would not, perhaps, have shown to a nobleman. Encouraged by his kindness, his visitor said, "I come to you sir, as a brother. Excuse me if I take this title, notwithstanding the distance that divides us, but formerly I could boast some skill in playing on the piano, and by giving instruction I gained a comfortable livelihood. Now I am old, feeble, burdened with a large family, and destitute of pupils. I live at Nuremberg, but I came to Prague to seek to recover the remnant of a small property which belonged to my ancestors. Although nominally successful, the expense of a long litigation has more than swallowed up the trifling sum I recovered.—To-morrow I set out for home—penniless."

"And you have come to me? You have done well, and I thank you for this proof of your esteem. To assist a brother professor is to me more than a duty—it is a pleasure. Artists should have their purse in common; and if fortune neglects some in order to treat others better than they deserve, it only makes it more necessary to preserve the equilibrium by fraternal kindness. That is my system; so don't speak of gratitude, for I feel that I only discharge a debt."

As he uttered these generous words, Liszt opened a drawer in his writing desk, and started when he saw that his usual depository for his money contained but three ducats. He summoned his servant.

"Where is the money?" he asked.

"There, sir," replied the man, pointing to the open drawer.

"There! Why, there is scarcely anything!"

"I know it, sir. If you please to remember, I told you yesterday that the cash was nearly exhausted."

"You see, my dear brother," said Liszt smiling, "that for the moment, I am no richer than you. But that does not trouble me. I have credit, and I can make money start from the keys of my piano. However, as you are in haste to leave Prague, and return home, you shall not be delayed by my present want of funds."

So saying, he opened another drawer, and taking out a splendid medallion, he gave it to the old man.

"There," said he, "that will do. It was a present made me by the Emperor of Austria, his own portrait, set in diamonds. The painting is nothing remarkable, but the stones are fine. Take them and dispose of them, and whatever they bring shall be yours."

The old musician tried in vain to decline so rich a gift. Liszt would not hear of a refusal, and the poor man at length withdrew, invoking the choicest blessings of heaven on his generous benefactor.—He then repaired to the shop of the principal jeweler in the city, in order to sell the diamonds. Seeing a miserably dressed man anxious to dispose of magnificient jewels, with whose value he seemed unacquainted, the master of the shop very naturally suspected his honesty; and while appearing to examine the diamonds with close attention, he whispered a few words into the ear of one of his assistants. The latter went out, and speedily returned, accompanied by several soldiers of the police, who arrested the unhappy artist, in spite of his protestations of innocence

"You must first come to prison," they said; afterwards you can make an explanation to the magistrate."

The prisoner wrote a few lines to his benefactor, imploring his assistance.—Liszt hastened to the jeweler.

"Sir," said he, "you have caused the arrest of an innocent man. Come with me immediately, and let us have him released He is the lawful owner of the jewels in question, for I gave them to him."

"But sir;" asked the merchant, "who are you?"

"My name is Liszt."

"I know no rich man of that name."

'That may be; yet I am tolerably well known.'

'Are you aware, sir, that these diamonds are worth six thousand florins—that is to say, about five thousand guineas or twelve thousand francs?'

'So much the better for him on whom I have bestowed them.'

'But in order to make such a present, you must be very wealthy.'

'My actual fortune consists of three ducats.'

'Then you are a magician?'

'By no means; and yet by just moving my fingers, I can obtain as much money as I wish.'

'You must be a magician!'

'If you choose, I'll disclose to you the magic I employ.'

Liszt had seen a piano in the parlor behind the shop. He opened it and ran his fingers over the keys; then seized by sudden inspiration, he improvised one of those soul-touching symphonies peculiar to himself.

As he sounded the first chords, a beautiful young girl entered the room. While the melody continued, she remained immovable; then, as the last note died away, she cried, with irresistable enthusiasm, 'Bravo, Liszt! 'tis wondrous!'

'Dost thou know him, then, my daughter?' asked the jeweler.

'This is the first time I have had the honor of seeing or hearing him,' replied she, 'but I know that none living, save Liszt, could draw such sounds from the piano.'

Expressed with grace and modesty by a young person of remarkable beauty, this admiration could not fail to be more than flattering to the artist. However, after making his best acknowledgements, Liszt withdrew, in order to deliver the prisoner, and was accompanied by the jeweler.

Grieved at his mistake, the worthy merchant sought to repair it by inviting the two musicians to supper. The honors of the table were done by his amiable daughter, who appeared no less touched at the generosity of Liszt than astonished at his talent.

That night the musicians of the city serenaded their illustrious brother. The next day the nobles and most distinguished inhabitants of Prague presented themselves at his door. They entreated him to give some concerts, leaving it to himself to fix any sum he pleased as a remuneration. Then the jeweler perceived that talent, even in a pecuniary light, may be more valuable than the most precious diamonds. Liszt continued to go to his house, and to the merchant's great joy, he perceived that his daughter was the cause of these visits. He began to love the company of the musician, and the fair girl, his only child, did not hate it.

One morning, the jeweler, coming to the point, with German frankness, said to Liszt:

'How do you like my daughter?'

'She is an angel!'

'What do you think of marriage?'

'I think so well of it, that I have the greatest possible inclination to try it.'

'What would you say to a fortune of three million francs?'

'I would willingly accept it.'

'Well, we understand each other. My daughter pleases you, you please my daughter. Her fortune is ready; be my son in law.'

'With all my heart.'

The marriage was celebrated the following week.

And this, according to the chronicles of Prague, is a true account of the marriage of the great and good pianist, Liszt.

The Michigan Fish Trade.

Michigan is the fish State of the Lakes. Her fisheries are scattered from Lake Erie to Superior, and the fish taken are whitefish, Mackinaw trout and herring.—A late number of the Detroit Advertiser estimates that the annual catch of fish upon Lake Erie, Huron, Michigan and Superior, and the rivers and bays tributary, is between 80,000 and 100,000 bbls. Taking the lowest estimate of 80,000 barrels, estimating the price realised to the producer of $8 per barrel, and the snug sum of $640,000 is paid annually to the fishermen. The catch of white fish in Detroit river alone is about 7,000 barrels annually. The fisheries, between 40 and 50 in number, are between the between the head of Belle Island, about five miles above the city, and Fighting Island, some 12 miles below. The receipts of fish at Detroit during the past year were about 10,000 barrels and 24,000 half barrels, and the shipments were 8,254 bbls. and 15,881 half bbls. The same paper estimates that of the white fish caught in the vicinity of Detroit, at least 40,000 weighing from 2 to 3 lbs. each are consumed while fresh. These are sold at an advantage price to the consumers of 12 cents each.

THE LATEST PARODY.

THE PRINTER'S CONSOLATION.

Tell me, ye gentle winds
That round my pathway play,
Is there no place on earth
Where printers get their pay?
The whispering breeze went by—
With accent filled with woe,
A voice borne on the sorrowing air
In sadness answered "No!"

Tell me, ye flowing streams
That smoothly glide along,
Is there one cherished place
Where printers meet not wrong?
The gentle brook replied—
In murmurs soft and low—
And winding on its verdant way
It meekly answered "No!"

Tell me, ye murky clouds,
Now rising in the west,
Is there upon the globe,
One spot by printers blest?
The flashing clouds outspoke
With an indignant glow—
A voice that filled the earth with awe,
In thunders answered "No!"

Tell me hard-hearted man,
Witholding day by day,
Is there no honor in thy breast,
The printers bill to pay?
Unanswered turns he round—
How plain his actions show;
An uttered oath—capt sound is heard,
His actions answer "No!"

Tell me ye gentle nymphs
Who bless life's hours through,
Is there one sacred shrine
Where printers get their due?
A mantling blush her cheek diffused,
Did ten fold grace impart—
A soft responsive sigh replied,
"'Tis found in woman's heart."

Tell me angelic hosts,
Ye messengers of love,
Shall suffering printers here below
Have no redress above?
The angel band replied—
"To us is knowledge given—
Delinquents on the printers books
Can never enter Heaven!"

—These two little poems are taken from our drawer for the individual benefit of our small readers. The first, addressed to "Mother Fairie" is by Alice Cary:—

"Good old mother Fairie,
Sitting by your fire,
Have you any little folk
You would like to hire?
I want no chubby drudges
To milk, and churn, and spin,
Nor old and wrinkled brownies,
With grisly beards, and thin.
But patient little people,
With hands of busy care,
And gentle speech, and loving hearts—
Say, have you such to spare?
I know a poor, pale body,
Who cannot sleep at night,
And I want the little people
To keep her chamber bright;
To chase away the shadows
That make her moan and weep,
To sing her loving lullabies
And kiss her eyes asleep.
And when in dreams she reaches
For pleasures dead and gone,
To hold her wasted fingers,
And make the rings stay on;
They must be very cunning
To make the future shine,
Like leaves and flowers, and strawberries,
A-growing on one vine.
Good old mother Fairie,
Since my need you know,
Tell me, have you any folk
Wise enough to go?"

This reply to "Alice" is no less dainty than her own musical lines:—

"O, Alice, Alice Cary!
You truly meant to joke,
Asking old mother Fairie
To hire her little folk!—
My people all are ready
To give their friendly aid,
But mind you, fairie favors
Can never be repaid
Within my crystal palace
Lives many a little fay,
Who, for the love of Alice,
Would labor night and day—
Go, tell that poor old body
Who cannot sleep o' nights,
My meek eyed daughter Patience,
Will set her room to rights;
That Faith and Hope (twin sisters)
Will by her pillow stand,
And sing her loving sonnets,
About the better land.
She'll listen to numbers,
Forgetful of her cares,
Till soft and quiet slumbers
Steal o'er her unawares,
In dreams, no longer reaching
To pleasures dead and gone,
Her fingers, pointing upward,
Will let the rings stay on.
Go, tell that poor old body
To take the wand of prayer,
And when she wants the fairies
To wave it in the air;
And, though she cannot see them,
Yet, with their still small voice,
They'll whisper words of comfort,
And make her heart rejoice."

CHAPTER I.

"Ursa Major Angelico. Big Dipper."—Latin.

A man!!

A nice young man. Dark, black hair, and light white complexion; aquiline whiskers, bushy nose, sparkling brown, arching eyes, rosy teeth and pearl cheeks

He stood upon the platform of a passenger car, puffing a mild principe cigar—extremely mild. The train at the height of its speed—velocity, fourteen miles in fifteen hours.

CHAPTER II.

"Nix cum arous."—Dutch.

A girl!!

A maiden of sweet twenty-two, twenty-three or thereabouts. Heir of auburn red, brows of purest fluke white, cheeks of Lemon Pink, (made by Appollo W. Harrison, Philadelphia,) teeth of finest porcelain, bust of matchless cotton, and fort of faultless crinoline. Beauteous girl!

She was in in the front yard, looking at the pretty poses, when the thundering railroad train whizzing by. She looked up and beheld a nice young man upon the platform of the third passenger car, puffing a mild principe cigar. He caught a glimpse of the maiden as the train was rushing by.

'Twas but a moment—yet it was enough—they loved. Loved at first sight. The fellow married the girl—but let me not anticipate.

CHAPTER III.

"Parley vous Francaise."—French.

'Twas!!

Thick, black darkness overspread the torrestrial earth, like a counterpane. A person might be seen stealing out of the R. R. Depot, (pronounced depo,) with a carpet bag and a guitar in his hand. The carpet bag was marked J. Smith—unusual name. J Smith was the young man above mentioned. He made tracks for the house of his loved one—he found it at last. Hiding his carpet bag in some bushes, he approached the dwelling of Matilda Jane, with the intention of serenading her. Sitting down in the doorstep, he sung with stentorian squeak all the modern ballads of the day, from Old Dog Tray down—it took him just four hours by the watch to do it.

He then adjourned to a saloon near by and called for a glass of lager beer, a bologna sausage, some Schweitzer cheese, and mustard. Another young man was smoking near by. He had a sinister look and a terrier dog. J. Smith asked him if he know a young lady that such and such a house.

'What, my Matilda Jane!' exclaimed he.

'Your Matilda Jane!' said J S.

'Do you dare to claim the pearlless one for yours?' You shall relinquish her, or by the power of mud, one half of us shall die.

The stranger looked daggers at J. S and said he would meet him in the morning behind the barn. Giving him his card he left the saloon without paying his bill

On that card was the terrible name of Brown. Pistols and coffee for two.—They fought but didn't get hurt. But I anticipate.

J. Smith went back and slept on the door steps of the dwelling he had been serenading. Devoted Smith. On waking up in the morning he saw that he had made a mistake of a block and serenaded a "House to Let."

CHAPTER IV.

* * * *—Astronomy.

'Twas morning!!

The sun rose in the west and spread its rays over the earth and that kind of things. Two men stood upon the emeral sward, each pointing a pistol at the other. One! two! three! fire! bang! The pistols had no balls in them—Brown and Smith are unhurt—they shook hands and afterwards were sworn friends.

Matilda Jane went down street to get her last tooth pulled. J. Smith saw her He hired a drunken man to insult her—She drunken person did so. J. Smith pitched into inebriate individual, flogged him awful, and rescued Matilda Jane from a horrible death. When it was all over that tender flower fainted away, and fell into the arms of J. Smith, who sat down on a dry goods box with his charge and fanned her pale cheeks with his Panama hat.

J. Brown—loquitar.

'My own dear one. Behold me again, prostrated by the power of your beauty. Assure me, superfine being, that my hopes are not in vain. Doom me not to disappointment, to desolation, to despair. Help me, Matilda Jane, ere I catterpiller! One wink is sufficient to throw me in conniptions of joy,"

She winked.

"To be or not to be."—English.

Two men!!

J. Smith and his guitar. J. Brown and his terrier dog It is eight They are in the Lager Beer Saloon before mentioned, sitting by a table—a small table about two feet and a half high. It is J. Smith's treat. He treats. They now discuss the question of who shall have Matilda Jane. Both want her. How shall it be decided? J. Brown gets her. But I anticipate.

Shall they cast lots? Shall they throw the dice, or play a game of seven up? Shall they run a foot race, jump, or pitch quoits? Shall they have a mortal combat, or see who can eat the most hard boiled eggs? No! eight times no! It shall be decided by flipping coppers Brown prepares for the task. "Heads I win, tails you lose," says he. J. Smith agrees. He flips. Heads, 'I win!' The second time he flips, Tails. You lose again. 'You lose again? quoth J. Brown.

J. Smith is filled with despair.

He thinks of suicide, but don't like the idea of dying He finally takes carpet bag in one hand and his guitar in the other and starts for Ireland. J. Brown, to make a sure thing of it, accompanies on shipboard. On his return, however to the shore, he falls overboard and is drowned.

'O death whereabouts is thy sting.' Brown is borne to the domicil of his lovn Matilda Jane, a cold corpus. Matilda Jane is frantic. He comes to life again. But I anticipate.

As I said before Matilda Jane was frantic with grief.

'Give me, oh give me his gold watch and chain, his diamond ring, anything to remember him by,' said she. Her mother was trying resuscitate the once J. CHAPTER IX.

"Acushla Machree."—Celtic.

J. Smith!!

Our unfortunate hero was seven years in Iceland, three years on the Island of Juan Fernandez, ten years in Japan, five years in Ethiopia, two years in the city of Nininger, when he felt a yearning for the land of his birth.

He had been shipwrecked, stabbed by robbers, torn by wild beasts, overwhelmed by torrents of lava, been six months without food and had the chicken pox, and he still continued to turn up.

With guitar and carpet bag in hand, he again emerged from the railroad depot aforesaid, For forty seven years the blooming Matilda Jane had gone to the railroad station in hopes of meeting J. Smith. Touching devotion They met, she saw him. "Those eyes! those ears! those nose! It is my long lost J Smith." She rushed to his arms. Tableau.

CHAPTER X.

Finally, Lastly, and in conclusion.

A church!!

The belles rang merrily. Before the altar stood a blushing girl and a nice young man—Matilda Jane and J. Smith. She was dressed in virgin white with an orange flower, while he had on a brass coat and blue buttons and a clean shirt. They were pronounced man and woman—husband and wife—She was Matilda Jane Smith and he is Matilda Jane Smith's husband.

All parties satisfied I believe.

This is all of this very interesting story that will appear in this paper. If you wish to read another chapter, you will find it in the "Toad Hollow Gazette," and "N Y S-th Sm-th Ledger."

Oh! pray for the Dying.

Oh! pray for the dying—while ye weep,
The soften'd death-pang, Tend them like sheep
And mark their going where blossoms hide,
And rise again near the rivulets side,
Whose water flows in the glad bright spring
Death vanishes as in the blue lightening.

Oh! pray for the dying—though tears will start,
No dying passion can mate with their heart
A vision of beauty—a rosy ray
That gladdened our heart has passed away
Perhaps the heart that we valued the most
Then pray for the dying the loved and the lost.

SIDE DOORS

BY THE AUTOCRAT OF THE BREAKFAST TABLE.

Every person's feelings have a front-door and a side-door by which they may be entered. The front-door is on the street. Some keep it always open; some keep it latched; some, locked; some, bolted,—with a chain that will let you peep in, but not get in; and some nail it up, so that nobody can pass the threshold. This front door leads into a passage which opens into an anteroom, and this into the interior apartments. The side door opens at once into the sacred chambers.

There is almost always at least one key to this side door. This is carried for years in a mother's bosom. Fathers, brothers, sisters, and friends, often, but by no means so universally, have duplicates of it. The wedding-ring conveys a right to one! alas, if one is given with it!

If nature or accident has put one of these keys into the hands of a person who has the torturing instinct, I can only solemnly pronounce the words that Justice utters over its doomed victim,—The Lord have mercy on your soul! You will probably go mad within a reasonable time—or, if you are a man, run off and die with your head on a curbstone in Melbourne or San Francisco,—or, if you are a woman, quarrel and break your heart, or turn into a pale, jointed petrifaction that moves about as if it were alive, or play some real life-tragedy or other.

Be very careful to whom you trust one of these keys of the side door. The fact of possessing one renders those on a visit at the house as free to you, very terrible, or not as you can keep the world out from your front door, or receive visitors only when you are ready for them; but those of your own flesh and blood, or of certain grades of intimacy, can come in at the side-door, if they will, at any hour and in any mood. Some of them have a scale of your whole nervous system, and can play all the gamut of your sensibilities in semitones,—touching the naked nerve-pulps as a pianist strikes the keys of his instrument. I am satisfied that there are as great masters of this nerve-playing as Vieuxtemps or Thalberg in their lines of performance. Married life is the school in which the most accomplished artists in this department are found. A delicate woman is the best instrument; she has a magnificent compass of sensibilities!—From the deep inward moan which follows pressure on the great nerves of right, to the sharp cry as the filaments of taste are struck with a crashing sweep in a range which no other instrument possesses. A few exercises on it daily at home fit a man wonderfully for its habitual labors, and refresh him immensely as he returns from them. No stranger can get a greatmany notes of torture out of a human soul; it takes one that knows it well,—parent, child, brother, sister, intimate. Be careful to whom you give a side door key; too many have them already.—Atlantic Monthly for April.

JOYFUL NEWS TO A WIFE.—A gentleman writing from New York April 21, says:

Some three years ago the report reached New York that the ship Helena was lost. Her commander, Capt. Thompson, had with him his son, and left in New York his wife and several children. His cargo was a load of coolies; and it was believed that the cargo had risen and murdered the crew. The insurance office paid the policy, and an administrator was appointed for the estate. But, Mrs. Thompson has had unblenching faith that her husband and son were alive, and would both return. This week a vessel arrived at this port and states that they passed and hailed a vessel bound for China which had on board Capt. Thompson and the crew of the Helena. The news was hailed with joy, and public thanksgiving was given last Sabbath in the Mariner's Church.

AN AGED LADY.—Probably the oldest person in Michigan at this time now resides in Lowell, in this (Kent) county in the person of a widow lady—a Mrs. Lucky—who was one hundred years old on the sixth day of March last. She still enjoys good health, and is able to walk and ride out. Last week she rode over two miles to the village, and after having her likeness taken returned home in the same manner.—Grand Rapids Eagle.

THURSDAY, APRIL 29 1858.

The Future of America.

It is pleasant to look back over the short history of the United States, and notice their rapid progress since their first declaration of independence in 1776. Did we look only to what they then were, and what they are now seen and acknowledged to be, in population, wealth, resources and political power, we could not but indulge in the most pleasing anticipations for her future destiny. Nor will we now do otherwise. And yet there are many changes and transformations which have gradually grown upon us, which cannot be said to be to us augurs of good, nor in themselves in any way to forbode a like advancement in the future.

Every advance in a nation's history is not by any means a step towards its permanent security, or the consummation of its highest glory. The history of the world shows us that these fatal downward steps, which have finally led and tended to ultimate and irretrievable ruin, have been uniformly taken by the nations that now speak to us only from monumental ruins, while those nations were still in the full tide of glory and success.

It may well become us then, not to give ourselves over too confidently, nor too critically, to only self gratulation and assurances of a like continued prosperity, as we look upon the strange and almost unexampled progress and prosperity of our eventful history. It may be well at times to look back over the way which we have trodden, and see how far, and how widely we have wandered to the one side or the other from the ancient landmarks.

We should not wholly forget at what a price of sacrifice and self denial our liberties were won, nor should the words and acts of those who then so safely, and thoughtfully laid the foundations of our future greatness, cease to be to us voices of wisdom, and kindly admonition.

We have not here room nor time to note the many changes, that have since gradually grown upon us, which are to our mind of more than doubtful utility and dangerous tendency, but a few of the most palpable of them are within the notice and observation of many of our readers.

You can many of you well recollect the time when the expenditures of this government were less than one tenth the amount now required. When it was considered a sufficient reason for overthrowing the administration of the younger Adams that it was so extravagant as to require 13,000,000 per annum for its support. This was 30 years ago. Now it requires 100,000,000. Were this money only required for the legitimate purposes of government, it were indeed no source of apprehension or regret, but only of congratulation, as indication our increasing greatness and power. But we cannot shut our eyes to the fact, that the greater share of this is needed and used for far different and other purposes. It is in one way and another only a vast bribe, to buy in men, under executive patronage and favor from the expression of their honest convictions and sentiments when they happen to conflict with executive plans or purposes. It is used to centralize the power of the nation, and transfer it from the hands of the people over into the hands of the executive. We do not believe that the true interests of nation is subserved in this, but that there is manifest detriment and danger in this direction.

There are other departures from the purpose and habits of our fathers upon which we will do well to reflect. The position of this government with regard to the perpetuation or extinguishment of slavery, neither is the Supreme Court what it once was. Instead of itself leading and controlling, (as it was originally designed,) executive interference, it is now made subservient to it.

And more than all perhaps, have we departed from that strict morality, and simple trust in a Divine Providence, and adherence to His laws, which characterized those who laid the foundation stones of our prosperity and freedom. Let us at times think upon these things, and if in anything we feel that we have in these departures acted neither wisely nor well then let us not cover up nor stifle that conviction, with a cry of progress and improvement, but return to the old and better way, that the progress which we have made may ever be found to be in the right direction and that the wisdom and overruling Providence that hath hitherto guided our feet, may not be withdrawn but vouchsafe to us a continued and still more permanent success.

THE WHEAT CROP.—In this country, as well as in the west generally, bids fair to be abundant the coming harvest. Last winter was favorable—and the weather this spring has been all that could have been desired to bring forward the crop. A larger quantity of wheat was put in last fall than usual, and a larger amount of spring wheat has been [illegible]

The Highlanders of Scotland

It is a well established fact that the bravest of a conquered nation cannot live at peace with their conquerors. If a spot can be found too sterile to be coveted by the invaders, thither retreat the most dauntless of the vanquished. The barren heath where freedom reigns, is dearer to the independent spirit, than the most fruitful valleys, where he must live in submission. The howling voice of the storm as it beats against the rugged roof, and chinky walls of his mountain cot is more pleasant to his ear than the voice of his conquerors.

The northern part of the Island of Great Britain was well fitted to afford such an asylum, and thither fled the bravest of the Celtic, from the Roman and Saxon invaders.

Having fled to the mountain fastnesses from the face of a more powerful, and civilized enemy, there they turned and stood desperately at bay, saying to the tide of invasion, "Hitherto shalt thou come and no further, and here shall thy proud moves be stayed." As the proud eagle in scorn looks down from the cliff upon the hunter, so the Highlander from the rugged mountains of Scotland, looked down upon his baffled foe.

It is well known that wild mountain scenery has a tendency to stimulate the courage of a people. It must be ennobling to behold the rugged peaks, whose icy summits are dazzling with the reflected splendor of the rising sun. There is a dignity in the appearance of the "everlasting hills," a sublimity in the roar of the mountain cataract, and a grandeur connected with the rocky precipice washed by the surge of the ocean, which mould their own hardy features upon the character of those who constantly behold them. The history of the Piedmontese, of the Swiss, and of the New Englanders themselves, is sufficient proof of this. Hence the heart of the Highlander, naturally brave, was doubly fortified by the scenery with which it was surrounded. We can well imagine what emotions heaved his breast when stationed mid way up some craggy mountain, a huge rock projecting over his head, and away in the distance, far as vision could extend, the land of his enemy lay stretched at his feet.

The cold bracing breeze from the Atlantic, as it circulated among the hills, supplied his lungs with pure air, and his simple fare deposited no foul humors in the blood, that flowed vigorously through his veins.

Hence fever seldom parched his brow, and ague never shook his sturdy frame.—The vigorous chase after the fallow deer, over hill and dale, made him swift of foot and patient of fatigue.

His form of government was such as could not have surprised Tubalcain, or Nimrod, if they had again returned to earth. The patriarchal sway has a tendency to foster the most sterling virtues. Parental affection, implicit obedience to the chief, and fraternal attachment to the clan of which he was a member, were some of the noble traits of the Highland character. But beyond the narrow limits of his clan, not one beam of this affection was shed. They waged a kind of plundering warfare against the lowlanders, whenever they had an opportunity. To day a flock of sheep or a herd of cattle were driven to the hills, and to-morrow, perhaps, a score of plaids dangled upon a gallows in the lowlands.

On account of these depredations the Highlander was stigmatized as a thief, by his Saxon neighbors. But he looked upon these predatory excursions in quite a different manner. He regarded them as warlike exploits against an enemy, who had driven him from his home, and doomed him to a life of privation and toil. And indeed there was much difference between these rude plunderers, and the villian who in well regulated society, picks the pockets, and breaks in the house of his neighbor. It is true that those upon whom he made war, were a part of the same nation of which he formed a nominal member. But it would be too much to expect that men in so rude a state of society, would be very nice in their observance of theories, especially when pressed with want, in the vicinity of a wealthy and hated neighbor.

However, it would have been comparatively happy for this rude people, if their strifes had been confined to the Saxons.—Intestine feuds raged fiercely among the clans themselves, the sons remembered the injuries done to their fathers, to the tenth generation, and an opportunity for revenge was to them sufficient excuse to break their plighted faith. The bravery of the Highlander resembled much that of the American Indian, but was marked by far less cruelty.

He was fierce in war, but he never indulged in the Scottish practice of putting defenceless prisoners to the most excruciating tortures. His only desire was to meet his enemy face to face, and steel to steel, in equal conflict, and if his broad sword, wielded by his brawny arm, could not drink the blood of his foe, he scorned to take it.

In fine it may be said they possessed all the virtues, united with not a few of the vices common to patriarchal societies. In them was a heroism and manly fortitude seldom found mixed with so much barbarism, and only second to that of the soldiers of Cromwell, the Covenanters, the defenders of Londonderry, or the Puritans of New England.

They continued in this state of semi barbarism until the last civil war in Great Britian, known as the war of the Reteender, when the nation became aware of the necessity of conquering them once and forever.

By the aid of the pickaxe and spade, the English accomplished that which they never could have accomplished by the sword alone. They ascended the mountains, and built substantial roads to their principal settlements, so that the ordinance of war could be transported there. They broke down their patriarchal system, put an end to their predatory excursions, and declared their grotesque garb unlawful. Since then they have advanced rapidly in civilization.

The hatred with which the Highlander and Lowlander mutually regarded each other, has almost been forgotten, and their subsequent achievements in the British army, from Quebec [illegible]

LITERARY NOTICES.

Atlantic Monthly.

The May No. of the Atlantic Monthly is received. The reputation with which this periodical commenced is more than sustained. "The Autocrat of the Breakfast Table," continues rich and racy,—"The Pure Pearl of Diver's Bay, and Lookee," are novelettes of sustained interest. The Antiquarian among "The Catacombs at Rome," is still wandering, and "Amours du Voyage," continues to occupy pages, that will never be read, at least by us.

The whole number however is good, and the Atlantic is, what Putnam's used to be, the Magazine of the day. Address Phillips, Sampson & Co, Boston.—Terms—$3,00 per annum.

Godey's Lady Book.

The May number of Godey, comes to us promptly, as it always does, although absence and other engagements have prevented us from noticing it before.—The May Fashion Plates are colored and superior. Among its leading articles are "Shawls for Ladies and where they come from," "Charles Maitland," "The first and second Love," &c. Address L. A Godey's Lady's Book, Philadelphia.—Terms—$3,00 per annum.

Peterson's Magazine.

The May No. of Peterson's is received, and like Godey has been upon our table some days. Among its leading articles, we notice 'The Marriage of Convenience,' 'Aunt Rachel,' 'Catherine Lincoln,' 'The Outcast' continued, 'Enserthal,' and 'My Last Venture.' It contains also Work Patterns and Fashion Plates as usual. Address C. J. Peterson's National Magazine, Philadelphia. Terms—$2,00 per annum.

The Lady's Home Magazine.

Arthur's Home Magazine for May is received, and welcome to our exchanges. The Fashion Plates and Work Patterns of this number are good. Among its articles, are "The True friends," "Only Hers," continued, by Miss Townshend, "The Young Governess," concluded, by T. S Arthur, are all worthy of notice. Address T. S. Arthur's Home Magazine, Philadelphia. Terms—$2,00 per annum.

A Strange Eventful History.

Quite recently a steamer from Green river landed at Evansville, Indiana, a man past 80 years of age, blind, and paralyzed, without friends, no one knowing from whence he came or where he was going. A benevolent negress gave him shelter in her cabin, and he died on Thursday.

After death, papers were found on his person which proved the neglected sufferer to be Dr. John Pocock Holmes, a member of the College of Surgeons, London, and formerly for sixteen years in the employ of the Hudson Bay Company, the friend of Capt. Parry, the Arctic navigator, and the associate of many of the first people of England. He was celebrated as an inventor, and among his effects were two large gold medals awarded him by medical societies for his valuable inventions of obstetrical and surgical instruments. When in the Hudson Bay employ he obtained information which enabled him to render Capt. Parry good service in the manufacture of pemican for the exploring expedition, for which Capt. P. expresses many obligations, and the Admiralty voted Dr. Holmes an acknowledgment of £150.

The old man had letters from eminent gentlemen in Tennessee and Mississippi, and evidently a person of correct habits was great. Intelligence. The sum of $250 was concealed on his person, and in his last moments he spoke of a sister, but gave no clue to her name or residence or that of a friend on earth. His case is a painful lesson of the sad vicissitudes of life.

LOVE is ingenious in reasons, or at least in pretexts. Sometimes they are very flimsy ones. Everybody remembers the young lady who assigned as a reason for getting married, that she thought a wedding in the family would "amuse the children." Here is another little humbug, equally specious:

"Bridget," said a lady to her servant, Bridget Conley, "who was that man you were talking with so late at the gate last night?". "Sure, no one but me eldest brother, ma'am," replied Bridget, with a flushed cheek. "Your brother, I didn't know you had a brother. What is his name?" "Barney Octoolan, ma'am. "Indeed! how comes it that his name is not the same as yours?" Troth, ma'am," replied Bridget, "he has been married once."

Boston, April 20th.

General News.

Washington, April 22

House.—Mr. Quitman asked leave to introduce a joint resolution concerning the admission of new States into the Union.

Mr English objected.

Cries for the reading of Mr. Quitman's resolution followed.

The speaker sustained Mr. English's point of order as a priveleged question, which was already pending.

Mr. Quitman said his resolution was to apply only to the future.

The speaker settled the question to be on agreeing to the amended motion to postpone the report of the Conference Committee on the Kansas bill, till the second Monday in May.

Mr. Harris asked a unanimous consent for the postponement of its consideration till Wednesday.

Mr English acquiesced, but various other gentlemen objected.

Cries of "let the vote be taken now. Question, question.

Mr. Marshall of Ky.—"If the consideration is to be postponed till the second Monday in May, it will not be in order to move the previous question.

Mr. Clingman.—"It is in order now."

Mr. Marshall moved to lay the report of the Committee of Conference on the table, enquired, if the motion prevailed, whether it would not terminate all legislation and leave Kansas in the position she was before the application was made for her admission.

The Speaker replied, that in his own opinion it would dispose of the whole matter.

Mr. Stephens asked for the call of the House. The call was ordered by 123 yeas to 70 nays.

Two hundred and 8 members answered to their names.

Mr Marshall withdrew his motion to lay the report on the table.

The question then recurred on the motion to postpone the motion until the second Monday in May.

Mr. Stanton of Ohio, said that 2 days had already been spent in taking two votes. He was willing, by common consent, to let the question go over till Wednesday.

Mr. Grow, of Penn, interposed, saying, it will not go over by common consent.

Mr. Stanton remarked that Mr. Hill, who made the motion to postpone until the 2d Monday of May, was now absent. He (Stanton) took it for granted that the motion was made in order—meanwhile, to make up his (Hill's) opinion if the measure was postponed until that time much light would be reflected on the question from various sections of the country. The subject is now presented in a new or different form. The gentleman from Georgia (Stephens) has heretofore been against the submission of the question to the people.

The Speaker reminded Stanton that the discussion must be confined to the mere question of postponement.

Senate.—Seward presented the joint resolution of the Legislature of New York in favor of the promotion of Lieut Maury. Referred to the Naval Committee.

Wilson presented a protest from shipowners and many steamers, of Boston, against the law compelling them to purchase Rogers' marine signals. Referred to the Committee on Commerce.

The Paraguay resolution was taken up.

Mallory explained the circumstances under which the difficulty had occurred between the Water Witch and the Paraguians. He spoke of President Lopez as a man of education and political sagacity who desires, under his peculiar form of government, to develop the resources of Paraguay. Lopez has never refused reparation. Mallory was strongly opposed to using force against that small republic, whose defence of the circumstances we have not yet received, whose commerce is so valuable, and whose feeling is certainly favorable towards us.

Washington, April 24.

The House Committee on the Judiciary are now considering the subject of repealing the Neutrality Laws.

The House Committee on Naval Affairs has authorized their Chairman to report a bill for the construction of 5 sloops of war of small size. The same committee are also considering the question of increasing the pay of the officers of the Navy.

Washington April 25.

The Chairman of the committee on Ways and Means will shortly introduce a proposition for the meeting of the next session of Congress on the first Monday in November—being of the opinion that it will then be necessary to re-model or modify the tariff and revenue system.

The reporting back, by John Cochrane from the Committee on Commerce, of the various river and harbor improvements, introduced and referred to that committee with a request to be discharged from the further consideration thereof, has been very generally construed as an adverse report upon them. They were reported back only to relieve the committee from [illegible]

He expects to supply all things in this department in a way to meet the claims of Physicians, and the expectations of their prescriptions, so far as it regards the GENUINENESS of the articles.

There will be in constant attendence, at the store, night and day, one who can be relied upon for correctness in his services.

SPRING MEDICINE.
GET THE PUREST,
GET THE CHEAPEST,
GET THE MOST EFFICACIOUS.

In short, get THE BEST, which are DR. BOSCK'S SCANDINAVIAN BLOOD PURIFIER AND BLOOD PILLS. These wonderful Medicines are entirely vegetable, leave no bad effects, and can not by any possibility injure the most delicate constitution. Never was a good Spring Medicine so necessary as now, for in addition to the skin diseases and deranged Stomach and Liver, which every winter produces, it is most evident to all who are accustomed to note the powerful influence for good or ill that the mind has upon the body that the anxiety of mind caused by the late wide-spread money troubles, has injured the general health of almost every one. Then cleanse, strengthen and purify your system with the Scandinavian Remedies, and you will probably save yourself from serious illness the coming Summer.

MOFFAT'S LIFE PILLS AND PHOENIX BITTERS

The very painful symptoms which precede the attacks of fever and ague can be suppressed and all danger arrested, by the use of these valuable medicines. The pills and bitters are also a cure for rheumatism, and every variety of bowel complaint.

Sold by W. B. MOFFAT, 335 Broadway, N. Y. Taylor & Curtis Agents, Tecumseh.

SORE AND INFLAMED EYES.—These disagreeable complaints are becoming remarkably prevalent of late, and giving any thing but an interesting look to the possessor of the diseased organ. "A red, and bery eye" is not pretty to look at, and certainly cannot be agreeable to have "for keeps," as the boys say. We can tell those afflicted in this manner how to cure the evil, and won't charge them any thing for the information. Let them get some of BRAGG'S ARCTIC LINIMENT and touch the inflamed part with it a few times, and the work is done. The Arctic Liniment may be obtained at any of the Drug stores in this place.

DR. J. C. AYER, the world renowned Chemist of New England, is now stopping at The Burnet house in this city. He has been making a tour of the Western States, with his scientific associates, to investigate their remedial productions, or such as he can make remedial. We notice he has been received with marked distinction by our leading citizens of the West and are rejoiced to find they have shown a proper estimate of the man who has perhaps done more for the relief of human ills than any other.—American—Cincinnati Journal.

The most skeptical people can be convinced by trial that all the family medicines are not humbug, and that among the thousand of butterly lies there are a few of great merit, and undoubted worth. Of these, Dr. Sanford's Invigorator, or Liver Remedy stands first and foremost among the remedies of the day that can be relied on as a medicine that is all that is recommended by its proprietors.

It advertises itself on every trial, for there are none who use it but tell their friends to do so, and so it goes from mouth to mouth till all the people of the Union have learned the good of this truly valuable medicine. It is recommended with testimonials to prove its virtue for the cure of liver complaints of every kind, from the worst Dyspepsia to a common headache, and is particularly adapted to Jaundice, Deranged Stomach, Bowel Complaints and diseases of children.

One or two doses are said to cure a cold with scarce a failure. It is worth a trial for this alone. It is particularly adapted to use of ladies, particularly those of sedentary habits. Some ladies of the highest standing in society have given their certificates of its efficacy, and we say to all who are ailing, try one bottle, and you will never be without it.

Probate Notice

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee, ss. At a session of the Probate Court for the County of Lenawee, holden at the City of Adrian on Friday the sixteenth day of April, in the year one thousand eight hundred and fifty-eight.

Present, Benjamin C. Pearman, Judge of Probate. In the matter of the Estate of Christian Brandt deceased. On reading and filing the Petition, duly signed, of Benjamin Brandt, administrator of the estate of said deceased, praying for license to sell the real estate of said deceased, for reasons therein set forth.

Thereupon it is ordered, That Monday, the third day of May next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said Petition, and that the heirs at law of said deceased, and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said Court, then to be holden at the Probate Office, in the City of Adrian, and show cause, if any there be, why the prayer of the Petitioner should not be granted.

And it is further ordered, That said Petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate, of the pendency of said petition, and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the Tecumseh Herald, a newspaper printed and circulating in said County of Lenawee for four successive weeks previous to said day of hearing.

(A True Copy.) BENJAMIN C. PEARMAN, Judge of Probate.

HOWARD ASSOCIATION,

PHILADELPHIA.

A Benevolent Institution, established by special endowment for the relief of the afflicted and distressed, afflicted with Virulent and Epidemic diseases.

THE HOWARD ASSOCIATION, in view of the awful destruction of human life, caused by secret diseases, and the deceptions practised upon the unfortunate victims of such diseases by Quacks who for years ago directed their consulting Surgeon to draft a CHARITABLE ACT worthy of their name by opening a Dispensary for the treatment of this class of diseases in all their forms, and to give MEDICAL ADVICE GRATIS to all who apply, by letter, with a statement of their condition (age, occupation, habits of life, &c.) and in cases of extreme poverty, to FURNISH MEDICINES FREE OF CHARGE. It is needless to add that the Associat on commands the services of the best medical skill of the age and will furnish the most approved modern treatment.

The Directors of the Association in their Annual Report upon the treatment of Sexual Diseases for the year ending January 1st, 1858, express their entire satisfaction with the success which has attended the labors of the Consulting Surgeon in securing the confidence of the afflicted, and restoring to perfect health Seminal Weakness, Impotency, Nervousness, Debility, Gleet, Syphilis, the vice of Onanism with its baneful consequences, Stricture, Organic Affections of the Bladder &c., and order a continuance of the same Dispensary for the ensuing year.

The Directors, on a review of the past, feel assured that their labors in this sphere of benevolence, which have been of great benefit to the afflicted, will be extended to the young, and they have resolved to devote their services with renewed zeal, to this very important and much neglected cause.

An admirable Report on Spermatorrhœa, or Seminal Weakness, the vice of Onanism, Sexual Debility, and other abuses of the sexual organs, by the Consulting Surgeon will be sent by mail (in a sealed envelope) FREE OF CHARGE, on receipt of two POST STAMPS for postage. Other Reports and Treatises on the nature and treatment of sexual diseases will be sent gratuitously being published for gratuitous circulation and will be sent to the afflicted. Send for a Circular, which contains a list of the various remedies and methods of treatment Dr. CALHOUN has used during the last year, are of great value.

Address for Report or treatment Dr. CALHOUN, Consulting Surgeon Howard Association, No. 2, South Ninth Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

HOWARD ASSOCIATION, PHILADELPHIA.

We call the attention of our readers to the notice of this well known benevolent institution, with much pleasure, as we have reason to believe, from our business transactions with the Association, that the managers are men of honorable and reliable character. We observe that the fame throughout the country speaks very favorably of this Institution.

NEW CORN HUSKING MACHINE.—The Husking machine we spoke of three weeks ago, invented by D. C. Smith of this place, we had not at that time seen work enough to appreciate its true value. Mr Smith procured a quantity of corn and gave it a fair trial. One man can husk with ease 100 bushels per day in the field and 150 bushels on the hill—it throws the ear of corn out, leaving the husk upon the stalk; it is worked by one hand, thereby leaving the other to handle the stalks and remove the silk from the ear before throwing it into the basket,—power to the operator by a belt around the waist and a strap over the neck; can be worked with mittens on—weighs from 3 to 4 pounds, is made of wrought iron and costs $5. There is no humbug about this machine: every farmer should have one. It is, we believe the only machine ever invented for husking on the hill

Mrs Bissell having been unexpectedly called from home, for a few days, her Ambrotype Rooms will be closed for one week.

CORPORATION
Receipts And Expenditures.

In compliance with the requirements of the act of Incorporation of the Village of Tecumseh, there will be found below a true statement of the Receipts and Expenditures of said Incorporation for the current year, to the 10th May, 1858, so far as acted upon and known.

the indebteduess of the contingent fund.

Of this $75,00 owing to Messrs. Santers & McCollum, however does not mature until Nov. 30 next, drawing interest

In this connection it perhaps is proper to add that the job of constructing the fence around Military Square was let to the lowest bidder and amounted to $350,00 one half of which per terms of contract was to have been paid for on completion of the work and the balance one year thereafter with interest.

The cost and materials and erection of the Tannery Bridge was $310,00 in which is included ninety-seven days at $1,00 per day of highway labor tax from taxes assessed as such. About sixty rods of plank street crossings have been made besides a side walk one half the distance on the east side of Military Square the expense of which is embraced in the preceeding statement of expenditures, as also side walks under existing ordinances where the owners of lots had failed to construct the same, at a cost of $71,79 which has been assessed upon the village lots along which the same were constructed. Of this amount $25,38 has been collected as hereinbefore stated and a prospect of early payment of the remainder.

HIGHWAY LABOR.

The assessment of this tax was one day for $500,00 valuation and amounted on resident owning property to 647 days
Non-Resident 15 1-2 do
Poll Tax 215 do
Total 907 1-2

Non Resident 8 1-2 "
907 1-2

CEMETERY FUND.

On hand to credit of this fund at beginning of the year $4,80 collected on Cemetery notes during year $86,78 Total $88.08

There has been paid by the Treasurer for benefit of this fund the installment and interest on Cemetery Mortgage which became due July 7th 1857, $127,41 which made the Treasurers cash advances for this fund $39,33 over available funds. There remains but one more installment upon the Cemetery Mortgage.

The attention of the board was recently called to the bridge over the River Raisin near the Globe Mill and the same was ascertained to be in quite a dilapidated state, and that early rebuilding of the same had become necessary. The board therefore have determined upon the plan and contracted for the delivery of materials for the same at an early day, and there has been $800 appropriated by the township of Tecumseh at the late township meeting to aid in its erection to be realized out of the next assessment in the township.

Concerning the expenditures of the year the board desire it borne in mind that the Tannery Bridge was not contemplated at the time of levying the taxes, but by mid summer became absolutely necessary; neither was it contemplated to fence the military square, but the importance of that improvement so commended itself to the judgment of the board as the board trusts it alike does to every citizen, that it was thought judicious to delay such enterprise no longer, and it is readily discovered that the present indebtedness of the village as seen above results exclusively from these expenditures, which could easily been provided for by the late tax had the exigences of the case presented themselves so prominently to the minds of the boards in time

Bragg's Arctic Liniment.

This compound as a Liniment, upon which the great mass of all that is or all lands now rely for relief from the pangs of Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Gout, Lumbago, Cancer, Scrofula, Sprains, Bruises, Burns, Scalds and all cutaneous diseases, (except) is unequalled, and in fact positively. The proprietor does not claim for the above specific all and every thing for which it is recommended, but he does claim for it the most wonderful cures in the above diseases that have ever been performed in the history of medicine, and he is willing to refer them, for proof of the above statements, to any person who will call upon him personally or address him by letter.

Sore Throat, Diphtheria.

Mrs Medlin, No. 248 Morgan St., St. Louis has been afflicted for three years with Rheumatism, and tried many prescriptions without effect was cured by one 25cts bottle of Arctic Liniment.

Out of Purgatory.

Henry Davis, Steamfitter, St. Louis, who says he was suffering the pangs of purgatory with neuralgia in the shoulders was cured by three or four applications of the Arctic Liniment.

Pity the Little Children.

A little daughter of Mrs Lee residing on Lake St. Chicago was scalded all over by the upsetting of a pail of boiling water. The little Liniment was applied according to the directions and the fire was instantly extracted and in a few days the little sufferer was well.

Restored to Beauty.

Mrs George E. Teller Carondelet st. N. Orleans had long suffered from a painful and disfiguring eruption on the face and by the use of one bottle of the Liniment was cured, and restored to her original beauty.

A Horrible Tumor.

Eugene Mallory, Natchez was three years the victim of a horrible tumor on the neck, which resisted all remedies until he tried the Arctic Liniment. Three bottles cured him in a few weeks.

Wonderful Cure!

Mrs Bedford, Mobile, was confined to her couch for three years with numb palsy and after being in despair from the failure of all other remedies, was cured by the Arctic Liniment, in a little over a month.

An Explosion:

Memphis Tenn. Nov., 28th. 1857.

I hereby certify, that having been badly scalded and scared by the explosion of a Steam Boiler, a friend induced me to try Bragg's Arctic Liniment. The smart which plainly extracted from the scalds and in a very short time all the pain was gone from the bruises—in two weeks I was well and able to resume my business.

The Blind See!

Webster City, Iowa, Nov. 9th, 1857.

Dr. A. G. BRAGG.—Dear Sir:—For more than three years I had been afflicted with inflamed eyes, in an aggravated degree and tried various Physicians and several nostrums to no effect. I was induced by Dr. Baum to try the Arctic Liniment, and in two months was nearly well. My little daughter was afflicted in the same manner for the same time, and during a portion of the time was entirely blind in one eye. I applied your valuable Liniment, and her eyes are perfectly sound. Thus have I with one two-bit bottle cured my self, child and myself and my own besides curing the rheumatism in my back. I would not be without your invaluable remedy in my house. Yours Truly
WM RUSSELL.

Webster City, Iowa, Nov. 9th, 1857.

I hereby certify, that I am well acquainted with Wm Russell, and with the astonishing cures he mentions, and know his statement to be strictly true.

Good for Animals.

This invaluable Liniment is also equally efficacious in curing the diseases of animals as witness the following certificate: Messrs. A. G. Bragg & A. Arnot, and Lynch, Arnot & Co., Keep the largest livery stables in the west and are generally known throughout the U. S.

St Louis, Dec 23rd, 1857.

We, the undersigned, having used Dr. Bragg's Arctic Liniment for a number of months, cheerfully testify to its superior efficacy in curing the diseases of horses, so well are we satisfied of the Arctic being the best Liniment, ever used, that we would not be without it. We keep and have kept for a number of years extensive livery stables in this city, and consequently our experience must have been and their diseases is great. We unhesitatingly say, that the Arctic Liniment is the only one we have ever found always effective. We specially recommend it to livery stable keepers and others having the care of horses.

A FEW WORDS ON THE RATIONAL Treatment, without Medicine, of Spermatorrhea or Local Weakness, Nocturnal Emissions, Genital and Nervous Debility, Impotency, and Impediments to Marriage generally, by

B. DELANEY, M. D.

The important fact that the many alarming complaints, originating in the imprudence and solitude of youth, may be easily removed without Medicine, is in this small tract clearly demonstrated; and the entirely new and highly successful treatment, as adopted by the Author, fully explained, by means of which every one is enabled to cure HIMSELF perfectly and at the least possible cost, thereby dividing all the advertised nostrums of the day

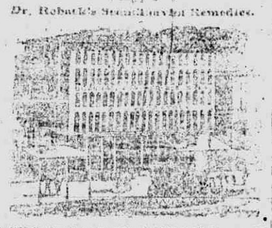
DR ROBACK'S
BLOOD PURIFIER AND BLOOD PILLS.

DISEASE EXTINGUISHED.

BY

Dr. Roback's Scandinavian Remedies.



AFTER YEARS OF STUDY AND EXPERIMENT Dr. Roback has produced two remedies which are conceded to be the most powerful and effectual blood purifiers of mankind, to be found in the whole materia medica. Containing as they do, all the vegetable properties known to the world for the cure of disease, and for the restoration of health and strength, they remove disease from the system wherever it may be located or however long it may have existed. Their use for a short time will satisfy the most skeptical of their wonderful curative powers. Their action upon the system is mild, but certain. They never gripe or purge, but by their alterative action they remove the cause of disease, and the patient recovers his health. Their use is attended with no change of diet, no exposure, and but little interruption to business. They are pleasant to the taste, and may be taken by the most delicate child or infirm old man with perfect safety. They are the best blood purifiers and system renovators ever discovered, and are daily working the most astonishing cures in the most obstinate cases of disease. Scrofula in all its forms, Erysipelas, Boils, Carbuncles, Ulcers, Sore Eyes, Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Female Weakness, Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Fever and Ague, Piles, Fistula, Ringworm, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Sore Legs, Sore Breasts, Chronic Sore Throat, Mercurial Disease, Syphilis, Gout, Stone and Gravel, Diseases of the Bladder, Kidneys, Urinary Organs, Female Complaints, Nervous Debility, Sick Headache, Impotency, Sterility, Leucorrhea or Whites, Nocturnal Emissions, Involuntary Discharges, Premature Decline, Diseases of the Skin, Blood, Liver, Stomach, Bowels, Kidneys, Urinary Organs, and all diseases arising from a bad state of the blood or impure secretions, are literally swept from the system by the use of these remedies. In fact, which speaks volumes in favor of their curative properties, a single trial will place them beyond the reach of competition in the estimate of every patient. By their use the BLOOD IS RESTORED TO A HEALTHY STATE and freed from all impurities. The system is not reduced during their operation, but invigorated, and they require no restraint from business or pleasure.

The afflicted that in these medicines a remedy that will do for them all that medicine can possibly effect.

AGRICULTURAL.

Agricultural College.

The Summer Term, being the third term and commencement of the second year in the history of this Institution, commenced on Wednesday of last week.

There were twenty-eight vacancies to be filled. We understand that, notwithstanding the slight encouragement given to applicants, 93 appeared for examination. The Institution has accommodations but for 100 students. We learn that nearly the whole of the applicants were well qualified to enter had there been room for them. The throng of applicants enabled the Faculty to make a more equal geographical distribution over the State than has heretofore existed.—Lansing Republican.

About Potatoes.

Permit me to say a few words about the potato, as a subject quite as important as the question concerning the adoption of the 'red skirt' by the fairer portion of creation, or whether the modern bonnet was intended to protect the head, or merely to hang on the back part as articles are hung on nails about the room, for convenience. I am a Yankee and hail from the bank of the Connecticut, in the old Bay State, and where we have nice mealy potatoes, an article I have not been able to find at Rochester.—Even the famous Blue Mercers do not compare with our Carter's and other varieties. I love a good potato as dearly as it e'er first drew my breath in that Island where they raise fine ones and have no snakes; and should the question be no bread or no potatoes, I should vote strongly for the last article. I believe to much seed is used. My rule has been one small potato in a hill, and not cut them—I have always met with good success. The following I clip from the Spring field Republican; 'S. R. Williams, of Coldwater, Mich., states that he has been experimenting upon seed potatoes for several years, and he finds that one quarter of the seed generally used is an improvement. From one to two eyes in a hill he says, will produce more potatoes of more size even and less subject to decay than any larger amount of seed.' We think our farmers generally have been tending to the same theory for several years, although they have not, perhaps carried it to that extent. Our English and Irish farmers say that we use three times the seed that they do and that as a consequence we get more small potatoes and less large ones than they do, and not so good aggregate crops.—Cor. Rural New Yorker.

Grapes as House Plants.

Somebody has recommended to cultivate dwarf grape-vines as parlor window plants and the suggestion strikes us favorably. There are certain utilitarians who cannot consent to grow anything which does not furnish food for the stomach, or money for the pocket; as for 'cluttering up' their rooms with geraniums, roses and lilies that is all folly! Now, let such persons try a grape vine at their south window. Plant in a large pot or neatly painted box, and train the vines on wires stretched across the window frame. We can conceive that such a plant would satisfy the sense of beauty and utility at the same time, and that in a high degree. It would be the finest ornament of the house; and as for the fruit, why certainly that would be appreciated.—American Agriculturalist.

Native and Foreign Trees.

We are not insensible to the superior beauty and value of some foreign Ornamental Trees. Our pleasure-grounds could ill spare the Norway Spruce, Siberian Arbor, Arbor Vitæ, Swedish Juniper, Scotch Larch, English Linden, Mountain Ash, etc., etc. But we fear that the richness of our own forests is unappreciated by many planters; to some, perhaps, it is unknown. Let it not be forgotten that we have 50 species of oaks in North America, while all Europe has only thirty. North America has 40 species of pines and firs—the United states over twenty—while Europe has sixte 14 species. Who, among our good heated, pride of country enough out. Last we the native trees which to the village, and latitude. We would taken returned hom to inspect such a —Grand Rapids

F. S. CABOT & CO.,
BUYERS, 55 BARCLAY STREET

Almost every one, certainly every merchant has sometimes very strongly wished that he had a reliable correspondent and friend living in this great metropolis to whom he could send for the transaction of some business or the purchase of some article. That he could not make it convenient to go to the city to do, or to buy himself with full confidence that the business would be well done and at a reasonable expense to him. Having become satisfied by a considerably extended observation and experience that this is an almost universal want, one have established ourselves to supply it. We have found that thousands of persons from Maine to Georgia are constantly sending to us to execute orders, including purchases varying in amount from 25 cents to as many hundred dollars and we believe in every case, those employing us have been satisfied both with the quality of the services rendered and the equity of our charges. We mean that our charges, shall in all cases be fair and reasonable, being predicated on the time and labor consumed it is certain, that being constantly in the market buying largely for cash, we can and get less than any single purchaser can. In fact we save to our friends much more in prices than the commission we charge. No man who only occasionally comes here can be familiar with a market so extensive as this. We being here all the time, are thoroughly acquainted with it, and know where to go to find everything in first hands and at the lowest rates. We have found that many of our distant friends wish to send us country produce to sell, sometimes the proceeds to be invested in goods sometimes in money. Accordingly we have made the very best arrangements to enable us to do justice to those who may confide to us. Our charges for selling are a usually five per cent. although in special cases of very large or very small transactions equity might require it to be varied from that. We have a circular giving more at length the scope and plan of our business with statement of our charges for buying some of the leading articles, which will be sent on application.

ONE OF THE BEST PURGATIVE AND LIVER MEDICINES now before the public, namely, DR. SANDFORD'S INVIGORATOR, or LIVER REMEDY—that acts as a Cathartic, cooling, mildest and more effectual than any other medicine known. It is not only a Cathartic but a Liver remedy, acting first on the Liver to eject its morbid matter, then on the stomach and bowels to carry off the matter. Its accomplishing two purposes effectually, without any of the painful purging experienced in the operations of most cathartics. It strengthens the system at the same time that it purges it, and when taken daily in moderate doses will strengthen and build it up with unusual rapidity.

DR. SANFORD'S INVIGORATOR is compounded entirely from new articles of medicine, namely Gums.

Some idea of the strength of these gums may be formed when it is known that one bottle of the Invigorator contains as much strength as one hundred doses of Calomel, without any of its deleterious effects.

Though possessing rare medical powers, these Gums have been but little known to Physicians, and never used in their prescriptions until used in the form of the Invigorator which met with such unprecedented success as to induce the proprietor to offer it as a family medicine tried and known in its effects. It has rarely ever failed to cure LIVER Complaints in their worst forms.

INDIGESTION being caused by a deranged Liver is cured when the Liver is excited to action.

JAUNDICE is caused by an improper action of the Liver, and as a proof that the Invigorator acts thereon this disease, let any one troubled with Jaundice take the Invigorator regularly one week, and their skin will begin to assume its original color.

COSTIVENESS can be permanently cured by the Invigorator. Take it in small doses on retiring, and it assists nature in her operations. By gradually diminishing the dose, the bowels are left in a healthy and active state, and work as regularly as clock work.

SICK HEADACHE is very soon relieved by taking a double dose of the Invigorator, which corrects all acidity and sourness of the stomach.

For an over-loaded stomach it has no equal as it relieves all oppressive or uneasy feeling after eating heartily. For a FAMILY MEDICINE generally, all who use it speak in the highest terms.

DR. SANFORD'S INVIGORATOR came to us recommended as a cure for Liver Complaints and all diseases arising from a Diseased Liver. The testimonials of so many of our Physicians in its favor, induced us to try it, and now conviction is certain that it is one of the greatest blessings ever given to Dyspeptics for it made a complete cure before the first bottle was taken, and no we can eat anything edible without trouble, while before nothing but the lightest food would digest, and often that gave pain. Now what we want to say to all our readers is, if LIVER COMPLAINTS or DYSPEPSIA trouble you, do not fail to try this the greatest remedy in the world.—Jack Somerville, Ala. Republican.

OPPOSITION.
Cabinet & Chair Shop,

[One door south of Tecumseh Academy.]

The undersigned believes that he need only intimate to this community that he was a partner in the late famous establishment at the old New York store, to ensure him a liberal public tronage; all are aware what a flourishing business was done at that House, while he was a partner in the firm, that is, while he turned the grind stone, and how that establishment almost disappeared when the motive power was withdrawn. It is not doubted therefore, but that the public will be gratified to know, that the self same power has put in motion a Machine that is now turning out Tables, Bureaus, Bedsteads, Chairs, and all kind of Furniture, with such velocity that will enable him to sell them at prices so low, that will astonish the natives.

Now I would say, to all those who want Cheap Furniture, "come on, now is the time" for I am determined to 'bust' every establishment in town.

AYER'S
Cathartic Pills
(SUGAR COATED.)
ARE MADE TO
CLEANSE THE BLOOD AND CURE THE SICK
In wildlife, Fathers, Mothers, Physicians, Philanthropists, read their Effects, and judge of their Virtues.
FOR THE CURE OF
Headache, Sick Headache, Foul Stomach,

Prevention, Ft., May 1, 1855.
DR. J. C. AYER. Sir:—I have been troubled for the most part of my life with Headache, and my only cure has been to take a dose of your Pills. It seems to arise from a foul stomach, which they cleanse at once. If they will cure others as they do me, the fact is worth knowing.
Yours with great respect, ED. W. PRESLER,
Clerk of Steamer Clarion.

Bilious Disorders and Liver Complaints

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 7, 1855.
SIR: I have used your Pills in my general and family practice, ever since you made them, and cannot hesitate to say they are the best cathartic we employ. Their regulating action on the liver is quick and decided, controlling by they are an admirable remedy for derangements of the organs. Indeed, I have seldom found a case of disease so obstinate that it did not readily yield to them.
Fraternally yours, ALONZO BALL, M. D.,
Physician of the Marine Hospital.

Dysentery, Relax, and Worms.

POST OFFICE, HARTLAND, Liv. Co., Mich., Nov. 18, 1854.
DR. AYER: Your Pills are the perfection of medicine. They have done my wife more good than I can tell you. She had been sick and pining away for months. Was off to be doctored at great expense, but got no better. So then commenced taking your Pills, which soon cured her by expelling large quantities of worms (dead) from the body. They afterwards cured her and our two children of bloody dysentery. One of our neighbors had it bad and my wife cured him with two doses of your Pills, while others around us paid from five to twenty dollars doctor bills, and lost much time, without being cured some of even then. Such a medicine as yours, which is actually good and honest, will be prized here.
GEO. J. GRIFFIN, Trader.

Indigestion and Impurity of the Blood

From Rev. J. V. Himes, Pastor of Advent Church, Boston.
DR. AYER: I have used your Pills with extraordinary success in my family and among those I am called to visit in distress. To regulate the organs of digestion and purify the blood they are the very best remedy I have ever known, and I can confidently recommend them to my friends. Yours, J. V. HIMES.

WARSAW, WYOMING Co., N. Y., Oct. 20, 1856.
DEAR SIR: I am using your Cathartic Pill here in my practice, and find them an excellent purgative to cleanse the system, and purify the fountains of the blood.
JOHN G. MEACHAM, M. D.

Erysipelas, Scrofula, King's Evil, Tetter, Tumors, and Salt Rheum.

From a Physician of Brooklyn, N. Y.
DR. AYER: Your Pills are the paragon of all cathartics. I have used them in my own family, and in my practice, for years. Their mother has been long grievously afflicted with blotches and pimples on her skin and on her hair. After our child was cured, she asked for your Pills, and they have cured her. ASA MONGHAN.

Rheumatism, Neuralgia, and Gout.

From the Rev. Dr. Hawkes, of the Methodist Epis. Church.
PULASKI HOUSE, SAVANNAH, Ga., Jan. 6, 1855.
HONORED SIR: I should be ungrateful for the relief my skill has brought me if I did not report my case to you. A cold settled in my limbs and brought on excruciating neuralgic pains, which ended in chronic rheumatism. Notwithstanding I had the best of physicians, the disease grew worse and worse, until, by the advice of your excellent agent in Baltimore, Dr. Mackenzie, I tried your Pills. Their effects were slow, but sure. By persevering in the use of them I am now entirely well.
SENATE CHAMBER, BATON ROUGE, La., 5 Dec., 1855.
DR. AYER: I have been effectively cured by your Pills of Rheumatic Gout—a painful disease that had afflicted me for years. VINCENT SIGUR.

For Dropsy, Plethora, or kindred complaints, requiring an active purge, they are the excellent remedy.

For Costiveness or Constipation, as a Dinner Pill, they are agreeable and effectual.

Fits, Suppression, Paralysis, Inflammation, and even Deafness, and Partial blindness, have been cured by the alterative action of these Pills.

Most of the pills in market contain Mercury, which although a valuable remedy in skilful hands, is dangerous in a public pill, from the dreadful consequences that frequently follow its incautious use. These contain no mercury or mineral substance whatever.

AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL
FOR THE RAPID CURE OF
COUGHS, COLDS, HOARSENESS, INFLUENZA, BRONCHITIS, WHOOPING COUGH, CROUP, ASTHMA, INCIPIENT CONSUMPTION,
and for the relief of consumptive patients in advanced stages of the disease.

We need not speak to the public of its virtues. Throughout every town, and almost every household in the American States, its wonderful cures of pulmonary complaints have made it already known. Nay, few are the families in any civilized country on this continent that have not some personal experience of its effects, and fewer still are the communities any where in which there is not found some living trophy of its victory over the subtle and fatal disease of the throat and lungs. Exposure produces the most powerful outlook, yet known, to excite the latent tubercular disposition, and no one is safe while that insidious and dangerous disease is allowed to fasten itself upon the vitals. Even when the first symptoms announce the approach of pulmonary consumption, they are frequently disregarded, or unskilfully treated, and the insidious enemy thus gains a fatal advantage over its victim. Nothing is more common than to hear people say, "I have had a cough for months, but I did not think it anything serious, and so paid no attention to it, when, all at once, I found myself in the last stages of consumption, and nothing could be done for me." Such instances of fatality might be avoided, if the first symptoms of disease were checked by the timely use of the CHERRY PECTORAL. Nothing else can be relied on with the same confidence. Keep it by you, and cure your colds while they are curable, and prevent consumption from fastening upon your lungs. Do not neglect them until the hectic flush, the night sweat, the hollow cough, and the feeble step, warn you that the fell destroyer has marked you for his victim. Nothing will protect you from consumption if you have predisposed to it, but you can counteract its deadly influence, and prevent it from developing itself in the form of consumption, by the timely use of the CHERRY PECTORAL. Many have been saved from the grave by this remedy, when they and their friends had given them up to die. Many a mother, who has seen her children fade away before her eyes, has had the bitter satisfaction of knowing that she did not use the means which would have saved them. Many a husband has been hurried to the tomb, who might have been restored to his family and friends, by the CHERRY PECTORAL. Many a wife has been made a widow, and many a child has been left an orphan, by neglecting to use this remedy in time. Many a person has been saved from the consumptive's grave, by the CHERRY PECTORAL, when all other remedies had failed. Many a person has been cured of bronchitis, of asthma, of whooping cough, of croup, of influenza, of hoarseness, of severe coughs, of colds, of sore throat, of tickling in the throat, of pain in the breast, of tightness across the chest, of difficulty of breathing, of wheezing, of spitting of blood, of night sweats, of general debility, of lowness of spirits, of loss of appetite

A BEAUTIFUL POEM.

"Fanny Forester" (Mrs. Judson) shortly after the death of her apostle husband, wrote the following exquisite poem, which tells the story of their earthly love, and its still lingering "hold of hand"

I gazed down Life's dim labyrinth,
A wildering maze to see,
Crossed o'er by many a tangled clue,
And wild as wild could be;
And as I gazed in doubt and dread
An angel come to me.

I knew him for a heavenly guide,
I knew him even then,
Though meekly as a child he stood
Among the sons of men—
By his deep spirit loveliness,
I knew him even then.

And as I leaned my weary head
Upon his proffered breast,
And scanned the peril-haunted wild
From out my place of rest,
I wondered if the shining ones
Of Eden were more blest.

For there was light within my soul,
Light on my peaceful way,
And all around the blue above,
The clustering starlight lay;
And easterly I saw upreared
The pearly gates of day.

So, hand in hand, we trod the wild,
My angel love and I—
His lifted wings all quivering
With tokens from the sky.
Strange my dull thought could not divine
'Twas lifted but to fly!

Again down Life's dim labyrinth
I grope my way alone,
While wildly through the midnight sky,
Black, hurrying clouds are blown,
And thickly in my tangled path
The sharp bare thorns are sown.

Yet firm my foot, for well I know
The goal cannot be far,
And ever through the rifted clouds
Shines out one steady star—
For when my guide went up, he left
The pearly gates ajar

Doesticks Beat.

The Saturday Evening Gazette has a New York correspondent who beats Doesticks in humor and the knack in playing upon words. The following is extracted from his last letter:

It's a free institution—filled with 'dead beads.' Professor wishes to feel of my head. Told me to uncover. Told him to feel of it with my hat on. The hat was felt.

I then took it off. He examined my wig. Said he knew there was something in my head—it was full of life. He dwelt a long time on a bump caused by the sidewalk falling against it while I was taking my room mate home from a prima (y doctor) on that occasion, he thought, I was very drunk king me home.)

I had an awful headache next morning. I felt dragged out. Professor said large bumps denoted great acquisitiveness; said I had a searching mind. Told me to search if I had a quarter in my pocket—called that "experimental phrenology."

Professor, after I had mentioned my name, conducted me around the museum; showed me all the heads. Some were plaster casts; said they cast lots. Told him I was opposed to gambling—he looked bewildered.

Showed me the skull of Mulligan.—Mulligan was an acrobat—made his last appearance on a tight rope at the city prison, for the benefit of the public—broke his head in the performance.

Next, showed me skulls of men killed in wars. Professor observed as a curious fact, that those slain in battle were generally aged—having balled heads. In the next row was the skull of a boatmen; it was not for sale; it looked ordinary, poor fellow he had run his race.

We next paid our attention to the females. They were seemingly old maids being laid on the shelf—in tiers. I couldn't tell them from the heads of the mails. Professor said they had a little more jaw. He didn't speak of their sighs.

As I was about departing, I noticed a curious shaped skull. I took it up, exclaiming,

"How wonderful and fearful we are made!"

"Put that down," said the Professor, "it belongs to me."

It was marked "baboon!"

OPPOSITION WITHDRAWN.—The news of the abandonment of the Nicaragua Steamers will disappoint thousands, who anticipated taking advantage of cheap fare, to visit the east. Again is immigration to this State checked by the acts of a powerful monopoly. The interests of California are in the hands of the Pacific Mail Steam Ship Company, who are doing more to injure this State than hard times, drought, and all of her other calamities put together. The millions of hard earned money that has gone to enrich this monopoly, is used to retard the growth of the State, and to oppress the people. No reason is assigned for the withdrawal of the opposition Steamers. —Republican, Coloma, Cal.

The Wife's Dower.

BY A RETIRED ATTORNEY.

Every body who knows John Gordon, knew him to be one of the most contemptible men that was ever permitted to walk the earth. His brother Peter was not a whit better; so that it would appear that the meanness ran in the blood of the family.

John was pretty well off, so far as this world's goods were concerned. His property was all invested in a building which had cost him about thirty thousand dollars. He did not marry till he was forty, probably from the fear of incurring unnecessary expense; and when finally, he did take a wife, it was only as he would taken a house keeper—a servant.

Mrs. Gordon was a poor woman, and had been obliged to work very hard for a living. Probably she married on purely prudential considerations for she could not possibly have loved such an abortion of a man as John Gordon. She took good care of her husband, treated him better than he deserved, and was in every respect an obedient and faithful wife. All she received in return was the meagre support her husband's house afforded.

When they had been married some three years John was taken sick, and lingered along for a year, during which time his wife was an excellent and devoted wife. Her whole aim seemed to be to discharge her duty to her lord with fidelity. She had made a bargain with him, and she performed her part of the contract with scrupulous exactness.

One day I heard that John Gordon was dead. It was a small loss to the community, and I could not think of pitying his wife, for her lot would certainly be ameliorated by his departure. She would be entitled to one-third of the income of the real estate, which, for a poor woman, as she had been, and having no luxurious tastes to gratify, would be a prince's stipend.

I neither thought or heard any more of John Gordon or wife for two months, when a woman appeared at my office and introduced herself as the latter.

'Mine is a very bad case, Mr. Docket,' said she seating herself by my side.

'Indeed, madame, I thought you were very comfortably provided for. You have one-third of the income of your husband's estate, or about a thousand dollars a year. replied gloomily. ——this,' she

'Not to have it?'

'Peter Gordon has taken possession of the estate, declaring it belongs to him.—He says my husband sold it to him a few weeks before he died.'

'How could that be.'

'Peter showed me the deed, and says it has been recorded.

'Does he? So much the better for you madame. The law gives one-half of his personal estates——'

'But he sold it for one dollar;' interrupted Mrs. Gordon.

'He could not sell it without your concurrence. Did you release your right to dower in the premises?'

'No, sir; Peter says I did though, and shows me my name, duly witnessed, on the deed.'

'Did you sign it?'

'No, sir.'

'Then it is a forgery.'

'I suppose it is.'

'You are confident you did not sign your name to the deed?'

'I am very sure I did not, and for a very good reason.'

'How's that?'

'I cannot write; I never even wrote my name. I was brought up in the country, where girls did not get so much schooling as now. My folks were very poor, and I never had a chance to go to school,' replied Mrs. Gordon, with some confusion.

'Did your husband know that you could not write?'

'No; I never told him.'

I dismissed her with the request that she would call the next day. I went at once to the Registry of Deeds, and found that Mrs. Gordon had told a staight story. Her miserable, contemptible husband had given his property to his brother, in his last days so as to cheat his wife, who had cared for him in health, and nursed him in sickness, of her just claim upon his estate.

He was a villian! I need not say I felt a deep interest in the case of my client, and resolved to bring matters to an issue at once. The next day when she called, she directed me to her sister, by whom it could be proved that Mrs. Gordon could not write her name; who had seen her make her mark often, within a short time.

The person who professed to have witnessed the signature of Mrs. Gordon was a clerk in the office of Peter. My first move was to take steps to arrest him on charge of fraud, and to sue his employer for my clients share of the rents, which he had just collected, and which had refused to pay over to her.

When I had proceeded thus far I received a visit from Peter Gordon.

'What do you mean sir?' he asked rather sourly.

'I mean to get justice for the widow.'

'Her husband was worth nothing when he died.'

'But his wife has one third interest in his real estate.'

'It was sold to me, and she signed away her right to dower.'

'Did she?'

'Certainly she did.'

'Did you see her sign?'

'To be sure I did; so did my clerk.'

'There is a warrant out for the arrest of your clerk; and I have some hopes that he will turn State's evidence, and convict his principal.'

He started back with astonishment and terror.

'I—I don't understand you,' he stammered out.

'Don't trouble yourself about it, Mr. Gordon, you will understand it all in good time.'

'For God's sake, don't arrest my clerk! He will be the ruin of me,' groaned he.

'You should have thought of that before,' I said.

'You don't mean to say that everything isn't all right about my brother's affairs? Because if it isn't, I will make it right, you know, he whined in supplicating tones.

'You say you saw Mrs Gordon sign the deed?'

'Well, no—not exactly, but I suppose she signed it.'

'You don't know she didn't?'

'How should I know?'

'She can't write; she never even wrote her name in her life!'

'Gracious!'

I pressed the rascal closely and made him acknowledge that his clerk had signed the name for a consideration. I would have caused both of them to be sent to the State Prison, if Mrs. Gordon had not begged me to spare them. As it was, I secured the entire income of the estate Peter, who was ~~ed charged~~ my bill to

A WORD ABOUT NEWSPAPER ARTICLES.—A celebrated French writer, remarkable for conciseness of style, apologizes for the prolixity of a letter to a friend, which he had made rather longer than usual, by saying that he had not time to write a shorter one.

To say much in a few words, is certainly a great excellence, and at the same time a great difficulty in composition. The mind naturally dwells on a strong conception, views it on every side, and expresses its variety of lights in as great a variety of words; but the amplification of a sentence, though it may add to its perspicuity, diminishes its force, as the scattered sunbeams diffuse a gentle heat, but are able to burn when collected in a focus.

We are frequently in receipt of communications which we would take much pleasure in publishing had the writers condensed them as a newspaper should be condensed. Our correspondents will please note this.—Little Rock (Ark) Dem.

MENTAL CONSUMPTION.—Of all the expedients, says Slaver, to make the heart lean, the brain gauzy, and to thin life down to the consistency of a cambric kerchief, the most successful is the little talk and tattle which, in some charmed circles, is courteously styled conversation. How human beings can live on such meagre fare—how continue existence in such a famine of topics and on such a short allowance of sense—is a great question, if philosophy could only search it out. All we know is, that such men and women there are, who will go on from fifteen to fourscore, and never a hint on their tombstones, that they died at last of consumption of the head and marasmus of the heart!

A WORSHIPFUL CROWD.—The strangers' list at Royal Hotel, Hamilton, C. W., on April 1st, contained the following arrivals from Detroit: Rev H. H. Emmons, N. P. Stewart, A. H. Newbould, and Gil C. Davidson, the latter from Albany.

THE WORN OUT FONT OF TYPE.

I'm sitting by my desk, George,
Before me, on the floor,
There lies a worn out font of type,
Full twenty thousand score,
And many months have passed, George,
Since they were bright and new,
And many are the tales they've told—
The false, the strange, the true.

Their beauty has all gone, George,
You scarcely now may trace,
Upon the snowy medium,
The likeness of their face.
They mind me of a man, George,
Whose morn of life was full
Of promise but at evening's close,
Was desolate and dull.

What tales of horror they have told,
Of tempest and of wreck,
Of murder in the midnight hour,
Of war full many a "speck,"
Of ships that—lost away at sea—
Went down before the blast,
Of stifled cries of agony
As life's last moments passed!

Of earthquakes and of suicides,
Of failing crops of cotton,
Of bank defaulters, broken banks
And banking systems rotten,
Of boilers bursting, steamboats snagged,
Or riots, duels fought,
Of robbers with their prey escaped,
Or thieves with booty caught.

Of flood, and fire, and accident,
Those worn out type have told;
And how the pestilence has swept
The youthful and the old;
Of marriages, of births and deaths,
Of things to please and vex us;
Of one man's jumping overboard,
Another gone to Texas.

They've told how long the sweet summer days
Have faded from our view;
How autumn's chilling winds have swept
The leaf-crowned forest through;
How winter's reign has come and gone—
Dark reign of storm and strife—
And how the smiling spring hath warmed
The pale flowers back to life.

I can't pretend to mention half
My inky friends have told,
Since shining bright and beautiful
They issued from the mould—
How unto some they joy have brought,
To others, grief and tears,
Yet faithfully they record kept
Of fast receding years

Taking Things Coolly.

'You're a scoundrel!' said fierce looking gentleman, the other day, coming up with great wrath to a Yankee who was standing quietly on the sidewalk; 'you are a scoundrel!'

'That's news to me,' returned the Yankee quietly.

'News, you scoundrel! Do you call that news?'

'Entirely so.'

'You needn't think to parry it off so can prove it ——scoundrel, and I

'I beg you will not, I shouldn't like to be proved a scoundrel.'

'No, I dare say you wouldn't but answer me immediately—did you, or did you, not say in the presence of certain ladies of my acquaintance, that I was a—'

'Calf? Oh no, sir, the truth is not to be spoken at all times.'

'The truth! Do you mean to call me a calf?'

'Oh, no, sir, I call you nothing.'

'It's well you do, for had you presumed to call me a—

'A man, I should have been grossly mistaken.'

'Do you mean to say that I am not a man?'

'That depends upon circumstances.'

'What circumstances?'

'If I should be called as evidence in a court of justice, I should be bound to speak the truth!'

'And would you say I was not a man, hey? do you see that cow skin?'

'Yes I have seen it with surprise ever since you came up.'

'What surprise? Why do you suppose I was such a coward I dare not undertake to use the article when it was demanded?'

'Shall I tell you what I thought?'

'Do it, if you dare.'

'I thought to myself what use has a calf for a cow's skin?'

'You distinctly call me a calf then.'

'If you insist upon it, you may.'

'You hear him gentleman, speaking to the bystanders, you hear the insult. What shall I do with the scoundrel?'

Dress him! dress him! shouted the crowd with shouts of laughter.

Then turning to to the Yankee, he cried out fiercely:

Come on, step this way, you rascal, and I'll flog you with in an inch of your life.'

'I've no occasion.'

'You're a coward.'

'Just as you please.'

'Do you hear that gentlemen?'

'Ah!' was the response, 'you can't help flogging him now.'

'Oh, heavens grant me patience, I'll fly out of my skin.'

'It'll be so much the better for your pocket—calf skins are in good demand.'

'I shall bust.'

'Not here in this street, I beg for you. It would be quite di usting.'

'Gentlemen, can I any longer help flogging him.'

Thus provoked, thus stirred up and encouraged, the fierce gentleman went like lightening at the Yankee.

But before he could strike a blow, he found himself disarmed of his cow skin and lying on his back under the spout of a neighboring pump, whither the Yankee had carried him to cool his rage, and before he could recover from his astonishment at such unexpected handling, he was wet as a drowned rat from the cataract of water which his antagonist had liberally pumped upon him.

His courage had by this time, like that of the valiant Bob Acres, 'oozed out at the palms of his hands,' and he declared, as he arose and went away drippling from the pump, that he would never trust to appearances again, and the old Harry himself might undertake to cow-hide a Yankee for all of him.

VICISSITUDES OF LIFE.—The Cincinnati Enquirer has the following:

Passing along the street yesterday, our attention was suddenly drawn to a scene not a little novel and interesting in its character. In an alley; with paste-pot in hand, and roll of bills on his arm, whom should we see but Wesley Smead, late President of the Citizen's Bank, posting his own bills of property for sale for the purpose of paying off the remaining debts of the Bank. Heedless of the wondering gaze of the astonished passer-by, he laid on the paste and spread out his bill with all the readiness and facility of a practical poster, taking care to place them in the most conspicuous positions, and above the reach of boys and rag-pickers. Forty-three years ago, Dr. Smead was an apprentice in the Gazette establishment, and being the youngest, the duty devolved upon him of posting up the show bills, &c. At this late period of his life, when overtaken by adversity, he is nobly struggling (a rare sight, indeed, among bankers,) to discharge all his obligations to his creditors.

Live for Something

Thousands of men breathe, move and live, pass off the stage of life and are heard of no more—Why? They did not a particle of good in the world; and none were blest by them; none could point to them as the instruments of their redemp- they spoke ——not a word perished, their light went out in darkness, and they were not remembered more than the insects of yesterday. Will you thus live and die, O man immortal! Live for something. Do good and leave behind you a monument of virtue that the storm of time can never destroy. Write your name by kindness, love and mercy, on the hearts of the thousands you come in contact with year by year, and you will never be forgotten. No, your name, your deeds, will be as legible on the hearts you leave behind, as the stars on the brow of evening. Good deeds will shine as brightly on the earth as the stars of heaven.—Dr. Chalmers.

Anecdote.

Rev. Rowland Hill used to ride to and from his church in a carriage. This gave offence to one of his members at least, who went so far as to hand in among the notices one requesting the prayers of the congregation for the pastor, who yielding to pride, is in the habit of riding in his carriage, not content like his divine Master to ride upon an ass. It was not until Mr. H had read the paper, and observed the sensation created, that he noticed its import; then laying it down he said, "It is true, brethren and friends, I ride in my carriage, but if the author of this notice will appear at the door at the conclusion of the service, saddled and bridled, I will do my best to ride him home.—Nottingham Paper.

"The Shadow of Death."

We hear of a valley through which we must pass,
Ere we can reach that abode,
Which God in his mercy has promised to those,
Who in his foot steps have trod.

'Tis said that this valley is lonely and drear,
Overshadowed by midnight gloom,
With no ray of light the poor traveler to cheer—
Such is the Vale of the Tomb.

Yes, dark it will be to turn, Sinner, and drear,
Well may'st thou tremble and shrink
From the darkness before thee, the gulf of despair,
Standing alone on its brink.

But to the CHRISTIAN what terror has death?
Where is the gloom of the grave?
Leaning on Jesus in meekness and faith,
Trusting his power to save.

Where is the darkness if CHRIST be the light
Which shall illumine the path?
'Tis but the veiling of glory too bright,
Only the "Shadow of Death."

Another Steamboat Catastrophe.

The steamer Ocean Spray, engaged in the Illinois trade, and the Hannibal City, one of the Keokuk Packet Company's finest boats started out from this landing about the same time. Both were noted as fast crafts, and it was currently whispered that a race would ensue a prediction which we regret to add proved but too true. When rounding the bend, nearly opposite the Powder Magazine, the Ocean Spray was discovered to be on fire and the pilot on watch immediately headed for the shore.

The flames spread with utmost rapidity and the despair and excitement of the passengers, of whom there were sixty or seventy, fifteen or sixteen of whom were ladies and children, was described to us as being of the most heart rending and terrific character. Women were seen to throw their babes into the water, and jump immediately after them. Where the Spray came in at is a point which at dull seasons of the year, is employed as a laying-up point for steamers not engaged in trade, and at the time the Keokuk, Star of the West, and one or two other crafts were laying up.

The flames as the Spray came into the landing, consequently caught the steamer Keokuk and ere many minutes elapsed, that boat was enveloped in a sheet of fire.

Both boats were burned to the water's edge The hull of the Spray floated down the river, still continuing on fire, the levee at the time, from one end to the other, being covered with human beings to witness the end of this terrible event. We have been informed that there are at least from twenty to twenty five lives lost, but of course, at this time cannot give it as exactly correct, it not being yet ascertained who are the survivors. The Hannibal City passed up by the Spray, while she was on fire, stopped and sent out a yawl to the assistance of the unfortunate beings in the water, a circumstance which was the means of saving many lives. The Ocean Spray was a fast and elegant passenger boat, and was owned by Capt Marsh and others. She was valued at $25,000 or $30,000.

Melancholly Suicide.

During last week, a young man, named W. Clark, son of Mr Clark, residing in Kensington, was found dead under a tree near Burlington, and on the line of the Mount Holly Railroad.

From all we could learn, it appears that the young man had been for some time studying medicine with a physician at Medina, Chesser Co., Pa., and on Sunday he visited his home in Philadelphia. The father noticed that his son was rather melancholly, but paid little attention to the fact

On Tuesday morning the son left home with the intention, as it was understood, of going back to Medina, but instead of doing that, he went to Burlington, and passed through the town to the place where his body was found. During that day the engineer of the Mount Holly train, noticed a young man sitting under a tree, reading, and every time the train passed, he would get to his feet and look toward the car.

When his body was discovered, it was quite warm and on touching it, there was a muscular contraction of the hand, as if the breath had just at that moment left the body.

An old letter was found in one of the pockets of the deceased, which gave a clue to the residence of his parents. A message was immediately sent down, and the father visited Burlington, and on Wednesday took the body to Philadelphia. A bottle containing a small quantity of what was supposed to be strichnine, was found near the body.

The unfortunate young man was about 20 years of age.—Mount Holly Mirror.

A rather thick-headed witness in the police court at St. Louis was asked the question whether the party accused 'stood on the defensive?' He innocently replied: 'He stood on a bench.'

The War in Utah.

It is somewhat difficult for the public to decide whether there is, or is to be a war in Utah. At one time we are informed that the whole Territory is in rebellion, and again that there is no purpose nor preparation for fighting at all. Just now a late ex priest of Mormonism, having but recently escaped from its toils, comes before the American public, and informs us that the Mormons have no expectation of fighting the the United States troops there, that they have no powder, no cannon, no munitions of war, but only seek to escape, if needs be, to some other land, when they shall not be permitted to remain longer where they are.

This may all be so. But when we look to the secret pledges signs and oaths, and the atrocious deeds, of the desperate out-laws organized in their Danite Bands, we would rather the information should come from some one who had never lent himself their well known schemes of treason and crime.

Besides we have reliable information from more than one Indian tribe that the mormon leaders have been tampering with them, and urged them to outrage and rebellion, threatening with their aid to exterminate all the United States soldiers or citizens within their reach.—And now at the last comes a report that they have attacked and repulsed the forces of Col. Johnston in the Green river country This last report may not be well founded, and it may be still further confirmed.

We do not believe for our part, that our government can rely upon a settlement of this question without an efficient military demonstration, and further that the more promptly this is made the better. We cannot see any advantage in wasting time with sending commissioners to these outlaws—but should present the alternative to yield or abide the consequences without any farther parley or delay. Their position upon the slavery question is not equivocal, for they are already introducing slavery into that Terriory, and it may be, that that fact had weight in deciding our present executive to retain a portion of the troops in Kansas for the last six months, lest their important services in that direction might be too suddenly thwarted, as well as lest the free State men in Kansas should not be found sufficiently subservient to executive dictation with regard to the shaping of their own domestic concerns, instead of permitting them all to march on to Utah together.

If so, and if the recent reports with regard to an attack upon Col. Johnston should be verified, it will be seen how fearful a responsibility the President then assumed in behalf of slavery. Had he done as much for freedom he might have well deserved, and hoped to have good of the planet.

Neither does it seem to be quite certain what we are to carry on the war with Utah for. Many are inclined to say it is not to correct any of the monstrosities of their ecclesiastical system—that with these we have nothing to do, over these government can have no control. That it is simply to compel them—to receive our Judges, Lawyers, Marshals, &c., and acknowledge the supremacy of our government.

If this is so. If this new and untried theory of squatter sovereignty, is to allow men and women, the veriest vagabonds upon the face of the earth, ejected with loathing and scorn from every civilized, land, to go at pleasure into any territory of the United States, and fasten upon it all the demoralizing, corruption, and anarchy of their impurity and degradation, and there to fester and rot, an unseemly ulcer gnawing at the very vitals of the republic, without any power on the part of this government to either arrest or control the contaminating curse—then is this new doctrine—not only the very quintessence of an atheistic infidelity, but it is also one fatal to the perpetuity of any government on the earth Then too, is all the toil and deprivation of our pilgrim fathers, and the blood and suffering of our revolutionary patriots, to establish a nation of christian freemen, over the shores of their western world, by this new doctrine made of none effect.—But it is not the duty of any government thus to permit and foster corruption and anarchy in its midst, and under the name of religious freedom to submit to a desecration of every sentiment of religion or even of morality revered among men or by the common understanding and sentiment of mankind, deemed essential to the security or protection—alike of society and government.

Student's Column.

Henry Kirke White.

Among the young poets of England, no one has won a more enduring or enviable reputation, or a more affectionate remembrance, among his countrymen, than has Henry Kirke White. His marvellous poetic power, his unfaltering perseverance, and untiring industry, elicits the highest admiration, while his deep earnestness, his touching and melancholy tenderness, inspires the purest and holiest emotions of love and reverence.

At an early age he evinced marks of that genius, which the world is now proud to accord him, but like too many ardent, ambitious youth, he was the victim of an adverse fortune, and had he not possessed a giant spirit that would not be crushed, his proud and noble aspirations must have been forever subdued. His father, being an illiterate man, could not sympathize with his earnest enthusiasm, and fervent admiration of the good and beautiful, and despite all the efforts of Mrs White and others, to convince him that his boy possessed extraordinary capacity, and was destined to perform more exalted labors, he fully intended making him his successor in the humble occupation in which he had labored. After much solicitation, however, he consented to give him his time, and render him pecuniary aid, as far as possible, in the prosecution of his studies.

At the age of fifteen, Henry commenced the study of Law, and thro' great self denial, and the most severe and unremitting application, he speedily acquired celebrity in his profession. But in his twelfth year, he gave evidence of great poetic talent, but with that diffidence which ever accompanies real merit, he allowed only his most intimate friends to peruse his productions, until having reached his seventeenth year, he was induced to prepare a small volume for the press. But obstacles in the way of his continued advancement were yet to be overcome—new trials awaited him.—From his boyhood he had been afflicted with deafness, which was now rapidly increasing, precluding all possibility of a continued and successful performance of his legal duties, and, consequently, a new profession must be chosen. His friends encouraged him to hope that the means afforded by the sale of his volume, would enable him to prepare himself for ministerial duties—labors to which he would never become more ardently attached, than he was to those which he abandoned, but which seemed better suited to his circumstances, and in the performance of which, he hoped to be more eminently useful to the world. He anxiously awaited the opinions of reviewers, to whom he sent copies of his book. And who can know how great must have been his mortification, to find in one of the leading periodicals, a criticism, evincing the most severe injustice and heartless cruelty.—Although at first stupefied by these unfeeling comments, he soon regained his usual energetic and undaunted spirit, and assisted by a few faithful friends he literary persons went to the University.

His excessive toil had already worn upon a constitution naturally delicate.—His strength was shattered, and the fangs of death fastened upon him, still, so intense was his anxiety to enter upon his holy work, that he would allow himself no relaxation. He would study fourteen hours daily, and in his walks would recite to himself the lessons of the day, so that his waking hours knew no rest But he struggled vainly with Fate. His disorder rapidly increased, and at the early age of twenty-one when the world had just begun to learn his talents and his virtues, when "life was in its spring, and all his promises fair," the spoiler came and brought him rest from all his toils.—Lamented White! The cares, the toils, the strife, the weariness, the sufferings of thy brief life are ended. Millions surveying thee have dropped a tear to thy dear memory, and angels watch with tenderest care around thy cherished dust.—Pure gems are the pieces he has left us, though many are incomplete. A large portion of them were written before he reached the age of nineteen. They are a biography of themselves, exhibiting unassuming pretensions, poetical fancy, undeviating principles, earnestness, tenderness, and a refined taste. He addresses himself to the heart, and imagination in poems remarkable for their sincerity and simplicity, and he who cannot appreciate and admire them and their author, for the inestimable qualities they exhibit, must be destitute of all sentiment and feeling, and all the living and quickening principles of goodness, which made his life beautiful. Many are the youthful minds, who in studying his history have been taught lessons of charity, and forbearance, diligence, and perseverance, moral excellence, and fervent piety, and with hearts overflowing with love and admiration, they have thanked "Our Father," that 'such as he have lived and died.'

Many encouraged by his example, have followed the undeviating paths of virtue, and, departing in their turn, will leave behind them "foot-prints on the sands of time."

Boston May 2.

A fire broke out this morning in the upper part of a large seven story granite building on Federal street, occupied on the lower stories by the Douglas Axe Co., and in the upper part by Sanborn, Bazin & Ellsworth as a printing office and bindery. This building was entirely destroyed, only a portion of its walls being left standing. By the falling of a wall of this building, Francis Curtis and Frank Tuttle, firemen, were killed, and Patrick Reardon and Mrs. Moran were badly injured, but may recover. The adjoining building, occupied by Messrs. Grant, Worren & Co., extensive paper dealers, was destroyed. A brick dwelling occupied as a boarding house, adjoining, was nearly destroyed by the falling walls, and it was here the fatal accident took place. The total loss is estimated at $250,000, which is mostly covered by insurance.

New York May 3.

The anniversary meeting of the Presbyterian board of Foreign missions was held in this city last night. The Rev. Dr. Dabney of Va., delivered the sermon. The receipts for the year, including a special contribution of $18,000 for repairing losses, in India, were 224,000, and the expenditures $107,000.

Washington May 3.

House.—On motion of Gartrell of Ga, a resolution was adopted that the daily hour for the meeting of the House of Representatives, on and after Wednesday next, shall be 11 o'clock instead of 12.

Stephens of Ga., gave notice that to-morrow at one o'clock he will move to take up the Senate bill for the admission of Minnesota. On motion of Stephens Wednesday and Thursday of next week were set aside for the consideration of Territorial business.

Clemens of Va., objected.

Grow moved a suspension of the rules. Refused by seventy-four against seventy-eight.

Toronto April 27.

A dinner was given to Charles Mackay last night at the Rossin House. It was largely attended by members of Parliament and others. He leaves for England to-day via. Quebec.

Riviere du Loupe, May 2.

The steamer Anglo-Saxon, from Liverpool 2 P. M. on the 21st ult. passed this point at two this afternoon, on her way to Quebec.

The U. S. corvette Cumberland was at Madeira on the 10th.

In the House of Lords, on the 19th, Lord Malmsbuty said the opinion of the law officers of the crown had just been received in regard to the seizure of the steamer Cagliara by the government of Naples. Two of them pronounced it legal, and the third pronounced it illegal. Under these circumstances the government did not think it desirable to take any strong measures in the premises at present. In the Commons, D'Israeli submitted the budget. He estimated the ordinary expenditures at about 4,000,000 over the estimated revenue, and recommended a postponement in the payment to the sinking fund and exchequer bills, and the imposition of a tax on Irish whiskey, and a penny stamp on bankers' checks to meet the deficiency. After some slight opposition, a resolution on which to found the bill for carrying into effect these propositions were agreed to. Sir DeLacy Evans and Lord Palmerston complained of the removal of Lord Howdon from the Madrid embassy, and Fitzgerald defended the action of the Government.

Washington, May 4.

Blair of Mo., from the committee on private land claims reported a bill to settle private land claims in New Mexico.

Greenwood of Ark., from the committee on Indian affairs, reported a bill to confirm the sale of the reservation held by the Christian Indians in Kansas and to provide permanent homes for them.

Faulkner, from the committee on military affairs, reported adversely on the Senate bill, granting the Rome arsenal to the State of N. Y. on certain conditions.

Davis of Mass., from the committee on naval affairs, reported a bill to amend the law granting land to sailors and mariners so as to include those of private armed vessels regularly commissioned by the U. S.

Clingman of N. C. from the committee on foreign affairs, reported a preamble that whereas, the treaty between the U. S. and Great Britain designated ... under the Clayton-Bul... interpretation placed upon it by Great Britain, a surrender of the rights of this country; and on the American construction, an entangling alliance, without mutuality of restriction, and has been productive only of misunderstanding and controversy between the two governments; hereforo

Resolved, That the President be requested to take such steps as may be, in his judgment, best calculated to effect the speedy abrogation of said treaty.

Ritchie of Pa., said there was not an unanimous report of the committee and at a proper time he desired to be heard on the subject.

Clingman asked that the consideration of the subject be postponed till to morrow. He had a personal reason, independent of a public one, for making the request.

Colfax, of Ind ,moved to lay the subject on the table. Disagreed to 32 against 110.

The consideration was then postponed until to-morrow and the Senate bill for the admission of Minnesota was taken up.

St. Louis, May 4.

The following officers of the army have arrived here; Gen's Smith and Harney, Col. Johnson, Maj. McCrea, Maj. Chapman, Captain's Humphreys and Pleasanton.

The Leavenworth Ledger says that a dispatch from Utah reached the fort on Monday last, asking for reinforcements and giving an account of the skirmish between a guerilla party of Mormons and a body of troops, under Capt. Anderson, in which 4 of both sides were killed. A company of light and heavy artillery and a company of dragoons were immediately dispatched from the fort. The statement is discredited here.

A Convention to nominate State officers met at Topeka on the 28th. H. J. Adams was nominated for Governor, Col. Halliday for Lieut. Governor and Judge Conway for Congress.

New Haven, Ct., May 4.

Tuckerman, the mail robber, was this morning brought before Judge Ingersoll of the U. S. District Court for sentence, which was, that he be imprisoned and kept at hard labor in the State prison for 21 years.

☞ A complete assortment of recently purchased Chemicals and Medicines, selected with particular reference to purity, are being received at DeMOTT'S Drug Store, one door above the Post office.

He expects to supply all things in this department in a way to meet the claims of Physicians, and the expectations of their prescriptions, so far as it regards the GENUINENESS of the articles.

There will be in constant attendence, at the store, night and day, one who can be relied upon for correctness in his services.

SPRING MEDICINE.

GET THE PUREST,
GET THE CHEAPEST,
GET THE MOST EFFICACIOUS

In short, get THE BEST, which are Dr. ROBACK'S SCANDINAVIAN BLOOD PURIFIER AND BLOOD PILLS. These wonderful Medicines are entirely vegetable, leave no bad effects, and can not by any possibility injure the most delicate constitution, Never was a good Spring Medicine so necessary as now, for in addition to the skin diseases and deranged Stomach and Liver, which every winter produces, it is most evident to all who are accustomed to note the powerful influence for good or ill that the mind has upon the late that the anxiety of mobites, has injured the wide arwakth of almost every one. Then cleanse, strengthen and purify your system with the Scandinavian Remtdies, and you will probably save yourself from serious illness the coming Summer.

☞ See Advertisement.

MOFFAT'S LIFE PILLS AND PHOENIX BITTERS.

The very painful symptoms which precede the attacks of fever and ague can be suppressed and all danger arrested, by the use of these valuable medicines. The pills and bitters are also a cure for rheumatism, and every variety of bowel complaint.

Sold by W. B. Moffat, 335 Broadway, N. Y., Taylor & Curtis Agents, Tecumseh.

SORE AND INFLAMED EYES.—These disagreeable complaints are becoming remarkably prevalent of late, and giving any thing but an interesting look to the possessor of the diseased organ. "A red and fiery eye" is not pretty to look at, and certainly cannot be agreeable to have "for keeps," as the boys say. We can tell those afflicted in this manner how to cure the evil, and, won't charge them any thing for the information. Let them get some of BRAGG'S ARCTIC LINIMENT and touch the inflamed part with it a few times, and the work is done. The Arctic Liniment may be obtained at any of the Drug stores in this place

DR. J. C. AYER, the world renowned Chemist of New England, is now stopping at the Burnet house in this city. He has been making a tour of the Western States, with his scientific associates, to investigate their remedial productions, or such as he can make remedial. We notice he has been received with marked distinction by our leading citizens of the West and are rejoiced to find they have shown a proper estimate of the man who has perhaps done more for the relief of human ills than any other American.—Cincinnati Journal.

The most skeptical people can be convinced by trial that all the family medicines are not humbug, and that among the thousand of butterly life there are a few of great merit, and undoubted worth. Of these, Dr. Sanford's Invigorator, or Liver Remedy stands first and foremost among the remedies of the day that can be relied on as a medicine that is all that is recommended by its proprietors.

It advertises itself on every trial, for there are none who use it but tell their friends to do so, and so it goes from mouth to mouth till all the people of the Union have learned the good of this truly valuable medicine. It is recommended with testimonials to prove its virtue for the cure of liver complaints of every kind, from the worst Dyspepsia to a common headache, and is particularly adapted to Jaundice, Deranged Stomach, Bowel Complaints and diseases of children

One or two doses are said to cure a cold with scarce a failure. It is worth a trial for this alone. It is particularly adapted to use of ladies, particularly those of sedentary habits. Some ladies of the highest standing in society have given their certificates of its efficacy, and we say to all who are ailing, try one bottle, and you will never be without it.

☞ Repository.—The May No., of this uniformly excellent Magazine is received and we notice with pleasure. It contains a beautiful plate engraving entitled "Children playing" also another entitled "Scene on the River Inn at Passau." Its table of contents is too extended and varied to permit us to attempt its enumeration. "Dots" by Prof. O M Spencer. Across the Atlantic." 'How I came to be Raccous' by Mrs. Jewett. 'Growing Up Our Youth' by Dr. Thompson. 'A prayer for any fate' by Mary Deming, and poetry 'I stood beneath thy boughs" by Isabella Clark and 'Our Household Gods" by Lena Linwood, are all worthy of notice. Address Messrs. Sworm-stedt & Poe, Cincinnati, Ohio. Terms $3 per annum.

☞ Peninsular and Independent.—This new united Medical Journal of Detroit is not only an ornament to the profession in Michigan, but it is an addition to the medical Literature of the country. Is is ably edited by Prof's. Sager & Gunn, and F. Stearns M. D. and published by Messrs. Higby & Stearns of Detroit. Terms $2,00 per annum. Dr. Gunn's excellent address to the last Medical Graduating Class at the Mich., University and an able article upon "The Diseases of Children" by Prof. A. B. Palmer are the leading articles of the May No.

☞ SINGULAR FREAK OF THE LIGHTNING.—Mr. Buttman, the telegraph operator in Bloomville, Sandusky county, Ohio, received quite a severe shock of lightning during the storm on Saturday evening last. Mr. B. was stooping under the instrument when he received the stroke, and upon gradually recovering from the shock, found himself on the outside of the counter on the floor, with a tremedous lame foot and leg. The fluid passed out at his boot, which burst in its exit, but before taking final leave of him, it seems to have rolled him over the counter, and set his boot in no very gentle manner on the outside. The stroke was so severe as to confine Mr. Buttman to his room several days.

New York Correspondence.

New York, April 29, 1858.

The Orsini demonstration has been the event of the week The lurid flames of the revolutionary torch and European Red Republicanism, threw their ghastly glare athwart our thoroughfares to give imposing significance to the occasion. Five thousand refugees, exiles and their sympathizers, with lighted flambeaus in their hands, and the fires of vengeance in their hearts, marched in procession down Broadway and the Bowery to the PARK, where a rostrum had been erected, and 20,000 people assembled to honor the memories of the several conspirators who have suffered death for attempting the life of the French Emperor. The exercises were engineered by John Allen, an American, who called the vast assemblage to order made the opening speech, read the resolutions, and introduced the speaker of the evening, Alberto C. Mazzi, who discoursed in Italian. The drift and substance of the resolutions and speeches was this:—Before high heaven Louis Napoleon is but a man as the rest of us are, with none of the accordotal flummery about Dei Gratia and the Divine Right of Kings, to consecrate his Perjured Highness; even if it could sanction any right but that of the people to rule. From the moment of his usurpation of empire, he crowded his prisons and penal colonies with more than 200,000 victims, the best souls and bodies of France, large numbers of whom died and are yet daily dying, from the cruelties of their incarceration and exile. To stop this wholesale slaughter of thousands of men by one man, it is an eminently right, just and even Christian duty, to terminate the existence of that one man.

Having usurped his imperial position, and leaped upon the backs of people by force and fraud and perjury, he ought to be extinguished as remorselessly as a conflagration that was consuming the population. And so the speakers went on to justify tyrannicide. Some very brave and excellent people among us have been quite frightened about this affair, as though we had a tyrant of our own to explode bombs at; but there was no cause for alarm. It began in lager beir, culminated in enthusiasm, and ended in smoke

We have a one horse court in this city, called the Marine Court, (Horse Marine,) fancifully so called, because there is very little marine business transacted in it. Its decisions are made mainly to tell to the marines, but never to be respected or set up as precedents. Well, one of the horse-hair wigged ladges of this court, the other day, trotted out Dred Scott, the crackest nag now on the judicial course, gave him an airing in high blood style, and rode him rough shod over the complaint of a poor old colored woman who has no rights that one of our white conductors (a one donkey car at that) felt bound to respect The old woman wanted to ride and pay her five pence like white folks, but the conductor would not let her, pushed her off the car, and did her material personal damage. Hence her complaint upon which Judge Thompson charged the jury at much length, and laid down the following rules of law:

That negroes do not possess the same right and privileges of white men; remarking that the Dred Scott decision was not only sound law, and should be obeyed by every good citizen of the community, but that it was founded on principles of justice, reason, and Christianity. That the plaintiff, being a negro, had no right to a seat in the car in question; that it was the duty of [illegible] to expel her under the rules and regulations of the company; that the company had the right to establish such rules and regulations; that negroes might be permitted, but were not entitled to a seat in a public conveyance.—That the only question for the jury to consider was whether the defendant used any more force than was necessary to put the plaintiff off the cars. That if he did she was entitled to a verdict; otherwise it must be for the defendant. The jury retired, and in a short time returned with a verdict for the defendant.

The hat-shop windows in Broadway are displaying the new regulation army hat. It is modelled after the style known as "Kossuth," color black, rim turned up at one side to furnish sticking place for a black ostrich feather, gold lace bugle and other ornaments according to the rank of the wearer. It looks exceedingly trim and picturesque, and must be a great relief to the head of the soldier, though I cannot think it altogether befitting his profession, as, I remember a soft hat turneth away wrath, and how can a soldier do battle unless he be brimful of vengeance?

The artistic brush and chiseling of our national Academy of Design are now in the full tide of annual exhibition, and a fairer, rarer showing is seldom seen than the magnificent series of sky-lighted rooms, whose walls are adorned with every variety of landscape, sea sketch, social, rural and domestic grouping, with here and there a "storied urn and animated bust." On fine afternoons, strolling through these gaily crowded Art Halls, one knows not which to admire most, the pictures of the originals or the originals of the pictures, as frequently the visitor is enabled to detect the one in the throng by the portrayed reflex of the other on the walls. The collection is formed exclusively of original pictures and sculptures of living artists, whose works, now exhibited, have never before been seen in this city.

The fourth lecture in behalf of woman, for the benefit of the Shirt Sewers' Union, was given last week by Lucy Stone, the world-renowned arch-agitator of the "woman question." Her argument was well stated; for incredible as it may appear to many, though a woman, she did deal in argument, and no bogus or imitation argument either. She pictured the evils that flow to society from a non-recognition in our laws of the equality of woman with man, from the denial to her of the elective franchise, and of equal access with men to all industrious avocations that she is qualified to pursue. The audience was very large and respectable, James T. Brady, Esq., who gave the first lecture of this course was on the platform, with many other members of the bar, judiciary and city government. For once Lucy expounded the Law in the presence of the very Doctors of Law, and many were astonished at her sayings.

Our Devlin dies hard. Indeed he is kicking the bucket yet, and the question whether he is dead is to be argued in court next Saturday on a motion to enjoin Edward Cooper from taking possession of the office of Street Commissioner in place of Devlin removed.

Bragg's Arctic Liniment.

This incomparable Liniment, upon which the great mass of afflicted of all lands now rely for relief from the pains of Rheumatism: Neuralgia, Gout, Erysipelas Cancer, Scrofula, Sprains, Bruises, Burns, Scalds and all cutaneous diseases, is rapidly superseding all similar preparations. The proprietors give for the encouragement of sufferers, the following memorandum of a few of the wonderful cures effected by it during the past few months. Certificates post the parties named are in the possession of the proprietors; their length precludes the publication of all but a few.

One Bottle Triumphant.

Mrs. Moffitt, No 346 Morgan Street, St Louis, having suffered for three years with Rheumatism, and tried many preparations without effect, was cured by one fifty cent bottle of Arctic Liniment.

Out of Purgatory

Henry Darby, Mound street, St. Louis, who says he was "suffering the pangs of purgatory" with neuralgia for months, was cured by three or four applications of the Arctic Liniment.

Pity the Little Children.

A little daughter of Mrs. Lee, residing on Lake St. Chicago, was scalled all over by the upsetting of a kittle of boiling water. The Arctic Liniment was applied according to the directions, and the fire was instantly extracted, and in a few days the little sufferer was well.

Restored to Beauty.

Mrs George K. Tyler, Canal street, N Orleans had long suffered from a painful and disfiguring eruption on the face, and by the use of one bottle of the Liniment was cured, and restored to her original beauty.

A Horrible Tumor.

Eugene Mallory, Natchez, was three years the victim of a horrible tumor on the neck, which resisted all remedies until he tried the Arctic Liniment. Three bottles cured him in a few weeks.

Wonderful Cure!

Mrs Bedford, Mobile, was confined to her couch for three years with numb palsy and after being in despair from the failure of all other remidies, was cured by the Arctic Liniment, in a little over a month.

An Explosion.

Memphis, Tenn., Nov. 28th, 1857.

I hereby certify, that having been badly bruised and scaled by the explosion of a Steam Boiler, a friend induced me to try Bragg's Arctic Liniment. The smart was instantly extracted from the scalds, and in a very short time all the pain was gone from the bruises.—In two weeks I was well, and able to resume my business.

The Blind see!

Webster City, Iowa, Nov. 9th, 1857.

Dr. A. G. BRAGG.—Dear Sir:—For more than three years I had been afflicted with inflamed eyes, in an aggravated degree, and tried various Physicians, and several nostrums, to no effect. I was induced by Dr. Baum to try the Arctic Liniment, and in two months was nearly well. My little daughter was afflicted in the same manner for the same time, and during a portion of the time was entirely blind in one eye. I applied your valuable Liniment, and her eyes are perfectly sound. This have I with one two-bitt bottle cured my daughter's eyes and my own, besides curing the rheumatism in my back. I would not be without your invaluable remedy in my house. Yours Truly

WM. RUSSELL.

Webster City, Iowa, Nov. 9th, 1857.

I hereby certify, that I am well acquainted with Wm Russell, and with the astonishing cures he mentions, and know his statement to be strickly true.

Good for Animals.

This invaluable Liniment is also equally efficatious in curing the diseases of animals as witness the following certificate; Messrs J. & A. Arnot, and Lynch, Arnot & Co., keep the two largest livery stables in the west, and are generally known throughout the U. S.

St. Louis, Dec 23rd, 1857.

We, the undersigned, having used Dr. Bragg's Arctic Liniment for a number of months, cheerfully testify to its superior efficacy in curing the diseases of horses; so well are we satisfied of the Arctic being the best Liniment made, that we would use no other. We keep and have kept for a number of years, extensive livery stables in this city, and consequently our experience about horses and their diseases is great, and we unhesitatingly say, that the Arctic Liniment is the only one we have ever found ALWAYS EFFECTIVE. We cordially recommend it to all livery stable keepers and others having the care of horses.

J. & A. ARNOT,
LYNCH, ARNOT & CO
Chestnut Street.

Caution,

Many Druggists, having old liniments on hand, will try to sell them to you as the best, but do you positively refuse to purchase them. Ask for "BRAGG'S ARCTIC LINIMENT," and take no other.

Liberal Proposition.

The proprietors agree to furnish each purchaser of a dollar bottle, with a free subscription to the U. S. Journal, for one year. This is one of the best N. Y. illustrated papers. A certificate entitling the holder to the benefit of this proposition, is enclosed in the wrapper around every dollar bottle. The Arctic Liniment is put up in 25 cent 50 cent and $1. bottles. The 50 cent and $1 bottles contain 50 and 100 per cent more Liniment in proportion to their cost, and are the cheapest. For sale by

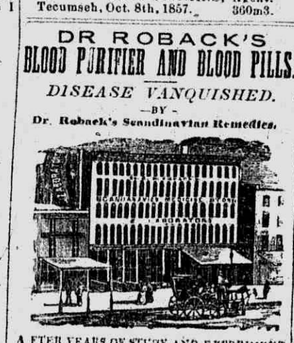
DR ROBACK'S

BLOOD PURIFIER AND BLOOD PILLS.

DISEASE VANQUISHED.

—BY—

Dr. Roback's Scandinavian Remedies.



AFTER YEARS OF STUDY AND EXPERIMENT Dr. Roback the eminent Swedish Physician, succeeded in producing a medicine from twenty-three different species of mountain herbs of his native land, which acts directly upon the cause of disease in the blood. And by restoring the corrupted fountain of life to a condition of health and purity, expels disease from the system, wherever it may be located, or whatever may be its character. Indigestion, nervous complaints, eplectic fits, coughs, consumption in its early stages sore throat, bronchitis, fever and ague asthma, and debility Kidney and domatic of paralysis, rheumatism, of respiration, the liver, the stomach, the nerves, or the muscular fiber are unerringly cured by this preparation. It is to the materia medi or seeds of disease what an alkali is to an acid—it neutralizes them with absolute certainty; while at the same time it regulates the secretions, removes obstructions from the bowels, creates appetite, renews bodily vigor, and regenerates every animal function. Such is the nature, such are the effects of Dr. Roback's famous Scandinavian Blood Purifier, which, if taken in conjunction with his Scandinavian Blood Pills, will not only obliterate the most painful disease, but prevent their recurrence, and lengthen life beyond the ordinary span.

In the SCANDINAVIAN VEGETABLE BLOOD PILLS, Dr. Roback presents the result of twenty years of experience, hard study and experiment as to what a perfect pill should be. No one can doubt their superiority after one single trial. Price of the Scandinavian Blood Purifier, $1 per bottle, or $5 per half-dozen; Scandinavian Blood Pills, 25 cents per box, or five for $1.

Penn, Miami Co. Ind. Aug. 4, 1857.

DR. C. W. ROBACK: I have received so much benefit from your scandinavian Blood Purifier and Blood Pills, that I have thought it my duty and it is no less my inclination to give you a plain statement of my case. I was for years afflicted with that bane of all comfort, and efficiency in business dyspepsia. To recapitulate all the so called remedies which I have used to rid myself of this disease, would indeed make a melancholy catalogue. I also consulted with the best physicians I could hear of. I was induced to try your remedies through the persuasions of a friend, and after using them a few days was greatly benefitted, and in a short time, less than a month, I was entirely and permanently cured. I was also afflicted with the most violent nervous headache, which I suppose was produced by my disordered stomach, for when my dispepsia left me, my headache left with it. I now feel better in every respect than I have for ten years.

Very truly yours, JOHN S. DEMUTH.

From the Rev. Mr. McMULLEN, Pastor of Roberts Chapel:

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 5, 1857.

DR. C. W. ROBACK—Dear Sir: I have used your Blood Purifier for a nervous affection, from which I have suffered much at times. While it is pleasant to the taste, it certainly has a happy effect upon the nerves. Please accept my thanks for your kind regards and acts, and believe me,

Yours, J. W. E. McMULLEN.

FROM A WELL-KNOWN STEAMBOAT CLERK.

LOUISVILLE, June 7, 1857

DEAR DOCTOR: Send me half a dozen boxes of your Pills, care of H. G. Curd & Co., so I can get them next trip. Six weeks ago nothing could have convinced me that a twenty-five cent box of Pills could have relieved my obstinate chronic constipation, with its attending evils. I told you so when I bought them, but I am bound to own that your Pills fill the contract. Why, I have taken as many as six (6) of ——'s and other makers' sometimes without effect and sometimes with too much effect; but I have no trouble with yours—they are just what I want.

CINCINNATI, Friday, Sept. 4, 1857.

DR. ROBACK—Dear Sir: Having been afflicted with neuralgia or rheumatism for the past year and a half, and having seen your medicine, called the Scandinavian Blood Purifier, highly recommended by gentlemen with whom I am acquainted, I was induced to try it, but not before I had used various other medicines—After using two bottles I felt its effect very sensibly, and upon using two more, I found myself perfectly cured. You will allow me, therefore, to congratulate you upon having a discovery in medicine which is proving itself to be a worker of such wonders in the diseases of the human family.

GEORGE S. BENNETT.

Local Editor Cincinnati Daily Enquirer.

INDIANAPOLIS, Wednesday Sept. 2, 1857.

DR. C. W. ROBACK Dear Sir: Having been troubled for several years with extreme debility and weakness, so much so that I was unable to attend to my ordinary business at times, and having heard of the wonderful cures that your Scandinavian Blood Purifier and Pills were effecting, I was induced by a friend to try them. I have been using the Purifier for the last twelve months, and find the medicine fully equal to its recommendations. So valuable is it to me that I cannot now dispense with the use of it at my advanced age of life—seventy-seven years.

I cheerfully give this information for the benefit of those similarly afflicted. MORRIS MORRIS.

Phœnix Bitters

THE BEST FAMILY MEDICINE NOW before the public, for the cure of Scrofula, Ulcers, Scurvy, or Eruptions of the Skin Fever and Ague, Dyspepsia, Dropsy, and in fact most all diseases soon yield to their curative proprities.

It has been computed that during the last twenty five years upwards of FOUR MILLIONS of persons have been benefited by the use of these medicines; a fact which speaks volumes in favor of their curative properties; a single trial will place them beyond the reach of competition in the estimate of every patient. By their use the BLOOD IS RESTORED TO A HEALTHY STATE and freed from all impurities. The system is not reduced during their operation, but invigorated, and they require no restraint from business or pleasure.

The afflicted have in these medicines a remedy that will do for them all that medicine can possibly effect.

Cure for Cancers.

IT OUGHT TO BE UNIVERSALLY KNOWN.

Our attention has been recently called to a cure of cancers, which is of so much importance, that we wish to make it known as widely as possible. Some eight months ago Mr. T. B. Mason—who keeps a music store on Wisconsin street, and is a brother of the well known Lowell Mason—ascertained that he had a cancer on his face, of the size of a pea. It was cut out by Dr. Woolcott, and the wound partially healed. Subsequently it grew again, and while he was in Cincinnati on business, it attained the size of a hickory nut. He has remained there since Christmas under treatment and has come back perfectly cured. The process was this:

A peice of sticking plaster was put over the cancer, with a circular peice cut out of the centre a little larger than the cancer, so that the cancer and a small circular rim of healthy skin next to it was exposed. Then a plaster made of chloride of zinc, [illegible] on a peice of muslin of the size of this circular opening and applied to the cancer 24 hours. On removing it, the cancer will be found to be burnt and into, appear of the color and hardness of an old burnt shoe sole, and the circular rim outside of it will appear white and parboiled, as if scalded by hot steam. The wound is now dressed and the outside rim soon suppurates and the cancer comes out a hard lump and the place heals up. The plaster kills the cancer so that it sloughs out like dead flesh, and never grows again. This remedy was discovered by Dr. Fell of London, and has been used by him for six or eight years, with unfailing success, and not a case has been known of the reappearance of the cancer where this remedy has been applied. It has the sanction of the most eminent physicians and surgeons in London, but has not till recently, been used in this country, and many of the faculty, with their proverbial opposition to innovations, look upon it with distrust.—Milwaukee Free Democrat.

AGRICULTURAL.

Top-Dressing Meadows.

A correspondent of Emery's Journal of Agriculture gives his experience in top dressing meadows as follows:

My first experiment in top-dressing meadows, was in 1850. The soil was deep loam with a clay subsoil, from which I had taken the third crop of clean timothy; the last crop was 1¼ tons per acre. On this field I drew during the first part of October, 25 loads of half decomposed yard and stable manure, spreading it evenly over the ground as I drew it. The following season was dry. I got but about 1 ton per acre. My next trial was in 1852. The soil a heavy loam a little clayey. On this field I drew, 20 loads of barn yard manure, which I left in one half load heaps [illegible]. This meadow was a mixture of clover and timothy. The yield was increased from ½ to 2 tons per acre, but fell back after the second crop.—My next trial was on an old timothy and red top meadow, which was very much bound out, producing only three quarters of a ton per acre. The soil was a black sandy loam. On this field I drew, in the fall, twenty loads of old decomposed yard manure, which was spread the next April. The product was one ton the first year, and ¾ of a ton the second year. I have compared notes with an old neighbor, farmer, who has tried top dressing his meadows. The result of his operations has been about the same as mine. A slight improvement when applied in the spring, an entire failure when applied in the fall. I do not doubt that in some seasons, and on some soils, top dressing might pay, but not generally.

Dressing For Strawberries

Dr. Wm. Taylor of Manlius, has used the following dressing for a strawberry bed for four years past with good results. He says the bed, instead of running out, has improved [illegible]rly—fruit larger, yield better, and has not applied any manure during [illegible] time. If you think best, you can [illegible]sh it, but not over his signature [illegible]me, as I have not tried it, but [illegible] is season: 1 lb. Glauber Sal. Nitre, 1 lb. Sal Am Sal Soda. Put into one [illegible]nd stir up till dissolv'd, the bbl., when the [illegible] in the Spring—[illegible]weeks and the [illegible]mmence [illegible]ove is [illegible]. C.

New York Advertisements.

DO YOU EVER
WANT ANY THING
FROM NEW YORK?
IF SO, SEND YOUR ORDER TO
F. S. CABOT & CO.,
BUYERS, 85 BARCLAY STREET.

Almost every one, certainly every merchant, has sometimes very strongly wished that he had a reliable correspondent and friend living in the great metropolis to whom he could pay for the transaction of some business or the purchase of some article, that he could not make it convenient to go to the city to do, or to buy himself with full confidence that the business would be well done and at a reasonable expense to him. Having become satisfied by a considerably extended observation and experience that this is an almost universal want, we have established our house to supply it. We have found that thousands of persons from Maine to Georgia are constantly sending to us to execute orders, involving purchases varying in amount from 25 cents to as many hundred dollars, and we believe in every case, those employing us have been satisfied both with the quality of the services rendered and the equity of our charges. We mean that our charges shall in all cases be fair and reasonable, being predicated on the time and labor consumed. It is certain that being constantly in the market buying largely for cash, we can buy better than any single purchaser can. In fact, we save to our friends much more in prices than the commission we charge. No man who only occasionally comes here can be familiar with a market so extensive as this. We being here all the time, are thoroughly acquainted with it, and know where to go to find everything in first hands and at the lowest rates. We have found that many of our distant friends wish to send us country produce to sell, sometimes the proceeds to be invested in goods sometimes in money. Accordingly we have made the very best arrangements to enable us to do justice to those who may consign to us. Our charges for selling are a usually five per cent, although in special cases of very large or very small transactions equity might require it to be varied from that. We have a circular giving more at length the expenses and plan of our business with statement of cash charges for buying some of the leading articles, which will be sent on application.

Those only should enclose stamps to prepay the reply.

Patent Medicines.

ONE DOLLAR
WILL BUY
ONE OF THE BEST PURGATIVE AND LIVER MEDICINES now before the public namely DR. SANFORD'S INVIGORATOR, or LIVER REMEDY, that acts as a Cathartic Tonic milder and more effectual than any other medicine known. It is not only a Cathartic but a Liver remedy, acting direct on the Liver to eject its morbid, matter then on the stomach and bowels to carry off that matter thus accomplishing two purposes effectually, without any of the nauseating properties of most cathartics. It strengthens the system at the same time that it purges it, and when taken daily in moderate doses will strengthen and build it up with sensual rapidity.

DR. SANFORD'S INVIGORATOR is compounded entirely from new articles of medicine, namely, Gums.

Some idea of the strength of these gums may be formed when it is known that one bottle of the Invigorator contains as much strength as one hundred doses of Calomel, without any of its deleterious effects.

Though possessing rare medical powers, these Gums have been but little known to Physicians, and never used in their prescriptions until used in the form of the Invigorator, which met with such unprecedented success as to induce the proprietor to offer it as a family medicine tried and known in its effects. It has rarely ever failed to cure LIVER Complaints in their worst forms.

INDIGESTION being caused by a deranged Liver is cured when the Liver is excited to action.

JAUNDICE is caused by an improper action of the Liver, and as a proof that the Invigorator relieves this disease, let any one troubled with Jaundice take the Invigorator regularly one week, and their skin will begin to assume its original color.

COSTIVENESS can be permanently cured by the Invigorator. Take it in small doses on retiring and it will assist nature in her operations. By gradually diminishing the dose, the bowels are left in a healthy and active state, and work as regularly as clock work.

SICK HEADACHE is very soon relieved by taking a double dose of the Invigorator, which corrects all acidity and sourness of the stomach.

For an over-loaded stomach it has no equal, as it relieves all oppressive or uneasy feeling after eating heartily. For a FAMILY MEDICINE generally, all who use it speak in the highest terms.

DR. SANFORD'S INVIGORATOR came to us as well-tested remedy from a Diseased Liver. The testimonials of so many of our Physicians in its favor, induced us to try it, and now conviction is certain that it is one of the greatest blessings ever given to Dyspeptics for it made a complete cure before the first bottle was taken, and no we can eat anything edible without trouble, while before to eat the lightest food would digest, and often that gave pain. Now what we want to say to all our readers is, if Liver Complaints or Dyspepsia trouble you, do not fail to try this the greatest remedy in the world.—State Fact.

We take infinite pleasure in recommending this medicine as a preventative for FEVER and AGUE, CHILL FEVER, and all FEVERS of a BILIOUS TYPE. It operates with certainty and thousands are willing to testify to its wonderful virtues.

There has never been a medicine in our family a remedy that has met with such unbounded success in the cure of diseases incident to children as DR SANFORD'S INVIGORATOR; nor is it alone for diseases of children that we use it; for it acts as a Cathartic so mildly and gently, and seems to renovate the system so thoroughly that we think we are doing a service to the whole family when we give them a dose of medicine to try this remedy. There are cases that have come under our notice where other medicines failed to relieve, and this has effected a perfect cure. Let the Liver, Stomach and Bowels where all other remedies failed to give relief. It had become so useful in our family that we will not be without it.—Jacksonville, Ala. Republican.

HOWARD ASSOCIATION
PHILADELPHIA.

A Benevolent Institution, established by special endowment for the relief of the sick and distressed, afflicted with Virulent and Epidemic diseases.

THE HOWARD ASSOCIATION in view of the awful destruction of human life, caused by Sexual diseases, and the deceptions practised upon the unfortunate victims of such diseases by Quacks, several years ago directed their Consulting Surgeon, as a CHARITABLE ACT worthy of their name, to open a Dispensary for the treatment of this class of disease in all their forms, and to give MEDICAL ADVICE GRATIS to all who apply by letter, with a description of their condition (age, occupation, habits of life, &c.) and in cases of extreme poverty, to FURNISH MEDICINES FREE OF CHARGE. It is needless to add that the Associat on commands the highest Medical skill, of the age, and will furnish the most approved modern treatment.

The Directors of the Association in their Annual Report upon the treatment of Sexual Diseases, for the year ending January 1st, 1858, express the highest satisfaction with the success which has attended the labors of the Consulting Surgeon in the cure of Spermatorhœa, Seminal Weakness, Impotence, Gonorrhœa, Gleet, Syphilis the vice of Onanism or Self abuse &c., and order a continuance of the same plan for the en uing year.

The Directors on a review of the past feel assured that their labors in the sphere of benevolent effort have been of great benefit to the afflicted, especially to the young, and they have resolved to devote themselves with renewed zeal, to this very important and much neglected cause.

An admirable Report on Spermatorhœa or Seminal Weakness, the vice of Onanism or Self abuse &c., will be sent by mail (in a sealed envelope) FREE OF CHARGE, on receipt of TWO STAMPS for postage. Other Reports and Tracts on the nature and treatment of sexual diseases diet &c. are constantly being published for gratuitous distribution and will be sent to the afflicted. Some of the new remedies and methods of treatment discovered during the last year are of great value.

Cathartic Pills,
(SUGAR COATED,)
AND MADE TO

CLEANSE THE BLOOD AND CURE THE SICK.

Invalids, Fathers, Mothers, Physicians, Philanthropists, read their Effects, and Judge of their Virtues.

FOR THE CURE OF

Headache, Sick Headache, Foul Stomach,

DR. J. C. AYER. Sir: I have been troubled some of the worst headache, and only can have by a dose of your Pills. It seems to relieve from a full they cleanse at once. If they will cure others as they me, the fact is worth knowing.

Yours with great respect, ED. W. PEEBLES, Clerk of Senate Chamber.

Bilious Disorders and Liver Complaints,

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 16th, 1857.

SIR: I have used your Pills in my practice ever since you made them, and say they are the best cathartic we employ. They are a purifying action on the liver is quick and decided, consequently they are an admirable remedy for derangement of that organ. Indeed, I have seldom found a case of bilious disease so obstinate that it did not readily yield to them.

Fraternally yours, ALONZO BALL, M. D., Physician of the Marine Hospital.

Dysentery, Relax, and Worms.

POST OFFICE, HARTLAND, LIV. CO., MICH., Nov. 16, 1856.

DR. AYER: Your Pills are the perfection of medicine. They have done my wife more good than I can tell you. She had been sick and pining away for months. Was given off to be doctored at great expense, but got no better. She then commenced taking your Pills, which soon cured her, by expelling large quantities of worms (dead) from her body. They afterwards cured her and our two children of bloody dysentery. One of our neighbors had it bad, and my wife cured him with two doses of your Pills, which others around us paid from five to twhary dollars doctor bills, and lost much time, without being cured entirely even then. Such a medicine as yours, which is actually good and honest, will be prized here, as it deserves.

OSO. J. GRIFFIN, Postmaster.

Indigestion and Impurity of the Blood

From Rev. J. V. Himes, Pastor of Advent Church, Boston.

DR. AYER: I have used your Pills with extraordinary success in my family and among them I am called upon to administer. To regulate the organs of digestion and purify the blood they are the very best remedy I have ever known, and I can confidently recommend them to my friends. J. V. HIMES.

WARSAW, WYOMING CO., N. Y., Feb. 18, 1858.

DEAR SIR: I am using your Cathartic Pills in my practice, and find them an excellent purgative to cleanse the system, and purify the fountains of the blood.

JOHN G. MEACHAM, M. D.

Erysipelas, Scrofula, King's Evil, Tetter, Tumors, and Salt Rheum.

From a Rewarding Merchant of St. Louis, Mo.

DR. AYER: Your Pills are the paragon of all the great in medicine. They have cured my little daughter of ulcerous sores upon her hands and feet that had proved incurable for years. Her mother has been long grievously afflicted with blotches and pimples on her face and her hair. After our child was cured, she also tried your Pills, and they have cured her. ASA MORGRIDGE.

Rheumatism, Neuralgia, and Gout.

From the Rev. Dr. Hawkes, of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

HONORED SIR: I should be ungrateful for the relief my skill has brought me if I did not report my case to you. A cold settled in my limbs and shoulders, producing the most excruciating neuralgic pains, which ended in chronic rheumatism. Notwithstanding I had the best [illegible] attention, my case grew worse and worse, until, by the advice of your excellent agent in Baltimore, Dr. Mackenzie, I was induced to try your Pills. Their effects were slow, but sure. By persevering in the use of them I am now entirely well.

SENATE CHAMBER, BATON ROUGE, LA., 5 Dec, 1856.

DR. AYER: I have been entirely cured by your Pills of Rheumatic Gout—a painful disease that had afflicted me for years. VINCENT SURGET.

For Dropsy, Plethora, or Kindred Complaints, requiring an active purge, they are an excellent remedy.

For Costiveness or Constipation, as a Dinner Pill, they are agreeable and effectual.

Fits, Suppression, Paralysis, Indigestion, Asthma, Liver Complaints, and Partial Blindness, have been cured by the alternative action of these Pills.

Most of the pills in market contain Mercury, which, though a valuable remedy in skilful hands, is dangerous in a public pill, from the dreadful consequences that frequently follow its incautious use. These contain no mercury or mineral substance whatever.

OUR CHILD.

Another hand is beckoning us,
Another call is given,
And glows once more with angel-steps
The path which reaches heaven.

Our young and gentle child, whose smile
Made brighter summer hours,
Amid the frosts of autumn time
Has left us with the flowers.

No paleing of the cheek of bloom
Forewarned us of decay;
No shadow's from the silent land
Fell round our sister's way.

The light of her young life went down,
As sinks behind the hill
The glory of a setting star—
Clear, suddenly and still.

As pure and sweet her fair brow seemed
Eternal as the sky;
And like the brook's low song, her voice—
A sound which could not die.

And half we deemed she needed not
The changing of her sphere,
To give to heaven a shining one,
Who walked an angel here.

The blessing of her quiet life
Fell on us like the dew;
And good thoughts where her footsteps pressed
Like fairy blossoms grew.

Sweet promptings unto kindest deeds
Were in her very look,
We read her face as one who reads
A pure and holy book.

The measure of a blessed hymn,
To which our hearts could move,
The breathing of an inward psalm,
A canticle of love.

We miss her in the place of prayer
And by the hearth fire's light;
We pause beside her door to hear
Once more, her sweet 'good night!'

There seems a shadow on the day
Her smile no longer cheers;
A dimness on the stars of night,
Like eyes that look through tears.

Alone unto our father's will
One thought hath reconciled;
That he whose love exceedeth ours
Hath taken home his child.

Fold her, oh Father! in thine arms,
And let her home be,
A messenger of love between
Our human hearts and thee.

WHITTIER.

"BROTHER JONATHAN."—The origin of this term, as applied to the United States, is as follows:

While Gen. Washington, after being appointed commander-in-chief of the army of the revolutionary war, went to Massachusetts to organize it, he found a great want of ammunition and other means for its defence; and on one occasion it seemed that no means could be devised for [illegible] Trumbull, the older, was then Governor of the State of Connecticut; and the General, placing the greatest reliance on his excellency's judgement, remarked, "We must consult Brother Jonathan on the subject." The General did so; and the Governor was successful in supplying many of the wants of the army and thenceforth when difficulties arose and the army was spread over the country, it became a by phrase: "We must consult Brother Jonathan:" and the name has now become a designation for the whole country, as John Bull has for England.—Dictionary of Americanism, by J. R. Bartlett.

SUPPORT YOUR HOME PAPER.—The Cleveland Herald talks thus sensibly upon the duty of supporting home papers

'Recollect, if a home paper is to be supported, home influence must do it, every dollar sent to eastern papers is at the expense of the local papers. A country acquires prominence through its paper more than in any other way, and to every one who has county interests at stake, his home paper is a necessity. Never will such a man take a paper printed away from home until he is able to take a second paper. His first paper will be his home sheet, and he will so identify his own interests with that of his county paper as to consider his subscription as much a matter of yearly duty as the payment of his taxes.'

IMPORTANT TO SPORTSMEN.—To load a gun properly, the following is the rule to be observed;

Try it repeatedly with charges, consisting of equal bulks of powder and shot, till you come to which the gun will not recoil, or but slightly. This will give the proper quantity of shot. With this load, however the gun will scatter in all directions. To correct this, reduce the quantity of powder until you find that the shot is carried as close as you desire. A gun loaded thus will never burst. To make it carry further, use shot of a larger size. No gun should be fired more than twenty times without being wiped out.

"Mrs. Grimes lend me your tub." "Can't do it—all the hoops are off—it's full of suds; besides, I never had one; I washes in a barrel."

The Border Heroine.

A STORY OF ARKANSAS LIFE.

Some years ago, before the State of Arkansas was so densely populated as now, and when the mail from Little Rock to the borders was carried on horseback, there lived a few miles above Horse Head, a stout pioneer named Jacob Bornap.—His wife, Polly and one child—a girl!—only nine years old—made up his family. His chief business was hunting, and his unerring rifle never failed to supply his board, and something over. His nearest neighbor was fifteen miles off, so he was little troubled with prying visitors.

It was in early spring that they started with a load of furs and skins. He left Polly in charge of the premises, and left with her a light rifle and a brace of pistols She knew how to use that rifle, for never was she happier than when her husband patted her on the shoulder, and said—'Nobly done; Poll, my dear'. I could not have made a better shot myself. And he often had occasion to say this, and with truth, too.

Jacob Burnap had been gone four days when towards evening, a horseman rode up to the hunter's door. He was a small, muscular man, some forty years of age, and seemed inured to all sorts of hardships. As he sprang from his saddle Polly made her appearance.

'Ah, Polly—once more here', the new comer said, as he drew a pair of well filled saddle bags from the back of his beast.

'Yes, and I am glad to see you Morton. Jacob has been gone four days, and the time is growing heavy.'

'Jacob gone! where?'

'Down the river with a load of furs.'

'Oh—ah—yes. Well, you shall have the company of Lant Morton for one night—at least, so for the next twelve hours you'll feel safe.'

'Oh, I feel safe enough,' returned the woman quickly, only, 'only lonesome.'

'Well, then for this evening you shan't be lonesome.'

Thus speaking Morton threw his saddle and saddle-bags into the cabin and then led his horse around to a shed, where he made the animal fast and fed him. After this he returned to the dwelling and entered, and was soon discussing the events of the times over an ample supper. His hostess told him all that had transpired in her neighborhood since his last visit, and her visitor gave her the news from the Lant Morton had been [illegible] on that route for several years, and not once had he passed through without spending a night at Jacob Burnap's. In fact he was the only visitor at the hunter's cabin, and though the intervals between his visits were long, yet he seemed a fixture of the place. Polly Burnap still in the bloom of young womanhood—knew his noble character, so she felt free at home in his presence.

'These are heavy bags for this route,' said the carrier, as he put away his pipe and prepared to retire, 'and,' he added, in an under tone, 'they contain some valuable letters, some fat ones, going to the fort.'

'Is it known on the route that your load is so valuable?' asked Polly.

'I think not, though it may be. Still, I am well armed, and I fancy it would be a tough job for any one to tackle old Lant.'

'A man was robbed on the creek a few days ago.'

'And the robbers have fled,' added Morton carelessly, as he drew his mail bag after him

There were three apartments in the lower cabin, the main room where the family lived, then a small pantry and provision room in one corner, and a bed room in the corner opposite. Beneath was a deep cellar where the provisions were kept in the summer, and where they could be equally well kept in the winter, for frost had never entered the deep hole the hunter had dug. Besides there was the loft, with a tightly boarded floor, which was reached by a ladder from the pantry, and in this latter place the mail carrier slept.

He had dragged the mail bags up after him, not caring to leave so precious a charge beyond his reach.

Morton went to bed at nine o'clock, as he was tired and sleepy from his hard ride. Polly had work to do, having neglected it while talking with her guest, so when she had seen him safely at rest, in the loft, she drew her basket up to the table where the candle was and went to work on something for her child, who was sleeping very roundly in the bed room in the corner.

The old German clock, which hung upon the wall, with its great weights and winding strings all exposed, had just struck ere Polly arose from her work.—She had just pushed her basket beneath the table and had taken up the candle, when the front door was opened and two men entered. They were in their stockings, their shoes having been left outside so as not to make any noise.

'—sh!' uttered the foremost of the intruders. Speak but one word above a whisper and you die on the instant!

Polly recovered from her quick terror, and gazed up. She saw two stout, wicked looking men, one of whom presented a cocked pistol towards her. With that quickness of perception natural to her, she knew that the pistol would not be fired if she held her peace, and that would make a greater noise than she could.—And further she recognized in the foremost of the men, a notorious villain, who bore the name of Dick Gallus. She had never seen him before, but the minute descriptions her husband had given her of the man, led her at once to know him, and positively, too; for one big scar on his left cheek was mark enough.

'What seek ye, gentlemen?, asked Polly without betraying the least fear.

'We have come to see Morton, the mail carrier, returned Gallus, in a coarse whisper. Where is he? Don't speak too loud.'

'He is long since asleep. Would it not do as well to see him in the morning? I can find you room for lodging.'

The fair hostess said this for the purpose of time. She knew very well that these men had come to rob the carrier, and she was equally sure that they would murder him if they could, and in all probability, put her out of the way as well.—They evidently heard of the valuable load he carried, and meant to carry it in his stead. In short, she not only knew of the bold ruffians, but she also knew their business Their very warning and threat to her were positive proof.

'Never mind his being asleep. Show us where he is at once,' roughly resounded Gallus, in answer to Polly's remark.

'But I can call him, good sirs, reasoned the woman calmly, there was alarm in her soul.

'Call him? Cal'———', growled the villain with a fierce oath. 'You call him and you'll be called to another world.—Show us the way.'

[illegible] ring bullet at one's could aim an unertray the thoughts of that woman's soul, nor did a look tell her meaning. She was pale but did not tremble.

'This way, sirs,' she whispered.

And as she spoke she turned towards a door which was situated directly between the doors of the little bed room and the pantry. She did not open it until both the men had got up close behind her.

'Don't you hear him breathing, she whispered.

'Yes returned both the villains; and they did hear a breathing, but it was of the child close at hand.

As they thus answered her, she threw the door wide open—it being inward.—The men saw a dark void but they pressed forward. In another instant Polly Bornap leaped back—Gallus was upon the threshold and his companion close on his heels. With all her power the noble woman threw herself against the door, and she soon knew that one of them had found it.

'Back,' she cried, as she saw a hand appear above the threshold. The candle on the table threw a dim light on the spot.

She saw the robber raise a pistol; there was but one alternative. She could not die. She had a husband a—a child—and she had set herself to save the carrier.—With these thoughts flashing through her mind she drew the trigger.

The sharp report ran through the house, and the echo was a deep groan from the bottom of the cellar.

Ere the second robber could show himself, Morton come in the room, with a pistol in each hand.

'What is it?' he cried.

'There! there!' gasped Polly, pointing to the door way, where a savage looking face had just presented itself.

Lant Morton had been long enough used to danger to not waste time in conjecture when a moment may be life and death. He turned—he saw the face—and quick as thought he covered the spot and fired.

'Are there any more?' he asked, cocking his second pistol.

'No, I shot one.' And as Polly spoke she sank into a chair, and leaned her head upon the table.

'No—no!' she faintly replied. 'Only weak. I shall be better in a little while.—Look to the collar.

'How many were they?'

'Only two. I know I killed one.'

'And I can swear I killed the other!' added Morton, as he took the candle and descended the open door

He listened, but he could hear no sound. Then with his pistol still in his hand, he carefully descended the ladder. At the bottom he stepped upon a human body, and having found an easier standing place, he held down the light and gazed around—saw two men—both dead—both shot through the brain—and then came up.

'Polly—noble Polly!' he cried, 'you have rid the world of two of the most desperate and cold hearted scoundrels that ever infested any country.'

'Do you know them?' she asked, revived.

'Aye—well. Dick Gallus and Red Harmon.'

'Was that other Red Harmon?'

'Yes—the murderer of Parson and Nathans.'

'Oh! I am so glad they were robbers. But then I knew they were, I knew it, or I should not have fired I knew they meant to rob and murder you, and —'

'And so you meant to save me,' remarked the carrier, as Polly hesitated.

'Yes, yes, I did. Yes—that was it'

And as soon as the noble woman was sufficiently recovered, she told the whole story. Morton expressed his thanks as he best could; but, after all, the moisture of his sharp gray eye, the changing of his countenance, and very lack of language, told more than words could have done.

[illegible] deliberation, it was decided were till morning So the where they was shut, the front door bolted, and then they prepared once more to retire, but for the rest of the night Morton made his bed on the floor of the large room.

In the morning, just as the carrier was dressing, there came a loud rap upon the outer door, accompanied by a voice which he knew full well. He hastened to open the way, and gave entrance to Jacob Burnap. The hunter had met a party of traders at Lewisburgh, and disposed of all his skins to them, thus finishing his journey some six days sooner than he had anticipated.

Polly was soon upon her husband's bosom, and when he had told his own story, Morton gave him an account of his last night's adventure. Jacob was at first incredulous, but when he had been down and seen the bodies, he was satisfied.

'Polly, my jewel,' he said, and placing his arm about her neck, 'I'm proud of you. I love you more and more, for every day I find more to love,' and then turning to Moses he added—

'Is she not a noble wife?'

'Ah,' returned the guest, with deep feeling, 'if poor Lant Morton had such an one, he would not be a mail carrier.'

When Morton left, he was directed to stop at the first settlement, and state to officers there what had happened, and promised to do so. He once more blessed the brave woman who had saved his life, and then set out. Late in the afternoon, two officers arrived at the cabin, and when they were shown the dead bodies, they recognized them and removed them. And ere a week was passed, whole settlements blessed the Border Heroine for the work she had done.

Annie Laurie.

If you want to hear Annie Laurie sung come to my house,' said a man to his friend.

'We have a love-lorn fellow in the village, who was sadly wrecked by the, refusal of a girl whom he had been paying attention to for a year or more. It is seldom he will attempt the song, but when he does, I tell you, it draws tears from eyes unused to weeping.'

A small, select company had assembled in a small pleasant parlor, and were gaily chatting and laughing, when a tall young man entered, whose peculiar face and air instantly drew their attention. He was very pale, with that clear vivid complexion, which dark haired consumptives so often have. His locks were as black as jet and hung profusely upon a square white collar. His eyes were very large and spiritual, and his brow such a one as a poet should have. But for a certain wondering look, a casual observer would have pronounced him a man of uncommon intellectual power. The words 'poor fellow,' and 'how sad he looks,' went the rounds as he came forward, bowed to the company and took his seat. One or two thoughtless girls laughed as they whispered that he was 'love cracked,' but the rest treated him with a respectful deference.

It was late in the evening when singing was proposed, and to ask him to sing 'Annie Laurie,' was a task of no uncommon delicacy. One song after another was sung, and at last that one was named. At its mention the young man turned deadly pale, but did not speak; he seemed instantly to be lost in reverie.

'The name of the girl who treated him so badly was Annie,' said a lady, whispering to the new guest, 'but oh! I wish he would sing it; nobody else can do it justice.'

'No one dares sing Laurie before you Charles, said an elderly lady; would it not be too much to ask you to favor the company with it?' she asked timidly.

He did not reply for a moment, his lips quivered a little, and then looking up as if he saw a spiritual presence, he began. Every sound was hushed, it seemed as if his voice were the voice of an angel. It vibrated through nerve, pulse, heart, and made one shiver with the pathos of his feelings; never was heard melody in a human voice like that, so plaintive, soulful, so tender and earnest.

He sat with his head thrown back, his eyes half closed, the locks of hair glistening against his pale temples, his fine throat swelling with the rich tones, his hands lightly folded before him; and as he

"And twas there that I [illegible] Gave me her promise true—"

it seemed as if he shook from head to foot with emotion. Many a lip trembled—and there was no jesting, no laughing, but instead tears in more than one eye.

And on he sang, holding every one in wrapt attention, till he came to the last verse:

"Like dew on the gowan lying
Is the fa' or her fairy feet—
And like winds in summer sighing,
Her voice is low and sweet,
Her voice is low and sweet—
And she's a' the world to me—

He paused before he added:

"And for bonnie Annie Laurie,
I'll lay me down and die."

There was a long, solemn pause. The black locks seemed to grow blacker, the white temples whiter, almost imperceptibly the head kept falling back, the eyes were close shut. One glanced at another, all seemed awe-struck, till the same person who urged him to sing, laid her hand gently on his shoulder saying:

'Charles, Charles!'

Then came a hush, a thrill of horror crept through every frame, the poor tried heart had ceased to beat, Charles, the love-betrayed, was dead.

LOOKING AHEAD.—A witness was called to give testimony. Having taken his place he turned to the counsel at the bar, before testifying and very earnestly made the inquiry, "Say stranger, which side I am on?"

THE MUTINY IN ONE WORD.—An old lady being asked what she thought of the mutiny in India replied that, to her mind it was extremely "Hindoodicious."

An Irish gentleman lately fought a duel with his intimate friend because he joocosely asserted that he was born without a shirt to his back.

MRS. SWISSHELM.—The citizen of St. Cloud, Minnesota, have bought a new press for Mrs. Swisshelm, to replace the one destroyed by the mob.

WATCHING.

His eyes were almost slumber sealed,
And by my side mother kneeled,
Who mournful watched the ruddy light
That on the hearth was blazing high
And listened, 'mid the gathering night,
To the sighing wind and baby.
When nestling closer to my heart
In broken tones, low, sweet and faltering,
He said with quick convulsive start,
"Charley! look, is mother coming?

With anxious eyes he scanned the gloom,
And darker seemed that little room,
As lingering at the curtained pane
A sigh told that the search was vain,
The raindrops plashed upon the leaves
That quivered neath the moss-grown eaves
Each shivering tone seemed fraught with fears,
And dimly now the light was burning
When the dreamy eyes unclosed with tears,
And he whispered, look; is mother coming?

With stealthy step he crossed the floor,
When a gentle hand unclosed the door,
The damp winds fanned the glowing flame,
And wafted in a music name,
Which startled from its resting place
A sorrow, clouded, tear wet face.
We heard no more the wailing moan
That bore upon its breath the groaning,
And echo caught the joyous tone
Of words welled forth—"is mother coming!

THE BIBLE.

This is the book of God,
By inspiration given,
His fingers wrote each page,
And dated it from Heaven.
This book of God I then must read,
And all its holy precepts heed,
And love its sacred pages.
My intellect and reason bow,
Submissive to each sacred law,
Wrote in this book of ages.

This is God's holy book,
The gushing fount of truth,
Sent forth to all mankind,
The aged and the youth
God wrote this book let each one say,
And trouble least they disobey
This truthful proclamation
He shall be saved that will believe
He shall be damned that wont receive
Jesus and his salvation.

Within this sacred book
Mankind may see
The Saviour died for all,
The bond the free,
The rich, the poor, the high, the low,
May seek his grace and pardon know
To all this light is given.
This star will always guide aright,
He can whose beams are always bright
Will light us safe to heaven.

God send this book to me
Let every mortal say,
Its precepts I will love,
Its sacred laws obey.
May Holy Spirit God impart,
To write its truths upon my heart,
And make me truly wise—
To shun the paths that leads to woe—
A Saviour's precious love to know,
And gain the heavenly prize.

Execution of Orsini.

The Paris (March 14) correspondent of the Manchester Guardian, speaking of the execution of Orsini and Pierri, says: 'Such had been the alarm of the government that an entire division was had out, under the personal command of a general officer, who assisted at the execution—15,000 soldiers were ready to act at the slightest signal, and every issue and outlet was guarded as in times of insurrection. In the estimation of my informant, between 90,000 and 100,000 men of the faubourg St. Marceau spaces and in the streets near the Place de la Roquette; but he also says they were so grouped, by the way in which the troops were stationed, that they could see little or nothing. I will now give in my informants own words, the following, which I, with his permission, took down under his dictation: 'When the dead, dull sound of the falling of the knife upon Orsini was heard, it was responded to by an immense but smothered reply of 'Vive la Republique,' I cannot properly describe this; it was like a gigantic mutter; it was not a cry or a shout, but it sounded like the breath or the sigh of thousands of human lungs. It was well appreciated by the authorities; for on the instant, the soldiers raised the most disorderly clatter imaginable; struck their horses so as to make them plunge and kick, shook their arms, and contrived that the popular whisper should be stifled without being put down. But the words, 'Vive la Republique,' must have been clearly audible to every one.' In addition to this my friend says: 'I purposely went home on foot, threading my way slowly through the groups wherever I found them thickest. I am bound to admit that everywhere I heard expressions of sympathy and admiration for Orsini, whose crime seems utterly forgotten, while only the effect produced by his courage and generosity toward his associates remains. Pierri's name I did not hear once. The attitude of the populace was, I should say, extremely menacing, for it has the marks of a hate and thirst for vengeance seated too deep for words. All the remarks I heard were made in an under tone, as though a police spy were dreaded at every instant.''

AGRICULTURAL COLLEGES.—On the 22d inst., Mr. Morrill's bill, granting 20,000 acres of land for each Senator and Representative in Congress, in aid of Agricultural Colleges, passed the House by a majority of three.

TECUMSEH HERALD

B. L. BAXTER, : : : : EDITOR

Here shall the Press the People's Rights Maintain,
Unawed by Party, and Unbribed by Gain.

THURSDAY, MAY, 13 1858.

Pay as you go.

When it was announced a week or two since that after the 12th of May inst., the Herald would be sent to only those who paid for it, and that the only terms of subscription would be payment in advance, no doubt looked hard to some, and imprudent to others.

But another thing should not be overlooked in connection with this, and that is that the terms of subscription were at the same time reduced to one dollar per annum which is the very lowest price at which a paper of this size can be made to live.

It is undoubtedly a hard time to get, or to pay out money; but after all, not so hard, that one can afford to pay thirty-three and one third per cent for the use of it, which is just what those did pay who took the Herald upon the old terms of $1,50 per annum, not payable in advance.

It is no convenience to any man, who intends to pay at all, to get credit upon such terms, and yet there are so many who never do pay, whether they intend to or not, that publishers cannot afford to give credit even at these rates.

Everything the printer uses, costs cash, and must be paid for in cash, or not obtained at all. Now those who do pay under the old sytem, not only have to pay for what they they themselves receive, but also for what those receive who do not pay, otherwise the press would have to stop. For it can only subsist, where there is money enough paid in from some source to keep it in motion.

Just so it is with the merchant. When they tell you that they have determined to sell only for cash, at the first you feel that you are injured by the determination. But in a little time you find that you are quite as much the gainer by it, as is the merchant himself. That you have all your life been paying, not only for the goods you had occasion to use yourself, but also to a large extent, for those which others, taking advantage of this promiscuous credit system, have managed to use without paying for. Men of calculation and experience, are not such fools as not to make due allowance for the losses necessarily incurred under such a system of credit, and a portion of the profits insisted on, and which those who pay must submit to, when this is the only system of trade adopted, is designed to cover this very deficiency.

But put these two systems of cash and credit side by side, and men who have anything to pay with very soon find that they cannot afford to pay credit prices, even though it be for the benevolent purpose of helping those who prefer a system so long in vogue of getting goods and letting others pay for them, or purpose what is more common, letting the merchant become embarrased, by reason of not foreseeing the necessity of putting a tariff upon those who do pay, sufficient to meet the deficiency as money can be procured at ten or even fifteen per cent do one should consent to pay 33 1-3, 50, and oftener still 100 per cent for the sake of adhering to a system that injures the oreditor, more than it does the debtor, even at those rates, and benefits only the dishonorable and dishonest who neither pay, nor intend to pay. And if the public are disposed, or can afford to continue to make these sacrifices for the promotion of such an object, we can only say that printers and publishers are not so disposed neither can they longer afford to do it.

The Scalpel.

The April number of this independent medical quarterly, edited and published by Edward H. Dixon, M. D., No. 42, Fourth Avenue, New York, is received, and is always welcome to our table. We do not belong to the profession, and cannot perhaps well judge of the more strictly professional character of the work, but we like the plain, out-spoken, and manly independence of its Editor, and always notice the reception of the Scalpel with pleasure.

Michigan Journal of Edpcation.

The May number of the Journal of Education, edited and published by Rev. J. M. Gregory, Ann Arbor, at the moderate price of one dollar per annum, is duly received. The zeal with which Mr Gregory has devoted himself to this work, almost without recompense or hope of reward, is worthy of all commendation, and contrasts widely with the disposition of some, to make gain out of a connection with this work. We hope no School District nor any sincere friend of education in this State, will consent to be without a copy of this valuable journal, thus furnished at a little more than cost.

Michigan Farmer.

The May number of the Farmer, published monthly at Detroit, by Robert F. Johnstone, Esq., at one dollar per annum, is received. We have so often recommended it to the favorable notice of our agricultural readers, that we will only add, that the present is a superior number, and that we do not believe they could better invest a dollar, than in making themselves the owner of this magazine for a year, after having first procured the Tecumseh Herald, weekly, upon the same terms.

Student's Column.

AMBITION.

Of all the motives that incite men to action none appears more prominent and universal than ambition. A desire to excel seems to be an innate principle of the human mind—It shows itself in the first actions of the lisping child, prompting him to exertions, although the reward may be no more than a smile of approval from his young companions, or the most favored spot on his father's knee, and throughout every stage of his life—In the sports of youth, and the speculations of mature age—is seen this same element of his nature, urging him onward to the consummation of his designs.

There are two kinds of ambition—the true and the false. The latter consists in a selfish desire for individual aggrandizement, aiming to become notorious merely for the sake of the imagined honors attendant upon the high station which is coveted. To attain this envied situation, the candidates for fame too frequently abandon the path of virtue, for unfortunately the road to honor and the path of virtue run sometimes in opposite directions.

There are many instances on record of the melancholy results of false misguided ambition: We can even point to the fall of man, the first great calamity and the one from which all others date their origin, as the immediate result of his unholy desires. Surrounded as he was with everything necessary for his comfort and perfect happiness and having dominion over the earth, and everything that 'moveth thereon' he still felt that he was an inferior being compared with his Creator, and when the tempter with subtle tongue whispered in his ear that he might become like the gods, he was no longer contented with his station but aspired to an equality with his Creator.

But instead of realizing the object of his desires he heard with sorrow and shame the awful decree of God go forth, 'cursed be the ground for thy sake; in sorrow shalt thou eat of it all the days of thy life.' 'And so the subtle serpent with honied accents comes to mortal ears and touches the strings of pride and vanity which in the heart of man were ever strung harmonius with his note: he promises pleasure but insidiously feeds the soul with noxious poison. It is this same element, this same undying lust for power and fame, that has caused nearly all the wars and strife since the world began. The unscrupulous dovotee of fame, in imagination sees some meed of praise, some laurel of distinction unenjoyed, and the prize must be his though dyed in human blood, and steeped in widow's tears. Millions of human lives have been sacrificed upon the field of battle merely to satisfy the cravings of a guilty ambition. But the desires of the ambitious man are never satisfied, they haunt him like an evil spirit, at all times, and in all places, and cries contiually "give, give."

Alexander the Great after having conquered nearly the whole world wept because there were no more worlds to conquer.

And in later years we behold another Alexander in the person of the humble Corsican rising step by step through all the different grades of military honor from a simple lieutenant to commander in-chief of the army, and first consul of France.

We see him leading his victorious armies across the burning sands of Egypt, and over the eternal snows of the Alps—and finally we see him seated in triumph on the glittering throne of France.

But he is not allowed to pause even yet, nothing short of a continent is sufficient to satisfy the cravings of his inordinate ambition. He wished to make himself the master of the world, and with a view to this object, but under a different pretence, he overran with his mighty armies nearly the whole of Europe. The sunny plains of Italy, and the frozen snows of Russia, resounded with the din of arms and the undertaking was too vast, even for the genius of Napoleon. The tide of fortune was finally turned against him, the star of his destiny descended as rapidly as it had risen and instead of realizing his hopes, he was compelled to drag out the remnant of his days a miserable exile,—the victim of his own ambition.

Such are some of the results of a false and misguided ambition. It degrades its possessor makes him a slave to passion, and a curse to humanity.

But there is a higher nobler ambition that may be justly cherished and cultivated. An ambition that points to great and noble deeds, such as may be exercised for the elevation of society and the welfare of mankind. An ambition not circumscribed by selfish interests but that takes large and comprehensive views of life. A desire to be great only to be useful. A true ambition may lead the student to burn the midnight oil to waste and attenuate the immortal part, that he may store the immortal, with gems of rarest worth and beauty. But no visions of beating drums and bannered armies will cheer his toil. We readily grant, it is true he may be actuated by as great a desire to make a mark in the world as the most infatuated seeker after glory, but the fame he desires is not the fame of the conqueror, it is a higher nobler more exalted feeling, an ambition to have his name recorded among those of the great and good, the benefactors of mankind. It was a true ambition that enabled Galileo to combat sucessfully the accumulated error and superstition of a thousand years. It was a true ambition that guided the noble Howard in his deeds of love and charity. The desire for fame burned bright in the hearts of Jefferson and Adams when they defied the threats and thunderings of the British parliament, for the sake of right and justice. How bright the halo that glows around the name of WASHINGTON not from his daring deeds of valor and heroism on the battle field but from his inner soul: that undying love for his country, and countrymen that directed all his acts. What then is true ambition? and what is true glory? If

"Lives of great men all remind us
We may make our lives sublime,
And when dying leave behind us
Footprints on the sands of time."

where, shall we look for examples to imitate? Surely not among those whom the world has most applauded. The great of earth have never been her shining stars. How long will the names of Shakespeare Franklin & Fulton be remembered as household words when those of Alexander, Cesaar and Napoleon, shall be mentioned only to be despised. Our names may be handed down to posterity, upon the fickle winds of popular clamor. We may build monuments to perpetuate our memories, but they must rese upon a firmer foundation, than the frail proppings of public praise.

There is enough in true greatness itself to rouse the soul to its highest efforts, its noblest achievements. And when the sands of life have run out, and Times honors dwindle to insignificance, it will be a cheering, a sustaining element of character pointing to attainments infinite.

Touching Incident.

The columbus correspondent of the Painsville Telegraph, in a letter dated March 5th, relates the following:

A nice little "scene" took place at the Penitentiary on Saturday afternoon, of which I will try to give the readers of the Telegraph some notion. A few years since there was sent to that institution from Hamilton co., for a long term of years, on the charge of burglary, an old Polish exile, an old man who had fought bravely for his country and liberty. In this land of strangers, and with no friends, the old man had never for one moment entertained the idea of release, and patiently was toiling thro' his weary months.

Some facts have recently came to light, as I hear the rumor, showing that the old man was not guilty of the crime charged upon him. At any rate, the Governor decided upon his pardon. And Saturday afternoon Gov. Chase's daughter, a fair, noble girl of seventeen or eighteen summers, and who in her person proves that the generally accepted that "great men never have great sons," does not reach to daughters—takes the pardon and makes her way to the prison. Without intimating her mission, she desires the Warden to ask the old Polander, whose name I have now forgotten, to come to the sitting room. The old man, his head white with the accumulated burden of years and trouble, was not long answering the summons, for who, thought he, in all the world could ask for him. The pardon was put in his trembling hand! Oh, then the joy. It was all so unexpected, and come through such hands! The old hero fairly capered for joy. He could hardly find words among his broken English, through which to tell his thankfulness. Ah, it was a blessed scene for those who had the joyful privilege of looking on. The fair and modest heroine, I know, will shrink from this public recital, but one cannot well forbear telling so beautiful an event

National Custom House Characteristics.

A recent traveller in Europe gives the following discriminating illustrations of national character, as shown in the conduct of custom-house officials in the various countries of Europe:

The custom house officers of every nation I have yet traveled through have a different manner of examining your lug gage. Your crusty phlegmatic Englishman turns over each article separately, but carefully; your stupid Belgian rummages your trunk as if he were trying to catch a lizard; your courteous Frenchman either lightly and gracefully turns up your fine linen, as though he were making a lobster salid, or, much more frequently, if you tell him you have nothing to declare, and are polite to him, just peeps into one corner of your portmanteau, and says, "C'est Assez" Your sententious German ponders deeply over your trunk, pokes his fat forefinger into the bosom of your dress-shirts, and motions you to shut it again. The Russians of these new days of their own. They twisted, they tousled, they turned over, they held writing cases open, bottom upwards, and shook out the manuscript contents like snow flakes; they held up coats and shirts, and examined them like pawnbrokers; they fingered ladies' dresses like Jew clothesmen; they punched hats, and looked into their linings; passed Cashmere shawls from one to the other for inspection; opened letters and tried to read their contents (upside down) drew silk stockings over their arms; held boots by the toes, and shook them; opened bottles, and closed them again with wrong corks; left the impress of their dirty hands upon clean linen and virgin writing papers; crammed ladies' under garments into gentlemen's carpet bags, forced a bootjack into a little French actress's recticule; dropped things under foot, trod on them, tore them, and laughed; spilled eau de Cologne, greased silk with pomatum, forced hinges, sprained locks, ruined springs, broke cigars, rumpled muslin, and raised a cloud of puff-powder and dentrifice.

☞ The New York Express says that it is estimated, that at least six thousand young men, and a still larger number of middle aged, have been converted in New York, during the month past.

☞ Prentice of the Louisville Journal says the editor of the Memphis Avalanche In reply to a paragraph of ours about the probable necessity of hanging a few Southern fire eaters, says he would inform the Journal that the lovers of Southern soil, that is the fire-eaters, intend to do some hanging themselves. Well let them do as much in the way of "hanging themseves" as they like. In that case the last act of their lives will be the best.

General News.

New York, May 3.

The President has received authentic information that large bodies of Indians of various hostile tribes, are collected on the head waters of Red River. They are well armed, and say it is the intention of the Great Chief of the West, Brigham Young, to exterminate the white settlers on the frontiers.

A regiment of government troops from Texas, is now on the way to that point, it having been ordered here some time since in anticipation of this movement.

Halifax, May 4.

India.—Intelligence from Lucknow is to March 22d. On the 20th, Brig. Campbell's forces returned from the pursuit of the enemy. On the first the Mobies Nanas retreat was stormed; he escaped and a reward of 50,000 rupees was offered for his head. Gen. Outram's force had discovered and destroyed a retreat of the rebels in Lucknow and the prime minister of the ex-King is among those reported killed.

Peace prevailed in Oude. Some of the inhabitants of Lucknow were returning.

Sir Hope Grant had dispersed a body of rebels at Kooee, taking fifty-three guns.

The disarming act was being enforced in the north west provinces.

China.—Hong Kong dates of March 15th had been received. Canton was tranquil.

An Imperial edict degrades Yeh and appoints his successor who is authorized to settle the disputes with the barbarians.

Lord Elgin and his colleagues had gone north.

France.—The sensation caused by Bernard's acquittal was subsiding.

Italy.—Naples flatly refuses the demands of Sardinia.

Washington, May 3.

Senate.—The morning hour was occupied in a discussion on a motion by Mr Chandler to appropriate $50,000 to finish the channel of St. Clair flats. The debate assumed somewhat of a party complexion. The republicans wished to make it a test vote on the question of internal improvements. Finally, a substitute that the Committee on Commerce be instructed to report as to the expediency of appropriations sufficient to preserve from decay the river and harbor works already commenced, was agreed to by 23 against 22.—Mr. Chandler giving notice that he would to-morrow introduce a bill asking a special appropriation of $55,000 to complete the works at the St. Clair flats.

Washington May 8.

Senate.—The Senate is crowded to excess.

Mr. Hammond pronounced a brief eulogy upon Evans, narrating the history of his life, and the circumstances attending his death. He said the arrows of death of late had entered often among the high places of honor within his own State. He offered the usual resolutions, and a committee of Senators was appointed to attend the funeral of Evans.

Benjamin followed in a strain of eloquent eulogy. He spoke of the deaths of Butler, Governor Hamilton who was drowned, and the deceased.

Hale followed, saying that it was not often that he mingled his voice with those who delivered funeral eulogies. He then paid a high tribute to the character of Evans, who, he said, reminded him of his ideal of a Roman Senator. Like a shock of corn fully ripe, he had been gathered from these scenes, and had sunk down full of honors.

Wilson next added his tribute to the virtues and character of the deceased, saying his long association with him in committees, brought out the beautiful traits and qualities which he was possessor of, which he (Wilson) could more appreciate there than in open Senate.

The Senate here took a recess until the hour of the funeral at two o'clock.

House.—The House, on meeting, took a recess until one o'clock when a message was received from the Senate announcing the death of Senator Evans.

McQueen delivered a eulogy on the public and private character of the deceased.

Bocock at the request of the South Carolina delegation, also bore his testimony in a feeling and touching speech to the virtues of the honorable deceased.

The usual resolutions were then adopted, when the House adjourned to attend the funeral.

Washington May 7.

Col Sayles of R. I., and Austin his private Secretary, have just left this city for Arizonia, via. San Antonio and San Diego. Sayles is charged with important duties connected with the Post Office, Interior and Treasury Departments. It is said that he has confidential communications with reference to Sonora. In company with Sayles is Prof. Pierce, Mining Engineer and Geologist, and S. Burton, Civil Engineer, who goes out in the employ of the Lopri Land and mibing Co., to put in operation the mines of that Co., taking with them the most approved appliances for silver mining.

E. G Dunbar has just arrived from Arizonia. He confirms the great value of the silver operations in the centre of that territory and represents the condition of the territory as distressing in the extreme. He brings the proceedings of a public meeting held by the citizens of Santa Cruz Valley, addressed to Congress, praying urgently for relief. The memorial has been placed in the hands of Lieut. Mowry, delegate for Arizona.

The Kansas bill will be officially despatched to-morrow, to Gov. Denver, with instructions designed to secure a fair vote on the proposition to be submitted to the people.

The estimate for the three volunteer regiments for 18 months, is said to amount to $450,000. They will positively not be called into service until the appropriations are made.

Lieut. General Scott has arrived here in pursuance of the orders of the Secretary of War.

St. Louis, May 8.

Maj. General Smith has issued elaborate orders relative to the movements of the trains and troops of the Utah forces. The trains are to be divided into divisions of 226 wagons each. The troops are to be organized into columns, each column constituting an escort of a division of the general supply train. The first column, under command of Lieut. Col. Andrews, is already organized and ordered to march; the second column, under Col. Monroe, comprising the escort of the first division of supplies, will march from Leavenworth on the 15th inst; the third column, under Col. May, will march on the 20th; the 4th, under Col. Morrison, will march on the 25th; the 5th, under Col. Sumner will march on the 30th; the 6th, under Maj. Emory, will march on the 4th of June.

Correspondence of the N. Y. Tribune.

London, April 16.

The English public is fully satisfied that should the jury find Dr. Bernard not guilty, or should the fifteen Judges declare that his case is not within the scope of the act of 9th George IV., the mission of the Duke of Malakoff will at once assume a hostile character; and, accordingly, in Parliament we already hear of coast defences, and of the reinforcement of the Channel fleet. The sudden augmentation of the French naval forces tells strongly enough upon the common sense of England, and nobody can now be deluded by sentimental tirades about the faithful ally. Public sympathy goes for Bernard; not as if anybody can doubt that the most intimate friend of Orsini was privy to his daring scheme, but everybody is shocked at the partiality of Lord Campbell and of the government, who wish to make Bernard the scapegoat, and went so far even as to try to get a packed jury, though in this attempt they were baffled by the Under Sheriff. Besides, Louis Bonaparte has lost his prestige in the eyes of England. The papers, with the single exception of the Morning Post, continually allude to the criminal manner in which he obtained supreme power, and to the present degradation of France; and, therefore, balancing the guilt of the Emperor and of the exile, people find Bernard the better man of the two. The defence has been admirably conducted, by Mr. James, who has roused the feelings of the jury by showing them the un-English, despotic way in which the proceedings have been conducted, charging the prisoner first with conspiracy, then changing the misdemeanor, and trying him for complicity in murder. The evidence, which clearly establishes that the French system of police spies has been adopted by Sir R. Mayne for the benefit of the French Emperor, and the fact that detectives are sent to public meetings in order to take notes and to denounce the persons present cannot fail to make a deep impression on the public. It is, therefore, entirely impossible to say whether the jury will be able to come to a unanimous verdict The government, on the other hand, are prepared to send Dr. Bernard to the gallows, should the jury find him guilty.

Hideous Murder of Indians.

The Santa Fe Gazette of March 6, has the following:

"Mr. M. Stock, United States Agent for the Apache Indians, arrived in Santa Fe on Thursday evening last; looking well and hearty. We learn from Dr. S. that the Indians of his Agency are peaceably disposed, and that no outrages have been committed by them since the Gila war. He officially reports the revolting massacre of eight Apaches in Dona Ana county on the 7th of February, which we have heretofore noticed in the Gazette. In addition to the brutal mutilation of the bodies of the women who were murdered by cutting of their breasts, tearing out their tongues, and slicing up their hearts, another case occurred of equal brutality. An old Indian woman, at least sixty years of age, was shot through the body, stabbed in the back five different times, and then suspended by one foot from the pummel of the saddle by a rope, and dragged at the full speed of the horse down the hill for four hundred yards. She was loosened and left on the ground for dead. After the Mexicans had left, the other Indian women gathered around her; and ascertaining who were present, and that the tormentors were gone, she arose and walked off with her companions.

While this wholesale butchery is the most brutal that has ever been perpetrated upon the Apaches by the people of the Mesilla, it is but one of many outrages committed. On various occasions heretofore they have murdered Indians of this tribe without provocation, and not one of the murderers has ever been brought to justice.

ATTEMPT TO MURDER A YOUNG LADY IN A CHURCH.—The New-York Evening Post, of Monday, has the following:

About seven o'clock yesterday evening, soon after the services had commenced in the Mission Church, corner of South Third street and Union avenue, a young man, named Josiah Newman, entered the church and went into the gallery, where he met a young lady named Frances J. Bennett. As soon as he saw her he sprang up to her and drew a small dagger and made a desperate attempt to plunge it into her breast. The young lady uttered a scream, and as he was about to make a second attempt to carry out his purpose, some gentlemen interfered and held him till Captain Mullin of the Sixth precinct, arrived and secured him. He was taken to the station-house and locked up. It appears that Newman is from New York, where he resides, and Miss Bennett is a singer in the choir. The man has been paying his addresses to her for some time past, and the young lady would have nothing to do with him. Jealousy is the supposed cause of his crime.

Satterlee, Bell & Co.'s Great American Circus.

It will be seen by the advertisement in another column, that Messrs. SATTERLEE, BELL & Co., are about to astonish us with a combination of novelties, that cast in the shade everything of the kind ever offered to a discriminating public. They have employed special agents in Europe to call out the leading artists in every department of the Circus; while they have picked American companies of their stars, together with their magnificent outfit, makes this concern the most expensive and important Circus concern ever gotten up in America. A French Clown, and an American Clown, a modern Humorist, the Best Rider, Gymnast, Acrobat and Voltigeur in Europe, and the Great trick Horse, that has turned the heads of all the people of London, Paris, New York, Cincinnati, New Orleans, and the elite of American Circus performers, all concentrated into one mamomth show, will perform at Adrian Monday May 24, Manchester May 25, and cannot fail to make a sensation unprecedented in the annals of traveling shows.

M'lle Antoinette of London, M'lle Louise, of Paris, Dan Castillo, Thos. Neville, Oliver Bell, John Davenport, the Motley Brothers, Chas. Morrison, John Wollington, H. Marks, I W. Tucker and a host of others, said to embrace all the embodiment of Talent and Humor in the English, French and American circuses.

Dan Castillo and John L. Davenport have inaugurated a new era in Clowning in the South, and have been the great features of the show world for many years.

What, could we ask more in one day?

The approach of this mammoth show will be announced by the arrival of the splendid band wagon, drawn by the longest team of horses ever driven by one man.

☞ In Ireland, not long since, the body of a murdered schoolmaster is said to have been found in the road, with his head full of fractions.

'I'm thinking it's a shoe-side,' said Larry

'The horse's shoe, was it?'

'No, alanna,' said Larry; 'shoe side is Lat in for cutting your throat.'

'But he didn't cut his throat,' said the widow earnestly.

'Sure it's all one,' said Larry, whether he did it with a razhir on his throat or a hammer on his head. It's shoe aside all the same.'

'But there was no hammer found!'

'No; but he might have bid the hammer after he did it, to throw off the disgrace of the shoe-side.'

'But wasn't there any life in him when he was found?'

'Not a taste. The Crowners sot on him and he niver said a word, and if he had been alive he would.'

'And didn't they find anything?'

'Nothing but the vardick.'

'And was it that that kilt him?'

'But the vardick said the crack on the head body done it, and they were blackguards, whoever they were, and unknown.'

Peas and Potatoes.

Here is something new, which we extract from the Agricultural Gazette: "I tried a curious experiment with a few potatoes this season. Twelve months since I saw a letter from a farmer stating the great success that had attended an experiment the writer had made in the previous season. It consisted in inserting a pea in each potato set, and planting the potato set in the usual way. The result, he stated, was a large yield of peas, and a splendid crop of potatoes, but the most important result was the entire freedom of the potatoes from disease, while all those planted in the usual way in the same field were extensively deteriorated. I was led by this statement to try the experiment on a small scale in my own garden this season. I planted not quite half a peck, only fifty sets in six ranks, cutting a piece out of each, and putting a pea firmly in. The peas grew up and flourished well, and last week I dug the potatoes. They were perfectly free from all taint or speck of disease, and very fine and large, while in the same bed, close to them, was another lot planted in the old style nearly half of which were rotten. I leave your readers to draw their conclusion."

THE NEW YORK CENTRAL PARK.—The Commissioners of the New York Central Park have awarded the first prize of $2,000 to Messrs Calvert Vaux and F. L. Olmsted for the best out of the thirty-three plans presented for its improvement. Mr Vaux was the associate of the late A. J. Downing, and is the author of a popular work on architecture. Mr Olmsted is known to the public by his "Walks and Talks of an American Farmer in England," and "Journeys through Texas and the Seaboard Slave States." The expense of improving the Park, according to the plan of Messrs Vaux and Olmsted, will be about $1,500,000.

☞ A friend who has just married a little beauty says—'She would have been taller, but she is made of such precious materials that nature could not afford it.'

They mean to raise a tall lot of students in Wisconsin. Its board of education has resolved 'to erect a building large enough to accomodate 500 students 3 stories high.'

Bragg's Arctic Liniment.

This uncomparable Liniment, upon which the great mass of afflicted of all lands now rely for relief from the pangs of Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Gout, Erysipelas Cancer, Scrofula, Sprains, Bruises, Burns, Scalds and all cutaneous diseases, is rapidly superceding all similar preparations. The proprietors give for the encouragement of sufferers the following memorandum of a few of the wonderful cures effected by it during the past few months. Certificates from the parties named are in the possession of the proprietors; their length precludes the publication of all but a few.

One Bottle Triumphant.

Mrs Moffitt No 245 Morgan Street, St. Louis, having suffered for three years with Rheumatism, had tried many preparations without effect, was cured by one fifty cent bottle of Arctic Liniment.

Out of Purgatory.

Henry Davis, Menard street, St. Louis, who says he was "suffering the pangs of purgatory" with neuralgia for months was cured by three or four applications of the Arctic Liniment.

Pity the Little Children.

A little daughter of Mrs Lee, residing on Lake St. Chicago, was scalled all over by the upsetting of a kittle of boiling water. The Arctic Liniment was applied according to the directions, and the fire was instantly extracted, and in a few days the little sufferer was well.

Restored to Beauty.

Mrs George K. Tyler, Canal street, N Orleans had long suffered from a painful and disfiguring eruption on the face, and by the use of one bottle of the Liniment was cured, and restored to her original beauty.

A Horrible Tumor.

Eugene Mallory, Natchez was three years the victim of a horrible tumor on the neck, which resulted all remedies until he tried the Arctic Liniment. Three bottles cured him in a few weeks.

Wonderful Cure!

Mrs Bedford, Mobile, was confined to her couch for three years with numb palsy, and after being in despair from the failure of all other remidies, was cured by the Arctic Liniment, in a little over a month.

An Explosion.

Memphis, Tenn., Nov., 28th, 1857.

I hereby certify, that having been badly bruised and scaled by the explosion of a Steam Boiler, a friend induced me to try Bragg's Arctic Liniment. The smart was instantly extracted from the scalds, and in a very short time all the pain was gone from the bruises.—In two weeks I was well, and able to resume my business.

The Blind See!

Webster City, Iowa, Nov. 9th, 1857.

Dr. A. G. BRAGG.—Dear Sir: For more than three years I had been afflicted with inflamed eyes, in an aggravated degree, and tried various Physicians, and several nostrums, to no effect. I was induced by Dr. Baum to try the Arctic Liniment, and in two months was nearly well. My little daughter was afflicted in the same manner for the same time, and during a portion of the time was entirely blind, in one eye. I applied your valuable Liniment, and her eyes are perfectly sound. Thus have I with one two-bitt bottle cured my daughter's eyes and my own, besides curing the rheumatism in my back. I would not be without your invaluable remedy in my house. Yours Truly

Wm. RUSSELL.

Webster City, Iowa, Nov. 9th, 1857.

I hereby certify, that I am well acquainted with Wm Russell, and with the astonishing cures he mentions, and know his statement to be strickly true.

Good for Animals.

This invaluable Liniment is also equally efficatious in curing the diseases of animals as witness the following certificate; Messrs J & A. Arnos and Lynch, Arnot & Co., keep the two largest livery stables in the west and are generally known throughout the U. S.

St. Louis, Dec 23rd, 1857.

We, the undersigned, having used Dr. Bragg's Arctic Liniment for a number of months, cheerfully testify to its superior efficacy in curing the diseases of horses; so well are we satisfied of the Arctic being the best Liniment made that we would use no other. We keep and have kept for a number of years, extensive livery stables in this city, and consequently our experience about horses and their diseases is great, and we unhesitatingly say, that the Alestic Liniment is the only one we have ever found always effective. We cordially recommend it to all livery stable keepers and others having the care of horses.

Caution.

Many Druggists, having old liniments on hand, will try to sell them to you as the best, but do you positively refuse to purchase them. Ask for "BRAGG'S ARCTIC LINIMENT," and take no other

Liberal Proposition.

The proprietors agree to furnish each purchaser of a dollar bottle, with free subscription to the U. S. Journal, for one year. This is one of the best N. Y. illustrated papers. A certificate entitling the holder to the benefit of this proposition, is enclosed in the wrapper around every dollar bottle. The Arctic Liniment is put up in 25 cent 50 cent and $1 bottle. The 50 cent and $1 bottle contain 50 and 100 per cent more Liniment in proportion to their cost, and are the cheapest. For sale by

DR ROBACK'S

BLOOD PURIFIER AND BLOOD PILLS.

DISEASE VANQUISHED.

—BY—

Dr. Roback's Scandinavian Remedies.

AFTER YEARS OF STUDY AND EXPERIMENT Dr Roback the eminent Swedish Physician succeeded in producing a medicine from twenty-three different species of mountain herbs of his native land which acts directly upon the causes of disease in the blood, and by restoring the corrupted fountain of life to a condition of health and purity, expels disease from the system wherever it may be located or whatever may be its character. Indigestion, nervous complaints, episodic fits, coughs, consumption in its early stages, sore throat, bronchitis, fever and ague and sathma, low spirits, sexual incapacity, feminine weakness, pricking of the skin, symptoms of paralysis, rheumatism, neuralgia, tumor, cancer, diabetes, jaundice and debility disorders and all other diseases of the organs of respiration, the liver, the kidneys, the stomach, the nerves or the muscular fibre are unerringly met by the vegetable. It is to the waterwhile at the same time it invigorates, assists, and in no case obstructs the natural functions of the system. Persons taking it as directed, will not be exposed to any change of climate, or to any ordinary occupation or exposure, and having heard of the wonderful cures that your Scandinavian Blood Purifier and Pills were effecting, I was induced by a friend to try them.

I have been using the Purifier for the last twelve months, and find the medicine fully equal to its recommendations. So valuable is it to me that I cannot now dispense with the use of it at my advanced age of fifty-seven years.

I cheerfully give this information for the benefit of those similarly afflicted. MORRIS MORRIS

From the Rev. Mr. McMULLEN, Pastor of Roberts Chapel.

Indianapolis, Oct. 5, 1857.

Dr. C. W. ROBACK—Dear Sir: I have used your Blood Purifier for a succession of years, from which I have suffered much at times. While it is pleasant to the taste it certainly has a happy effect upon the nerves. Please send my thanks for your kind regards and acts, and believe me,

Yours, J. W. T. McMULLEN

FROM A WELL-KNOWN STEAMBOAT CLERK.

Louisville, June 4 1857.

DEAR DOCTOR:—Send me half a dozen boxes of your Pills care of H. G. Curd & Co so I can get them next trip. Six weeks ago nothing would have convinced me that a twenty-five cent box of Pills could have relieved my obstinate chronic constipation, with its attending evils. I told you so when I bought them, but I am bound to own that your Pills fill the contract. Why I have taken so many as six (6) boxes, and other makers' sometimes without effect and sometimes with too much effect, but I have no trouble with yours—they are just what I want.

Cincinnati Friday Sept 4 1857.

DR. ROBACK—Dear Sir: Having been afflicted with neuralgia or rheumatism for the past year and a half, and having seen your Bitters called the Scandinavian Blood Purifier highly recommended by gentlemen with whom I am acquainted I was induced to try it; but before I had tried various other medicines—After using two bottles I felt decided very sensibly, and upon using two more, I found myself perfectly cured. You will allow me therefore, to congratulate you upon making a discovery in medicine which is proving itself to be a worker of such wonders in the diseases of the human family.

MOFFAT'S

LIFE PILLS

AND

THE BEST FAMILY MEDICINE NOW before the public, for the cure of Scrofula, Ulcers, Scurvy, or Eruptions of the Skin Fever and Ague, Dyspepsia, Dropsy, and in fact most all diseases soon yield to their curative proprities.

It has been computed that during the last twenty five years upwards of FOUR MILLIONS of persons have been benefited by the use of these medicines; a fact which speaks volumes in favor of their curative properties, a single trial will place them beyond the reach of competition in the estimate of every patient. By their use the BLOOD IS RESTORED TO A HEALTHY STATE and freed from all impurities. The system is not reduced during their operation, but invigorated, and they require no restraint from business or pleasure.

The afflicted have in these medicines a remedy that will do for them all that medicine can possibly effect.

AGRICULTURAL.

A Merchant Turned Farmer.

A successful merchant, after ten years' business, retired to a farm, to the astonishment of his friends, who knew at the moment of his breaking away from his mercantile profession, that he was in the midst of prosperity. On requesting his reasons for so singular a move, he replied, that the cares, anxieties, and risks of a mercantile business are destructive of comfort, security, tranquility, and health; that the cultivation of fruit and field crops is much more favorable to health and comfort, both of body and of mind; that business pursuits tend to concentrate the whole energies of the mind in one direction thus producing mental and moral deformity and disease; and that the impossibility of bringing up children in a city without running all the risks of the contaminating and corrupting influences of silly, foolish, fashionable, and vicious company and customs, is sufficient to counterbalance all the advantages which can claim for the city over the country. In a letter to one of his old city friends, he writes as follows: "You seem to think that the society of farmers and rural residents must be exceedingly dull and stupid. I can assure you it is not so. My neighbors in the country may not be so quick and ready in conversation as my old friends in the city; and their attention may not have been directed to so great a diversity of subjects, but their knowledg, is le s superficial, and their judgment far more sound and reliable. But even if intellectually inferior, which I do not admit, they are certainly morally superior. Take a hundred individuals without any picking, from my new neighbors, and a like number from the old, and there will be found more among the former than the latter who deserve and might command your moral respect and approbation—more who are honest, sincere, reliable, and of good moral habits and worth of character. For my own part, I take more pleasure in the society of the good than in that of the roguish and unprincipled, be the latter ever so smart. Then, again, I can be more with my family than when keeping store, and can more easily keep my children from the contamination of evil companions. But the crowning recommendation of my farming pursuits is this: I feel that I am working together with God in providing for the primary wants of his human family."

Cranberry Culture.

Last spring I set a number of hundreds of cranberry plants in the soil from which I had shoveled off the surface although I used no sand, nor was I particularly troubled with weeds. I also set a quantity [illegible] by the plow being previously drained for that purpose. The difference in growth and fruiting was decidedly in favor of those planted in the latter soil. One needs but a single glance at the two peices, to satisfy himself of the superiority of the more thorough preparation. Some of the vines planted on the land which had been plowed, grew to the length of three feet the past summer, and bore a number of fine full-sized berries, of which I exhibited specimens at the late State Fair at Buffalo. If the land cannot be drained sufficiently for the plow, it may be spaded; but if drained, I need hardly say it should be moistened again by a proper adjustment of the drains, previous to the time of setting. Which ever mode of subjugation is adopted the work will be more satisfactory if managed after the manner of a summer fallow. The soil thus prepared, and the plants set the following spring the labor of keeping them free from weeds will be trifling, and they will thrive better than if set in soil in which vegetable matter is undergoing decomposition. My crop of ies this year was a good one, as I ed something over sixty bush- New Yorker.

Fattening Cattle.

g to the great improvement by the diffusion of short-horn the fattening stock very often cons ts of two year olds. It consists also, of three year old bullocks and heifers, and cast cows. These should be all tied up in houses by themselves, as they are fed in a different manner from the younger stock; and it is of great importance that such cattle as are intended for the butcher should be disturbed as little as possible.

DO YOU EVER

WANT ANY THING

FROM NEW YORK?

IF SO, SEND YOUR ORDER TO

F. S. CABOT & CO.,

BUYERS, 85 BARCLAY STREET.

Almost every one, certainly every merchant, has sometimes very strongly wished that he had a reliable correspondent and friend in New York in this great metropolis to whom he could send for the transaction of some business or the purchase of some article, that he would not make it convenient to go to the city to do, or to buy himself with full confidence that the business would be well done and at a reasonable expense to him. Having become satisfied by a considerably extended observation and experience that this is an almost universal want, we have established our house to supply it. We have found that thousands of persons from Maine to Georgia are constantly sending to us to execute orders, involving purchases varying in amount from 25 cents to as many hundred dollars, and we believe in every case, those employing us have been satisfied both with the quality of the articles received and the equity of our charges. We mean that our charges shall in all cases be fair and reasonable, being predicated on the time and labor consumed. It is certain, that being constantly in the market buying largely for cash, we can buy as cheap than any single purchaser can. In fact, we sate to our friends much more in prices than the commission we charge. No man, who only occasionally comes here can be familiar with a market so extensive as this. We being here all the time are thoroughly acquainted with it, and know where to go to find everything in first hands and at the lowest rates. We have found that many of our distant friends wish to send us country produce to sell, sometimes the proceeds to be invested in goods sometimes in money. Accordingly we have made the very best arrangements to enable us to do justice to those who may consign to us. Our charges for selling are as usually five per cent, although in special cases we have been at very small transactions equity might require it to be varied from that. We have a circular giving note at length the ways and plan of our business with statements of our references for buying some of the leading articles, which will be sent on application.

ONE DOLLAR

WILL BUY

ONE OF THE BEST PURGATIVE AND LIVER MEDICINES now before the public, namely, DR. SANFORD'S INVIGORATOR, or LIVER REMEDY, that acts as a Cathartic under milder and more effectual than any other medicine known. It is not only a Cathartic but a Liver remedy, acting first on the Liver to eject its morbid matter; then on the stomach and bowels to carry off that matter, thus accomplishing two purposes effectually without any of the painful pains experienced in the operations of most Cathartics. It strengthens the system at the same time that it purges it, and when taken daily in moderate doses will strengthen and build it up with unusual rapidity.

DR. SANFORD'S INVIGORATOR is compounded entirely from new articles of medicine, namely, Gums.

Some idea of the strength of these gums may be formed when it is known that one bottle of the Invigorator contains as much strength as our hundred dozen bottles of Cabinet, without any of its deleterious effects.

Though possessing rare medical powers, these Gums have been but little known to Physicians and never used in their prescriptions until used in the form of the Invigorator which met with such unprecedented success as to induce the proprietor to offer it as a family medicine, tried and known in its effects. It has rarely ever failed to cure LIVER Complaints in their worst forms.

INDIGESTION being caused by a deranged Liver is cured when the Liver is excited to action.

JAUNDICE is caused by an improper action of the Liver, and as a proof that the Invigorator removes this disease, let any one troubled with Jaundice take the Invigorator regularly one week, and their skin will begin to assume its original color.

COSTIVENESS can be permanently cured by the Invigorator. Take it in small doses on retiring and it assists nature in her operations. By gradually diminishing the dose, the bowels are left in a healthy and active state, and work as regularly as clock work.

SICK HEADACHE is very soon relieved by taking a double dose of the Invigorator, which corrects all acidity and dizziness of the stomach.

For an over-loaded stomach it has no equal, as it relieves all oppressive or uneasy feeling after eating heartily. For a RAPID WORKER generally, all who use it speak in the highest terms.

DR SANFORD'S INVIGORATOR came to us recommended as a cure for Liver Complaint, and all diseases arising from a Diseased Liver. The testimonials of so many of our Physicians in its favor, induced us to try it, and now conviction is forced that it is one of the greatest blessings ever given to the people, for it makes a complete cure before the first bottle was taken, and no we can eat anything edible without trouble, while before nothing but the lightest food would digest, and often that gave pain. Now what we want to say to all our readers is, if LIVER COMPLAINTS or DYSPEPSIA trouble you, do not fail to try this the greatest remedy in the world.—State Pilot.

We take infinite pleasure in recommending this medicine as a preventative for FEVER and AGUE, CHILL FEVER, and all FEVERS of a BILIOUS TYPE. It operates with certainty and thousands are willing to testify to its wonderful virtues.

It has never been tried in our family, a remedy which has met with such unbounded success in the cure of diseases for which it is recommended as the INVIGORATOR; nor is it alone for diseases of children that we use it, for it acts as a Cathartic so mildly and gently, and seems to regulate the whole system in such a way that we think we are doing a service to all in advising them, when they need medicine to try this remedy. There are cases that have come under our notice where great benefit has been received in diseases of the Liver, Stomach and Bowels, where all other remedies failed to give relief. It had become so useful in our family that we will not be without it.—Jacksonville, Ill. Republican.

HOWARD ASSOCIATION

PHILADELPHIA.

A Benevolent Institution, established by special endowment for the relief of the sick and distressed, afflicted with Virulent and Epidemic diseases.

THE HOWARD ASSOCIATION, in view of the awful destruction of human life, caused by Sexual diseases, and the deceptions practised upon the unfortunate victims of such diseases by Quacks, several years ago directed their Consulting Surgeon, as a CHARITABLE ACT worthy of their name, to open a Dispensary for the treatment of this class of diseases in all its forms, and to give MEDICAL ADVICE GRATIS to all who apply by letter, with a description of their condition, age, occupation, habits of life, &c., and in case of extreme poverty to FURNISH MEDICINES FREE OF CHARGE. It is needless to add that the Associate on commands the highest Medical skill of the age, and will furnish the most approved and successful treatment.

The Directors of the Association, in their Annual Report upon the treatment of Sexual Diseases, for the year ending January 1st, 1858, say, that the success which has attended the efforts of the Consulting Surgeon in the cure of Spermatorhœa, Seminal Weakness, Impotency, Gonorrhœa, Gleet, Syphilis, the various forms of Sexual abuse, &c., and order a continuance of the same plan for the ensuing year.

The Directors, on a review of the past, feel assured that their labors in this sphere of benevolent effort have been of great benefit to the afflicted, especially to the young, and they have resolved to devote themselves with renewed zeal, to the very important and much neglected cure.

An admirable Report on Sexual Diseases, by the Consulting Surgeon, Dr. GEORG R CALHOUN, is now ready for distribution, and will be sent FREE OF CHARGE, on receipt of TWO STAMPS for postage. Other Reports and Tracts on the nature and treatment of sexual diseases, diet &c are constantly being published for gratuitious distribution, and will be sent to the afflicted. Some of the new remedies and methods of treatment discovered during the last year, are of great value.

The undersigned believes that he need only intimate to this community that he was a partner in the late famous establishment at the old New York store, to ensure him a liberal public tronage: all are aware what a flourishing usiness was done at that House, while he was a partner in the firm, that is, while he turned the grind stone, and how that establishment almost disappeared when the motive power was withdrawn. It is not doubted therefore, but that the public will be gratified to know, that the self same power has put in motion a Machine that is now turning out Tables, Bureaus, Bedsteads, Chairs, and all kind of Furniture, with such velocity that will enable him to sell them at prices so low, that will astonish the natives.

FOR THE CURE OF

Headache, Sick Headache, Foul Stomach,

PETERSBURG, Va., May 1, 1856.

DR. J. C. AYER. SIR: I have been a frequent sufferer of the worst headache any body can have, for years. A dose of your Pills, in a manner from a feeling of fullness, they change at once. If they will cure others as they do me, the fact is worth publishing to the world.

Yours with great respect, ELY W. PERRILL.

Bilious Disorders and Liver Complaints,

DEPARTMENT of the Interior, WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb., 1856.

SIR: I have used your Pills in my family and in my practice ever since you made them, and cannot hesitate to say they are the best cathartic we know. Their prompt, salutary action on the fever is quick and decisive, and by they are an admirable remedy for derangements of the organ. Indeed, I have seldom found a case of bilious disease or obstinate that it did not readily yield to them.

Fraternally yours, ALONZO BALCH, M. D.
Physician of the Marine Hospital.

Dysentery, Relax, and Worms.

POST OFFICE, HARTLAND, Lv. Co., MICH., Nov. 16, 1856.

DR. AYER: Your Pills are the perfection of medicine. They have done my wife more good than I can tell. She had been sick and pining away for months. Was off to be doctored at great expense, but got no better. By them commenced taking your Pills, which soon cured her, by expelling large quantities of worms (dead) from the body. They afterwards cured her and our two children of bloody dysentery. One of our neighbors had it, and my wife cured him with two doses of your Pills. Many others around us paid from five to twenty dollars doctor's bills, and lost much time, without being cured entirely, even then. Such a medicine as yours, which is reliable, good and honest, will be prized here.

GEO. J. GRIFFIN, Postmaster.

Indigestion and Impurity of the Blood.

DR. AYER: I have used your Pills with extraordinary success in my family and among those I am called to see in distress. To regulate the organs of digestion and purify the blood they are the very best remedy I have ever known, and I can, confidently recommend them to my friends. Yours, J. V. H.

WARSAW, WYOMING Co., N. Y., Oct. 31, 1856.

DR. AYER: Your Pills are the paragon of all the great in medicine. They have cured my little daughter of ulcerous sores upon her hands and feet that had become incurable for years. Her mother has been long afflicted with blotches and pimples on her face and her hair. After our child was cured, she also took your Pills, and they have cured her. ASA MORRISON.

HONORED SIR: I should be ungrateful to Heaven if I withheld from you the fact that your Cathartic Pills have completely cured me of a cold settled in my limbs and bones, causing excruciating pains, which ended in rheumatic gout. Notwithstanding I had the best of physicians to attend me, I grew worse and worse, until, by the advice of a skillful agent in Baltimore, Dr. Mack

THE CHILD'S PRAYER.

Into her chamber went
A little maid one day,
And by a chair she knelt,
And thus began to pray:
"Jesus, my eyes I close—
Thy form I cannot see;
If thou art near me, Lord,
I pray thee speak to me."
A still small voice she heard within her soul,
"What is it child? I hear thee—tell me all

'I pray thee, Lord,' she said,
'That thou wilt condescend
To tarry in my heart,
And ever be my friend
The path of life is dark—
I would not go astray;
O, let me have thy hand
To lead me in the way.'
'Fear not—I will not leave thee, child, alone'—
She thought she felt a soft hand press her own.

'They tell me, Lord, that all
The living pass away—
The aged soon must die,
And even children may.
O let my parents live
Till I a woman grow;
For if they die, what can
A little orphan do?'
'Fear not, my child—whatever ills may come,
I'll not forsake thee till I bring thee home.'

Her little prayer was said,
And from her chamber, now,
She passed forth, with the light
Of heaven upon her brow.
'Mother, I've seen the Lord—
His hand in mine I felt,
And, O! I heard him say,
As by my chair I knelt,
'Fear not, my child, whatever ills may come,
I'll not forsake thee till I bring thee home.'

BETTER MOMENTS.

Oh God, thy revelations like the sun,
Break in upon my heart with many tears,
And early faith, and visions, one by one,
Come back again of purer childhood's years

Filled with high inspirations now, my heart
Shakes off the fears that clogged its onward way,
And hope rekindled, faith revived, impart
A higher life, a higher trust, I pray.

The purest, noblest impulses of life
Spring from a sorrow laden heart, remiss—
Then, God, I thank thee for the bitter strife
Which bringeth higher knowledge like to this.

Alas! for worldly toil, or earthly aim,
For human love or tender ministry,
For cold ambition, or for flaunting fame;
They leave us desolate of all but Thee!

Then with o'erwearied heart and bowed down head
We cry unto thee in our last despair,
And Thou dost send sweet hope to watch our bed
And whisper words of comfort and of prayer.

Questions Answered.

A few days since we received a letter from a friend at the east, making inquiries in regard to our Territory, from which we clip the following questions and append the following answers:

We have been in Nebraska but a short time, and our knowledge being somewhat limited, we hope due allowance will be made for any mistatements.

'What kind of country do you live in?'

Mixed and extensive. It is made up principally of land and water.

'What kind of weather?'

Long spells of weather are frequent. Our sunshine comes off principally during the day-time.

'Have you plenty of water and how got?'

A good deal of water scattered about, and generally got in pails and whisky.

'It is hard?'

Rather so, when you have to go half a mile, and wade in mud knee-deep to get it.

'What kind of buildings?'

Allegoric, Ionic, Anti-Baloric, Log and Slabs. The buildings are chiefly out-doors, and so low between joints that the chimneys all stick out through the roof

'What kind of society?'

Good, bad, hateful, indifferent and mixed.

'Any Aristocracy?'

Nary one.

'What do your people do for a living, mostly?'

Some work, some laze around; one's a shrewd business manager, and several drink whisky.

'Is it cheap living there?'

Only five cents a glass and the water thrown in.

'Any taste for music?'

Strong. Buzz and buck-saws in the daytime, and wolf-howling and cat-fighting nights.

'Any pianos there?'

No, but we have several cow bells, and a tin pan in every family.

'Any manufacturers?'

Every household. All our children are home productions.

'What could a genteel family in moderate circumstances do there for a living?'

Work, shave notes, fish, hunt, steal, or if hard pinched, buy and sell town property.—Nebraska Post.

☞ The progress of some men is so rapid that they go ahead of common sense.

"Mother."

Does the word soften your heart when you think of that feverish couch? Have you ever felt the touch of fingers that soothed you as hers did? Have you ever felt so smooth a pillow as the one she pressed gently from your burning head? Do you remember how she denied herself rest day after day, and night after night, her eyes bright with the feverish longing to give you ease and alleviate your suffering? And O, when your head laid on the bosom from which your own life had come and you heard the quick throbs of her loving heart, and knew every one of those precious pulsations beat with love, tenderness, and anxiety for you, did not your parched lips murmur, "Mother," with a strange, wild joy, while the cheek, seamed by the rough lines of care, was wet with tears?

"If I could only see my Mother!"

Again and again was that yearning cry repeated,—"If I could only see my Mother!"

The vessel rocked, and the waters, chased by the fresh wind, played a musical reville against the side of the ship.—The sailor, a second mate quite youthful, laid in his narrow bed, his eye glaring, his limbs stiffening, his breath failing. It was not pleasant to die thus in this shaking, ploughing ship; but he seemed not to mind his bodily discomfort—his eye looked far away, and ever and anon broke forth that grieving cry—"If I could only see my Mother!"

An old sailor sat by with a Bible in his hand, from which he had been reading.—He bent above the young man, and asked him why he was so anxious to see the mother he had wilfully left.

'Oh! that's the reason!" he cried in anguish; "I nearly broke her heart, and I can't die in peace. She was a good mother to me—Oh! so good! She bore everything from her wild boy, and once she said, 'My son, when you come to die, you will remember all this.' Oh! if I could only see my Mother!"

He never saw his mother; he died with the yearning cry upon his lips, as many a man has died who slighted the mother who bore him. The waves roll over him, and his bones whiten at the bottom of the sea, and that dread cry has gone before God, to be registered forever.—Ex.

Mean Sentiment.—Condemn no man for not thinking as you think. Let every one enjoy the full and free thinking for himself. Let every man use his own judgement, since every man must give an account of himself to God. Abhor every approach, in any kind of degree, to the spirit of persecution. If you cannot reason or persuade a man into the truth, never attempt to force him into it. If love will not compel him, leave him to God, the Judge of all.—John Wesley.

☞ A beautiful inscription, it is said may be found in an Italian graveyard:—"Here lies Estella, who transported a large fortune to Heaven in acts of charity and has gone thither to enjoy it."

☞ Sin brought sorrow into the world; it was this that made the world a vale of tears, brought showers of trouble upon our heads, and opened springs of sorrow in our hearts, and so deluged the world.

☞ Reputation is rarely proportioned to virtue. We have seen a thousand people esteemed, either for the merit they had not yet attained, or for that they no longer possessed.—St Evermond.

Politeness.—Every man we meet requires to be humored. He has some fame, some talent, some whim in his head which is not to be questioned, and which mars all conversation with him.—Emerson.

☞ There is something like enchantment in the very sound of the word youth, and the calmest heart, at every season of life, beats in double to it.—Landor.

☞ Dr. Goldsborough, of Boston, Ind, was stabbed a few days since, and died soon afterwards. The quarrel originated about the pronunciation of a word.

☞ Nature is an endless combination and repetition of a very few laws. She hums the old well known air through innumerable variations.

☞ True practical philosophy makes the most of little pleasures, and the most of everything.—Southey.

☞ He cannot bestow to society who lives upon society; he only gives who provides for his own.

☞ It is better to be abused than forgotten.

Gold in Iowa—More Discoveries.

We confess to have been somewhat skeptical in regard to reported discoveries of gold throughout this section of the State, but evidences of its existence, and specimens of the gold itself, came pouring in upon us, and the most confirmed doubters are compelled to become believers. No man can, upon examination, doubt the fact of its existence—gold has been and is now daily taken from the earth in Iowa. It is not confined to any particular locality—it has been found in Madison, Warren, Clarke, Union, Polk and perhaps other counties. The only question now to be solved is, will it pay to work these mines? This must be decided by practical work. From what we can gether, the presumption is, it will pay. At the present time men are at work in a loose, rough manner, at different places, and report says are making from two to four dollars per day, with an occasional "ten strike."

This week we saw a specimen of quartz rock, with particles of gold therein, and some black sand, with the same appearance and show of gold, which were found by David Norris very near, if not within, corporation limits of this city. The rock was compared with specimen of California quartz, and they are both very similar in formatios and appearance.

We take the following article from the Indianola Visitor:

Gold in Warren County.

Quite an excitement is raging here in consequence of the discovery of gold in different parts of this county. A large number of persons are "prospecting" in various parts of the county, for the shining lucre, and "dame Rumor" is doing her part, magnifying small particles into mountains.

We place but little faith in rumors, and therefore have taken upon ourself the trouble to make inquiries of those who have been at work at the "diggings," and from them we glean facts that can be relied upon.

It is a fact, beyond doubt, that gold has been discovered in this county, and that the "diggings" yield from one dollar to five dollars per day, to each hand.—Lumps have been found, worth from four dollars to five dollars, but it is generally found in small particles, each pan of dirt containing from three to nine "colorings."

It requires a great amount of labor to get some of the diggings, before gold is reached. The dirt has to be "lifted" from five to ten feet before reaching the sand and bed rock. Any one who is used to mining can form some idea of the labor here required.

Gold has been found in the banks of South River, at various places, and claims have been staked off, and companies formed, who are at work, but meet with but little success as yet, on account of high waters.

A company left here a few days ago, for the purpose of sinking a shaft near Wolf creek, but the weather being so disagreeable they have made but little progress. We anxiously await the denouement of this expedition, as it is under the management of one who is both energetic and persevering.

P. S. Since writing the above, Mr. J. V. Franklin, of Jefferson township, has shown us several specimens of gold, dug on his farm. He says it was found in black sand, near a branch running thro' his place. The strata of sand, in which it is found, is about four feet deep, resting upon a bed of blue clay. He thinks there can be good wages made at his diggings.

Mr. Tarleton, who spent several years in the California mines, says the specimens shown us are of the finest quality of gold. We do not wish to create any false impressions about the discovery of gold in this county, and have not, in the above brief statement, given the one hundredth part of the reports we hear from those who are "prospecting." Rich discoveries, no doubt, have been made by several persons, but the truth cannot be obtained from every one. We have every reason to believe that those who are making the most money are keeping mum, to prevent a rush at their places of working.

From fifty to one hundred hands are at work on South River, turning its course, in order to work the present channel. Enough gold has been found, to warrant, it is thought, the labor required to turn the river into another channel.

Fine particles of gold have been found in the banks of the river, yielding a good return for the labor required in separating it from the sand.

We could name over fifty places, in this county, where men are at work, (and some have been at work three weeks at one place,) but we do not think it advisable at the present time.

There remains but one question to be proven by the further investigation of this matter, and that is, whether or not these deposits of the precious metal, which are now paying the miner from one to five dollars per day are of sufficient extent to hold out any considerable length of time.

Will it pay to sink shafts and tunnel the hills where gold has been discovered? If this question can be answered in the affirmative, then indeed, a new Eldorado has been found.

Awful Remedy.—A couple of school girls in Morenci, Lenawee Co., having got into some kind of a quarrel, (about a gentleman, we believe,) both sent their grievances to the editor of the Morenci Journal. After publishing what they had to say, he prescribed the following savage remedy for the next difficulty:

Now girls one word of advice. When you get into the next school girl jangle, appoint an afternoon, shut yourselves up in a room, stand fives paces apart, and there jaw it out, and thereby save the printer the trouble of printing, and your friends the mortification of reading a recitation of your supposed grievances.

The New State of Ontonagon.

Messrs. Editors:—I see that a portion of the press are inclined to give the embryo State to be formed on the southern shore of Lake Superior, Michigan and Wisconsin, Congress willing, the unmusical title of "Ontonagon" a preference over the more beautiful name of Superior which was given the noble lake bearing that name by the early Jesuit voyagers. Marquette, Hennepin, Dubuque, Joliet and Father Charlievix "Ontonagon" is an Indian name, and bears the unmixed English translation of a "wooden bowl." It became attached to the river which empties its waters into Lake Superior, from the following incident:

Many years ago, in the early settlement of that country, a gentleman, who has since represented that district in the Legislature of Michigan, was travelling through that country in company with a party of Indians, and encamped for the night on the banks of the river. In the morning they were regaling themselves on roasted fish and muskrat chowder, which was served in a large wooden bowl, belonging to one of the females in the crowd, and in which while on trail she carried her infant. Now the aforesaid gentleman has never been known to be wanting in that thing called a most voracious appetite, and on this occasion was making sad havoc with the chowder, much to the fears and discomfiture of the balance of the party, who had often been on the verge of famine while their white friend was with them.

A rush was made for the bowl, and in the melee which ensued, it was kicked in the river. The dusky beauty, seeing this indispensable article of her household which served the double purpose of soup tureen and infant's cradle, floating away, rushed to her white friend and throwing her arms around his neck, with tears in eyes, said "Ne ne mesha, Ah in yawl neguynsdon On to no gon!" which in English mean "Dearest Abner, save, oh! save my wooden bowl!"

The waves were cold and the current stormy, but this appeal to his love, duty and gallantry was irresistable, and the chivalrous gentleman stripped off his "breech-cloth," rushed to the rescue.—The struggle was short, but victory perched on the wet and dripping banner of our hero, who stood, Hyperion-like, on the rocky shore, shaking aloft the wooden bowl and shouting—"On-to-na gon!" From this heroic exploit the river derived its name, and in that which is now sought as the title of a new State. Should a new State ever be formed, as has been proposed, and if it must bear an Indian name, let us hope that it will be indicative of something besides shirt-tail chivalry.

Yours &c.,
La Pointe.

THE OLD SCHOOL-HOUSE.

In the pale autumn sunlight
Stands the school-house old and gray,
Which was voted "inappropriate,"
And then removed away
From the green and ample play-ground—
The dear, familiar place
Of the sports of childhood,
The skip, the ring, the chase.

Though disfurnished and forsaken,
And to menial use resigned,
These walls were wont to echo
Lofty thoughts for heart and mind,
Here were gathered braids and ringlets,
Of various shade and hue,
And eyes of loving brightness,
From black to palest blue.
Here forms of youthful beauty
Came at their teachers call,
Who love the gay and gifted,
If obedient, best of all.

But all are gone forever
From this deserted hall,
No more their voices gaily chime,
Nor buoyant footsteps fall.
And some adorn a Western home,
And tend the prairie flower,
And trim the lamp of home-hold love
To light the well spent hour;
While some are basking idly
In fashions fickle ray,—
A deeper glow illumes the cheek
Than met their teachers praise.
Some faded from our pathway
Whose love made life more dear,
Some sank beneath the spring tide—
Some were buried with the year;
And some are seeking wealth
In the distant ship or mine—
In the forum and the sanctum
Some names unsullied shine.
Some within the busy mart
Of the city's ceaseless hum,
Give genius, wealth and talents
To the hydra demon Rum.
And some have wisely chosen
The purer, 'better part,'
And some, without their choosing,
Wear a sad, unreasing heart.

But, if enjoying wealth,
Or driving want away,
They spend the festal night,
Or dread the coming day,
Hope gives no brighter ray,
Nor pain a deeper thrill
Than here allured the heart,
Or checked its ardent will.
While round him briars and roses,
And passion flowrets spring,
Absorbing scenes of active life,
Few thoughts of school must bring.

But when the changing foliage,
Half brilliant and half sere,
Briefly flushed with crimson sunsets,
Proclaims the fading year
A transient thought will come,
An hour be to memory lent,
Of happy years at study passed
And days with schoolmates spent
Within the crumbling walls
Of the school house old and gray,
When youthful hearts dispelled the gloom
Of chill November's day.

Origin of the names of the States

Maine was so called as early as 1623. From Maine in France, of which Henrietta Maria, [illegible] was at that time proprietor,

New Hampshire was the name given to the territory conveyed by the Plymouth Company to Capt. John Mason by patent, Nov. 7th, 1629, with reference to the patentee, who was Governor of Portsmouth in Hampshire, England.

Vermont was so called by the inhabitants in their Declaration of Independence on January 16th, 1777, from the French verd mont, green mountains.

Massachusetts was so called from Massachusetts Bay, and from the Massachusetts tribe of Indians, in the neighborhood of Boston. The tribe is thought to have derived its name from the Blue Hills of Milton. "I had learnt," says Roger Williams, "that Massachusetts was so called from the blue hills."

Rhode Island was so called in 1665, in reference to the Island of Rhodes, in the Mediterranean.

New York was so called in 1664, in reference to the Duke of York and Albany, to whom this territory was granted by the king of England.

New Jersey was so called in 1664, from the Island of Jersey on the coasts of France, the residence of Sir George Carteret, to whom the territory was granted.

Pennsylvania was so called in 1681, after Wm. Penn.

Delaware was so called in 1708, from Delaware Bay, on which it lies, and which received its name from Lord de la War, who died in this Bay.

Maryland was so called in honor of Henrietta Maria Queen of Charles I, in his patent to Lord Baltimore, June 30th, 1635.

Virginia was so called in 1584, after Elizabeth, the Virgin Queen of England.

Carolina was so called by the French in 1564, in honor of King Charles IX, of France.

Georgia was so called in 1639, in honor of George II.

Alabama was so called from its principal river.

Mississippi was so called in 1806, from its western boundary. Mississippi is said to denote the whole river, i. e., the river formed by the union of many.

Louisiana was so called in honor of Louis XIV, of France.

Tennessee was so called in 1765, from its principal river. The word Ten-nasse is said to signify a curved spoon.

Kentucky was so called in 1792, from its principal river.

Illinois was so called in 1806, from its principal river. The word is said to signify the river of men.

Indiana was so called from the American Indians.

Ohio was so called from its southern boundary.

Missouri was so called from its principal river.

Michigan was so called in 1812, from the Lake on its border.

Florida was so called in 1812, from its [illegible] river.

[illegible] was so called by Juan Ponce de [illegible] 1572, because it was discovered on Easter Sunday; in Spanish, Pascua Florida.

Columbia was so called in reference to Columbus.

Wisconsin was so called from its principal river,

Iowa was so called from its principal river.

Oregon was so called from its principal river.

"I am Ruined."

There is something exceeding beautiful as well as instructive, in the following incident in the life of an unfortunate merchant:

A few years ago a merchant failed in business. He went home one evening in great agitation.

"What is the matter?" asked his wife.

"I am ruined; I am beggard. I have lost my all!" he exclaimed, pressing his hand upon his forehead as if his brains were in a whirl.

"All," said his wife; "I am left."—"All, papa!" said his eldest boy; "here am I." "And I too papa," said his little girl, running up and putting her arms around his neck. "It's not lost, papa," repeated Eddie. 'And you have your health left,' said his wife. 'And your two hands to work with, papa,' said his eldest; 'and I can help you.' 'And your two feet, papa, to carry you about. And your two eyes to see with, papa," said little Eddie.

'And you have God's promise,' said grandmother. 'And a good God,' said his wife. 'And a heaven to go to,' said little [illegible] 'And Jesus to come and fetch us there.'

'God forgive me,' said the poor merchant bursting into tears. 'I have not lost my all. What are the few thousands which I called my all, to these more precious things which God has left me?' and he clasped his family to his bosom, and kissed his wife and children with a thankful heart.

Ah no, there are many things more precious than gold and bank stocks, valuable as these may be in their place. When the Central America was foundered at sea, bags and purses of gold were strewn about the deck, as worthless as the merest rubbish. 'Life, life!' was the prayer. To some of the wretched survivors, 'Water, water!' was the prayer. 'Bread, bread!' it was worth its weight in gold, if gold could have bought it.

The loss of property must not cloud the mind with a wicked forgetfulness of the great blessings which are left behind. No man should despair, for no man has lost his all until he has lost his integrity, lost the mercy of God, and lost his hope of heaven at last.

The Western Territories.

A comparative statement of the area of the present States with that of the territory destined to be erected into States, exhibits the interesting fact that the area of the latter, in square miles, exceeds that of the former. The superficial area of the Territories, organized and unorganized, is set down as follows:

	Square miles.
Kansas Territory,	136,000
Minnesota "	141,000
Oregon "	227,000
Washington "	113,000
Utah "	187,000
New Mexico "	210,000
Nebraska "	528,000
Mesilla "	78,000
Indian "	187,000
Square miles,	1,807,000

To these Dacotah is to be added, of the extent of which we have seen no estimate.

"HOMEWARD BOUND"

There are many ships that sail the sea,
Encircling the earth around;
But not a song so loud and free,
As that of the "Homeward bound."

When they pour the wine, they pour it free,
And pass to all around,
And a toast is pledged right merrily
To waves and the "homeward bound."

Full high the glass, white wave, roll fast,
No shadows around them throng;
And dusky phantoms will vanish now,
On drink to the "homeward bound."

The tide is out, the sea-birds dart,
Like winged arrows speed around:
While stars are guiding up to Him,
The lost of the "homeward bound."

KATE MANSFIELD.

The Southern Flood.

Melancholy accounts still reach us through the southern papers of the terrible destruction which the people of Arkansas, Tennessee, Mississippi, and especially Louisiana, are suffering. The Memphis Appeal of the 5th, for instance, gives the following picture of ruin and distress. It is about as sorry a one as we have yet seen;

Mr Thomasson, the clerk of the Evansville, in yesterday from White River, has given us several particulars of the state of things as they existed on the boat to this city. From Helena to White River the traveler on the river could distinguish only one sheet of water, on both sides of the river, as far as could be seen. Up the shores of White River for sixty miles a similar stretch of water met the eye. The houses are all surrounded by water, which flows beneath them Where the water runs in a current, the supporters of the houses are hourly undermined; some of the houses were seen leaning over, ready to fall. The condition of the inmates in many instances, especially when far from neighbors, must be most deplorable. The loss of stock will be great. The cattle have no opportunity of lying down, and must suffer from deprivation of sleep, as well as from scarcity of food. Men were seen in dug-outs in some places, followed by the wading cattle. The men were engaged in cutting down the young cotton-wood trees for the cattle to browse upon. In one place a drove of hogs swam for some distance after the boat, evidently anxous to get on the dry deck. A man was seen at Helena endeavoring to purchase a flat-boat, upon which to place a portion of his stock to save them from perishing. He lived back from Napoleon, but not a boat was to be got in that city. The fences, of course, are carried for miles; cord-wood is also carried away in such abundance that boats already find it scarce, and have to pay an advanced price."

Good Joke on a Stage Agent.

G. W. L., the gentlemanly Stage Agent at Howell, created something of a "snickering" among a coach-load of passengers the other day. The coach changes horses at Howell, and before it leaves, the faithful agent closely eyes the way bill and collects fare of all passengers who have not paid. He found one more person than he [illegible] names, and discovered a well dressed gentleman on the driver's box, as he supposed, waiting for the driver to come. He approached him and said: "Your fare, Sir." The response was: "I have concluded I should not pay any fare until I get to the next station." "That won't answer," said the agent, "I can let no one pass here who has not paid his fare."

The gentleman on the box turned and said: "Your line must be doing a d—d poor business, if you have got so that you charge your drivers fare." The passengers, among whom was Governor Bingham, had heard the whole conversation, and burst out in a laugh that convinced the agent that he was barking up the wrong tree. It was a new driver, sent on by Dan Hibbard, one of the proprietors, and this was his first trip over the road. The only remark the agent could make was, "well, I will let you go this time, but you have no business to go better dressed than the agent."

POWDER.—The English government powder is composed of seventy five parts of saltpetre, fifteen parts of charcoal, and ten of sulphur. The ingredients being thoroughly powdered, prepared and purified, are mixed by means of machinery.

ZIMMERMAN BANK BILLS.—Those who have bills of this bank by them had better dispose of them quickly. An advertisement in the Canada Gazette, states that, on and after the 1st of September next, these bills "will cease to be secured by the deposit of Provincial securities" The Bank of Upper Canada, Toronto, continues to redeem the Zimmerman money.

Intemperance and its Cure

It will hardly be denied, that after all the efforts heretofore made in this matter, intemperance is upon the increase, rather than upon the wane, in Michigan, and we fear throughout the Union generally.

There are many causes for this, but we now only propose to speak of those which pertain to temperance men themselves, for as to the rest we think none of them are insurmountable.

The friends of Temperance in this State labored hard and long to procure a law for the suppression of this evil, and did at length procure one of the best, and most effectual ever passed by any State in the Union. But we were not long permitted to enjoy the result of this triumph undisturbed. After that it had been passed upon by our Supreme Court, at that time understood not to be by any means partial to the law, and all desirable and material portions of it retained, and pronounced constitutional, our very next Legislature, seeing as they thought a chance to secure a few German votes, and perhaps give the political ascendency to the Republican party in the city of Detroit, by doing so, so altered and modified the law, as to almost destroy its moral impress upon the public mind.

Had this been done by the professed enemies of the cause we should indeed have regretted it, but felt that we had less right to complain. But this is not so. It was done by its professed friends. And more than that, did not by any means promote the object it was especially designed to secure, but did in fact more to defeat it, than any other act they did or could have done.

Nor is this the only injury the cause is receiving from those professing to be its friends. Intemperance is so great an evil, in fact so dire a curse, in society, in the family, and in the State, that very few, who in any way respect themselves, or regard the opinion of community, profess to be in favor of a common use of intoxicating drinks. To hear men talk you would think them all apostles of Temperance.

But the grand difficulty with very many is that while they thus talk, their whole lives, practice and influence, secretly, if not openly, is such as to give the unmistakable lie to all those fair professions, and instead of being in reality friends of the cause, they are only able the more effectually, from professing to be its friends, to undermine and betray it.

It is of very little consequence for our wine drinking Prelates, Public Instructors or officials, no matter what their position or calling, to talk to our young men, of the virtues of temperance, or sin and degradation of intoxication, for looking to their practice, they take it all as only a specious counterfeit, or well recited homily, which as their teachers see fit not themselves to regard, they [illegible] certainly suppose their auditors weak enough to heed. Far better were it for these unsuspecting youth, who guided by their example, rather than profession, are steadily marching on in a course of dissipation and ruin, if these men of character, position and influence would come boldly and frankly out, and state in simple truth, what is in reality the fact, that they love the intoxicating bowl, and drink it because they love it, more than they do the happiness or prosperity of those whom they know to be exposed to degradation and ruin through their pernicious example and influence.

This would be plain strait forward talk There would be no hypocrisy nor deception in this. And those who were misled by it, could not complain that they were not informed as to the real state or merits of the case.

We must confess that we are sometimes discourage when we see the extent to which those who have professed to be friendly, and even somewhat fervent in this cause, are willing to undo all the teaching of their whole lives on this subject, for the mere sake of a little personal gratification. Now we care not what they say, these men are not for us, but against us—and should be recognized as such.

The friends of Temperance, it seems to us, must meet once more upon a common platform, and see where they stand. We need more public organization. Let us have a renewal of our former pledge.—Law is good, and we have enough of it left to prove effectual, if it were only efficiently enforced—but public opinion, and not merely a few temperance men must do this. The secret Temperance organizations are good, in their way. But we must not give up the whole cause to them, nor yet rest it entirely upon the law.—we want more moral suasion and out-door organization, and meetings for the concentration of public opinion, as necessary auxiliaries in the cause. Who will move in the matter?

Never speak evil of any one. Be just before you are generous.

More British Outrages upon American Vessels

Philadelphia, May 13.

The ship Tropic Bird, which arrived yesterday from Port au Prince, consigned to the old established house of Thomas Watson & Sons of this city, was fired into by the British gun-boat Jasper, off Inagua, upon suspicion of being a slaver. Not content with this belligerent demonstration, the British officer in charge of the Jasper took the liberty of sending a boat to board the Tropic Bird and examine the ship's papers.

Boston, May 14.

Capt. Bray, of the brig Robert Wing, at this port from Aux Cayes, reports that when off Inagua, April 29, he fell in with a British gun boat which fired a gun for the brig to lay to, and sent a boat alongside. An officer examined her papers, and she was allowed to proceed. There was also a ship and schooner in company with the gun boat. The schooner was detained on supicion of being a slaver.—The ship was undoubtedly the Tropic Bird, since arrived at Philadelphia.

New York, May 15.

The British cruisers in the Gulf are still active in their demonstrations against our commerce. Two additional instances of outrage to American vessels are given in to-days paper. The bark Glenburn, at Havana from Antwerp, reported on her arrival that she had been boarded by a British naval officer, who asserted that he had orders to board and search all vessels sailing off the Cuban coast. Capt. Gage, of the bark W. H. Chandler, which arrived at this port yesterday, reports that, while lying in the harbor of Sagua la Grande, his vessel was boarded by the the second lieutenant of the British steamer Styx, who made a thorough examination of the ship and her papers. He also boarded and searched all the other vessels in the port, most of which belonged to the United States. This conduct aroused the indignation of the authorities of Sagua la Grande, and the Port Captain drew up a protest against the action of the British naval officer, to which the masters of the searched vessels affixed their signatures. A correspondent of the Herald, at Havana, in connection with an account of the visit to Capt Gage's vessel, gives some additional facts relative to the outrage committed lately by a British cruiser on the schooner Cortez: The passports of several passengers on board the Cortez were kept by the British commander, who refused to return them. Annexed is a brief record of the operations of the British in the Gulf during the past three weeks: Ship Tropic Bird fired into, boarded and searched; schooner Cortez seized and now detained at Inagua; schooner N. B. Borden fired into, boarded and searched; schooner Mobile fired into, boarded and searched; brig Robert Wing fired into, boarded and searched; bark Glenburn overhauled at sea, and bark W. H Chandler boarded and searched while lying at anchor in the port of Sagua la Grande.

New Orleans, May 7.

A gentleman of the utmost reliability from Havana by the Black Warrior, arrived last night, brings information that the American ship captains had held a meeting and taken measures to have all the cannon and armament which is on board their various ships placed on one of their number, which shall be well manned and proceed to sea with the design of capturing the saucy little British cruiser when she overhauls the ship, as she very surely would, in accordance with her usual practice.

LITERARY NOTICES.

Godey's Lady Book.

The June No of Godey is promptly upon our table. 'The first step' is a fine engraving, and quite life like. It contains a five figure fashion plate. The contents are always good We notice that Godey sends out 2,100 exchanges. He complains that some do not notice him. This is simply mean, as that is all he gets for the 2,100 copies—worth $6,300. We have always noticed every No. we have received which has been for the last 5 years, and should feel mean to take one without it. Published monthly by L. Godey, Philad. Terms $3,00 per annum.

The Lady's Home Magazine.

The June No is on our table, and always welcome. It is illustrated by 'The Happy Family' a fine pleasant plate and the usual Fashion plates and patterns Its literary contents are never meagre. Arthur never edits a paper that is not worth all the money that it costs. Published by T. S. Arthur & Co. Terms $2,00 per annum.

PROF. FOWLER'S LECTURE ON ASTRONOMY.—Prof. Fowler of Hillsdale College will deliver a lecture on Lecture on Astronomy illustrated with a magic Lantern and other appropriate apparatus on Friday evening next week, May 28th. 1858, to commence at 7½ o'clock, at Union Hall in this village. Admission 10 cts. The well known reputation of Prof. Fowler as a popular Lecturer, will secure a good audience.

'I repeat,' said a person of questionable veracity, 'that I am an honest man.' 'Yes,' was the reply, 'and how often will you have to repeat it before you believe it yourself?'

Amoor River Trading Company.

The Washington Star, referring to a synoptical sketch of a plan for the organization of a Russian trading company, which has received the sanction of the Czar, says:

"This company, in its formation and privileges, is constructed very similarly to the Russian North American Fur Company, and the English Hudson Bay Company. It is the foundation plan of what may ultimately become one of the most powerful and opulent commercial corporations in the world, second probably to none other than the English East India Company. The present plan contemplates a capital of 12,000,000 francs, about $2,250,000, and the edict of incorporation grants the privilege of exclusive trade with and the right to establish counting houses, agencies, ship yards, manufactories, &c., in all that part of Eastern Siberia watered by the Amoor and Shilkah rivers and their affluents, on the Siberian Pacific coasts, and the islands of the Northern Pacific Ocean, except such as are reserved to the Russian North American Fur Company. The right to employ Russian subjects in any part of the empire is granted as well as to employ and trade with the Russian "colonists" in Siberia. The financial basis of the company is destined to give it great strength and permanency, and its privileges are of the most liberal character.—The right to hold stock is not confined to Russian subjects. The shares are valued at 1000 francs, $187, 50 cents each; 400 francs, $75, are required to be paid in at the time of subscribing.

CAPTAIN KIDD ON THE ISLAND OF PERIM.—This little island, of so much importance now in European diplomacy, is thus alluded to in a small volume called "Notes of Travel," published at Salem in 1854.

"Having been drifted about by light winds, it was not until the third morning after leaving Aden that we passed Bab-el-Mandeb Strait, or the Gate of Mourning We passed through the narrow strait which is about a mile and a fourth wide between Bab-el-Mandeb Peak and Perim Island. Speaking of Perim Island, it will be remembered that Captain Kidd, who, in 1697, sailed from New York in the Adventurer galley, in search of buccaneers, near here captured a rich Quedah merchantman. He landed upon this island, and who knows but the long-sought-after buried treasures of the daring buccaneer may yet be unearthed at Perim Island!"

The Open Polar Sea Question.

At a recent meeting of the Royal Geographical Society in London, Dr. Rink read a paper in which he attempted to demonstrate that Dr. Kane was entirely mistaken in relation to an open polar sea; that there was an error of about two degrees in his reckoning, and that he approached no nearer the Pole than several other navigators had done before him—Sir George Back, capt. Collinson and others took the same view of the case.—The American Association for the Advancement of Science, however, regard the subject as worthy of further investigation. At the late session of that body, Dr Hayes, Surgeon to Dr. Kane's second Grinnell expedition, read a paper, in which he announced his firm belief that there was an open polar sea beyond the ice-belt that had thus far prevented actual access to the Pole, which was indicated by many discoveries of the Russians above Siberia, of the English above Spitzbergen, and by the Americans through Smith's Strait; and suggested another expedition to test the truth of the problem. The subject was referred to a committee, who made a report in entire harmony with Dr. Hayes' views, and recommended that a committee of fifteen members of the Association be appointed to co-operate with Dr. Hayes in his efforts to organize another expedition for Arctic research.—The recommendation was unanimously adopted, and a committee appointed comprising several of the most eminent scientific men of the country

It is understood that Dr. Hayes hopes to organize his expedition by the spring of 1860, and does not anticipate that it will cost in money, over $30,000.

☞ A great discovery of books and documents was made during the last week by the House Committee on Accounts, whereby some thirty thousand volumes and numbers of valuable works have been brought to light from the "catacombs" or vaults under the great rotunda of the Capitol. Valuable as these works undoubtedly are, some of them are so modern that, as it would seem, they could not have been very long lost to the vision and knowledge of persons about the Capitol having charge of such matters Thus there were packages of the "Pacific Railroad Expedition," "Japan Expedition," "United States Statutes at Large," &c. Other works are mentioned which may have been set aside at more distant dates, thus a complete Journal of the English House of Lords and Commons since the middle of the seventeenth century. The works of John Adams complete are amongst the works thus exhumed.—National Intelligencer

Student's Column.

Why the Greek and Latin Languages have become Desolate.

Many ask why these languages—if they are so excellent as some would have them believe—have fallen into disuse. They ask why do not modern Romans speak Latin, or Grecians Greek? It may be replied that the written language of any nation is the work of its scholars. These agree that certain symbols shall signify certain articulate sounds, by which the people have been accustomed to make known their desires to each other.—Hence the language spoken by the people may be said to form the groundwork of a language. From this it takes its starting point. But as soon as it becomes written and certain words are known to signify only certain sounds, the written takes the bad, and the language of the people becomes embodied in it, and guided by it.

It is true, that they mutually influence each other, but that the written has the greater sway. This literature forms the language especially of the educated and refined. The common are less under its direct influence. The changes which are constantly taking place do not come into use among them as soon, and many of them are never used or understood by them. The beautiful ideas which present themselves to the imagination of the man whose taste as been cultivated, force him to find expressions the most delicate to express them to others with all the beauty, in which they appear to himself. This of course can form no part of the language of those who never have such emotions. Again the profound student who is trained to reason with the precision of clock-work, pours forth his language orderly and powerfully. The orator, eager to gain laurels, or fearing his country's danger, fuel his soul on fire, and seeks the most weighty expressions to enforce his views, or has resort to new or figurative terms to secure the attention of the audience. The imagination of the poet, exquisitely sensitive from a study of nature and art, has transported himself into an ecstacy of delight, while he contemplates the angelic forms which she has pictured to his mind. To express his sublime conceptions, he seeks the most elevated language and beautiful expressions. All of these sublime strains form no part of the language of the man who uses language merely to convey his thoughts to others concerning the commonplace affairs of life. Hence the man who studies these models of excellence in his own language has a very different language from the common people.

This is the case in all countries, and has been so in all ages, but more so in ages or nations where the few were learned, and the many entirely illiterate.—Perhaps it is less the case in these northern United States than among any other people upon the face of the globe. But even here the principle is true to a considerable extent. This was the case to an extraordinary degree among the Romans: Here the rich patrician was learned in all the literature of the day, while the plebian was too ignorant to be able to read his native tongue, and knew nothing but what fell under his observation, except from the occasional speech of an orator. Hence we may safely conclude that the popular language in the Augustan age was very different from the oration of Tully.

The same will apply to the Grecians in the days of Pericles, or afterwards at the time Demosthenes delivered his orations. The Augustan age, as you all know, was the period when the Roman language attained its highest excellence. Even then Grecian had begun to deteriorate. Freedom had long since been taken from her by the "man of Macedonia." The minds of her subdued sons no more soared aloft in the higher flights of song. Her orators no more spell bound the minds of assembled thousands by their pathos, nor aroused her drooping spirits by the withering sarcasm heaped upon the coward, who meanly preferred submission to a glorious death. Her tragedians no more moved indignation as they held up vice, and luxury to scorn, or melted their audiences into tears for suffering worth.—She now formed but a small member of all absorting Rome.

But after the reign of Augustus Rome and her language too was doomed to undergo a sad reverse. He was succeeded by the most sordid wretches, who lived but to indulge their depraved appetites, and preyed upon the vitals of their subjects. Men of letters were neglected.—The iron bridle of tyranny gagged the mouth of the orator, except he prostituted his talent of speech to praise a monster Vespasian, Trajan Aurelius made many unable efforts to restore literature, but all in vain. The reign of any of these was too short to nourish those great minds, which alone can refresh and invigorate literature. The consequences were, literature became neglected. The great lived in luxury. Flatteries the most servile took the place of lofty strains of eloquence, and panegyrics the place of the epic and the pastoral poem.

MISAPPREHENSION CORRECTED.

The success which has attended the special treatment of affections of the Throat and Lungs, introduced by Dr. ROBT. HUNTER, of New York, whose practical writings on the Respiratory Organs, and the rational system of inhalation have been so recently published leads many persons to apply for "Agencies," as if 'Inhilation' consisted of some 'particular nostrum.' Such a misapprehension is calculated grossly to mislead the public; and Dr. Hunter therefore feels it to be due to himself and to the practice of Inhilation with which his name and reputation are identified to state again, that "Inhalation," as advocated by him is a SYSTEM OF TREATMENT based on a correct knowledge of the condition of the patient, and cannot therefore be a subject for Agencies.

All persons desireing to consult or come under treatment, must apply personally or by letter to him, or his associate, Dr. H. MELVILLE, when the fullest information regarding the treatment will be given, either to patients themselves or to physicians consulting on their cases without charge.

Those who are desirous of consulting may address either R. HUNTER, M. D., or Drs. HUNTER & MELVILLE, 828 Broadway, N Y

GET THE MOST EFFICACIOUS

In short, get THE BEST, which are DR. ROBACK'S SCANDINAVIAN BLOOD PURIFIER AND BLOOD PILLS. These wonderful Medicines are entirely vegetable, leave no bad effects, and can not by any possibility injure the most delicate constitution. Never was a good Spring Medicine so necessary as now, for in addition to the skin diseases and deranged Stomach and Liver, which every winter produces, it is most evident to all who are accustomed to note the powerful influence for good or ill that the mind has upon the body that the anxiety of mind caused by the late wide spread money troubles, has injured the general health of almost every one. These cleanse, strengthen and purify your system with the Scandinavian remedies, and you will thereby save yourself from serious illness the coming Summer.

S. W. FRANCIS'
Patent Printing Machine.

THIS Machine is played by means of piano keys; two copies are printed at once, in less time than is required to produce one with the pen. Devices, while in the press, will be freed from the inconveniences attending an ordinary manuscript. Authors secured from loosing the result of many hours, of mental application by the destruction of a single copy while in the hands of the publisher. Editors no longer troubled by the necessary correction of errors in proof sheet incident to manuscript copies; Reporters may, with less labor furnish printed reports; Merchants while writing a clearer letter and saving time, will keep neatly printed copies instead or illegible ones they now obtain by means of the copying press; and any person with failing sight or paralyzed or amputed arm will still be enabled to pursue his literary labors with greater ease, rapidity and certainty then ever before. By a slight modification raised letters may be printed for the benefit of the blind.

The Price of one Printing Machine, $100.

IMPROVEMENTS.—Notwithstanding the hard times our village continues to improve. We notice that Wm. Richards and T. Deuel are preparing to erect 2 more brick stores on Chicago street. Mrs. Hoag is building a wooden building on R. R. street near the Depot, for a hotel. Nearly 100 shade trees have been set out this Spring. Many side-walks have been commenced. "Go on" is the sentiment.

THE PRINTER.—Is the title of a beautiful sheet, published by Henry E. Huntington, No. 1 Spruce Street N. Y. Terms $1 a year in advance. It contains a large amount of valuable reading. To publishers and booksellers it is a 'rare treat.' We clip the following from its cover:

☞ SPECIAL NOTICE.—As it is our design to exchange with every publication on the continent of North America, and as we are conscious that our present list does not embrace them all, we particularly urge upon those papers who may favor us with a notice to state this fact, and request all those who may not have received THE PRINTER to forward their publications to our office, and we shall immediately place them on our exchange list.

W. A. KING.—It is with pleasure we introduce Mr. King to our readers. He is an artist and a worthy young man. If there is any person among our friends wishing a beautiful picture for an ornament their rooms, we recommend them to call at his studio and leave orders; we are confident he will please you. See his advertisement.

ADRIAN PICTURE GALLERY.—Having occasion to visit the city of Adrian on Tuesday of this week, we thought we would call on our old friend, Fred. Deuel, whom from the commendatory of the press of that city we judged had commenced the above business in a manner seldom if ever surpassed by those engaged in that art, and are happy to say we were not deceived. We think we are speaking within bounds when we say that he has as fine a set of rooms and apparatus as can be found in the State. Aside from this Mr. D. is an excellent operator, an obliging person, and always ready and willing to do all in his power for those who may favor him with a call. Go and see Frederick.

YOUNG AMERICA LOST.—Two boys aged 11 and 12, sons of Chas. Strong and Robt. McKeown, of this village left their home last Tuesday for Adrian, to see the 'Calliope humbug' and from which time nothing has been heard from them.

RELIGIOUS NOTICE.—There will be preaching in Union Hall next Sunday, forenoon after-noon and evening.

Subject for after-noon, Sin against the Holy Ghost, Text Matt., XII 31, Subject for evening, Universalism, what it is not, and what it is.

Meetings of Highway Commissioners.

NOTICE.—The commissioners of Highways for the township of Tecumseh, will meet at the places and for the purposes following.

On Friday June 4th at 2 o'clock P. M. at the house of John Whitenack in road district No. 22 in said Town for the purpose of letting the job of building a bridge over the little raisin about 80 rods north of J. Whitenacks residence.

On Saturday June 5th at 10 o'clock A. M., at Newburgh in said Township for the purpose of letting the job of repairing the bridge over River Raisin at that place.

Also on the same day at 2 o'clock P. M., at the house of Robert McCooke in road district No. 2 in said Township, for the purpose of letting the job of building a causeway on the town line between the townships of Bridgewater and Tecumseh. The above jobs will be let to the lowest bidder.

By order of the Commissioners of Highway.

CHAS. D. STEVENS.
Township Clerk.
Tecumseh, May. 17 1858.

Proposals Wanted.

The Village Board will receive sealed proposals at the office of the undersigned, up to and including the 22d inst., for the erection of a bridge over the River Raisin, near the Globe Mill. The plan, specifications, and terms of payment, can be learned from Elijah Anderson, Esq., at the Machine Shop of Messrs Anderson & Brewer. EDWIN B. WOOD,

A HAPPY EDITOR.

Geo. W. Kendall, one of the proprietors of the New Orleans Picayune, owns large estates in Texas. Writing to a friend in Boston, he describes his mode of life, as follows:

"You may, perhaps, wish to learn the mode and manner of my life hereaways; let me enlighten you. Three days in the week I ordinarily pass at my rancho here, 3 or 4 miles from New Braunfels, with my family; 2 days I spend at the Estancia, a place of ——— miles west, and where my flock of sheep are pastured, and the other 2 days I am on the road, backwards and forwards, my conveyance an old Jersey wagon with 2 trusty horses. There is one gap of eight miles on the road without a house, and another of 12 yet the way is not lonesome. I never pass over it without seeing an abundance of deer, turkeys, ducks, partridges and the like; I carry alongside of me a double barrel gun, a Sharpe's rifle and one of Colt's revolvers, and some kind of game is sure to grace my wagon both going and coming. My sheep now number 3000 and finer flocks you never set eyes upon. In May, I hope to be able to count upwards of 4,000, as my lambs come in April. I have, besides, a fine gang of brood mares, besides some 40 cows, and like the elder Mr. Norval, 'to feed my flock and increase my store' is now 'my constant care.' Did I not once tell you that I had much rather see my lambs skipping upon the hills and playing in the valleys than to witness the pirouettes and entrechats of the best corps de ballet that ever existed? If I did not say as much to you it nevertheless is true. I have seen a good deal in my day, Jim—the world, the elephant, etc.—but never saw anything which afforded so much real enjoyment as my flock, when doing well. And since I have been here on the spot in person, now nearly two years, I have had extraordinary good luck; I have not lost 2 per cent. of my sheep per annum, and when I tell that 20 per cent is the average the world over, you may well imagine that my success is remarkable

"I never sell an ewe or anything which produces I have pasturage for 20,000 sheep, and any number of horses and cattle; and to see all this space covered is now what I am working for I don't bother my mind a moment about Kansas, or Brigham Young, or politics of any kind—don't care who is President—fear God and hate the Indians—try to keep my feet warm and head cool—and smoke my pipe in peace with all mankind.

"Here, notwithstanding we occasionally have a cold and blustering norther, our climate is delicious. I am now writing on this 1st of January 1858, sitting in my shirt sleeves, doors and windows wide open, no fire, and robins and other summer birds singing in the green live oaks of my yard. Think of that, all muffled up as you are, and weep. And then here among the mountains we have no fevers, no chills, no consumptions, no sickness of any kind. There's balm in Texas."

Irresponsible Agents and Poor Trees.

Permit me to add my own to the remarks made by your able correspondent W. E. S. from Egypt, about fruit trees purchased from New York agents. I quite agree with him that it is high time some one began to ances; last year, those New York agents were very active in this place, and no doubt they will (or at least agents from the same firms, for it is seldom the same agent comes the following year,) be as active and plentiful as ever. It really is surprising how they find so many fresh customers to be duped every year. "I know it to be a fact, that two agents sold in this place last year $3,000 worth of plants and trees, and I dare venture to say not $1,000 worth will be alive next fall. And is it to be wondered at, when we take into consideration the time of delivery? Last year, one agent delivered his goods on the 20th of October: I know these goods were lying at the office ten days before he came to deliver; how long they had been coming I cannot say, but we might readily suppose a week. This would make the time of starting the 3d, and we might safely suppose them to be lifted some where about the 1st or 2d of October. Now, we know at this time last year, the trees had not shed their foliage. I noticed many peach trees among the lot delivered here, that had not made their terminal buds. It is a well known fact, that one firm in Western New York employ at that season of the year from 100 to 200 hands stripping the leaves off those trees which are sent out West. They are packed in damp moss, &c., and delivered to us apparently in fine condition. Is it to be wondered at that three-fourths of such trees should die after receiving such treatment.

The evergreens also delivered here at the same time share a worse fate, for not 5 out of 100 live. There is no difficulty in getting evergreens to do well here, providing they are taken from the nursery in the spring of the year just as the buds are making a start. I planted last spring over 100 and only lost three. One writer in the Ohio Farmer says, (if I remember right,) that 10,000 evergreens have been planted in Springfield. What a vast forest this would make if they had all lived? But no one would have supposed so many had been planted When we look around and see how few, very few, there are that are really doing well, it makes one sad because of the many disappointments that must have resulted to their sanguine planters.

Honorable men there are who have for a long time seen this wholesale disappointment, and have ~~[illegible]~~ nurseries with the hopes of remedying this loss, and whose reputation depend upon their success. If their directions are followed, I think much less disappointment and loss would occur. Would it not be much better to patronize the men and realize our expectation, than make such expenditure to meet with grievance and vexation? S. H.

"Beans for Horses."

In reply to your inquiry (April 15th) respecting beans for horse feed: The beans, referred to in your extract from the London Field, are far different to the white bean grown in Illinois. The common field bean grown in England (of which there are several varieties,) have the eye in the end of the bean, and are first rate stimulating feed for hard working horses. They are generally coarsely ground or split, and fed to horses with a mixture of bran or chaff. They are also fed to hogs the straw makes good fodder for horses and stock. The bean is considered of importance in the rotation of crops grown by the English farmer; indeed, by some, it is thought to be much benefit to the land. They are planted early in the spring, either by drilling or broadcast, and usually attain the height of about four feet. The dropping of the leaves in the fall makes a good fertilizer. I have known the dust and chaff (in cleaning up after threshing,) to be scattered on meadow land; the parts thus covered would, in the subsequent crop of hay grass, give an increase nearly equal to that produced by a dressing of manure. Probate Notice

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee, ss. At a session of the Probate Court for the County of Lenawee, holden at the City of Adrian on Friday the sixteenth day of April, in the year one thousand eight hundred and fifty-eight.

Present, Fernando C. Beaman, Judge of Probate.—In the matter of the Estate of Christian Deemy, deceased. On reading and filing the Petition, duly verified of Benjamin Bemuth, administrator on the estate of said deceased, praying for license to sell the real estate of said deceased for reasons therein set forth.

Thereupon it is ordered, That Monday the thirty-first day of May next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon be assigned for the hearing of said Petition, and that the heirs-at-law of said deceased, and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said Court, then to be holden at the Probate Office, in the City of Adrian, and show cause if any there be why the prayer of the Petitioner should not be granted.

And it is further ordered, That said Petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate, of the pendency of said petition, and the hearing thereof by causing a copy of this order to be published in the Tecumseh Herald, a newspaper printed and circulating in said County of Lenawee, for four successive weeks previous to said day of hearing.

We have found that thousands of persons from Maine to Georgia are constantly sending to us to execute orders, involving purchases varying in amount from 25 cents to as many hundred dollars, and we believe in every case, those employing us have been satisfied both with the quality of the services rendered and the equity of our charges. We mean that our charges shall in all cases be fair and reasonable, being predicated on the time and labor consumed. It is certain, that being constantly in the market, buying largely for cash, we can buy better than any single purchaser can. In fact, we save to our friends much more in prices than the commission we charge. No man who only occasionally comes here can be familiar with a market so extensive as this. We being there all the time are thoroughly acquainted with it, and know where to go to find everything in first hands at the lowest rates. We have found that many of our distant friends wish to send us country produce to sell, sometimes the proceeds to be invested in goods, sometimes in money. Accordingly we have made the very best arrangements to enable us to render justice to those who may consign to us. Our charges for selling are a usually five per cent. although in special cases of very large or very small transactions equity might require it to be varied from that. We have a circular giving more at length the scope and plan of our business with statement of our charges for buying some of the leading articles, which will be sent on application.

Bragg's Arctic Liniment.

This unequalled Liniment upon which the great mass of afflicted of all lands now rely for relief from the pangs of Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Gout, Erysipelas Cancer, Scrofula, Sprains, Bruises, Burns, Scalds and all cutaneous diseases, is rapidly supercending all similar preparations. The proprietors give for the encouragement of sufferers, the following unparalleled of a few of the wonderful cures effected by it during the past few months. Certificates from the parties named are in the possession of the proprietors; their length precludes the publication of all but a few.

One Bottle Triumphant.

Mrs. Moffit, No 943 Morgan Street, St. Louis, having suffered for three years with Rheumatism, and tried many preparations without effect, was cured by one fifty cent bottle of Arctic Liniment.

Out of Purgatory.

Henry Davis, Mound street, St. Louis, who says he was suffering the pangs of purgatory!" with neuralgia [illegible] of the age, and will furnish the most approved

Pity the Little Children.

A little daughter of Mrs. Lee, residing on Lake St. Chicago, was scalled all over by the upsetting of a kittle of boiling water. The Arctic Liniment was applied according to the directions, and the fire was instantly extracted, and in a few days the little sufferer was well.

Restored to Beauty.

Mrs George K. Tyler, Canal street, N Orleans had long suffered from a painful and disfiguring eruption on the face and by the use of one bottle of the Liniment was cured, and restored to her original beauty.

A Horrible Tumor.

Eugene Mallory, Natchez was three years the victim of a horrible tumor on the neck, which resisted all remedies until he tried the Arctic Liniment. Three bottles cured him in a few weeks.

Wonderful Cure!

Mrs Bedford, Mobile, was confined to her couch for three years with numb palsy and after being in despair from the failure of all other remidies, was cured by the Arctic Liniment, in a little over a month.

An Explosion.

Memphis, Tenn., Nov., 28th, 1857.

I hereby certify, that having been badly burned and scated by the explosion of a Steam Boiler, a friend induced me to try Bragg's Arctic Liniment. The smart was instantly extracted from the scalds, and in a very short time all the pain was gone from the bruises.—In two weeks I was well, and able to resume my business.

The Blind See!

Webster City, Iowa, Nov. 9th, 1857.

Dr. A. G. Bragg.—Dear Sir: For more than three years I had been afflicted with inflamed eyes, in an aggravated degree, and tried various Physicians, and several nostrums, to no effect. I was induced by Dr. Baum to try the Arctic Liniment, and in two months was nearly well. My little daughter was afflicted in the same manner for the same time, and during a portion of the time was entirely blind in one eye. I applied your valuable Liniment, and her eyes are perfectly sound. Thus have I with one (two-bit) bottle cured my daughter's eyes and my own, besides curing my rheumatism in my back. I would not be without your invaluable remedy in my house. Yours Truly
Wm. RUSSELL.

Webster City, Iowa, Nov., 9th, 1857.

I hereby certify, that I am well acquainted with Wm Russell, and with the astonishing cures he mentions, and know his statement to be strictly true.

Good for Animals.

This invaluable Liniment is also equally effeations in curing the diseases of animals, as witness the following certificate;—Messrs J & A. Arnot, and Lynch, A. net & Co., keep the very largest livery stables in the West and are generally known throughout the U. S.

St. Louis, Dec 23rd, 1857.

We, the undersigned, having used Dr. Bragg's Arctic Liniment, take pleasure in cheerfully testifying to its superior efficacy in curing the diseases of horses; so well are we satisfied of the Arctic being the best Liniment made, that we could use no other. We have used it in our large number of years, extensive livery stables in this city, and consequently our experience about horses and their diseases is great, and we unhesitatingly say, that the Arctic Liniment is the only one we have ever found ALWAYS EFFECTIVE. We cordially recommend it to all livery stable keepers and others having the care of horses.

J. & A. ARNOT,
LYNCH, ARNOT & CO
Chestnut Street.

Caution.

Many Druggists, having old liniments on hand, will try to sell them to you as the best, but do you positively refuse to purchase them. Ask for BRAGG'S ARCTIC LINIMENT," and take no other.

A Liberal Proposition.

The proprietors agree to furnish each purchaser of a dollar bottle, with free subscription to the U. S. Journal, for one year. This is one of the best N. Y. illustrated papers. A certificate entitling the holder to the benefit of this proposition, is enclosed in the wrapper around every dollar bottle. The Arctic Liniment is put up in 25 cent 50 cent and $1. bottles. The 50 cent and $1 bottles contain 50 and 100 per cent more Liniment in proportion to their cost, and are the cheapest. For sale by

HOWARD ASSOCIATION
PHILADELPHIA.

A Benevolent institution, established by special endowments for the relief of the sick and distressed, afflicted with Virulent and Epidemic diseases.

THE HOWARD ASSOCIATION, in view of the awful destruction of human life, caused by Sexual diseases, and the deceptions practised upon the unfortunate victims of such diseases by Quacks, several years ago directed their Consulting Surgeon, as a CHARITABLE ACT worthy of their name, to open a Dispensary for the treatment of this class of diseases in all their forms, and to give MEDICAL ADVICE GRATIS to all who apply by letter, with a description of their condition (age, occupation, habits of life, &c.) and in cases of extreme poverty, TO FURNISH MEDICINES FREE OF CHARGE. It is needless to add that the Associat on commands the highest Medical skill of the age, and will furnish the most approved

The Directors on the treatment of Sexual Diseases, for the Report upon the treatment of Sexual Diseases, for the year ending January 1st, 1858, express the highest satisfaction with the success which has attended the labors of the Consulting Surgeon in the cure of Spermatorrhœa, Sexual Weakness, Impotence, Gonorrhœa, Gleet, Syphilis, the vice of Onanism or self abuse, &c., and order a continuance of the same plan for the ensuing year.

The Directors, on a review of the past, feel assured that their labors in this sphere of benevolent effort have been of great benefit to the afflicted, especially to the young, and they have resolved to devote themselves with renewed zeal, to this very important and much deprised cause.

An admirable Report on Spermatorrhœa, or Seminal Weakness the vice of Onanism, Masturbation, or Self abuse, and other diseases of the sexual organs, by the Consulting Surgeon, will be sent by mail (in a sealed envelope). FREE OF CHARGE, on receipt of TWO STAMPS for postage. Other Reports and Tracts on the nature and treatment of sexual diseases, diet, &c. are constantly being published for gratuitous distribution and will be sent to the afflicted. Some of the new remedies and methods of treatment discovered during the last year, are of great value.

Address, for Report or treatment Dr. GEORG R. CALHOUN, Consulting Surgeon, Howard Association, No. 2, South Ninth Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

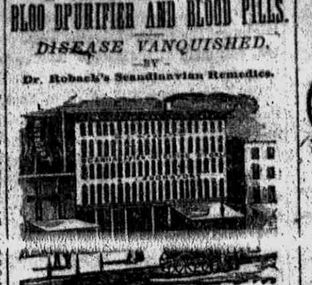
DR. ROBACK'S
BLOOD DPURIFIER AND BLOOD PILLS.
DISEASE VANQUISHED.
BY
Dr. Roback's Scandinavian Remedies.



AFTER YEARS OF STUDY AND EXPERIMENT Dr. Roback, the eminent Swedish Physician, succeeded in producing a medicine from twenty-three different species of mountain herbs of his native land, which acts directly upon the causes of disease in the blood, and by restoring the corrupted fountain of life, to a condition of health and purity, expels disease from the system, wherever it may be located, or whatever may be its character. Indigestion, nervous complaints, epileptic fits, coughs, consumption in its early stages sore throat, bronchitis, fever and ague asthma, low spirits, sexual incapacity, feminine weakness, pricking of the skin, symptomatic of paralysis, rheumatism, neuralgia, tumor, cancer, diabetis, lassitude and debility diarrhea, and all other disorders of the organs of respiration, the liver, the kidneys, the stomach, the nerves, or the muscular fiber, are unerringly cured by this preparation. It is to the materies morbi or seeds of disease what an alkali is to an acid: it neutralizes them with absolute certainty, while at the same time it regulates the secretions, removes obstructions from the bowels, creates appetite, renews bodily vigor and regenerates every animal function. Such is the nature, such are the effects of Dr. Roback's famous Scandinavian Blood Purifier, which, if taken in conjunction with his Scandinavian Blood Pills, will not only obliterate the most painful disease, but prevent their recurrence, and lengthen life beyond the ordinary span.

In the SCANDINAVIAN VEGETABLE BLOOD PILLS, Dr. Roback presents the result of twenty years of experience, hard study and experiment as to what a perfect pill should be. No one can doubt their superiority after one single trial. Price of the Scandinavian Blood Purifier, $1 per bottle, or $5 per half-dozen; Scandinavian Blood Pills, 25 cents per box, or five for $1.

PERU, Miami Co. Ind., Aug. 4, 1857.

Dr. C. W. ROBACK: I have received so much benefit from your Scandinavian Blood Purifier and Blood Pills, that I have thought it my duty and it is no less my inclination, to give you a plain statement of my case. I was for years afflicted with that bane of all comfort, and efficiency in business dyspepsia. To recapitulate all the so-called remedies which I have used to rid myself of this disease, would indeed make a melancholy catalogue. I also consulted with the best physicians I could hear of. I was induced to try your remedies through the persuasions of a friend, and after using them a few days was greatly benefitted, and in a short time, less than a month, I was entirely and permanently cured. I was also afflicted with the most violent nervous headache, which I suppose was produced by my disordered stomach for which my dyspepsia left me, my headache left with it. I now feel better in every respect than I have for ten years.

Very truly yours, JOHN S. DEMUTH.

From the Rev. Mr. McMULLEN, Pastor of Roberts Chapel. INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 5, 1857.

Dr. C. W. ROBACK—Dear Sir: I have used your Blood Purifier for a nervous affection, from which I have suffered much at times. While it is pleasant to the taste, it certainly has a happy effect upon the nerves. Please accept my thanks for your kind regards and acts, and believe me,

Yours, J. W. T. McMULLEN.

FROM A WELL-KNOWN STEAMBOAT CLERK.

Louisville, June 4, 1857.

DEAR DOCTOR: Send me half a dozen boxes of your Pills, care of D. C. Curd & Co., so I can get them next trip. Six weeks ago nothing could have convinced me that a twenty-five cent box of Pills could have relieved my obstinate chronic constipation with its attended abominable [illegible]. I told you so when I bought them, but I am bound to own that your Pills fill the contract. Why and how I have taken as many as six (6) of [illegible] and other makers' sometimes without effect and sometimes with too much effect; but I have no trouble with yours—they are just what I want.

CINCINNATI, Friday, Sept. 4, 1857.

DR. ROBACK—Dear Sir: Having been afflicted with neuralgia or rheumatism for the past year and a half, and having seen your medicine, called the Scandinavian Blood Purifier, highly recommended by gentlemen with whom I am acquainted, I was induced to try it, but not before I had used various other medicines—but not before I had used various other medicines—but I felt its effect very sensibly. After using two bottles I felt its effect very sensibly, and upon using two more, I found myself perfectly cured. You will allow me, therefore, to congratulate you upon making a discovery in medicine which is proving itself to be a worker of such wonders in the diseases of the human family.

GEORGE S BENNETT.

DR. C. W. ROBACK: Dear Sir: Having been troubled for several years with extreme debility and weakness, so much so that I was unable to attend to my ordinary business at times, and having heard of the wonderful cures that your Scandinavian Blood Purifier and Pills were effecting, I was induced by a friend to try them. I have been using the Purifier for [illegible] months, and [illegible] to say that I cannot [illegible] with the use of it at my advanced age of seventy-seven years.

I cheerfully give this information for the benefit of those similary affected. MORRIS MORRIS.

Phœnix Bitters

THE BEST FAMILY MEDICINE NOW before the public, for the cure of Scrofula, Ulcers, Scurvy, or Eruptions of the Skin Fever and Ague, Dyspepsia, Dropsy, and in fact most all diseases soon yield to their curative proprities.

It has been computed that during the last twenty five years upwards of FOUR MILLIONS of persons have been benefited by the use of these medicines; a fact which speaks volumes in favor of their curative properties, a single trial will place them beyond the reach of competition in the estimate of every patient. By their use the BLOOD IS RESTORED TO A HEALTHY STATE and freed from all impurities. The system is not reduced during their operation, but invigorated, and they require no restraint from business or pleasure.

The afflicted have in these medicines a remedy that will do for them all that medicine can possibly effect.

From the Atlantic Monthly.

WHAT WE ALL THINK.

That age was older once than now,
In spite of locks untimely shed,
Or silvered on the youthful brow;
That babes make love and children wed.

That sunshine had a heavenly glow,
Which faded with those 'good old days,'
When winters came with deeper snow,
And autumns with a softer haze.

That—mother, sister, wife, or child—
The 'best of women' each has known,
Were school-boys ever half so wild?
How young the grandpapas have grown!

That but for this our souls were free,
And but for that our lives were blest;
That in some season yet to be
Our cares will leave us time to rest.

Whene'er we groan with ache or pain,
Some common ailment of the race—
Though Doctors think the matter plain—
That ours is 'a peculiar case.'

That when like babes with fingers burned
We count one bitter maxim more,
Our lesson all the world has learned,
And men are wiser than before.

That when we sob o'er fancied woes,
The angels hovering overhead
Count every pitying drop that flows
And love us for the tears we shed.

That when we stand with tearless eye
And turn the beggar from our door,
They still approve us when we sigh,
'Ah, had I but one thousand more!'

That weakness smoothed the path of sin,
In half the slips our youth has known;
And whatsoe'er its blame has been,
That mercy flowers on faults outgrown.

Though temples crowd the crumbled brink
O'erhanging truth's eternal flow,
Their tablets bold with what we think,
Their echoes dumb to what we know;

That one unquestioned text we read,
All doubt beyond, all fear above,
Nor crackling pile nor cursing creed
Can burn or blot it: God is Love!

GREAT CLOCK.

Henry C. Wright, in a letter to the Liberator, thus describes the great clock in the Cathedral of Strasburg:

"The priests and military have retired, and I am now sitting in a chair facing the gigantic clock—from the bottom to the top not less than 100 feet, and about 30 feet wide and 15 deep. Around me are many strangers waiting to see the working of this clock as it strikes the hour of noon. Every eye is upon the clock.—It now wants five minutes of twelve.—The clock has struck, and the people are gone, except a few whom the sexton or head man with a wand and sword is conducting around the building. The clock has struck in this way: The dial is some 20 feet from the floor, on each side of which is a cherub, or little boy, with a mallet, and over the dial is a small bell; the cherub on the left strikes the first quarter, that on the right the second quarter. Some fifty feet over the dial, in a large niche, is a huge figure of Time, a bell in his left, a scythe in his right hand In front stands a figure of a young man with a mallet, who strikes the third quarter on the bell in the hand of Time, and then turns and glides, with a slow step, round behind Time, and out comes an old man with a mallet, and places himself in front of him.

"As the hour of twelve comes, the old man raises his mallet, and deliberately strikes twelve times on the bell, that echoes through the building, and is heard all round the region of the church. The old man glides slowly behind Father Time, and the young man comes on, ready to perform his part as the time comes round again. Soon as the old man has struck twelve and disappeared, another set of machinery is put in motion, some 20 feet higher still. It is thus; there is a high cross, with the image of Christ on it. The instant twelve is struck, one of the apostles walks out from behind, comes in front, turns, facing the cross, bows, and walks on around to his place. As he does so, another comes out in front, turns bows, and passes in. So twelve apostles, figures as large as life, walk round, bow and pass on. As the last appears, an enormous cock, perched on the pinnacle of the clock, slowly flaps its wings, stretches forth its neck, and crows three times so loud as to be heard outside the church to some distance, and so naturally as to be mistaken for a real cock. Then all is silent as death. No wonder this clock is the admiration of Europe. It was made in 1571, and has performed these mechanical wonders ever since, except about fifty years, when it stood out of repair."

☞ The English Admiral has discovered that Canton is situated on an island—one of the gun-boats having just made a passage around it. It is somewhat singular that this fact was never before known, and only goes to show how jealous these people are of giving any information of the internal affairs or formation of the country.

An Adventurous Navigator.

In the early part of last year, a resident of Stamford, Conn., by the name of Charles R. Webb, who has spent a portion of his life in a seafaring capacity, went to work and built himself a yacht, twenty two feet long, which he christened the Charter Oak, and in which he, accompanied by a man and a boy, started from New York, on the 22d of June last, started for Liverpool. When only about a day out, his right-hand man, an old salt, was accidentally knocked overboard and drowned, and fearing that he would not be able to find another sailor equally venturesome, and that he might possibly lose the lad by desertion, should he return to port, he concluded to proceed on the voyage without any other companion or assistant to keep watch and steer the frail bark during his own occasional brief opportunities to obtain repose, than the boy referred to, who had never before been at sea. Although without the aid of chronometer or chart of the English coast, Capt. Webb arrived safely at Liverpool, without a pilot, on the 27th of July, after a voyage of thirty-six days, in the smallest vessel that ever crossed the ocean. The adventure was considered by nautical men the most daring and skillful exploit of the age. Thousands rushed to see the Charter Oak and its intrepid commander. The little craft was soon disposed of for £200, which amount, together with a passage ticket home for the Yankee sailor in one of the Collins' line of steamships, were handed over to him by a number of strangers, who thus desired to manifest their admiration of his courage and skill. Mr. Webb, not content, however, with what he has already achieved, about Christmas last commenced building another yacht, (the Christopher Columbus,) forty four feet keel and sixteen feet beam, which is now rapidly approaching completion by his own hands alone, and on board of which he contemplates embarking, in the course of a few months, for Southampton, the Isle of Wight, and St Petersburg, with a view of giving the British Queen, the Czar of Russia, and probably the Emperor of France, a favorable opportunity of seeing what the Yankees can do in the way of boat-building as well as in navigating the Atlantic.—*N. Employment and Opportunity.

I would have every boy and girl in the whole country taught to make their own living at some useful employment—to mark out for themselves a sphere of action, and then fill that sphere—to be useful in some honorable pursuit. I would not put boys to trades and professions to make them great and good, and fold up the girl's minds and lay them away in the drawer, or shut them up in the parlor.—I would not make the boys self-reliant and vigorous by generous employment, and the girls weak, puny and dependent by idleness and folly. I would not give the boys opportunities to develop their powers and become noble men, and deprive the girls of all these glorious privileges. I would not open a thousand avenues to distinction, wealth and worth to the boys, and comparatively none to the girls I would not send the boys out into the field of bravery to earn their own living, and grow strong in doing it, and the girls out to beg their living of the boys, and grow weak and worthless in their dependent beggary. I like the girls too well to have them thus mistreated.—I would give them just as good a chance as the boys have. They should not be degraded with half pay, and only two or three ways to get a living, just because they were made to be women —Selected.

Material for Men.—A long time ago a little boy, twelve years old, stopped at a country tavern, and paid for his lodging and breakfast by sawing wood.—Fifty years later the same boy passed that same little inn as George Peabody, the banker, whose name is a synonym of magnificient charities—the honored of two hemispheres

Far back in the teens of the present century, a young man asked for employment in the Springfield armory; but he was poor and modest, and had no friends, so he went away without it; but feeling the man within him, he sought work till he found it. At a later age he visited that armory a second time, not as a common day laborer, but as the ablest speaker in the House of Representatives—N. P Banks, now Governor of Massachusetts.

☞ It is a dangerous thing to treat with a temptation, which ought at first to be rejected with disdain and abhorrence.

Perseverance Rewarded.

We clip the following good story from the Bucyrus (O.) Journal of the 11th.—Of course we do not know who this modern Jacob may be;

"We picked up a Pittsburg paper, the other day, and saw therein a marriage of a couple that formerly resided in this place. There are many marriages in other towns of people who have once lived in Bucyrus, and we do not pretend to record them all, but in this instance there is an incident of too uncommon a nature to be passed over. It is as follows:

"Twelve years ago the bride was a young lady of twenty, the daughter of a wealthy merchant of Washington, Penn sylvania. In her father's employ was a young man named Robert——, who, the young lady being bewitchingly beautiful, as in duty bound, feel desparately in love with her. She reciprocated the attachment and they were betrothed. Unfortunately the young lady's father entered his protest against this pleasant arrangement and accordingly the young people put off the happy day indefinitely. About a year afterwards she received a most tempting proposal, which, urged by her father, she accepted, and to the eternal despair of poor Robert, was married. But alas for the happy bridegroom! Scarcely three months had elapsed when a kick from a vicious horse killed him. Robert consoled the widow, and determined at the expiration of a year or so to marry her. He had too much respect for her to press his suit, immediately, and did not for fifteen months, when he proposed; To his horror she informed him that she was already engaged and that in three months more her second marriage would be consummated. Two years passed.—In the meantime the widow and her husband had removed to Syracuse, N. Y., and Robert possessed by some strange hallucination followed them. That season the cholera swept that city; among its victims was the second husband. Robert allowed a year to pass, and was upon the point of urging his claims, when he received an invitation to her wedding! She was to be married to her late husband's partner. Robert remonstrated. The lady assured him that her present step was not one of love but pure necessity. The partnership affairs of her late lamented were in such a state that settlement was impossible, and to save immense losses she had determined upon marrying the surviving partner. [illegible] assured him also that her sentiments toward him was unchanged, and that should she ever become a widow again she would give him the preference. She was married and in a short time removed with her third husband to Detroit, Mich. But a fatality seemed to pursue her. Herself and husband were on board a steamer that was wrecked near Buffalo, and she escaped only through the superhuman exertion of a friend who happened to be on board.—This friend was young, unmarried and his gallantry inspired such sentiments in the breast of the widow, that she married him before Robert had time to claim her.—When he learned the state of affairs, he was somewhat indignat, but she told him the circumstances and managed to satisfy him with the promise that if she ever became widdowed again, she would most positively marry him. The lady with her husband settled upon a farm near Bucyrus, while Robert removed to Mansfield that he might be near her. In the course of a year, they removed to Pittsburgh where the husband went into the mercantile business on Liberty st,—residing, however, in Alleghany city. Robert followed them, and finding employment, determined to watch the chances closely. One day he was passing the store of Mr.——, when he saw Mr ——, a mangled corpse upon the floor. A cask of rice, which was being hoisted had fallen and killed him instantly. He inquired if any one had been sent to acquaint his wife of the accident. Yes, the clerk just started. Looking once more at poor Mr —— to make sure that he was perfectly dead. Robert started for Allegheny as fast as his legs could carry him The first clerk was only a trifle ahead of him and Robert knowing the importance of being in time, from past experience, and fearing that the clerk had designs upon the widow, ran like an Indian. Side by side they ran, until they reached the Hand street bridge. The clerk was obliged to stop to make change, while Robert who paid toll by the year passed without delay He reached the house, told the heart rending news, and obtained a solemn pledge from the widow before the clerk arrived This time she was true to her promise, and after a year had passed, they were married. As all her husbands died wealthy, Robert is very comfortably fixed. His history shows what perseverance will accomplish.

The Returned Prodigal.

Five years and a half ago, a young, married man in the city of Brooklyn, dissipated, intemperate and reckless, deserted his family in the difficulties which his misconduct had brought upon himself and them, and, shipped as a sailor. Three years he roamed abroad, and then returned perhaps with something of a prodigal's longing, to seek his home But it was no more. His deserted wife had been taken home, with her children, by her own mother, and into that mother's house there was no entrance for him.—Never again should he look upon her daughters face in this world, if her power could prevent it. His youngest child, born after his desertion, he had never seen; and if possible, he should never see her.

Mortified and desparate, he plunged into his habitual follies with redoubled recklessness. He'd one friend, a brother, who clung to him. By that brother's aid and influence he was established in a small store in Myrtle avenue, and induced to give his attention to buisness Still, intoxication was the cherished charm by which his homeless and hopeless existence was beguiled away. So he drank daily and desperately.

Six months passed, when the city missionary from whom these facts are derived, was providentially led to approach the brother referred to, in his own store, on the subject of religion. Satisfied probably with his own condition, he only sought to engage the missionary's influence for the reformation of his wretched brother Into this our friend M. heartily entered, and very soon had the satisfaction of securing his signature to the pledge of total abstinence. He watched over him constantly, an unremitting influence to preserve him from discouragement and relapse. The loss of his wife and children, to whom, though unfaithful, he had ever remained tenderly attached, preyed upon his mind. He entreated the missionary to intercede for him, and attempt to bring about a reconciliation. He was exhorted to be patient, and prove the sincerity of his repentance by perseverance in a course of rectitude, which would most probably in the end conduct to the object upon which his heart was set Nor was the subject of religion lost sight of. Every argument was used to bring his mind into the light of its obligations to God, and of its immortal interests. He was induced to attend divine worship steadily and to discard all profane company and other practices.

The missionary [illegible] and informed her of her husband's hopeful reformation. Her mother resisted any attempt to bring about a renewed interest in him, or to pave the way for his restoration The daughter was less implacably disposed, yet was unprepared to entertain any hope of his safe recovery from vice, or of safely committing herself and her children again to his charge. Had the interview been fully reported to him, M. thinks he would have made way with himself in his desperation, either by direct suicide, or by a final plunge into vice.—On the contrary, he said nothing of the mother's implacable resolve, but presented to him the most hopeful aspect of his wife's feelings, and encouraged him to persevere, and raise himself to a position which would command her respect and confidence—urging that whatever the result, this would be but his duty, and that far more important interests than his happiness here, hung upon his persistence in the paths of virtue.

The desire to win back his wife and children, wrought upon him with growing energy. He was not only temperate, but keenly alive to business, frugal and steady. His business increased on his hands; and in a short time doubled then trebled, and eventually a new and a larger establishment was fitted up and occupied. These things began to tell—One day M found him unusual y cheerful and on asking what the matter was, was informed shat his wife had passed by—though on the other side. 'Press on,' was the answer, 'and before long she will get over to this side.' So she did. Only a few weeks later he told his guardian angel, with great joy, that she had passed close by the door. Neither spoke, but, said he, 'I looked through the window and saw her, and she looked in through the window and saw me' The reconciliation now progressed and developed rapidly They attended the same church, and eventually recognized each other in the street. Two years of trial have passed.

Three weeks ago, the missionary met him with a lady leaning on his arm, whom he had seen before. 'Why, whom have you got here?' was the abrupt greeting. 'My wife!' exclaimed the happy bridegroom. 'My wife and children! We are living at such a number; and will you come and see us?' The missionary went, and found them in a new and handsomely furnished home, happier than any couple in their honeymoon. This end of 5 years desperate drunkeness and vagabondism was a sight worth something to see.—N.

"I CAN'T."

Never say 'I can't' my dear;
Never say it.
When such words as those I hear
From the lips of boy or girl,
Oft they make me doubt or fear;
Never say it.

Boys and girls that nimbly play,
Never say it.
They can jump and run away,
Skip and toss and play their pranks;
Even dull ones when they're gay,
Never say it.

Never mind how hard the task,
Never say it;
Find some one who knows and ask,
Till you have your lesson learn'd;
Never mind how hard the task,
Never say it.

Men who do the noblest deeds,
Never say it.
He who lacks the strength he needs
Tries his best and gets it soon,
And at last he will succeed—
Never say it.

But when the evil tempt to wrong,
Always say it.
In your virtue firm and strong,
Drive the tempter from your sight,
And when follies round you throng.
Ever say it.

When good actions call you near,
Never say it.
Drive away the rising fear,
Get your strength where good men do;
All your paths will then be clear.
Would you find a happy year?
Would you save a sorrowing tear?
Never say it.

Judges of the Supreme Court of Michigan.

Chief Justice—Hon. George Martin.

Judge Martin is a native of Middlebury, Vt., and graduated at Middlebury College, at 18 years of age. His law studies were pursued, partly in Middlebury, and partly in Montpelier. He was known then as a young man of clear mental perceptions, remarkable firmness of character, and a close student. Those who were intimate with him at that time—of whom we had the pleasure to be one are not surprised at the distinction to which he has risen. Immediately on his admission to the bar in 1846, he removed to Grand Rapids, Michigan, where he still resides. In 1848, he was elected County Judge of Kent county. In 1851 he was elected Judge of the Circuit Court under the new constitution, and upon the organization of the independent Supreme Court in 1857, he was elected the first Chief Justice of that Court, by about thirteen thousand majority, over a strong and popular opponent. We believe the members of the legal profession throughout the State, all concede his eminent fitness for the distinguished position he occupies. His present term closes in two years.

Judge Martin is now 43 years of age, has a family, and we trust a long, useful, and honorable life before him.

ASSOCIATE JUSTICES.

Hon. Randolph Manning.

Judge Manning is the oldest man upon the Bench—being 54 years of age—tho' in appearance some years younger. He is a native of New Jersey. He studied law in New York City, and was admitted to the bar in 1827. He commenced practice in the then small village of Utica; but it was too far from the bustle of civilization, and he soon returned to New York, where he remained till 1832, when he came to Pontiac, where he has since resided. He was a member of the Convention in 1835, and took an active part in that body, in framing the first Constitution of Michigan In 1837, he was elected to the State Senate, and in 1838, he received the appointment of Secretary of State, by Governor Mason. In 1842, he was appointed Chancellor; which office he resigned in 1846, since which time, he has devoted himself to the practice of law at Pontiac, till called from his retirement to take a seat upon the Bench of the Supreme Court. Mr. Manning's term closes in four years.

Hon. J. V. Campbell.

Mr. Campbell is the youngest man upon the Bench. He was born at Buffalo, N. Y., in 1823, but has been a resident of Detroit since 1826. He graduated at St Paul's College, Long Island, at the age of 18. He studied law with Samuel T. Douglass and Henry N. Walker, in Detroit, and became a partner with them upon his admission to the bar in 1844.—He continued in partnership with Judge Douglas until the election of the latter to the Bench, in 1851. He has a family.—He was a member of the Board of Education of Detroit for many years. In 1848, he was elected President, of the Detroit Young Men's Society—an election which is often contested with all the energy of a political campaign. He is a member of Vestry of St. Paul's Church in Detroit, and of the standing Committee of the Episcopal Church for the Diocese of Michigan. His appearance and manner indicate the gentleman of true refinement while a modest dignity and unostentatious affability, are good for men's friendship "at sight." Mr. Campbell's term closes in six years.

Hon. Isaac P. Christiancy.

Judge Christiancy is 45 years of age, a native of Montgomery Co., N. Y. In early life he shared the lot of thousands subject to the disabilities of poverty. His father was physically broken down by the hardships of his former pioneer life, and Isaac was obliged to labor hard to aid in the support of a large family. But his was not a mind to lie still under any burden He studied night, and lost no spare moments; and by labor and teaching school, while devoting part of his earnings to the support of the family, he paid his way to a good education, and at 22 he commenced the study of law with Hon. John Maynard, of Ovid, Seneca Co—to which place the family had removed three years previously. The next year however—1836—he came to Monroe, in this State, and completed his studies with Hon. Robert McClelland. He was admitted to the bar in 1838, and has continued to practice at Monroe since then. He was married in 1839, and has a family. Several of his father's family have died of Consumption, and during long years of feeble health, depended much upon Judge C's assistance, which he was ever ready to give. But an indomitable energy and integrity bore him through every trial, and his influence has been felt in moulding the laws and institutions of this State. In 1849 he was elected to the State Senate—receiving the votes of all parties. He was in the Senate three sessions—to wit: in 1850, '51 and the special session of the latter year. At the election of U. S. Senator in 1857, he was urged as a candidate by his friends, and amidst a number of candidates in the nominating convention, he stood next to the successful candidate, Hon. Z. Chandler. It was a generous compliment on the part of many of Mr. Chandler's friends, that they were ready to pledge him their support for the nomination which resulted in his election to the Bench. Mr. Christiancy drew for the full term of eight years.

☞ The Free Press gets more kicks from those who have not sinned, on its return to the sheep fold than it did while it was wandering. The Detroit correspondent of the Ontonagon Advocate writes thus:

"You will perceive that the Free Press, publicans for months around after the Black Republican as an "infamous swindle," has, like the wandering son, come back with the olive branch of peace in its mouth. The Free Press has surrendered. Like the prodigal son it has come back begging for a few husks; but whether the Democratic party will kill the fatted calf or not remains to be seen. My own opinion is that the Free Press has itself been playing calf, and that it has found the weaning process rather painful.

What is Legal Tender.

The gold coins of the United States, are legal tender to any amount, but owing to the alloy in the new coins, authorized by Congress 3d March, 1851, and 21st Feb, 1853, they are no longer legal tender except in small sums, viz:

Three cent pieces, (Act 3d March, 1851, and 2d March, 1851,)			20 cts.
Half Dollars, (192 grains each) Feb. 21, '51.
Quar do	96	"	"
Dime,	38,40	"	"
Half dime,	18,50	"	"

The four coins last mentioned will pay a debt of $5,00 or less.

By the act of Feb. 1857, 'all former acts authorizing the currency of foreign gold or silvel coins, and declaring the same a legal tender in payment of debts are hereby repealed.'

In the absence of any special agreement, the only payment known to the law is by cash. The tender should, properly, be in cash, and must be so if that is required. A tender of a larger sum than is due with a requirement of change or of the balance is not good. A lawful tender, and payment of the money in court, is a good defense to an action for the debt. But the creditor may break down this defense by proving that he demanded the money of the debtor, and the debtor refused to give it subsequently to the tender.

The man who could not stand it any longer has taken a seat and now feels quite comfortable.

Original Poetry.

For the Tecumseh Herald.

On the Death of Theodore R——

We scarcely thought that he would die,
He was so kind and meek;
With genius sparkling in his eye,
And health upon his cheek;
His soul was formed of tender love,
His heart a fount of joy,
His voice soft as the cooing dove—
Such was our darling boy.

We scarce had thought that he could die;
We almost had forgot,
That such is human destiny—
That such is mortal lot;
Death's shadow had ne'er crossed before
The threshold of our joy,
Till we had lost our Theodore,
Our youngest precious boy.

We fondly hoped he would not die
Until that fatal day,
When by a solemn destiny,
Our child was forced away;
But when we saw death's chilling dew
Upon his brow had fell,
The keen, keen anguish then we knew,
No mortal tongue can tell.

We told our child that he must die,
That from us he must part.
Yet no tear started from his eye,
Or murmur from his heart.
To each he gave the parting hand,
The last farewell was given,
Then waited for the angel band
To guide his soul to heaven.

And now he is our angel boy
In that bright world above,
Where all is bliss and holy joy,
And all is heavenly love;
He dwells amid those pleasant bowers,—
Where weary spirits rest.—
Plucking celestial fruits and flowers,
And singing with the blest.

Then why weep for the absent dead?
Our hearts should not be drear;
Tho' he sleeps in his earthy ded,
His spirit may be near:
When we are called to that bright land,
To mingle with the blest,
He'll tender us his spirit hand,
And welcome us to rest.

The Chicago Tragedy.

The Chicago Times publishes a full account of the arrest of Henry Jumpertz who is charged with the murder of the woman whose butchered body was sent to New York by railroad, and there discovered in a whisky barrel. Jumpertz makes a pretty full statement of the whole affair. The whole matter, however, discloses a sad picture of the immorality of all concerned. First, the unfortunate woman lived unhappily with her husband, by whom it was said she was maltreated. She sought refuge in another family, and while there, owing to an absense of proper conduct upon the part of those with whom she lodged, she was thrown into evil correspondence with Jumpertz. She then continued to live with the prisoner,—a child being born to them; and at last, in utter despair, having abandoned her husband, and being, as she thought, abandoned by her lover, she hung herself in the rooms of the latter. The prisoner, alarmed, resorted to secrecy; he cut her body up, packed it in a barrel and sent it off.—With that conscousness which follows criminality, he had been expecting to be arrested for a long time, and now that he has been arrested, makes a confession voluntarily of what he says has been his agency in the affair. The whole thing is astonishing. In one of the largest commercial buildings in the city, living with a woman, she hangs herself, and for over a week her companion is engaged in hacking her body into pieces, packing the limbs away in a barrel, and no one is aware of what is going on. Suicide it may have been but whether suicide of murder, it was performed with unbounded secrecy and a success in a building tenanted by perhaps fifty other persons.

The Murder of Hugh Downie.—In St. Louis, on Monday, arrest was made of an employe in the barber's shop of Henry Gardiner, on Broadway, near Biddle street, on the charge of being implicated in the murder of Hugh Downie, of Illinois. This person has confessed that the murder was committed at nine o'clock on Sunday evening, in Gardiner's shop. Downie came in, took the chair, and resigned himself to be shampooned. The lather was permitted to trickle to his eyes, and then a noose was thrown around his neck, and he was choked to death.—His hat was burned in the stove, his body robbed, and it and the rope conveyed where they were found. Three employees of Gardiner did the job. The remaining two have fled, but will be caught Gardiner is also under arrest.

Confession.—A sailor died recently in Texas, and on his death-bed confessed that he was one of the crew who murdered Mrs. Alston of South Carolina, many years ago. Mrs. Alston was the daughter of Aaron Burr. She sailed from Charleston to New York, in a brig, and on the trip the crew mutinied, and murdered all the officers and passengers—Mrs. Alston being the last one to walk the plank, the sailor remembered her look of despair, and died in the greatest agony of mind.

Similia Similibus Curantne.—A chap out West, who has been afflicted with palpitation of the heart, says he found instant relief by the application of another palpitating heart to the part affected. The Homeopathist says, "like cures like."

TECUMSEH:

THURSDAY, MAY, 27 1858.

British Outrages in the West Indies.

The papers are just now filled with notices and repetitions of the outrages of two or three British War Steamers upon our shipping in the West Indies.

The outrage, it is admitted on all sides, consists in hailing American vessels, and in case they are not willing to come to, bringing them to, by a shot across the bows, until they can make a sufficient examination to ascertain whether they Slavers sailing under American colors or not. This is all they have ever attempted to do, and in no instance is it pretended, that having once satisfied themselves it is all right, have they offered any further detention or molestation.

It will be recollected that these vessels are put and kept upon these seas, at the expense of the British Government, simply for the suppression of a contraband trade, declared by our government as well as theirs to be piracy upon the high seas, and for no other purpose. Our own government is engaged by treaty stipulations to aid in the accomplishment of the same purpose.

This however was the act of other and better days. In a consistent sympathy with the spirit of the Dred Scott decision, and of executive border ruffianism in Kansas, the present pro slavery administration of the United States is not only disposed to retract any active participation in the suppression of this piratical slave trade on its own part, but to throw whatever impediments it can in the way of its suppression by others.

It is notorious that more slaves are brought into Cuba under the American flag, than that of any other nation, because it is thought to afford better protection, and more safe exemption from search.

Until quite recently our vessels have uniformly answered with all courtesy, the hail of any vessel which should be kept upon the seas for the suppression of the traffic, whether sailing under the British or American Flag.

But more recently, assured no doubt of the sympathy and protection of the government, those who have felt inclined to do so, have declined answering the hail of any vessels in commission for this purpose. And they, not to be thus thwarted in the possibility of the accomplishment of anything in the way of their duties, by this fault and subterfuge, have compelled the necessary examination.

Now we know not what others may think of this matter, to us it is manifest, that it is merely a ruse on the part of this goverment, to thwart and embarrass the further suppression of the slave traffic. In this they hope for the sympathy and support of the popular voice, by professing to regard it, as a renewal of the old British claim of the right of search on board our vessels for impressed seamen, which was the cause of the war of 1812, and which it is well known the American nation would never admit nor suffer.

But this only pretense, for as will readily be seen it is nothing of the kind. Without a common consent to this examination, as to whether a ship, no matter what its flag, is a slaver or not, any further attempt at the suppression of the slave trade is worse than useless—and this our government understand perfectly, when they take the ground they do in this matter. Slave ships are, or can be well supplied with any national Flag they desire—and if any flag is exempt, it is a very simple thing for them to sail under this Flag to any part of the world they choose.

Our government has no doubt the power, to abrogate its former faith, and reverse its former policy, with regard to foreign, as it has already done with regard to domestic slavery, but if it has thus determined to make itself the ally of the slave trade and of slavery all the wide world over let it not be done under the name of patriotism, nor of resistance to British usurpation, but under the more simple and honest avowal of an unreserved and unscrupulous devotion to the propagation and advancement of human slavery in every form and in every land, at home and abroad, upon the sea and upon the shore.

Probable Abduction.—A young lady, named Clara Lovelace, left her parent's home, No. 13 Bedford street, New York, on Thursday afternoon of last week, to visit Stewart's on Broadway, since which time she has not been seen or heard of. She had on her person $100 in gold eagles, and, being of rather prepossessing appearance, it is feared she has been abducted.

Mexico.—Advices from Vera Cruz are to the 7th inst. The news indicates the speedy downfall of the Zuloaga government. Vidaurri's forces had won one of the hardest battles ever fought in the country. Zuloaga is reported to be distressed for want of money. Juarez, who went out in the Tennessee, was warmly welcomed at Vera Cruz.

Student's Column.

Why the Greek and Latin Languages have become Obsolete.

(Concluded.)

This might be considered the state of literature when Constantine came to the throne, when as you are aware, Christianity became the religion of the empire. Constantine and the Christians then in general were no friends to pagan literature. The metaphysical disputes of the doctors of Theology absorbed their whole attention. The old modles of excellence written by such heathens as Cicero, were not much consulted by the bishops who now held the monopoly of learning.—Their writings which have come down to this time show that the Latin language had much deteriorated at that time. One great cause of this was they did not study the works of the best authors and take them as their standard of taste but wrote in a more popular style, which as we have observed, was not good at best and was worse now. But the language remained as yet, though much of its excellence had gone. Its fall was like that of the empire, gradual. Its complete ruin was not effected until the empire had been overran by the northern hords. These desperadoes spared no work of art or writing which their fiendish dispositions pointed out as fit for destruction. Every vestage of refinement disappeared. The human mind was everywhere shrouded in thick gloom. For many centuries there was scarcely anything written. All the productions of antiquity were swept away, except a few relics, which were hidden in the recesses of some monasteries. Now the popular language, having no standard nor any learned men to guide it, took whatever direction the whims of a degraded multitude chose to give it. It would have been a far greater wonder indeed under such circumstances, if they had retained the pure language of former days. It is just as natural a consequence that a language should degenerate when a people decline, as that it should improve as a people advance in civilization. And this is fully proved by the history of all languages. The history of the English language proves that it has not only advanced as the people advanced, but also that in the different changes through which it has passed, it has partaken of the character of the times. Hence reasoning from analogy, we conclude that the Latin did the same. Considering all these things, is it strange that at the renewal of letters, the language spoken by the Italians should bear but a faint resemblance to the Latin spoken 1500 years before.

The Demands of the Present Age

In selecting a subject for the present occasion, I have chosen one most intimately connected with our future destiny; one in which we are all interested—the claims of the age upon the young men of America. We are present at these halls of learning for the purpose of fitting ourselves for the stern realities of life. We are here forming habits which will endure as long as time lasts, which will impress upon all our future actions. Here within these walls are powerful influences and motives acting upon the mind and character with the greatest intensity. The great drama of life is just now opening. The world wide theatre is just now lifting the curtain to the ambitious youth, and everything wears the robes of most exquisite beauty. All is festooned with enchantment. Here is taken the first step upon life's broad stage, where we are to become the practical actors, and play the tragedies and comedies of life. So brilliant is the picture, and so alluring are the scenes, that disappointments are forgotten. We are apt to view the world as having no difficulties, no dangers to overcome. We think that the tide of life will ever flow thus smoothly on; that no rocks underlie the surface of the current, awaiting but the more certainly to dash our little bark in pieces.

What beautiful dreams these are, when the surges of life are just gathering their forces to dash upon us and try our strength. What happy ideals when the storm of unseen wants is collecting; when treacherous circumstances and fraudulent friends are hastening the fires of the earthquake which may shake us in peices.

To enter upon life's stage, and do humanity any justice, requires more of sterling worth and undoubted integrity. Here the realities are stern; the conflict is sharp and fearful. And Fellow Students, we are assembled in these halls to prepare for these scenes. Here are being formed those traits of character which will fit us for a high and noble sphere of usefulness, or which will degrade us and bring us to ruin. The principles of right and truth, that exist in all true character, are immutable. The mind should seek after these principles as after hidden treasures. Especially is this true at the present time; when the public mind is easily wrought up to the highest pitch of excitement.

Tossed and tumbled as it is, it requires the greatest strength of purpose to keep aloof from all party ties and entanglements, and pursue a steadfast course.

General News.

Washington, May 22.

The Secretary of the Navy has issued orders to Commander Hartstene to proceed immediately to New York and assume command of the steamer Arctic; also to Commander John Rogers to take command of the Water Witch, also at the Brooklyn Navy Yard,—to fit them out without delay, and proceed to the Gulf in search of the British steamer Styx, and interpose American guns between the British cruisers and our merchantmen.

Other vessels will follow as rapidly as they can be prepared for the service.

The President is determined to put a stop to these outrages at once; and, if a collision should result, the responsibility must rest upon the British government, which gave the offensive orders, and the English Minister here who doubtless knew the instructions which had been given to their officers on that station.

Senator Mallory reported to-day from his committee a bill authorizing the construction of six screw sloops of war, of draught not to exceed fourteen feet, one to be a side-wheel steamer for the China seas, with draught of eight feet only.

The House Naval Committee will report a bill on Monday for the immediate construction of ten gun-boats, and it is understood the Committee on Foreign Relations will move to amend by increasing the number to thirty.

The feeling of Congress is so strong on the subject of the outrages by England that it is believed these measures will pass by an almost unanimous vote.

Orders will be issued in a few days from the War Department, directing that the Second Regiment of Cavalry remain in Texas, and not proceed to Fort Leavenworth, as had been directed in former orders; also changing the stations of a portion of the Frst Regiment of Artillery.

Washington, May 23.

The Horse Naval Committee will tomorrow report in favor of building ten new vessels of war. They will be called light draft sloops-of-war, drawing about eight feet of water, carrying two eleven inch shell guns, and a crew of about fifty men. They will be much more formidable than the British gun boats, and sail faster. The whole subject will be before Congress to morrow, and it is believed will display an unprecedented unanimity of feeling on both sides of the House.

Should the government receive official advices from Utah warranting it, the estimates for the volunteer regiments will be cut down two-thirds, and but one regiment raised. As there are three Indian wars going on at present, the army will be required to protect the lives of our citizens on the frontier and to garrison Utah; and one volunteer regiment is, under any circumstances, indispensable.

The Accident on the New York Central Railroad.

Correspondence of the Albany Statesman.

Crossing a temporary bridge constructed on the north side of the ravage from train which to [illegible] I passed round the west end of the bridge to the south side of the track, and climbing down the embankment stood in the bed of the rock, in order to get a good view of the ruins. And from this point it was that the full horror of the butchery could alone be fully appreciated. The rotten, worthless timbers of the fatal trap called the bridge, broken through like so many pipe stems, bent down towards the water, mingling with the ruins of the cars. The passive south side of the bridge leaned inwards, touching the top of the last car.

Looking through and underneath these timbers, all that remained of the three cars could be seen. The first, and the front part of the second, it was impossible to distinguish one from the other, the whole being smashed literally to pieces between the stone abutment and the front part of the last car. The second or middle car, in its descent, had plunged down head first, and its rear end, with its iron work still attached to it, that the third had run opening to receive it as it came crashing through just at a sufficient height to take the tops of the seats and the heads and shoulders of the passengers, crushing them to a jelly. As I clung to the rafters of the bridge and looked through into the ruins, my very soul sickened within me as I beheld spattered upon and adhering to the sides of the cars, the blood, the flesh, and the brains of the mangled sufferers.

The Union publishes a letter from Fort Bridger, April 10, stating on the authority of Mr. Gilbert, formerly a merchant of Salt Lake City, that Governor Cumming and Colonel Kane were met by him in Echo Canon, 45 miles this side of Salt Lake City, on the 7th of April. About 20 mormons accompanied them. On his way to Salt Lake from California, Mr Gilbert met with large numbers of wagons heavily loaded, on the way, it was supposed, to the White Mountains, near the borders of New Mexico. Nearly one hundred persons leave the city daily, and, so far as women and children are concerned, the city was nearly depopulated. It was supposed that a large portion of them were secreted on City Creek, above Salt Lake, in the mountains, where it is known that they have large caches of provisions. In conversation with Brigham Young, Mr. Gilbert was told that, if the army would give him time, he wo'd leave; otherwise he would "send them to hell across lots." The correspondent adds: "We are waiting news from the Governor with much interest and anxiety. His early return to camp is not looked for by many, as he took with him large supplies."

New York Correspondence.

New York, May 19th, 1858.

Mr. Editor.—The second week in May of every year, for us sojourners in Gotham, is always a season not only of freshets but of great refreshing. The clouds at that genial springtime season pour out their fatness, and sputters from every part of the country, just full enough for utterance, pour out their platitudes upon the just and the unjust.—Every institution of our country which thrives by talk, and grows on freedom of speech, holds an anniversary here on the second week in May to compare notes, hear reports of committees, lay plans for future operations discuss ways and means and go into a little harmless mutual admiration generally.

But which of the many anniversaries shall I attend? Where shall I go to pick up the most interesting incidents for your readers? I am attracted most where there is combat between opinion, struggle of ideas against ideas, contention among intellectual giants. That place, preeminent over all others this time, is the anniversary meeting of the American Tract Society. There a mighty question is under discussion—shall the Society publish a tract against Slavery?—and cohorts of either host have mustered form all parts of the country to mingle in the combat. Fifteen hundred clergymen and laymen filled one of our commodious churches at 9 in the morning and Dr. Adams, Chairman of the Publishing Committee, read a well argued and temperate report, setting forth the difficulties which had arrisen unexpectedly during the year to prevent the publication of the anti-slavery tract, and stated that the committee had simply delayed its issue to confer farther with the entire Society.—Then Bishop McIlvaine of Ohio and Dr. Tyng of this city followed; the one in enthusiastic support of the committee, and the other in an able and well considered speech, also supporting the committee, but closing with a motion to instruct the committee to publish the tract during the coming year, or as soon as practicable. Dr. Tyng's motion was voted down. Then came other similar propositions and along with them a scene of confusion, noise and disorder seldom witnessed in a church. Cries of "question," "order," "Mr. President," laughter, applause and hisses resounded from time to time through the house, and for many minutes at a time. Dr. De Witt, pastor of the church, had repeatedly to appeal to members to "preserve the sanctity of this house."—The occasion was certainly the rarest specimen of "church militant" that ever came under my observation. Dr. Bethune of Brooklyn, Dr. Bacon of New Haven and Dr. Thompson, editor of the Independent, were the principal gladiators who contended in the arena and commanded a hearing in spite of disturbance, and they made wretched havoc with each others positions.

As an impartial observer I should say much of the confusion arose from the amiable inefficiency of the President of the assembly. In his endeavor to hear all sides and respond to every call on "Mr. President," he failed to protect a speaker after he had assigned him the floor, and so the audience fell into confusion from sheer lack of skillful government, rather than from any special proneness to disorder or determination on the part of members to create confusion. After a contest of six hours the report was adopted and the committee sustained by no election, which is taken to be an indication that no tract against slavery will be issued for some time to come.

The next meeting where passion ran high and the clash of argumentative arms reverberated to the echo, was the Garrisonian Abolition and Disunion meeting. There the occasion was torn to tatters, the church denounced as the "Bulwark of American Slavery," the late revival of religion characterized as spurious, Russia pattened on the back for emancipation of her Serfs, and all our political parties, Democrats, Americans and Republicans, were consigned to one common infamy as alike recreant to freedom. Here also sharply defined antagonisms jutted out prominently, luckless opponents were mercilessly impaled on the spears of warriors made skillful by the drill and practice of years in the arena of debate, and who, despising carnal weapons, make all the more trenchant use of the sword of the spirit; and here to the cheers of the faithful and hisses of those who were "sound on the goose" every where prevailed.

Then came the Convention of Women and those who do battle for the rights of women. Mozart Hall, one of the largest in the city, was kept full two days, and three sessions a day, to hear the old stagers and prominent debaters on the "Woman Question." Here the women, as usual, had things pretty much their own way. The large and intelligent audience seemed to have come for instruction rather than dissent. The principal right claimed by the advocates was the right to vote—all other rights, it was contended, would follow and be gained for women in that single central one. A few speakers wandered off into anti-marriage and impracticalisms of that sort; but they were mostly outsiders and the convention was kept pretty firmly to the question of the ballot. Mrs. Lucy Stone Blackwell, exhibited the case, propriety and dignity with which women could engage in the lighter branches of agriculture, and maintained that there was the best kind of remuneration in it.—The crops raised by a woman would sell at as high a price as those of the sturdiest man farmer. It is a maxim in commerce everywhere that corn is corn and "eggs is eggs," and there could be no cutting down to half price because produced by a woman. Mrs. Stone said there was a woman in the audience, and she had a good mind to ask her to let the audience see her, to show how delicate, refined and womanly she was, who last year made $1,600 by two months work of her own hands in her own little strawberry garden. In view of results like these, Mrs. Stone continued she was ashamed of ever having claimed clerkships and the paltry wages thereto attached as belonging to the sphere of woman.

Our Bible, Missionary, Sunday School, Temperance and other Societies held their anniversaries according to the usual programme, and were troubled with no bickerings nor bomb shells. There has been a slight falling off in the general funds, but that, it is thought, will be more than made up this year by the recent additions everywhere made to the church.

From the strong meat of old folks let me pass on to milk for babes. The slaughter of our innocents by the putridity known as "swill milk," though long ago detected, is at last overthrown. There has hitherto been money enough in the pockets of distillers to buy impunity of the corporations and courts of all this cluster of critics, but the monster shrinks into the earth in presence of the light thrown on its crimes by one single, determined, unpurchasable press. Frank Leslie, for a fortnight past, has been tracking the concern all along its milky way and publishing the street and number of all the patrons of the nauseating fluid. They were found generally to be the poorer class of people (just those who could least afford to be made sick by it) and the lower class of restaurants and boarding houses who patronized it because it was cheap. Letting in the light, however, is working an immediate abatement of the nuisance, thus accomplishing at once and without disorder, by individual enterprise, what government, backed by all its batteries, is powerless to secure. It has been a capital hit for Leslie, for, in proportion as the milk no longer went down, his paper went up, though his artists and reporters did suffer some from milk and brickbats in sketching the originals and getting up the designs. It was comical to witness purchasers of the paper pass out of the news offices, reading as they went, with up-turned nose, and mouth at half gag, as if they really tasted the disgusting mixture and smelled the animals and stables which the pictures delineated and the types described.

Some three weeks since Captain Sands of the U S. Steam Frigate Susquehanna was arrested for disobeying the Health Officers of this port. Last Saturday Captain Judkins of the British steamer Persia was arrested for disobeying the same officers. His ship had brought a case of small pox and was placed on quarrantine with strict orders to permit no one to land on any pretext. A Custom House officer wanted terribly to get ashore. Capt. Judkins wouldn't let him—Quarantine regulations wouldn't permit it. Finally when the officer did get ashore he obtained the arrest of the Captain under U. S. authority, and Mr. Cunard became bail for his appearance to answer the charge of detain and obstructing a U. S officer.

There is another rather stiff little sea breeze brewing in the shape of mutual indignation meetings among shipmasters and owners who are down on the British West India Squadron for the outrage of searching vessels suspected as slavers, though sailing under the American flag. At one of these meetings our patriotic rage took the shape of the following, among other similar resolutions:

Resolved, That "our flag covers the cargo," whether that cargo consists of niggers or nothing—and that "freedom from search" is an American's inalienable right at sea—as much so as freedom from the intrusion of foreign police in our domicils on shore.

Henry William Herbert, extensively known throughout the United States and Great Britian as an author of celebrity, and more especially for his works on sportmanship, under the nom de plume "Frank Forester," committed suicide on Monday morning, at the Stevens House, Broadway, by shooting himself through the heart with a pistol.—Though over fifty years of age he recently married a young lady of twenty, from whom he was separated a few weeks after marriage. He left a few letters, from which it would appear that domestic differences led to the commission of the rash act.

GET THE PUREST,
GET THE CHEAPEST,
GET THE MOST EFFICACIOUS

In short, get THE BEST, which are Dr. Roback's Scandinavian Blood Purifier and Blood Pills. These wonderful Medicines are entirely vegetable, leave no bad effects, and can not by any possibility injure the most delicate constitution. Never was a good Spring Medicine so necessary as now, for in addition to the skin diseases and deranged Stomach and Liver, which every winter produces, it is most evident to all who are accustomed to note the powerful influence for good or ill that the mind has upon the body that the anxiety of mind caused by the late wide-spread money troubles, has injured the general health of almost every one. Then cleanse, strengthen and purify your system with the Scandinavian Remedies, and you will probably save yourself from serious illness the coming Summer.

MISAPPREHENSION CORRECTED.

The success which has attended the treatment of affections of the Throat, Lungs, introduced by Dr. ROBT. HUNTER of New York, whose practical writings on Respiratory Organs, and the rational system of inhalation have been so recently published, leads many persons to apply for "Agencies" as it "Inhalation" consisted of some "patent nostrum." Such a misapprehension is calculated grossly to mislead the public; and Dr. Hunter therefore feels it to be due to himself and to the practice of Inhilation with which his name and reputation are identified to state again, that "Inhalation," as advocated by him is a SYSTEM OF TREATMENT based on a correct knowledge of the condition of the patient, and cannot therefore be a subject for Agencies.

All persons desireing to consult or be under treatment, must apply personally or by letter to him, or his associate, Dr. MELVILLE, when the fullest information regarding the treatment will be given, either to patients themselves or to physicians consulting on their cases without charge.

Those who are desirous of consulting may address either R. HUNTER, M. D., or J. HUNTER & MELVILLE, 828 Broadway.

MATHEMATICAL QUESTION.—Two balloons ascend at the same instant; the larger with a charged shell of 40 lb. weight—the latter, with an eight-pound shot. The former ascends the first mile in 57 seconds, when it drops the shell and proceeds upward at the rate of a mile in 31 seconds. The latter attains the height of 3000 feet at the instant the shell has reached a descent of 1500 feet, and drops the shot. Now at what point will the shell pass the shot; and supposing it to explode, on striking the earth, how far must the report be heard, before it meets the descending ball? Also, to what height, and at what rate, must the smaller balloon ascend, after dropping the shot, to overtake the larger at the time it receives the sound of the explosion?

A Terrible Storm.

GREAT DESTRUCTION OF PROPERTY,

From the Chicago Tribune, Saturday.

The gale on Thursday evening was, in some portions of the State, of unprecedented violence. It covered a large extent of Territory, and everywhere its track is marked with painful damage to property and perhaps, as further intelligence will show, loss of life. It seems to have crossed the Mississippi near Oquawka and to have extended eastward, at least as far as McLean county, where we hear of some of its disastrous effects. In the West, there was much hail accompanying the wind, and everywhere a great fall of rain. We hear that at Lexington, on the line of the St. Louis, Alton, and Chicago road, the storm was terrific. In a letter below we are told of its freaks with the train; and an informant at our elbow says that nearly every house in the village was unroofed or blown down. The air was loaded with the wreck which was made; the heavens were black with clouds which were pouring out destruction, and more than one who was there felt that the end of all things was at hand. If Lexington has escaped without great loss of life the fact is most wonderful of all.

Below we print a hasty letter from Lexington, kindly forwarded by an officer of the road:

"Lexington, May 13, 1858.

"Editors Tribune—This evening about 6 o'clock we were visited by a severe storm, accompanied by the most fearful thunder and lightning ever experienced here. The storm lasted about 20 minutes and after it had, to all appearance, cleared up, it was succeeded by the most terrific wind ever known in this section of the State. The rain fell in torrents, and nearly every house in Lexington was unroofed, and a number of them blown down.

'The passenger train from St. Louis, by which I send this, was blown from the track and cars tipped over, but, with the exception of a few slight flesh wounds, the passengers were uninjured. Before the train capsized all the car windows on the windward side were blown out, the engineer and fireman were both blown from the engine, and a brakesman was also blown from one of the cars The storms struck the train a short distance north from here'

We learn from a passenger on the above capsized train that great damage was done by the tornado at the junction of the Peoria and Oquawka road with the St Louis, Alton & Chicago Railroad.—Both station houses were unroofed, 5 or 6 empty freight cars were blown from the track, dwelling houses were unroofed, moved bodily 20 or 30 feet or entirely demolished, and yet, amid all this widespread disaster, he could learn of no one seriously injured.

We cut from the Journal of last evening an account of the effects of the storm at the west, which agrees with information received by later trains

Galesburg.—The storm was severe along the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy R R. At Galesburg it was terrible.—The engine house of the railroad company and two churches just completed were blown down, and a number of dwelling houses were unroofed. Three cars standing on the track blown off and turned upside down. The amount of the damage at Galesburg is estimated at $40,000. No lives lost.

"Oquawka—Two steam mills were ruined at Oquawka and 10 houses unroofed, besides other damages done—Damages estimated at from $10,000 to $15,000. So far as ascertained no lives lost.

"Galva—At this place a large two story dwelling house was rendered a complete ruin; a portion of Mr Babcock's dwelling was blown down. Nearly all the out-houses in the village were upset. The wind carried large boxes, lumber, barrels, &c., into the air as if they were papers. A large church was moved from its foundation about a foot The storm raged hardest between 6 and 7 o'clock.

Mendota—Here the storm was also furious, and while in progress, the rail road engine house caught fire and was consumed, together with the locomotive Rocke.."

From one of our citizens who was in Peoria at the time, we learn the following particulars of the ravages of the great storm at that place: The hurricane struck the city at about 5 o'clock in the evening In the twinkling of an eye, 15 or 20 houses were unroofed, every church spire in the city blown down, 3 canal boats loaded with lumber sunk, and the steamer Olin, with 21 passengers on board made a complete wreck, her cabin being blown entirely away. And what seems really miraculous is the fact that but 1 life was lost in all this furious disorganization of matter and demolition of structures.—It is said that a little child was lost from off the wrecked steamer. The lumber in the yards was blown all over the city. the gas lamps were blown down, and the signs were sent flying in every direction windows and gable ends were smashed in, whole trains of cars were blown off the track and the bluff utterly demolished.—Our informant was obliged to take refuge in the Court house square, to avoid the general destruction which threatened the city, and to escape the flying signs, boards, boxes, and other missiles with which the air was filled.

THE BEST FAMILY MEDICINE NOW before the public, for the cure of Scrofula, Ulcers, Scurvy, or Eruptions of the Skin Fever and Ague, Dyspepsia, Dropsy, and in fact most all diseases soon yield to their curative properties.

It has been computed that during the last twenty five years upwards of FOUR MILLIONS of persons have been benefited by the use of these medicines; a fact which speaks volumes in favor of their curative properties, a single trial will place them beyond the reach of competition in the estimate of every patient. By their use the BLOOD IS RESTORED TO A HEALTHY STATE and freed from all impurities. The system is not reduced during their operation, but invigorated, and they require no restraint from business or pleasure.

The afflicted have in these medicines a remedy that will do for them all that medicine can possibly effect.

AGRICULTURAL.

The Farmer, at Home.

The dairy-maid stood at the wicket gate,
The cows were away on the lea;
The fire shone softly out from the grate—
How merry the farmer must be.

Old Bose lay stretched on the carpeted floor,
While Fanny and Kitty romplea
Were frolicking gaily, out at the door—
So joyo-s the farmers may be!

The farmer then took his paper to read;
"Tis the HERALD, my dear, you see,
If, of its teachings we only take heed,
How prosperous we farmers can be."

The farmer read till the close of the day,
His wife looking over to see;
And Fanny, to hear, has now left her play;
So happy the farmers can be!

From Emery's Journal of Agriculture.

Sheep Washing and Shearing.

By some farmers, this important work is performed too thoughtlessly. There is too little regard for the season—for the condition of the fleece. If you wash your sheep, do it carefully and rapidly. We have seen men wash sheep who seemed more brutish than the brutes. It is less exhausting to the washer to treat the animal carefully, and less danger to the sheep is incurred. It is regarded by some as sport to wash sheep, but whether postime or not, nothing should be done to frighten the sheep. A good husbandman will have his flock tame, and use all possible precautions to keep it so. Good farmers divide and sub divide their pastures for their sheep. They should go away from the washing to a fresh clean pasture. The weather will affect the length of time they should remain there before shearing, but they should remain long enough to allow the fleece to become dry, and the new yolk to penetrate through it. This is important, as it adds to the weight and appearance of the wool. Most farmers shear from the 10th to the last of May. This depends upon the season of course, and in very many instances that have come under our notice, from the fifth to the 15th of June would be better for the sheep and the fleece.

We may as well say here, that had we 50 or a 1000 sheep, they should never be taken into the water. If sheep are well cared for in winter and are frequently changed from one pasture to another, and the dirty portions of the fleece about the hind parts carefully clipped and excluded from the fleece, the wool neatly taken off and as neatly tied up, there are few wool buyers who would demand a heavy tare. There might and should be established by mutual consent rates of tare, with reference to the abandonment of this unnatural and inhuman practice. It is an injury to the sheep and no benefit to the wool for manufacturing purposes; it scarcely lessens the cost of preparing it for use by the manufacturer, and is only a heavy and unnecessary tax upon the wool grower [illegible] never seen a single good or valid argument in its favor. We have the the best evidence that it is an injury.

There are some sheep shearers—reputed such—who never ought to handle a sheep, at least never ought to apply the shears to one. Witness the numerous blotches made in the skin with their shears. We know an occasional cut is unavoidable, because of the restlessness of the animal. But the skillful and good sheep shearer seldom cut a sheep. It is torture, which humanity alone in the man ought to guard him against. It is a bad practice among farmers to hire a man to shear sheep at a certain rate per head. Better pay more, and have the fleece kept clean and taken off well. The manner in which it is taken off will affect the next crop or fleece. Neither the fleece or the skin should be 'haggled up.' The fleece should be taken off closely and evenly. There should be great care taken in tying it up. It should be rolled compactly with the outside of the fleece inside, and plenty of good strong twine should be used in the tying. Every wool grower knows the value of twine, and the profit of using it in tying the fleece. After shearing, turn your flocks where they may obtain shelter from the cold rains, if possible.

A FARMER'S HONOR.—The publisher of the Michigan Farmer is taking an extensive way to test the honor or honesty of his subscribers. His home stead is advertised to be sold on a mortgage; and he says he has more than enough due from his 'patrons' to meet the demand. His appeal will test them; and the names of those who do not respond, he had better strike off, for 99 out of a hundred will never pay.

In typographical appearance, and in the character and variety of its contents and it now, in the extent and variety of its matter is

UNSURPASSED

By any Paper within the range of the Circulation.!

The publishers refer with pride to the improvements of the past as the guarantee that its future will be one of continued progress.

The aim of the publishers of

The Weekly Blade

Will ever be to make it a

High Toned, Useful and Instructive JOURNAL.

And they will, therefore, exclude from its columns whatever has a tendency to debauch the morals or enervate taste. At the same time great care will be taken to please its readers by Providing for their entertainment whatever seems appropriate from the abundant stores of modern literature.

Among the topics thus embraced may be mentioned—

A WIDE RANGE OF NEWS ITEMS,
POLITICAL NEWS AND ARTICLES,
SCIENTIFIC MATTERS,
RECENT INVENTIONS,
SKETCHES, POETRY, TALES, &C.

Together with the best washington correspondence to be found in Western paper.

WIT and HUMOR also receive a full share of attention Especial pains are taken to furnish the latest and most accurate quotations of the Produce, Grain, Cattle and Money

MARKETS

Of the principal cities of the Union, as well as Liverpool and London.

A special department will hereafter be devoted to the Interests of the Farmer.

The proprietors invite a comparison between the Weekly Toledo Blade and any Western Weekly Journal feeling assured that it is well worthy the attention of the reading public as a Good, Interesting, Agreeable and Valuable Newspaper for all classes of readers and especially as a Paper for the Fireside.

The wide circulation which the Weekly Blade has attained enables the proprietors to offer it at the following

Extremely Low Rates.

DO YOU EVER
WANT ANY THING,
FROM NEW YORK?
IF SO, SEND YOUR ORDER TO

F. S. CABOT & CO.,

BUYERS, 85 BARCLAY STREET.

Almost every one, certainly every merchant, has sometimes very strongly wished that he had a reliable correspondent and friend living in this great metropolis to whom he could send for the transaction of some business or the purchase of some article that he could not make it convenient to go to the city to do, or to buy himself with full confidence that the business would be well done, and at a reasonable expense to him. Having become satisfied by a considerable experience and experience that this is an almost universal want, we have established our house to supply it. We have found that thousands of persons from Maine to Georgia are constantly sending us to execute orders, involving purchases varying in amount from 25 cents to as many hundred dollars, and we believe in every case, these employing us have been satisfied both with the quality of the services rendered and the equity of our charges. We mean that our charges, shall in all cases be fair and reasonable, being predicated on the time and labor consumed, or to be consumed in the matter, and the risk we run in buying largely for cash. We can buy better than any single purchaser can. In fact, we save to our friends much more in prices than the commission we charge. No man who only occasionally comes here can be familiar with a market so extensive as this. We being here all the time, are thoroughly acquainted with it, and know where to go to find everything in first hands, and at the lowest rates. We have found that many of our distant friends wish to send us country produce to sell, sometimes the proceeds to be invested in goods sometimes in money. Accordingly we have made the very best arrangements to enable us to do justice to those who may remit to us. Our charges for selling are a usually five per cent. although in special cases of very large or very small transactions equity might require it to be varied from that. We have a circular giving more at length the scope and plan of our business with statement of our charges for buying some of the leading articles, which will be sent on application.

For descriptive circular and a list of almost miraculous cures performed during the past five years in the west and South send one three cent stamp and address Dr S. Tyler 442 Broadway, New York.

Persons at a distance can be treated by sending a lock of hair age and symptoms. Consultations fee, $5.

S. W. FRANCIS'
Patent Printing Machine.

THIS Machine is played by means of piano keys; two copies are printed at once in less time than is required to produce one with the pen. Divines, while in the pulpit, will be freed from the inconveniences attending an ordinary amanuensis. Authors secured from loosing the result or many hours of mental application by the destruction of a single copy while in the hands of the publisher. Editors no longer troubled by the necessary correction of errors in proof sheet by the manuscript copies; Reporters may, with less labor, furnish printed reports; Merchants, while writing a clearer letter and saving time, have neatly printed copies in store for future reference; Lawyers, whose failing sight or paralyzed or amputed arm will still be enabled to renew his literary labors with greater ease, rapidity and certainty than ever before. By a slight modification raised letters may be printed for the benefit of the blind.

The Price of one Printing Machine, $100.

HOWARD ASSOCIATION
PHILADELPHIA.

A Benevolent Institution, established by special endowment, for the relief of the sick and distressed, afflicted with Virulent and Epidemic diseases.

THE HOWARD ASSOCIATION, victim of the baneful destruction of human life, caused by Sexual diseases; and the deception practised upon the unfortunate victims of such diseases by Quacks, several years ago erected their Consulting Surgeons, as a CHARITABLE SCHEME worthy of their name, to oppose necessary for the treatment of this class of diseases in all their forms, and to give MEDICAL ADVICE GRATIS to all who apply by letter with a description of their condition, age, occupation, habits of life, &c., and in cases of extreme poverty, to FURNISH MEDICINES FREE OF CHARGE. It is needless to add that the Associat on recommends the highest medical skill of the age, and will furnish the most approved modern treatment.

The Directors of the Association in their Annual Report upon the treatment of Sexual Diseases, for the year ending January 1st, 1858, express the highest satisfaction with the success which has attended the labors of the Consulting Surgeon in the cure of Spermatorrhœa, Seminal Weakness, Impotency, Gonorrhœa, Gleet, Syphilis, the vice of Onanism or Self abuse &c. and order a continuance of the same plan for the ensuing year.

The Directors, on a review of the past, feel assured that their labors in this sphere of benevolent effort have been of great benefit to the afflicted, especially to the young and they have resolved to devote themselves with renewed zeal, to this very important and much despised cause.

An admirable Report on Spermatorrhœa, or Seminal Weakness the vice of Onanism, Masturbation, or Self abuse, and other diseases of the sexual organs, by the Consulting Surgeon, will be sent by mail (in a sealed envelope) FREE OF CHARGE, on receipt of TWO STAMPS for postage. Other Reports and Tracts on the nature and treatment of sexual diseases, &c. &c. are constantly being published for gratuitous distribution and will be sent to the afflicted. Some of the new remedies and methods of treatment discovered during the last year, are of great value.

Address, for Report or treatment Dr. GEORG R CALHOUN, Consulting Surgeon, Howard Association, No. 2, South Ninth Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Bragg's Arctic Liniment.

This unecomparable Liniment upon which the great mass of afflicted of all lands now rely for relief from the pangs of Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Goat, Erysipelas, Cancer, Scrofula, Sprains, Bruises, Burns, Scalds and all cutaneous diseases, is rapidly superceding all similar preparations. The proprietors give for the encouragement of sufferers, the following memorandum of a few of the wonderful cures effected by it during the past few months. Certificates from the parties named are in the possession of the proprietors; their length precludes the publication of all but a few.

One Bottle Triumphant.

Mrs. Moffitt, No 345 Morgan Street, St. Louis, having suffered for three years with Rheumatism, and tried many preparations without effect, was cured by one fifty cent bottle of Arctic Liniment.

Out of Purgatory!

Henry Davis, Mound street St. Louis, who says he was "suffering the pangs of purgatory" with neuralgia for months, was cured by three or four applications of the Arctic Liniment.

Pity the Little Children.

A little daughter of Mrs. Lee residing on Lake St. Chicago was severely burned by the upsetting of a kettle of boiling water. The Arctic Liniment was applied according to the directions, and the fire was instantly extracted, and in a few days the little sufferer was well.

Restored to Beauty.

Mrs George K. Tyler, Canal street, N. Orleans had long suffered from a painful and disfiguring eruption on the face which by the use of one bottle of the Liniment was cured and restored to her original beauty.

A Horrible Tumor.

Eugene Mallory, Natchez was three years the victim of a horrible tumor on the neck which resisted all remedies until he tried the Arctic Liniment. Three bottles cured him in a few weeks.

Wonderful Cure!

Mrs Bedford, Mobile, was confined to her couch for three years with numb palsy and after being in despair from the failure of numerous remedies, was cured by the Arctic Liniment, in a little over a month.

An Explosion.

Memphis, Tenn., Nov., 28th, 1857.

I hereby certify, that having been badly bruised and scaled by the explosion of a Steam Boiler, a friend induced me to try Bragg's Arctic Liniment. The smart was instantly extracted from the scalds, and in a very short time all the pain was gone from the bruises—in two weeks I was well, and able to resume my business.

The Blind See!

Webster City, Iowa, Nov. 9th, 1857.

Dr. A. G. BRAGG—Dear Sir: For more than three years I had been afflicted with inflamed eyes, in an aggravated degree, and tried various Physicians, and several nostrums, to no effect. I was induced by Dr. Bamon to try the Arctic Liniment, and in two months was nearly well. My little daughter was afflicted in the same manner for the same time, and during a portion of the time was entirely blind in one eye. I applied your valuable Liniment, and her eyes are perfectly sound. Thus have I with one two-bbl bottle cured my daughter's eyes and my own, besides curing the rheumatism in my back. I would not be without your invaluable remedy in my house. Yours Truly
Wm. RUSSELL.

Webster City, Iowa, Nov. 9th, 1857.

I hereby certify, that I am well acquainted with Wm Russell, and with the astonishing cures he mentions, and know his statement to be strictly true.

Good for Animals.

This invaluable Liniment is also equally efficatious in curing the diseases of animals as witness the following certificate; Messrs J. A. Avery states in two Arrot & Co., Consignees of U. S. Mail Steamer St. Louis, Dec 22nd, 1857.

We, the undersigned, having used Dr. Bragg's Arctic Liniment for a period of months, cheerfully testify to its superior efficacy in curing the diseases of horses; as well are we satisfied of the Arctic being the best Liniment made that we would use in our stables. We keep and have kept for a number of years, extensive livery stables in this city and consequently our experience about horses and their diseases is great, and we unhesitatingly say, that the Arctic Liniment is the only one we have ever found ALWAYS EFFECTIVE. We cordially recommend it to all livery stable keepers and others having the care of horses.

J. & A. ARNOT,
LYNCH, ARNOT & CO
Chestnut Street.

Caution,

Many Druggists having oil liniments on hand will try to sell them to you as the best, but do you positively refuse to purchase them. Ask for 'BRAGG'S ARCTIC LINIMENT," and take no other.

Liberal Proposition.

The proprietors agree to furnish each purchaser of a dollar bottle with a free subscription to the U. S. Journal, for one year. This is one of the best N. Y. illustrated papers. A certificate entitling the holder to the benefit of this proposition, is enclosed in the wrapper around every dollar bottle. The Arctic Liniment is put up in 25 cent 50 cent and $1. bottles. The 50 cent and $1 bottles contain 50 and 100 per cent more Liniment in proportion to their cost, and are the cheapest. For sale by

THE RAFT,

Or the Widow's two Sons.

BY REV. J. TODD.

The traveller, who, at this day, mounts the stage at any of our great points for the White Mountains, and who, as he draws near that region of wonder, gazes in astonishment at the handy work of the Eternal, cannot now see the region as it was some thirty of forty years ago. The roads are now good, the conveyance rapid and convenient, the habitations of men more plenty, and the country every way more subdued. Trees which for generations were undisturbed in these distant nooks and valleys, have had the "feller" come against them, have been subjected to the power of the saw, and after winding down the beautiful and modest stream of the Connecticut, are now converted into the splendid dwellings of those who could afford to use them. Now, carriages of the wealthy are no strangers here. The gay and the fashionable sometimes throng hither. The belle comes here to see and be seen; and many a pigeon and hawk takes wing as the weary city gentleman raises his gun, and with a loud noise thus "makes the feathers fly." The cold streams which have for ages sprung up here in places seemingly inaccessible to man, are now waded and explored by the greedy trout seeker, who searches with his line every hole and the rocks over which the stream tumbles, and who feels ashamed to number his victims except by the dozen. Once it was not so. Nay, some thirty-five years ago, no strangers were seen, except that now and then a hardy teamster passed on towards Boston in his sleigh, loaded with venison; or a still more hardy hunter, with his long gun and powerful dog traversed these mountains in quest of the nimble footed deer, or the huge black bear.

It is back to this period that I wish to carry the mind of my reader. Then, the bear went and came, and seldom met the two footed enemy with his gun. The deer came down and fed on the sunniest spots, and no one molested her. The partridge rolled and wallowed in the warmest dirt she could find, and her wild heart had nothing to fear, providing the crackling bush gave her a notice of the footsteps of the wily fox. The habitations of men were then but few, and low cottages sprinkled here and there in this immense space, where hardly noticed, as the eye took in scores of square miles at a glance.

If the reader has ever been over this section of the country, and has "travelled the ground thoroughly," as the Irish soldier said, when reproved for not getting over the ground faster in the hour of battle, he will never forget "Franconia Notch." It is a chasm through which the road passes at the foot of Mount Lafayette, and the grandest scene, save one, which this country has yet exhibited. I could wish that some of our wise friends, who go to Europe and come home with a new suit of clothes, and new and genteel whiskers, and who find everything on a scale painfully and humiliatingly small on their return, might return by the way of the Canadas, and pass through the regions of the White Mountains before they make their reports. I verily believe that they would confess that whatever else may be found abroad, such scenery, such everlasting piles of granite, such wild solitudes can no where else be found.—These solitudes are the home of the thunders, the cradle of many storms, and the birth places of rivers which branch every way, and water and vertilize the land of the Pilgrims.

The reader too, on the supposition aforesaid, will recollect the cold, undefined and awful feeling which comes over him as he begins to descend to enter the "Notch," to look at "the old man of the mountains." These feelings and this scenery I shall not now undertake to describe; but just as he begins to enter the forest, passing from Franconia, he will also recollect a road running at right angles to that which he travels. Well, it was some little distance down this lonely road, that the small wood-colored house of Widow Howe stood, at the time I am commencing my story.

Some years before this, a young sailor had unaccountably wandered up 'this way from the waters,' and soon found a tie that bound him here. This was a pretty girl, who consented to marry him on the hard condition that he would go no more to sea. It cost him much rumination as he sat alone thinking it over, and many a cigar was turned into ashes in trying to soothe him into acquiescence. Acquiesce however he did, and they were married and purchased the little dominion I have mentioned. The sailor found it rather difficult at first to manage his farm, but by naming his oxen "larboard" and "starboard," and his blind horse "dead eyes," he got along very well. They lived happily together for several years, when Howe was suddenly called from time to eternity. His young wife was left with two little boys, James and John.

The history of years is compressed into a few sentences. That is, a few sentences pass over years without telling us anything that took place. That is all I mean when I say that the history of Widow Howe for many years may be told in a few words. She was industrious, frugal, mild, persevering, and carried a heart contented and peaceful, because it had been chastened, and purified, and subdued by religion. She taught her boys all that she knew. She told the story of their father over and over again, partly to soothe her own heart and partly to lead her boys to cherish his memory.—These objects were accomplished, together with one of which she did not dream.—She would tell how their father came there a light hearted young sailor; how frank and generous he was; what he had passed through on the green waters; what he was to her, and what he would have been to them, had he lived. Alas, why is it that when our friends are gone, we wish to heighten excellence, cover every weakness, and dwell only upon what we loved most in them? Why does sorrow thus seek for that food which increases it? I shall not stop to discuss it.

The boys grew up, uncorrupted by society, simple in all their views and tastes. They were the pride and the joy of the widow's heart. They knew every wind and turn, every hole for the trout which the wild Ammonoosuck afforded.—They could tell the time when the fish were "out," by the eye and the scream of the hard hearted, selfish kingfisher.—They could tell when the storm would come, by watching the awful Lafayette, as he "put on his night cap" of clouds; and they could climb the tree, the rock, and the mountains with a foot and ease peculiar to themselves. But as they grew up they felt unsatisfied. They longed to "see the world," by which they meant, they longed to go to sea as their father did, to pass through what he passed thro' and to have a tale to tell equal to his.—It was a long time before they could bring themselves to mention this desire to their mother. Many were the tears she shed when she did hear it, and most bitter were her regrets that she should indulge her fond heart in telling the personal history of their father and thus sowing the seed whose harvest she was now to gather. From the day they revealed this desire, and by a certain questioning, which every mother understands, be her child what it may, she had learned the strength of their desire, she considered her house desolate, and the end of her earthly consolations to have come.

During the long winter which preceded the departure of these young adventurers, they used to spend their evenings in talking over what was before them.—They would use all the sailor language of which they were masters, tell of the places which they would like to visit, the sights they would see, of the exploits they would perform, and always finish the air castle by painting their return to their home, their pockets filled with money, their chests with curiosities 'for mother,' which would amaze her and all her admiring neighbors, with trinkets not a few, for each and all of their acquaintances, dwellers in their mountains for twenty miles around.

I cannot tell how it was, but the fact cannot be called into question, that Laura Hill, a neighbor a mile distant, happened to be in frequently at the widow's and on being strongly importuned, would stay during the long winter evening, and hear these young brothers; nor can I tell any better how it happened that John usually went home with this mountain lily, nor how he could be so generous as to promise his school fellow when he returned he would not forget to bring her 'a nice new shawl.' On such occasions the generous girl would profess to consider such promises and such gifts as of no value in her eyes; and most earnestly, and often most tenderly entreat him for his mother's sake, to stay at home and behave himself. I am not able to say what arguments she used besides, if any; but it is true that John found it quite as hard to resist hers, as those of his mother.

But when the spring began to open and the deep snows on the mountains began to thaw and slide, and cause the streams to raise a roar which was echoed far and near, the young men began to make preparations for their immediate departure They had manufactured one large sailor's chest, making their father's their model, inasmuch as their mother would on no condition consent to their taking that.—They had so far matured their plans as to enter their names at Portland, as sailors before the mast, in a long voyage

On a bright morning in May, you might have called at the widow's and found every thing looking sad and desolate, as though the abode had been visited by some awful calamity. The cow was lowing in the yard, and wondering, as far as a cow could wonder, why she was neither milked, nor turned into pasture. The pigs were calling for breakfast with voices so loud as to preclude the possibility of any failure of their lungs or their appetite. The chickens around the door were putting in their sharp pleadings.—The dog 'old Rover,' was tied up in a back room and howling. In the 'boy's room,' sat the widow on their bed, weeping as if her heart would break, while on a trunk known to be John's sat the kind Laura Hill, who knowing that Mrs. Howe would feel lonely and sad, had come early in the morning to the cottage, and was now weeping too—probably out of sympathy. An old lady, who was rather fond of prying into other people's matters, reported that the damsel was seen to weep even before she got to the widow's and that John whispered something in her ear, just as he bent over to bid her good bye, which made the tears come in torrents; but it seems so improbable that he would have taken that hour to say anything so cruel as to make a beautiful girl weep, that I never could believe more than half the old lady's story Nor can I really believe that she wept, because in the hurry and excitement of the occassion, John snatched his mother's scissors, and in a twinkling, while she was half consenting, cut off a curl of hair which seemed to hang lazily upon her fair high forehead.

The life of a sailor is a hard one. He exposes his life every moment, and endures fatigues which shortly wear him into old age; or he early yields up his breath in a foreign hospital, or in the ocean's bed. Too brave to ask pity or to complain, we, who dwell in ceiled houses, and sleep in ease while the storm rages without, know nothing of his hardship, unless now and then we chance to read of a shipwreck which occurs, perhaps half a dozen lines, while a column is taken up in describing the foot and dress of a shameless dancer.

The boys had now been gone over three years. They had been to almost every port which is visited by ships. They had procured another chest for their curiosities, while their mountain chest was shared between them. They had sustained a good character, had saved their wages, had unaccountably resisted the strongest temptation to open sin, and were now on their way home. In the till of their chest was the Bible which their mother put into the chest, and which they solemnly promised they would read every day till their return, if it were but 'two verses,' unless in such a storm they could not all day go to their chest. This promise they had faithfully kept, and this was one secret of their power to resist temptation. Another was, that they were not generally both tempted at the same time, or in the same degree; consequently one always had strength by which to aid the other.

They were now on their way home, and hoped that in a few days more the lofty summit of Mount Washington would lift itself up in the distant horizon, and in a few days more, they should shoot under the window of the widow's bedroom, and make her rise even at midnight to get their supper. In their new chest they had divers pretty things from foreign shores which they had collected for 'mother.' In one corner, however, a small parcel was carefully tucked away, containing one of the prettiest shawls to be found in Canton, and which, as James averred, was 'an abominable waste of money'—the only point on which they were known to disagree.

The wind had been south west, and the sky overcast during the day and night preceding. About sunset the captain came on deck to prepare for the night. He gazed on the heavens with an anxious eye.

In a few moments the men were on the yards.

'Send down the royal masts and royal rigging, take in the top gallant sails—bear a hand, there's no time to lose.'

All this was done, and the ship was under snug sails. The captain himself remained on the watch till twelve at night, when he was succeeded by the mate, and retired to rest. The passengers were all in the cabin, while all the seamen were on deck, except the two brothers, who, on account of having been called to do double duty the night before, were now in the forecastle. All seemed increasingly secure, and the sky seemed to be promising better weather, when the ship was suddenly struck by a squall. The noise awakened the captain, and in a moment he was on deck with the speaking trumpet in his hand.

'Mr. Jones, are all hands on deck?'

'All but John and Jim, sir.'

'Call them up in a trice—stay—let go the top-sail haulyards—take hold here, and help me to let go the spanker sheet.'

Before these orders could be obeyed, and in attempting to let go the spanker, the captain lost his hold, and was plunged into the sea, and in a moment the ship was on her beam ends. So unexpected and sudden was all this, that only three passengers had time to escape from the cabin, and neither of the brothers from the forecastle. The captain succeeded in regaining the ship, but finding her on her beam ends, and apparently completely full of water, he with the remainder of the passengers and seamen cleared the long boat, in which they all embarked, in the darkness of midnight. The hours which were to pass before daylight seemed to move on the wings of lead. As daylight opened, however, a ship was providentially seen to the southward, by which they were discovered and taken up. The captain of the new ship turned his course and came near the wreck; but on coming near, and seeing that the sea made a complete breach over it, he concluded that it would be in vain to attempt saving anything.

We return to the brothers. They soon became aware of their situation. flew to the scuttle and made desperate attempts to remove the booby hatch, but in vain; the sea was against it, and the water was pouring in on every side.—Within a few minutes it required their utmost exertions to keep from drowning. They were in perfect darkness sometimes, as the ship rolled under water, with no space of air to breathe in, and nothing before them but the prospect of immediate death. In this situation their minds were filled with [illegible]. They recalled and talked over the past, the days of boyhood, the teachings of the Holy Bible They prayed aloud, by turns, and called upon God, and made the most solemn vows, should he deliver them. Some time after daylight they found their way to the bulk-head of the forecastle, where they found two planks loose enough to be removed, and the cargo so much shifted to the leeward as to leave a space sufficient for them to pass into the hold.—After being here for some time in total darkness, James succeeded in cutting a hole through the deck with his jack-knife, sufficient to admit a few rays of light, but not enough to discover anything which they could obtain to eat. Then they gave themselves to fervent, incessant prayers to God, with tears, till they became extremely weak through want of food and sleep. God heard their prayers; and the hatch was removed from the small hatchway: which enabled them to find some flour and a keg of lard within their reach. To these they now got access, and with these, in some measure satisfied their hunger. They had now been more than two days and two nights in this awful situation, in almost entire darkness, with hardly anything, answering to food, at no time with more than two feet of air above the water. During all this time they ceased not to pray in agony of spirit, and never closed a prayer without remembering their poor widowed mother. But on the third day, when nature seemed almost exhausted, they saw something shine in the water. One of them went under the water and brought it up It was an axe. With this their strength seemed to return. They succeeded in cutting a hole, and once more regained the deck. Nothing was to be seen but angry waves. They looked into the cabin, and saw it full of water, with the dead bodies of the passengers floating about. They returned thanks to God for this deliverance from a most horrible death and again renewed their vows. With their axe they now went to work, and by the next day had a raft constructed, consisting of spars tied together, a few pieces of sail, their flour and lard for food, a few iron weights which they found on deck, and which they placed in the middle of their raft for ballast, together with their chests, which they at last succeeded in finding, and placing on the raft. To this frail vessel they committed themselves, as they saw that the ship could not continue above water but a few hours longer, at the utmost.

They were almost exhausted, and could do but little more than spread their tattered sail and let the wind carry them wherever it would. On the third day after leaving the wreck, John gave out He could do no more. He lay down, and slept through weakness. But just at night, when the waves began to whiten and a dark, heavy bank of clouds settle down in the distant horizon, through which here and there a gleam of sunshine was seen, James saw a ship in the offing, at a distance. He roused up John, who had just strength enough left to sit down upon his chest. The wind was taking them away from the ship, and James exerted all his strength to take in the sail, and hoist a stripe as a flag of distress, in hopes of attracting the notice of the ship. Oh! how they prayed Heaven to give them deliverance. But the sky was threatening, the ship was too busy and too distant to see them. She passed away, and seemed too carry with her all the hopes of the brothers. James sat down and wept; John was beyond that, and felt that his day was nearly closed.

They lay down side by side that evening, for John said he wanted James to be near him. They prayed once more together, in a weak voice, but calmly, distinctly and tenderly.

'James do you think you will ever reach home? I seem to feel that you will, though I know not why I feel so.—But I shall never see another day. But let me ask one question. James do we now really and fully forgive each other every fault? Do you forgive me, Jem?'

'Yes, from my heart, if I had anything to forgive. Do you, John, forgive me every fault?'

'From my soul I do.'

'And now James, I want when I am dead, you should wind me up in a piece of sail, with one or two of those weights, that I may sink directly to the bottom of the ocean. Before you thus put me in I want you should kneel down and make one prayer over me, asking God to forgive, me that I ever left our poor mother, and asking him to take care of her. Cut off a bit of my hair and put it with that curl in my pocket-book, in the till of my chest. Keep them together. If ever you get home, Oh, James stay there, and never leave mother again. Give her my best love and my dying prayers. Ask her to forgive me that I ever left her See if old Rover will go up and go to the door as he used to do when you mentioned my name, when I was gone. When you go over the river, see if the same stones are there which we placed there, and on which we used to cross. Don't cut down that great butternut tree under which we used to swing, and then, when we were older, sit and read Help mother to get to meeting every Sunday, and go yourself Jem And when you see Laura—that shawl is spoiled I suppose, by the salt water—tell her that I talked about her the last evening that I lived, on this raft. Perhaps she would like to see the hair together in the same pocket-book.—One thing more, dear Jem; when you get home, and I pray God you may, and when you and mother go to meeting on Sunday have a paper read from the pulpit giving thanks to God that he spared you, and let you come home, don't forget to ask our good minister to give thanks that I, who died here and was buried in the ocean, did not die in despair, nor in fear. No, I have been a great sinner, and I am a great sinner; but the Lord Jesus Christ, who once walked on the waters, has seemed to come to me, and I seem to hear his voice saying, "It is I, be not afraid."—I commit our mother, and you, and Laura, and my body and my soul to him, and I die full of peace. We shall meet again, dear James, where there are no winds to blow, no ocean to roll, no death to die, no sin to lament. Come now let me take your hand, your right hand once more."

They lay down hand in hand, and wept till both fell asleep. When James awoke the hand of his brother was still within his; but it was cold and stiff. The angel of death had found them on their little raft, and the spirit of his brother was gone. He fulfilled his promise; he did kneel over the corpse, and pray with many tears, that God would remember the widowed mother—that he would pardon their sins, and especially that he would forgive him and make him fit to follow his brother into the eternal world. The morning sun rose as fair and as beautiful as if he were to look upon no scene of sorrow. But no sail of any kind was within sight. The day passed away, and James felt that if he did not fulfill his next promise to his brother now, it would soon be too late, for his strength was fast going from him. At the close of the day the solitary mourner had his brother wrapped in his winding sheet, and ready for the burial. He had cut off a large lock of his hair, had kissed his lifeless lips, had placed the weights in at the feet and all was ready. He once more knelt over the dead, and prayed and wept over one from whom he had never been separated before. With a lingering movement, and a sad tear, he at length rolled it into the waters, feet foremost. The dark blue deep received it—it sank at once—the water closed over it, till the angel's trumpet shall call it into life again.

The day closed, and James felt that before morning he also should be in eternity, and lamented that there was no one to put him into the deep to rest with his brother. He lay down, uneasy, and almost expended. He heard the murmurs of the waters around him sullen and cheerless. He closed his eyes praying for his mother. And then he dreamed. He was at home. The mountain stood near as before; the Ammonoosuck leaped and murmured as formerly. His mother was there. But the sun seemed to be in an eclipse; a gloom rested upon everything. Then there was a funeral—it was his brother's. They were carrying him to the little grave yard; but before they got there, there was another funeral. It was that of Laura Hill. Then the vision changed and he himself was to be buried in the coffin with his brother. He could feel that cold touch of the corpse; but he himself was alive, and knew that he was alive, while they were screwing down the coffin lid, and while they were filling up the grave.

How long he slept, James did not know. But when he was awakened, he perceived he was in a ship's cabin, with a man standing at the side of his berth, with kindness in his looks. He had been discovered, probably the next day, by a ship, and was taken off the raft as he supposed dead. But when it was found that he still breathed, the captain had him carried to his own berth, and had every possible attention paid to him. It was two or three days before he so far revived as to be able to communicate his story; and great indeed was the interest felt for him when it was discovered that [illegible] left in the forecastle of the White Dove, when she [illegible] above related. The ship which picked him up was outward bound, and hence all hope of his immediate return home, was cut off.

In the meantime the long boat, with the captain and crew of the White Dove, had safely reached New York; and uncommonly [illegible] the interest felt in the catastrophe. The story, [illegible] the White Mountains, and the widow learned from a sure messenger, even from a letter from the captain, that she was childless. When the letter came, the widow was alone. It had a black seal and she could not open it. She sent for Laura, the lily of the mountains, knowing that no one could weep with her as she could. They sat alone to read the letter. It was kind and feeling. It spoke in the highest terms of the character and conduct of the young men. The widow shed the most tears, but the countenance of Laura was deadly pale. She was always delicate; but now she looked uncommonly unwell. She spoke of him—his character—his prospects—the horrible death thus to die in the wreck, she wished they had even a lock of their hair. There is always something mysterious in women. We know that we see and know but little of what passes within. When man is greatly moved he rages, or groans, or finds ease in speaking out all he feels; and we are in constant fear that he will say too much. But when woman has the fountains of her soul moved, we only see the angel who troubles the waters. She feels but it is buried; and we mysteriously gaze, and wonder what is passing within.

The next Sabbath found Mrs. Howe in her pew. She desired, in a note through the minister, the sympathy and prayers of her neighbors and friends, in this day of her calamity. And when the man of God lifted up his voice to offer petitions in her behalf, his voice quivered—he faltered and stopped, and the congregation sobbed as if they were children.—Every mountaineer felt; and not accustomed to have their feelings excited, or to ge way to them, they had less command over themselves when once the floodgate of sympathy was opened. It was a place which might be called Bochim. All noticed that Laura Hill was not present; and no one wondered that she was not.

Nearly a year after this, Mrs. Howe, went to spend the afternoon at the bedside of Laura. She had been unwell for a long time That disease which is the destroying angel of this country—the consumption—had selected her as his victim. The widow often sat by her bed all day, or during the long hours of night She knew that she must die; but she was calm, patient, resigned and learned where to look for righteousness and salvation.—The book of God was never beyond her reach; and her sweet voice was often heard at midnight, singing the song of redeeming love. Sometimes at the earnest request of Mrs. Howe, who always rewarded her with tears, she would sing that exquisit song by Mrs Hemans—a song which, if well sung, can never fail to draw tears from the eyes of those who can enter into its meaning.

"Thou art come from the spirit land, thou bird,
Thou art come from the spirit land;
Through the dark pine groves let thy voice be heard,
And tell of the shadowy band.

We know that the bowers are green and fair,
In the light of that summer shore;
And we know that the friends we have lost are there—
They are there—and they weep no more.

But tell us, thou bird of the solemn strain,
Can those we have loved forget?
We call and they answer not again:
O say do they love us yet?

We call them through the silent night,
And they speak not from cave or hill;
We know, thou bird, that this land is bright,
But say, do they love us still?"

On Mrs. Howe's return to her cottage, at the close of the afternoon, she found a man sitting on the great flat stone used for a horse block—the very spot where her boys used to sit and play for hours He hardly looked up, but was evidently weeping. She went past him, and lo! two seamen's chests were in the door-yard. She turned back and the stranger rushed towards her, uttering the name of 'James.' A shriek which was echoed from the mountain side was her answer. Had the grave opened, and the sheeted dead come up to life, she could not have been more amazed; for she had supposed, without any shadow of possibility to the contrary, that her sons had been in the ocean's bed more than a year. I cannot tell what sobbings there were; what explanations; what amazement at the dealings of Providence. The news soon spread through the region; and before midnight, all her neighbors had come in to rejoice, to hear the story, to wonder and to weep with the widow and her son.

It was not till the visitors had gone, that the son and mother, left alone, were able to communicate their feelings to each other, on the subject of religion.—There can be no description that can convey the mother's feelings as she knelt in prayer that night, while her only remaining son poured out his heart in eloquence which showed that he must have been taught by the spirit of God.

In the morning James received a message to visit her who was near the tomb. This was one of his most [illegible] scenes. Every stone and every tree seemed to know him and speak to him of his brother. But to go to her whose heart was buried with him in the deep, deep ocean, and feed the flame which was consuming her, was indeed a trial. But he hastened to see her.

The curtain was drawn aside from the window, and all was still, as he entered the room. The once blooming beautiful girl now lay [illegible] white as the sheet which covered her She met him with astonishing calmness. They were then left alone He never described the conversation; but when the door was again opened, there lay on the bed the Bible which the boys carried away, opened to the place which John had penciled.—A shawl, mostly ruined by salt water, but still showing that it must once have been very beautiful, lay also on the bed; but a pocket-book was in her hand, while on her bosom lay a beautiful lock of hair. Some thought this interview would kill the poor girl, at once; but this is woman. She dies by inches. She was calm, and sweetly resigned after this, and seemed to look forward with more undivided attention and affection to the blessedness of heaven, after, than before the return of James.

My story is soon closed now. A few weeks after this poor Laura was carried to the grave Her sun went down in stillness, in brightness, and in glory, though it set in the morning. Her last breath was the breath of prayer, offered in a Saviour's name. James and his mother was allowed to walk among the chief mourners. And when a grave stone was erected, Sames insisted upon it, that by its side one should be erected to commemorate the woth and the fate of his brother The inscriptions said "they were lovely in their lives, and in their lives, and in their death were not divided."

Every word of the dying request of John was treasured up by James, and filled full to the letter. For many years he could hardly speak of him without tears; and he always said that his soul was led to God during the days connected with his shipwreck; and that the most solemn place, this side of eternity, is on a raft at sea, while kneeling in prayer over the corpse of a dear brother, just before burying him in the waves. And the widow used to say, that next to having two sons, that of having one like James, was the greatest blessing a mother's heart could know.

Original Poetry.

For the Tecumseh Herald.

The Song in the Roof-Tree of Home.

Over the dancing billows stealing,
Cometh mournful music chime,
From the lips of beauty welling,
In melody divine.
With gentle words 'tis woven,
And witching is its tone,
But 'tis with not much memories
As the song in childhood known,
As the robins song at twilight,
At the rosy flush of morn-light,
Or the golden gleaming sunlight,
In the roof-tree of home.

Clear and soft the notes were gushing,
From among the rustling leaves,
And the mystic breath came rippling,
Through the fragrant lilac trees;
And the distant warbling echo,
Rang a silvery cadence low,
When we listened to the mellow,
Thrilling song of long ago.
To the robins song at morning,
With love's radiance round us thrown,
Or in the early gleaming,
In the roof-tree of home.

O that melody is lingering,
Yet, among the waving leaves,
Its wordless sweetness blending,
With the wreath that memory weaves,
And a fairy gleam of glory,
Around my spirit plays,
When upon the fleet winged zephyr,
Floats the song of early days,
The song to which I listened,
When the lilacs, wept their bloom,
And with dew the rose- glistened,
Neath the roof-tree of home.

Audacious Robbery.

A most audacious robbery was committed at Guanabacoa the Tuesday before last. About dark in the preceding Monday evening, a Mexican gentleman, then resident at Guanabacoa, received a visit from a stranger, who upon entering said —"I am glad I have found you alone!" "Why, sir?" demanded the Mexican gentleman. "What is your name, and what is your business?" "I am the Asturiceno," the name of a noted robber, now in prison for his crimes, "and I want six ounces ($102) at once!" was the reply. "That is a small sum" rejoined the Mexican with a smile. "Had you not better have more?" "No!" said the stranger, "I require that amount to pay a debt; however, I will again visit you within twenty four hours, and then I shall require a larger amount!" Receiving the six ounces, he took his leave with all the ceremonious behavior customary among Spaniards. Next evening the Mexican gentlemen had some guests to whom he related the above event, but whom he could not induce to remain with him; they advising him to procure a file of soldiers for his protection, took their departure. The gentleman examined his revolver, and took his seat to await the coming of his promised visitor. He came within ten minutes, accompanied by six others, five of whom waited outside, while one came in with him. As he entered he said—"You see I keep my appointment. There are seven of us; resistance will be useless; be pleased to let me have what money you have in the house." The Mexican, seing the state of matters, went to the place where he kept his money and handed it over to the robbers $3,000 in gold, which was carried away between them; that evening the Mexican removed to the Havana. Many of us, who had intended to reside this summer at Guanabacoa, to enjoy the cool breezes and chalybeate baths there, have, in consequence of the above related event, "changed our mind."

Fiendish Murder.

The Sandusky Register of the 20th is furnished with the following account of a murder perpetrated in Townsend. The account says:

"It seems that one James James, a cousin of Isaac June, harbored an old grudge and against the latter, and having prepared himself for revenge by constructing an infernal machine with powder and some other material, and arming himself with a revolver and knife, called at June's house Tuesday morning at an early hour, saying as he came in, 'June I am in time to take breakfast with you.' He was invited to do so, and sat down to the table as coolly as if on a friendly visit—After the meal was done, and June's workmen had left, he rose and locked the door, putting the key in his pocket; and, drawing his revolver, said, 'June, I have come here to commit a murder, and am going to do it.' As he said this he presented and snapped his revolver, which missed fire. June then seized him, and a tremendous scuffle ensued between June, aided by his wife, and the miscreant; the latter by this time cutting right and left with a sharp knife. Mrs. J., perceiving that her husband was being cut piecemeal, quit her hold, bust through a panel of the door and shouted 'murder.' On the arrival of the neighbors aroused by her cries, it was found that the murderer had succeeded in disembowelling June, and had only failed of completing his diabolical purpose by his knife being broken off at the handle. James was secured, and on his examination before a Justice confessed his purpose freely, and said he 'only wanted June to die, and then he would die happy,' expressing no contrition whatever. He is now in jail at Fremont, awaiting his trial.

"P. S.—Since the above was put in type June has died."

Village Improvements.

It is of course, a source of congratulation that those constituting the inhabitants of any community or village, like our own, should be found possessed of one common purpose and sentiment with regard to the improvement of their place of residence. This is a matter in which all have a common interest, and which no one can successfully prosecute alone.

Tecumseh is we think particularly favored in this respect Unsurpassed by any village about us in the natural beauty of its location, no one seems disposed to shrink from doing his individual part in adding to its attractions by artificial improvement and ornament. A large amount of oak plank side-walk has been already laid the present season, and much more is in contemplation.

The Village Board still continue to make all the street crossings, wherever the owners of the lots petition for and build the side walks on any our public streets

The school Board, have this spring graded up the school ground, and ornamented it with evergreens and forest trees The principal streets are also mostly lined on each side with young forest trees.

Four new brick stores are now about to be erected on the burnt district on Chicago street.

In addition to these we have also as a village one further and common want—and that is a good brick building for a public hotel. We do not need a large one, but that we do need one no one will deny. We had hoped that a common appreciation of this want, would ere this lead to a combined effort to build one, and if it cannot otherwise be done, we hope a joint stock company of our citizens, will be formed, in which each shall take such share or shares as he shall be able, and even if the stock should not be worth full value, the increased value of individual property over the entire village would more than remunerate every property holder, for his share in the enterprise.

A CONVERTED JEWISH RABBI IN BOSTON TO LABOR AMONG THE JEWS.—Mr. Buns, assistant secretary of the Society Ameliorating the Condition of the Jews, was present at the business men's prayer meeting at the Old South Chapel to-day, and gave an account of his conversion to christianity. He had come to Boston to labor for a few years among the Jews of this city. He spoke of the powers of God's grace in his conversation, and said that, whilst he was disputing with a person upon the points at issue between God's people and Christian people, he assaulted his antagonist for saying something against Judaism, and then committed perjury by swearing that his antagonist assaulted him first. Notwithstanding this great sin, he was overtaken by God's grace, and had been led to find the Saviour. He spoke with great earnestness and with great feeling of those who were rejecting the Messiah, and asked the prayers of God's people that he might be assisted in undertaking to labor among the people in the city. In speaking the second time, he said that he had great hopes that Israel would soon be restored

In his official capacity, he had recently received a letter from England, giving an account of a meeting of Rabbis in that country to discuss the question whether Christ was the true Mersiah. They had agreed, if the Messiah did not come in fifteen years, to accept Christ as the true Messiah.—Boston Traveller.

A BOY RUNNING HIMSELF TO DEATH.—The Lockport Courier gives the particulars of the death of a young man, which occurred last week, under peculiar and sad circumstances. A young lad, son of widow Stevens, who lives on Chestnut street, one day week before last got into difficulty with a neighbor's boy, which resulted in his being threatened with arrest, which so frightened him that he ran himself to death. It is said that he ran from Lockport to Johnson's Creek, thirteen miles, without stopping; that he there slept in a barn and caught cold.—The next day he ran to Rochester, where he was taken sick, and died in a short time.

AUSTRALIAN HEAT.—The following is an extract from a private letter, dated Adelaide, Australia, Feb 11, 1858:

"I can assure you we have nearly been roasted alive; we have had ten days and nights of the hottest weather remembered for several years past. The heat at noon in the shade was 136 to 146 degrees, according to situation; and during the night it was never less than 94 to 104 degrees in doors. The hot wind never ceased blowing, and the innumerable deaths from coup de soleil have been appalling in the extreme."

A cool head is worth much.

Student's Column.

The Demands of the Present Age.

(Concluded.)

It is here that we want true independent men; men that will not quail before the storm. We want men whose pulestar is their countries greatest good. The great struggle is between right principles and selfish interests; and that the latter has often triumphed is evident from the condition of affairs at our halls of justice and legislation. The great principles of truth and justice are sacrificed at the shrine of Mammon. Money is the all-ruling power of the age. Men are bought and sold like cattle in the market. Here again we need a strong independent character. Amidst the shifting and changing scenes; in the breakings up and breakings down of men and things, the character needs reinforcing with all the auxiliaries of indomitable energy. We need the inspiring influence of large and elevated aims to be exerted upon our minds. An elevation of purpose acts potently upon the character to strengthen and enoble it

It was this elevation of purpose which prompted the pilgrim fathers to leave their homes upon the pleasant shores of England, to brave the dangers of an unknown sea, and plant themselves among the wilds of the western world, in order that they might escape the persecutions of the mother country. Farther on we see them pursuing the same steadfast course resisting the tyrannical acts of parliament and incurring the odious epithets of rebels and outlaws. The world knows the result of their course We see the freest and happiest people on earth inhabiting the place where two hundred years ago waved the mighty forest and roamed the savage Indian. We see rich fields of luxuriant grain proudly waving over the spot where but a few short years ago met the savage warriors in deadly array, and where was heard their horrid yell now rings the merry music of the woodman's axe, and screams the shrill whistle of the iron horse.

To day we find ourselves in the possession of a country vast in extent, embracing all the varieties of the most salubrious climes' and governed by laws 'world-wide renowned as giving the sanction of law to the precepts of reason.' We are subject to the capricious will of no hereditary despot. The ruling power is vested in the people themselves. Such being the case; we being sovereigns of the land, our institutions are depedent upon us for their character. It is in our power to mould them as we will. Their character will be good or bad in accordance with the sentiments which we maintain Our government is yet in its infancy Its principles are not as firmly established as to render its overthrow impossible. Even now is the holy ark of our libe ties liable at any moment to be dashed in fury upon the rocks that underlie the surface of the stream upon which we float. To maintain the true principles of our glorious republic requires men of sterling worth and unbending integrity. If we let them fall; if we suffer ourselves to fail in our great enterprise we seal the doom of Republicanism It has been said with much truth that we stand the latest and if we fail probably the last attempt at self government by the people. How great then the claims of the age upon us. How great the incentive to prompt and efficient action. The destinies of this vast country with its 30,000,000 of people are in our hands. Let us prepare ourselves for the high and important trust about to be committed to our charge, that we may transmit it unimpaired to succeeding generations.—Let us prepare ourselves to go forth upon life's troubled sea, and do honor to ourselves, to our country, and to our God.

☞ The bill reported by Mr. Morrill of Vt, from the committee on Agriculture, and by Mr. Walbridge, of our State from the Committee on Public Lands, donating, 30,000 acres of land for each Representative in Congress, and 60,000 acres for each Territory, for the purpose of Agricultural Education, passed the House by a vote of 103 to 101. The Slaveocracy of course voted against it The aggregate of the appropriation for which the bill provides may be 7½ millions of acres.

☞ "I see' said a young lady 'that some printers advertise blank declarations for sale. I wish I could get one' 'Why?' asked the mother, 'Because, ma, Mr. G is to modest to ask me to marry him, and perhaps if I could get a blank declaration and fill it out, he would sign it.'

☞ Henry Ward Beecher says that 'the Bible society is sending its Bibles all over the world—to Greenland and the Mores, to Arabia and Egypt but it dares not send them to our own people. The colporteur who should leave a Bible in a slave's cabin, would go to Heaven from the lowest limb of the first tree.

New York Correspondence.

New York, May 29th, 1858.

MR. EDITOR: Here I am this day of sunshine, out with the birds and buds and breezes in our glorious Central Park. One of the numerous 'tables of stone' therein abounding, affords an inditing place for my epistle to the people, and I am scarcely seated before a pair of connubial swallows alight on a swinging twig before me and begin to twit me with neglect of their haunts and homes. I understand them very plainly to say—'you're quite a stranger Sir!' and then after assuring me, in voluble swallow talk, how happy they are to make my acquaintance, they put on airs and flutter into cloud-land. Then a chorus of sweet voiced robins in the very tree over my head, with a blue bird perched upon an official flag staff in front of me for contralto and a neighboring marsh bullfrog for bass, extemporize a concert for me, and in compliment I suppose, to the press. I am honored with a free ticket of admission.

When nature and I go a visiting in this way I always take my work along, and your readers ought to be obliged to me for selecting the charmingest spot in nature to give shape and symmetry to whatever news I have to communicate. This Park is the aggregate of all our little door yards and house gardens, which our crowded streets won't permit in the city, contributed into one of magnificent dimensions It is laid out at present pretty much on wild nature's original plan for which, if I remember rightly, she did not receive a corporation prize of $2,000, but which nevertheless she carried out resolutely in spite of engineers, architects, committees or majorities; and I must confess, as she lies spread out before me, I like her wild waywardness and unstudied arrangement quite as well as I do the prospective perspective and art development which the science and industry of the Commission are to give her in the future:

Mayor Tiemann is doing wonders in making hard the way of the transgressor. Having "squelched" all the policy and ticket agencies he could lay his magisterial hand on here, he looked anxiously about him for new lotteries to conquer. He soon became convinced that the lotteries having their central offices in other states, though once legal have ceased to be so. Especially was this the case in Georgia. He therefore dispatched Serjent Briney, a confidential detective with letters and credentials to the Governor of Georgia to break up the lotteries of Swan & Co. and others He received the cordial co-operation of the Governor and law officers of Georgia and in almost no time all the parties there were arrested and requisitions were sent on for the agents here—among them Benjamin Wood, a brother of our late invincible Mayor Wood who was equal to anything except breaking up lotteries and his own oaths. The prompt co-operation of Georgia in this matter is worthy of all praise This [illegible] interjudicial comity is pleasant to see, especially in cases like this where untold sums, wrung by fraud from toiling and ignorant thousands, can be interposed to defeat the ends of justice. Our citizens and authorities I know will be happy to reciprocate in the same spirit whenever an occasion for it arises.

An indignation meeting of the minority of the Tract Society was held last Thursday evening in Dr Cheever's church, and high and mighty indignation it was too Dr. Cheever opened the first vial of wrath as set forth in the 13th chapter of Ezekiel, which contains one of those terrible denunciations with which the Bible abounds, against the oppresson, and those who 'esitate and palter and "daub with untempered mortar" and, armed with these sacred texts he uttered the most fearful philipic against the Tract Society that has very lately been pronounced against any sinner whether single or corporate. Cheever is endowed with the rarest gift of tongue, backed up by a battery of brain of thorough culture and immense power. His action is intense and rapid, and his vocal tones various as the musical octave; and there he stood, in his pulpit, the sublime personification of moral vengeance. He seemed one vast park of Bible artillery compressed in little, fulminating his denunciations and hurling his chain lightning with a certainity of aim and earnestness of purpose that drew forth thunders of answering applause His sentences are barbed arrows, inextricable where they strike, and he wrought up that vast audience to an ocean swell of indignation, which, though it may ebb some, it will flow more, till the powerful institution which is the object of attack shall 'remember the poor in his extremity' and no longer take the part of the oppressor against him. John Jay, Esq., Dr. Thompson, and especially Dr. Tyng took up the theme after Cheever, and the righteous anger of mighty men did not flag till the end.

Wandering down Broadway and wondering in that adamantine street, where most assuredly the grass don't grow, what interesting subject I could scare up for your agricultural readers, I dropped into the Farmer's Club, which meets every Monday at noon at the American Institute. I have had very little to do with a farm since I have lived, except one day to be born on one; and yet, green as I was, I became profoundly interested in what was said and done; as I am sure every farmer would be if a faithful transcript if the proceedings could be placed before him. The subject up for discussion was "flowers" and "small fruits." Mr. Pardee, an an enthusiastic devotee of floriculture, said a great many instructive and beautiful things about flowers, and asserted the prime essentials to a successful flower garden to be 1st. thorough drainage, no matter how dry the ground seemed to be; 2nd, fine compost manure, instead of the common stable article full of weed seeds and coarse substances; and 3d, through pulverization of the soil, so that one fourth of it might be fine as flour.—He proceeded to indicate the best variety of roses, dahlias, pinks, climbers, shrubs, flowers, &c., very much as I in my profession of letters would advise in the selection of a library. He modestly declined infallibility of taste, but showed the decided advantage of cultivating a few of the best varieties, rather than an indiscriminate mass of inferior and carelessly selected sorts.

Solon Robinson read a letter from a farmer in Maine, who was intensely bored and disgusted by his neighbors, because they would insist on his going to "rack and rain" by reason of no crops unless he planted according to the changes of the moon; and he appealed to the Club to know if there ever was anywhere in nature, science, or literature any foundation for the very common belief in the the influence of the moon in planting affairs. The Club made very merry over the subject, but declined to admit the moon to any jurisdiction. Mr. Robinson said he knew a man in western New York who never would lay a rail fence in the old of the moon, and he believed one farmer in five throughout the country, and more than half of them in some particularly darkened localities, went according to the mandates of the moon in the management of their farm affairs.

The topic then took a turn as to whether it was useful to add lime to ashes as a fertilizer, and Prof. Mapes gave a very interesting statement as to lime and its uses in connection with ashes As a direct food for plants he said there was lime enough already in good unleached ashes; but if it was intended to supply the lack of lime in the soil or decompose other substances, then ashes needed more lime than they naturally contain.

The west bank of the Hudson is getting into my sunlight, and I can write no more till next week.

MISAPPREHENSION CORRECTED.

The success which has attended the special treatment of affections of the Throat and Lungs, introduced by Dr. ROBT. HUNTER, of New York, whose practical writings on the Respiratory Organs, and the rational system of inhalation have been so recently published leads many persons to apply for "Agencies," as if 'inhilation' consisted of some 'particular nostrum.' Such a misapprehension is calculated grossly to mislead the public; and Dr. Hunter therefore feels it to be due to himself and to the practice of Inhilation with which his name and reputation are identified to state again, that "Inhalation," as advocated by him is a SYSTEM OF TREATMENT based on a correct knowledge of the condition of the patient, and cannot therefore be a subject for Agencies,

All persons desireing to consult or come under treatment, must apply, personally or by letter to him, or his associate, Dr. H. MELVILLE, when the fullest information regarding the treatment will be given, either to patients themselves or to physicians consulting on their cases without charge.

Those who are desirous of consulting may address either R. HUNTER, M. D., or Drs. HUNTER & MELVILLE, 628 Broadway, N Y.

A NOBLE CHARITY.—Mr. John W. Farmer publishes in the New York Tribune, an account of the operations of his free dining saloon during the severe winter, from which it appeared that he has given away in all no less than 220,893 meals of good, substantial, wholesome food, at a cost of 7 and 1-2 cents per meal, or an aggregate of $18,317. Making a fair allowance for his own labor and rent, the total cost of this generous enterprise was at least $20,000, all paid out of the pockets of a single mechanic of New York city, for the relief of human misery and the mitigation of the pangs of hunger.

The best feature of Mr. Farmer's report is the statement that 1,171 of his customers found work on his premises from employers who came hither to seek them.

A Western correspondent writes: "We have no rail road running into our village, but our people were last year moving in the matter. As our town is not yet 2 years old we have no grave yard yet laid out. A project for a branch road having been started a public meeting of citizens was called to promote the object. It was thought would save time to have the other matter attended to at the same time; and the notice was posted calling the citizens together 'to secure a branch railroad to the village, and also to take measures to promote the decent burial of the dead!' Some of our folks thought the latter to be a very natural result of the former, and both projects are now pressed with zeal'

☞ A few days since, a farmer, living near Galena, Ill., carried a load of potatoes to that place to sell. The best offer he could get was 10 cts., per bushel, and, rather than sell them at the rate, he tipped them into the Galena River. The result was he was out $14 for obstructing navigation. These facts do not speak very well for Galena, either as a market or port of entry. It is a poor market that will not give but 10 cents a bushel for potatoes, and a poor port that can be obstructed by a load of potatoes.—Chicago Enquirer.

The brig, J. A. Taylor, arrived to-day, was boarded in the harbor of Sagua, by a boat from Styx. The officer merely asked where she was from and bound, and looked at her papers.

There is a rumor about town that the British Minister has despatched a vessel from this port instructing the British Admiral on the West India station to abstain from interfering with American vessels until he receives further advices from his Government, but it is probable that this dispatch may have gone out Thursday in the Black Warrior.

Washington, May 30.

In addition to changes recently noted in the transaction of the great southern mails, an alteration is to take effect on the first of July, by which all mails from New York and Washington to all points below Washington will be greatly expedited. It is now anticipated that both through and way mails from the south will arrive here at 1 o'clock A. M. and 2 P. M., instead of at 5 A. M. and 3 P. M., as at present. The Baltimore & Ohio R. R. Co., are about making further important changes, in their lines to facilitate the transportation of the mails both from Washington to the West and via the Washington and Jamestown to the West. By these arrangements the passengers and mails leaving here in the morning will reach Cincinnati before noon next day, and two other trains one in the P. M. and another in the evening will make still prompter mail connections, arriving at Cincinnati in 28 and St. Louis in 44 hours.

From the New York Herald

Great Railroad Fraud—Arrest of a Prominent Financier.

For several weeks past some of the leading bankers and merchants of this city, aided by eminent counsel, have been probing a terrible charge of fraud in connection with the Chicago, Alton and St Louis Railroad Company, by which the stockholders, bondholders and creditors generally of that institution, as well as several New England banks and New York merchants, were sufferers to the amount of millions of dollars. A short time since affidavits were sworn before Judge Russell by Mr. Samuel M. Blatchford, Stewart Brown, Seabury Brewster, and Charl Gould, charging Henry Dwight, Hon. Hotchkiss, and Hamilton Spencer, directors and chief managers of the railroad company, with swindling, embezzlement, and sundry other grave offences. Six warrants were issued against Mr. Dwight, on two seperate charges of perjury—one for fraudulent issue of concealed bonds, another for embezzlement, and another for conspiracy. A warrant was issued at the same time for the arrest of Hotchkiss and Spencer on a charge of conspiracy to defraud the creditors of the company.

Mr. Dwight was arrested yesterday, and brought into court before Judge Russell, and is now in custody awaiting an examination. This will be found to be the most enormous and startling charge of fraud yet brought to light in this country.

SALE OF SWAMP LANDS.—We are authorized by the Commissioner of the State Land Office, to state that the sale of Swamp Lands for the whole State will take place at Lansing. The great inconvenience of selling in each county, under the construction given to the law by the Attorney General, makes this course imperitively necessary. We are not officially informed of the time when the sale will take place, but think it will be during the month of July. By this arrangement of selling all at the capital of the State, there will be a saving of at least $15,000, and probably more, in the expenses of the sales.

INTRIGUE OF SANTA ANNA.—Two agents of Santa Anna were recently arrested at Tampico, on whom were found papers showing that they were empowered to procure, from the Captain General of Cuba, two thousand men to aid Santa Anna in Mexico, to bribe Vidaurri, and gain over Zuloaga to the Santanista interest. There was also a document showing that the ex Dictator has an agent in Madrid to induce Spain to declare war against Mexico. Three other emissaries, who had been sent by the reactionists of San Luis to assassinate Vidaurri, Garza and Zayas, have been captured, and, having confessed their criminal intent, two were executed, and the third sent to Vidaurri.

MAN OVER NIAGARA FALLS.—The Rochester Union, learns that a man went over the Falls of Niagara on Wednesday He came from the Canada side at Chippewa in a sail boat nearly to the American shore, and was in the act of returning when he went into the rapids. It was thought by those who saw him from the shore that he was imprudent in his management of the boat, and depended upon his sail long after he should have taken it down and resorted to his oars to save himself. It is said the boat was actually in the rapids before sail was lowered, and then it was too late. Who the man was is not known on the American side. Boat and man were lost sight of long before they reached the great fall.

CHOICE LOT OF

FAMILY GROCERIES

At Union Hall

AGRICULTURAL.

To Raise Potatoes.—A correspondent of the Prairie Farmer states that having noticed how potatoes were interrupted in their growth, and invariably pined away and died if disturbed and bruised when when wet with dew or rain he selected a patch of a potatoe field, the whole of which was good soil and in good order to try an experiment. This patch he plowed deep, and then loosened the soil with the hoe when the vines were above ground, and in the heat of the day, when they were perfectly dry. He never touched them afterward until they were dug in October last year. These vines kept green throughout the season, and the yield of potatoes was very large. The other portion of this same potatoe field was purposely worked three times, when the vines were wet with dew. Those blighted early did not produce half a crop, and the potatoes were of a very inferior quality. The ground, seed and time of planting in both patches were the same.

At this season of the year the foregoing may be very useful information to many of our farmers, who do not generally pay the least attention in cultivating their potatoes, as to whether they are wet or dry.

Glass Milk Pans.—A farmer down in Akron, Ohio, has been experimenting with milk in glass pans. He says: I took the milk of the same cow, milked at the same time, and divided it equally, putting half in the glass pan, and half in tin pan placing them side by side. In the first 24 hours were 2 thunder showers, and at the end of that time, the milk in the tin pan was sour, that in the glass was sweet and good. At the end of 12 hours more that in the tin was thick clabber, and that in the glass began to turn. From this I believe glass pans will preserve milk 1-3 longer than tin pans.

Planting Potatoes.—As early planting time will soon be along, I will state for the benefit of those interested, that so far as I know or have heard, there was no case of the crop being injured materially by the rot where planted very early and well hilled up, either by the plow or hoe.

One of my neighbors lost almost his entire crop, planted about the first of June and cultivated so as to leave the ground flat; the ground was sod. Another planted on the same kind of ground, early, cultivated with a shovel plow; and none rotted except an occasional hill where not hilled up.—Mine were planted on wheat stubble part of the ground heavily manured, planted in April, used both cultivator and shovel plow; the rows were so close one way that one furrow of the shovel plow in a row covered nearly all the ground; by going through the narrow way last with the shovel plow it left the hills in the ridge; the hoe not used at all; got a fair crop, and no signs of rot except an occasional hill where we turned at the south end near the fence, but in all not a half a bushel on two acres. Will those who have noticed anything of the kind in other places, or the reverse, communicate to the Farmer for the benefit of a Tyro.

Depth for Planting Corn.—If corn is planted three inches deep it will come up and grow thrifty for a while, until it is three or 4 inches high; then it will stand 10 days or the roots night. If now we see of this check to ascertain the growth of the corn, we will upon that a joint has formed about an inch and a above the kernel from which new roots have sprouted, and that the roots first formed below the kernel have rotted. While the process of changing roots is going on, the plant ceases to grow perceptibly above ground. The stalk and ears flourish as well after this change, as corn planted shallower, but there is a loss of about a fortnight in the growth and maturity of the plant.—The lesson to be derived from this fact is, obviously, that to have early corn, it must be planted more than an inch and a half deep.—American Agriculturist.

Lemon Pie.—One quart milk, six eggs, two lemons, grated, rind and juice, two table spoonsful of pounded cracker, two cups of sugar. The milk should be mixed with the other ingredients just before baking.

'Keep your dog away from me,' said dandy to a butcher boy. "Darn the dog," replied the boy, 'he's always after puppies.'

Probate Notice

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee, ss. At a session of the Probate Court for the County of Lenawee holden at the City of Adrian on Friday the sixteenth day of April, in the year one thousand eight hundred and fifty-eight.

Present, Fernando C. Beaman Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the Estate of Christian Demuth, deceased. On reading and filing the Petition, duly verified, of Benjamin Demuth administrator on the estate of said deceased, praying for license to sell the real estate of said deceased, for reasons therein set forth.

Thereupon it is ordered, That Monday, the thirty-first day of May next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon be assigned for the hearing of said Petition, and that the heirs-at-law of said deceased, and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said court, then to be holden at the Probate Office, in the City of Adrian, and show cause if any there be why the prayer of the Petitioner should not be granted.

And it is further ordered, That said Petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate, of the pendency of said petition and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the Tecumseh Herald, a newspaper printed and circulating in said County of Lenawee for four successive weeks previous to said day of hearing.

DO YOU EVER
WANT ANY THING
FROM NEW YORK?
IF SO, SEND YOUR ORDER TO

F. S. CABOT & CO.,

BUYERS, 85 BARCLAY STREET.

Almost every one, certainly every merchant, has sometimes very strongly wished that he had a reliable correspondent and friend living in this great metropolis to whom he could send for the transaction of some business or the purchase of some article that he could not make it convenient to go to the city to do, or to buy himself with full confidence that the business would be well done, and at a reasonable expense to him. Having become satisfied by a considerably extended observation and experience that this is an almost universal want, we have established our house to supply it. We have found that thousands of persons from Maine to Georgia are constantly sending to us to execute orders, involving purchases varying in amount from 25 cents to as many hundred dollars, and we believe in every case, those employing us have been satisfied both with the quality of the articles rendered and the equity of our charges. We mean that our charges, shall in all cases be fair and reasonable, being predicated on the time and labor consumed. It is certain, that being constantly in the market, buying largely for cash, we can buy better than any single purchaser can. In fact, we save to our friends much more in prices than the commission we charge. No man who only occasionally comes here can be familiar with a market so extensive as this. We being here all the time, are thoroughly acquainted with it, and know where to go to find everything in first hands and at the lowest rates. We have found that many of our distant friends wish to send us country produce to sell, sometimes the proceeds to be invested in goods sometimes in money. Accordingly we have made the very best arrangements to enable us to do justice to those who may consign to us. Our charges for selling are a usually five per cent, although in special cases where large or very small transactions equity might require it to be varied from that. We have a circular giving more at length the scope and plan of our business with statement of our charges for buying sometimes the leading articles, which will be sent on application.

HOWARD ASSOCIATION

PHILADELPHIA.

A Benevolent Institution, established by special endowment for the relief of the sick and distressed, afflicted with Virulent and Epidemic diseases.

THE HOWARD ASSOCIATION, in view of the awful destruction of human life, caused by Sexual diseases, and the deceptions practised upon the unfortunate victims of such diseases by Quacks, several years ago directed their Consulting Surgeon, as a CHARITABLE ACT worthy of their name, to open a Dispensary for the treatment of, and to give MEDICAL ADVICE in all their forms, and to give MEDICAL ADVICE GRATIS to all who apply, by letter, with a description of their condition (age, occupation, habits of life, &c.) and in cases of extreme poverty, to FURNISH MEDICINES FREE OF CHARGE. It is needless to add that the Associat on commands the highest Medical skill of the age and will furnish the most approved modern treatment.

The directors of the Association in their Annual Report upon the treatment of Sexual Diseases, for the year ending January 1st, 1858, express the highest satisfaction with the success which has attended the labors of the Consulting Surgeon in the cure of Spermatorrhœa, Seminal Weakness, Impotence, Gonorrhœa, Gleet, Syphilis, the vice of Onanism or Self abuse, &c, and order a continuance of the same plan for the ensuing year.

The Directors on a review of the past feel assured that their labors in this sphere of benevolent effort have been of great benefit to the afflicted, especially to the young, and they have resolved to devote themselves with renewed zeal, to this very important and much despised cause.

An admirable Report on Spermatorrhœa, or Seminal Weakness the vice of Onanism, Masturbation, or Self abuse, and other diseases of the sexual organs, by the Consulting Surgeon will be sent by mail (in a sealed envelope) FREE OF CHARGE, on receipt of TWO STAMPS for postage. Other Reports and Tracts on the nature and treatment of sexual diseases, diet, &c. are constantly being published for gratuitous distribution and will be sent to the afflicted. Some of the new remedies and methods of treatment discovered during the last year, are of great value.

Bragg's Arctic Liniment.

This uncomparable Liniment upon which the great mass of afflicted of all lands now rely for relief from the pangs of Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Gout, Erysipelas Cancer, Scrofula, Sprains, Bruises, Burns, Scalds and all cutaneous diseases, is rapidly superceding all similar preparations. The proprietors give for the encouragement of sufferers, the following memorandum of a few of the wonderful cures effected by it during the past few months. Certificates from the parties named are in the possession of the proprietors; their length precludes the publication of all but a few.

One Bottle Triumphant.

Mrs. Moffitt, No 345 Morgan Street, St. Louis, having suffered for three years with Rheumatism, and tried many preparations without effect, was cured by one fifty cent bottle of Arctic Liniment.

Pity the Little Children.

A little daughter of Mrs. Lee, residing on Lake St. Chicago was scalled all over by the upsetting of a kittle of boiling water. The Arctic Liniment was applied according to directions, and the fire was instantly extracted, and in a few days the little sufferer was well.

Restored to Beauty.

Mrs George K. Fuller, Canalstreet, N Orleans had long suffered from a painful and disfiguring eruption on the face and by the use of one bottle of the Liniment was cured, and restored to her original beauty.

A Horrible Tumor.

Eugene Mallory Natchez was three years the victim of a horrible tumor on the neck which resisted all remedies until he tried the Arctic Liniment. Three bottles cured him in a few weeks.

Wonderful Cure!

Mrs Bedford, Mobile, was confined to her couch for three years with rheumatism and after being in despair from the failure of all other remidies, was cured by the Arctic Liniment, in a little over a month.

An Explosion.

Memphis, Tenn. Nov., 26th. 1857

I hereby certify, that having been badly bruised and scalded by the explosion of a Steam Boiler, a friend induced me to try Bragg's Arctic Liniment. The smart was instantly extracted from the scalds and in a very short time all the pain was gone from the bruises—In two weeks I was well, and able to resume my business.

The Blind see!

Webster City, Iowa, Nov 9th 1857.

Dr. A. G. Bragg.—Dear Sir: For more than three years I had been afflicted with inflamed eyes, in an aggravated degree and tried various remedies, and several gentlemen told me to go before the druises—In two weeks I was well, and able to resume my business.

The Blind see!

Webster City, Iowa, Nov 9th 1857.

Dr. A. G. Bragg.—Dear Sir: For more than three years I had been afflicted with inflamed eyes, in an aggravated degree and tried various remedies, and several gentlemen told me to go before the druises—In two weeks I was well, and able to resume my business. My little daughter was afflicted in the same manner for the same time, and during a portion of the time was entirely blind in one eye. I applied your valuable Liniment, and her eyes are perfectly sound. Thus have I with one two-bit bottle cured my daughter and my own besides curing the rheumatism in my back. I would not be without your invaluable remedy in my house Yours Truly Wm RUSSELL.

Webster City, Iowa, Nov. 9th. 1857.

I hereby certify, that I am well acquainted with Wm Russell, and with the astonishing cures he mentions, and know his statement to be strictly true.

Good for Animals.

This invaluable Liniment is also equally effectious in curing the diseases of animals as witness the following certificate; Messrs J. & A. Arnot, and Lyons Arnot & Co., keep the two largest livery stables in the and are generally known throughout the U. S.

St. Louis, March 1st, 1858.

We, the undersigned, have for a number of months, cheerfully testified to the superior efficiency in curing the diseases of Horses as well are we entisfied of the Arctic being the best Liniment made, that we would use no other. We keep and have kept for a number of years, extensive livery stables in this city, and consequently our experience about horses and their diseases is great, for we unhesitatingly say, that the Aictic Liniment, We only one we have ever found ... keepers and cordially recommend it to all livery others having the care of horses. & A. DR ROBACK'S

BLOOD PURIFIER AND BLOOD PILLS.

DISEASE VANQUISHED.

BY

Dr. Roback's Scandinavian Remedies.

AFTER YEARS OF STUDY AND EXPERIMENT A Dr. Roback, the eminent Swedish Physician, succeeded in producing a medicine from twenty-three different species of mountain herbs of his native land, which acts directly upon the causes of disease in the blood, and by restoring the corrupted fountain of life, to a condition of health and purity, expels disease from the system, wherever it may be located, or whatever may be its character. Indigestion, nervous complaints, epileptic fits, coughs, consumption in its early stages, sore throat, bronchitis, fever and ague, asthma, low spirits, sexual incapacity, feminine weakness, pricking of the skin, symptomatic of paralysis, rheumatism, neuralgia, tumor, cancer, diabetis, lassitude and debility diarrhea, and all other disorders of the organs of respiration, the liver, the kidneys, the stomach, the nerves, or the muscular fiber, are unerringly cured by this preparation. It is to the materies morbi or seeds of disease what an athali is to an acid: it neutralizes them with absolute certainty, while at the same time it vegetates the secretions, removes obstructions from the bowels, creates appetite, renews bodily vigor and regenerates every animal function. Such is the nature, such are the effects of Dr. Roback's famous Scandinavian Blood Purifier, which if taken in conjunction with his Scandinavian Blood Pills, will not only obliterate the most painful disease, but prevent their recurrence, and lengthen life beyond the ordinary span.

In the SCANDINAVIAN VEGETABLE BLOOD PILLS, Dr. Roback presents the result of twenty years of experience, hard study and experiment as to what a perfect pill should be. No one can doubt their superiority after one single trial. Price of the Scandinavian Blood Purifier, $1 per bottle, or $5 per half-dozen; Scandinavian Blood Pills, 25 cents per box, or five for $1.

Penn. Miami Co. Ind., Aug. 4. 1857.

Dr. C. W. Roback: I have received so much benefit from your scandinavian Blood Purifier and Blood Pills, that I have thought it my duty and it is no less my inclination to give you a plain statement of my case. I was for years afflicted with that bane of all comfort, and efficiency in business dyspepsia. To recapitulate all the so-called remedies which I have used to rid myself of this disease, would indeed make a melancholy catalogue. I also consulted with the best physicians I could hear of. I was induced to try your remedies through the persuasions of a friend, and after using them a few days was greatly benefitted, and in a short time, less than a month, I was entirely and permanently cured. I was also afflicted with the most violent nervous headache, which I suppose was occasioned by my disordered stomach for when my dispepsia left me, my headache left with it. I now feel better in every respect than I have for ten years.

Very truly yours, JOHN S. DEMUTH.

From the Rev. Mr. McMullen, Pastor of Roberts Chapel:

Indianapolis, Oct. 5. 1857.

Dr. C. W. Roback—Dear Sir: I have used your Blood Purifier for a nervous affection, from which I have suffered much at times. While it is pleasant to the taste, it certainly has a happy effect upon the nerves. Please accept my thanks for your kind regards and acts and believe me,

Yours, J. W. T. McMULLEN.

FROM A WELL-KNOWN STEAMBOAT CLERK.

Louisville, June 4. 1857

Dear Doctor: Send me half a dozen boxes of your Pills, care of H. G. Curd & Co. as I can get them best here. Still we are not quite convinced me that a twenty-five cent box of Pills could have relieved my obstinate chronic constipation with its attending evils. I told you so when I bought them, but I am bound to own that your Pills 'fill the contract.' Why, I have taken as many as six (6) of ——'s and other makers' sometimes without effect and sometimes with too much effect; but I have no trouble with yours—they are just what I want.

Cincinnati, Friday Sept. 4, 1857.

Dr. Roback—Dear Sir: Having been afflicted with neuralgia or rheumatism for the past year and a half, and having seen your medicine called the Scandinavian Blood Purifier highly recommended by gentlemen with whom I am acquainted, I was induced to try it, but not before I had used various other medicines—But after using two bottles I felt its effect very sensibly, and upon using two more I found myself perfectly cured. You will allow me therefore to congratulate you upon making a discovery in medicine which is proving itself to be a worker of such wonders in the diseases of the human family.

Indianapolis, Wednesday Sept. 2 1857

Dr. C. W. Roback. Dear Sir: Having been troubled for several years with a torpid liver debility and weakness, so much so that I was unable to attend to my ordinary business at times, and having heard of the wonderful cures that your Scandinavian Blood Purifier and Pills were effecting I was induced by a friend to try them. I have been using the Purifier for the last 2 Tecumseh months, and find the medicine fully answering my expectations. I am able to attend to my advanced age of business with 70 years.

Yours truly, JAMES T HORNE.

Having myself given this information for the benefit of my fellow citizens similarly affected.

AN ENGLISH LADY, Widow of the late Archibald Fitzgibbon, Professor of Chemistry, having decided upon making America her future home, is induced from the most generous motives to give to all who may require it, a Receipe (discovered by her husband, and now in her possession only) for making a preparation for Restoring Hair to Bald Persons, changing it to its Original Color, if it has become Grey, and preventing it from falling out. The preparation can be made at a very small cost. Persons sending for the Receipe should enclose five postage stamps, (Fifteen Cents,) to pay return postage, and printing. Mrs Fitzgibbon desires that all correspondence to be carried on with her son, who will devote as much of his time as the carrying out of his mother's wishes will require. Address, Livingston's South Africa.

Missionary Travels and Researches in South Africa, by David Livingstone L. L. D, D C. L, with portrait and numerous illustrations, New York, Harper & Brothers, Franklin Square, 1858.

The excellent character of this work and the well deserved reputation it so soon established in the minds of the public, both in Europe and America, is too well known to require a notice in our columns at this late day, but to those of our readers who have not as yet seen the work, we think, a short review (we do not mean a criticism,) will be found interesting. Dr. Livingston's style as a writer, is clear, simple and unaffected, it is entirely free from anything of the laborious, deep and learned character that we too often find in a work of the kind, entirely unfitting it for general reading, confining its circulation to a certain few, who make it their business to "read up" works of this description. He has written for the people. His work is scientific, historical and geographical, but in every point clear and comprehensive. He has laid open to our view a portion of Africa, of which we have been sadly ignorant, he has found a people whom our geographies have taught us to beleive cannibals and barbarians of the darkest hue, entirely beyond the pale of civilization—to be a teachable, tractable race, he has pentrated with a fearless and courageous heart, into the interior of the country where the foot of a white man never before, trod, and discovered a people of whose existence we have been almost unaware, and of whose character as human beings entirely He has there preached to them the gospel of Christ and Him crucified, sowing the seeds of righteousness and redemption, in a soil as yet entirely unbroken, and which required much patient and anxious labor, and unceasing perseverance before the first fruits of the harvest could be gathered into the hand of the husband man—

The work commences by the author's giving a brief and modest sketch of his life, up to the time of entering upon his missionary labors, referring briefly to his Highland ancestors, his parents and his early home.

His parents were in humble circumstances; he says of his father:—'though too conscientious ever to become rich as a small tea dealer, by his kindness of manner and winning ways, he made the heart strings of his children twine around him as firmly as if he had possessed, and could have bestowed upon them every worldly advantage.

At the age of ten he was put into a factory to aid in supporting himself; at this time his taste for study and reading was very strong with a portion of his first earnings, he purchased a Latin grammar and reader, this study he pursued with diligence for many years. All works of a scientific character, and 'books of travel' were read with avidity whenever they could be obtained. At the age of sixteen he became an earnest follower of Christ and resolved to 'devote his life to the alleviation of human misery,' in the manner he has so faithfully persevered in — He thought that as a medical missionary, he could accomplish more good, so he devoted his spare time and his earnings, to the study of medicine In his nineteenth year, he attended medical and Greek classes in Glasgow in winter,' and the divinity lectures of Dr. Wardlaw in summer. After years of study was admitted a 'Licentiate of Faculty of Pypsicians and Surgeons.' His project had been to make China his post of labor, but the opium war which was raging at that time, prevented his doing so, and a new field having been opened in Africa he resolved to go there instead. In 1840 he embarked for that country, and after a voyage of three months he reached Cape Town, from there he went directly into the interior of the country and for upward of sixteen years, labored zealously in the cause of the Redeemer.

We will now proceed to give a few interesting extracts from the work, we take them at random, as they struck our fancy and attention while reading, we marked them, and now place them a manner most convenient to our space.

AN ADVENTURE WITH A LION.

This adventure occurred in 1843, while Dr L., was stopping at a village called Mabotsa. The inhabitants were much anoyed by a troup of Lions which infested the neighborhood, often entering the village and carrying off cattle. Being a timid people, they had not taken any active measures to rid themselves of the troublesome animals.

On the Doctor's arrival, he kindly volunteered to assist them He says:

'It is well known, that if one of a troop of Lions is killed, the others take the hint, and leave that part of the country. So the next time the herds were attacked, I went with the people in order to encourage them to rid themselves of the annoyance, by destroying one of the marauders. We found the lions on a small hill, about a quarter of a mile in length, and covered with trees. A circle of men were formed around it, and they gradually closed up, ascending pretty near to each other. Being on the plain with a native schoolmaster named Mebalwe, a most excellent man. I saw one of the lions sitting on a piece of rock, within the the now closed circle of men, Mebalwe fired at him before I could, and the ball struck the rock upon which the animal was sitting. He bit at the spot struck, as a dog does at a stick or a stone thrown at him; then leaping away, broke through the opening circle and escaped unhurt.

* * * * Seeing we could not get them to kill one of the lions, we bent our footsteps towards the village; in going round the end of the hill, however, I saw one of the beasts sitting on a piece of rock as before, but this time he had a little bush in front. Being about thirty yards, I took a good aim at his body through the bush, and fired both barrels into it. The man then called out; 'He is shot, he is shot!" others cried, 'He has been shot by another man, too; let us go to him!' I did not see any one else shoot at him; but I saw the lions tail erected in anger, behind the bush, and turning to the people, said: 'stop a little till I load again." When in the act of ramming down the bullets, I heard a shout. Starting and looking half round, I saw the lion just in the act of springing upon me. I was upon a little height; he caught my shoulder and we both came to the ground below, together. Growling horribly close to my ear, he shook me as a terrior dog does a rat. The shock produced a stupor, similar to that which seems to be felt by a mouse, after the first shake of the cat. It caused a sort of dreaminess, in which there was no sense of pain, nor feeling of terror, though quite concious of all that was hapening — I was like what patients, partially under the influnce of chloroform describe, who see all the operation, but feel not the knife. The shock annihilated fear, and allowed no sense of horror in looking round at the beast. This peculiar state, is probably produced in all animals, killed by the carnivora; and if so, it is a merciful provision by our benevolent Creator, for lessening the pain of death.

Turning round to relieve myself of the weight, as he had one paw on the back of my head, I saw his eyes directed to Mebalwe, who was trying to shoot him, at the distance of ten or fifteen yards. His gun, a flint one, missed fire in both barrels; the lion immediately left me, and, attacking Mebalwe; bit his thigh. Another man whose life I had before saved after he had been tossed by a bufialo, attempted to spear the lion while he was biting Mebalwe.

He left Mebalwe and caught this man by the shoulder, but at that moment the bullets he had received took effect, and he fell down dead. * * * *

Besides crushing the bone into splinters, he left eleven teeth wounds on the upper part of my arm.'

DRESS OF THE NATIVES.

'The Griquas and Bechuanas were in former times clad much like the Caffres, if such a word may be used where there is scarcely any clothing at all. A bunch of leather strings, about eighteen inches long, hung from the ladies waists in front, and a prepared skin of a sheep or antelope, covered the shoulders, leaving the breast and abdomen bare. The men wore a patch of skin about the size of the crown of one's hat, which barely served for the purposes of decency, and a mantle exactly like that of the women. To assist in protecting the pores of the skin from the influence of the sun by day, and the cold by night, all smeared themselves with a mixture of fat and ocra; the head was anointed with pounded blue mica schist, mixed with fat; and the fine particle of shining mica, falling over the body and on strings of beads and brass rings, were considered as highly ornamental and fit for the most fastidious dandy. Now these same people came to church in decent though poor clothing, and behave with a decorum certainly superior to what seems to have been the case in time of Mr. Samuel Pepys in London.'

A MAIDEN'S CHOICE.

* * * * In these cases of marriage the consent of the young woman is seldom asked. A maid servant of Sekeletu, however, pronounced by the Makalolo as handsome, was at that time sought in marriage by five young men. Sekeletu happening to be at my wagon when one of the lovers preferred his suit, coolly ordered all five to stand in a row before the young woman, that she might make her choice. Two refused to stand, apparently because they could not brook the idea of a refusal although willing enough to take her if Sekeletu had acceded to their petition, without reference to her will. Three dandified fellows stood forth, and she unhestatingly decided on taking one who was really the best looking. It was amusing to see the mortification exhibited on the black faces of the unsuccessful candidates, while the spectators greeted them with a hearty laugh.'

PECULIARITIES OF THE NATIVES RESIDING ON AND ALONG THE SHORE OF THE RIVER TAMBA.

* * * * 'They file o a point which makes the o woman frightful, as it remind the grin of an aligator. The tants throughout this country exhibited as great a variety of taste as appears on the surface of society among ourselves Many of the men are dandies; their shoulders are always wet with the oil dropping from their lubricated hair, and everything about them is ornamented in one way or another. Some thrum a musical instrument the live-long day, and when they awake at night, proceed at once to their musical performance. Many of these musicians are too poor to have iron keys to their instruments, but make them of bamboo, and persevere, though no one hear the music but themselves Others try to appear war-like by never going out of their huts, except with a load of bows and arrows, or a gun, ornamented with a strip of hide for every animal they have shot; and others never go anywhere without a canary in a cage. Ladies may be seen carefully attending little lap dogs which are intended to be eaten. Their villages are generally in forests, and composed of groups of irregularly planted brown huts, with banana and cotton trees growing around There is also at every but a high stage erected for drying manioc roots and meal, and elevated cages to hold domestic fowls Round baskets are laid on the thach of the huts for the hens to lay in, and on the arrival of strangers, man, women and children ply their calling as hucksters, with a great deal of noisy haggling; all their transactions are conducted with civil banter and good temper."

THE OSTRICH—HIS SPEED.

'When the ostrich is feeding his pace is from twenty to twenty two inches, when walking; but not feeding, it is twenty-six inches; and when terrified, it is from eleven and a half to thirteen, and even fourteen feet in length Only in one case was I at all satisfied of being able to count the rate of speed by a stop-watch, and, if I am not mistaken, there were thirty in ten seconds; generally one's eye can no more follow the legs than it can the spokes of a carriage-wheel in rapid motion. If we take the above number, and twelve feet stride as the average pace, we have a speed of twenty-six miles an hour. It can not be very much above that, and it is therefore slower than a Railway locomotive.

TRUE HOSPITALITY.—Many a wife might read the following paragraph from Emerson, and be wiser and happier therefor:

'Oh, excellent wife! encumber not yourself to get a curious rich dinner for this man or woman who has alighted at your gate, nor a bed-chamber made at too great cost. These things, if they are curious in them, they can get for a few shillings in any village, but rather let the stranger see, if he will, in your looks accent, and behavior, your heart and earnestness, your thought and will, which he cannot buy for any price in the city, and for which he may well travel twenty miles, and dine sparingly, and sleep little, to behold. Let not the emphasis of hospitality lie in bed and board, but let truth, and love, and honor, and curiosity, flow in all that you do.'

☞ Papa, why don't they give the telegraph wires a dose of gin?'

'Why, my child?'

'Because the papers say they are out of order, and mother always takes gin when she is out of order.'

A JEWEL OF A GIRL.—One of our exchanges speaks of a beautiful girl who would prove a capital speculation for a fortune hunter of the right sort. Her voice is of silver, her hair of gold, her teeth of pearl, her cheeks of rubies, and her eyes of diamonds.

THE SLAVE MART.

Going! going! gone!
Who bids for the mother's care,
Who bids for the blue eyed girl?
Her skin is fair, and her soft brown hair
Is guiltless of a curl.

The mother clasped her babe
With an arm that love made strong;
She heaved no sigh—but her burning eye
Told of her spirit's wrong.

She gazed on the heartless crowd,
But no pitying glance she saw,
For the crushing woe, her soul must know
Was sanctioned by the law.

Going! gentlemen! going!
The child is worth your bids,
Here's a bargain to be sold;
This chubby thing will one day bring
A yellow pile of gold.

"A dollar a pound," cries a voice,
Hoarsely from out of the throng;
Two, three, five, it calls, and the hammer falls:
"Five dollars gentlemen, gone!"

Five dollars a pound—and his hand,
Just stretched to grasp the child,
Is smitten aside by the giant might
Of a maniac mother, wild.

One moment, and the loaded whip
Is poised above her head,
Then down it comes on her helpless frame,
Like a crushing weight of lead.

With a tightened grasp on her kidnapped child,
She falls to the cold damp ground,
The baby was laid on the scales and weighed,
And sold for five dollars a pound.

And the eye of the sun looks down
Undimmed on such scenes of sin,
And the freeman's tongue must be chained and dumb,
Though his spirit burn within.

Oh God, for a million of tongues,
To thunder Freedom's name,
And to utter a cry which should pierce the sky,
The indignant cry of shame!

Our eagle's talons are red
With the reeking blood of the slave
And he kindly flings his protecting wings
O'er the sight of Freedom's grave.

How long, O Lord, how long!
Awake in thy mercy and might,
But hasten the day which shall open the way
To Truth, and Justice and Right.

SHADOWS.

O the shadows—the beautiful shadows,
Floating far o'er the hills away;
As over the sky
The light clouds fly
So o'er the mountains wander they.

O the shadows—the beautiful shadows,
Sleeping soft on the meadows green;
Fair are the flowers
In sunbright bowers
But fairer the flowers these shadows between.

O the shadows—the beautiful shadows,
Dancing light on the ocean's spray;
Changing each wave
From gay to grave,
Like the frowning smiles of the child at play!

O the shadows—the beautiful shadows,
Sinking deep in the moonlit lake;
Where the mountains seem
As if viewed in a dream,
And a world of fairer beauty made!

O the shadows—the beautiful shadows,
In the world without and the world within;
For joy may borrow
A charm from sorrow,
And charity smiles on repentant sin!

O the shadows—the beautiful shadows,
Falling soft on the dazzled vision,
When the tender thought
By memory brought,
Tempers the glare of hopes elysian!

And there are shadows—merciful shadows,
Drooping like balm on the bleeding heart,
When first it knows
That love's flame glows,
Stronger and purer when joys depart!

Then bless the shadows—the beautiful shadows!
And take this thought as thou goest abroad,
That in heaven and earth
Shades owe their birth
To light; and LIGHT IS THE SHADOW OF GOD!

The Richmond South describes the beauties of the English Kansas bill as follows:

It achieves a Congressional recognition of the Lecompton Constituion. It affirms the principles for which the South has contended throughout the struggle. It admits Kansas into the Union as a Slave State, and thus consolidates the victory of 1854. In practice as well as principle, it is now established that no Federal prohibition will avail to restrict the expansion of Pro Slavery power.'

A PIE PREPARATION AND A 'LAST' RESPONSE.—A horticulturist in Lafayette, Ind., advertised that he would supply all sorts of trees and plants, especially 'pie plants of all kinds.' A gentleman thereupon sent him an order for 'one package of custard pie seed, and a few dozen of mince pie plants.' The gardner promptly filled the order by sending him four goose eggs and a small dog.

Old Sir James Herring was remonstrated with for not rising earlier. 'I can make up my mind to it,' said he, 'but I cannot make up my body.'

An Elopement and its Consequences.

The papers some weeks since chronicled the circumstances of the elopement of a man named May with the wife of his neighbor, Mr. McKee, near Weston Missouri; the subsequent divorce of all parties; the suit in Court, brought by Mr. McKee against May, and the recovery of $20,000 damages, all he was worth, which the plaintiff immediately made over to the wife of his seducer of his own, for the support of herself and children. The The Jeffersonian, of Weston, gives the finale, of the matter, as follows:

On Saturday last, May returned to this county with a view of running off his negroes, it was thought; and when his presence was known it created an unusual degree of excitement in the neighborhood, of hich he was once a prominent and conspicuous member. The people assembled in large numbers in that vicinity, and organized a meeting to take a sense of the people. They passed a resolution that May should be notified to leave the neighborhood, and that he must do it in thirty minutes after he received the notice.

The neighbors then started out to scour the neighborhood and find May. Most of them were unlucky in getting upon his track, but Mr. F. M. Bell, an energetic and persevering young man, in company with a man by the name of Barnes, finally struck his trail, and chased him from ten o'clock in the evening until three o'clock in the morning. After a search of four or five hours the most of the company gave up the hunt, but Bell and Barnes stuck to their work. Finally, these two energetic young men came in sight of May, who was well mounted, on a fine, active young horse; but so were his pursuers, who gave chase under whip and spur, over a hard road, and after a mile or two of close running, the pursuers, finding the bottom and speed of their horses about equal, and demonstrating that they could not get any nearer to the well-mounted May, they hailed him three times to stop and surrender, which he refused to do.

Bell and Barnes then opened a fire upon May with Colt's revolvers, firing above him, which May returned gallantly. Finding that he showed fight Bell and Barnes lowered their shots, and two balls having passed through May's hat, he bawled out at the top of his voice that he would surrender, which he did. His horse was soon taken possession of by the Marshal, who will sell it under the execution which he has levied upon his fine estate and personal property, in favor of McKee.

An outraged community gave the destroyer of domestic happiness his life, and turned him loose upon the cold world, packing him off with his saddle as the last vestige of a fine fortune, that has now passed from his passession forever.

☞ Kind words are looked upon like jewels in the breast, never to be forgotten, and perhaps to cheer by their memory, a long, sad life; while words of cruelty, or of carelessness, are like swords in the bosom, wounding and leaving scars which will be borne to the grave by their victim. Do you think there is any bruised heart which bears the mark of such a wound from you? If there is a living one which you have wounded, hasten to heal it, for life is short—to-morrow may be too late.

STRANGE GAME BUT A GREAT SHOT.—We find a paragraph in the Memphis Ledger of April 29th, to the effect that a planter in Texas parish, Louisiana, had killed two negroes and a mule at one shot. The story is not probable, but is accounted for in this way: Having gone into the woods, the planter discovered one of his beef-cattle nearly killed, and suspecting the negroes of a neighbor of having committed the act, he concealed himself near until they should come to skin and cut up the animal. He soon saw two negroes ride up on mules, and getting them in range, he blazed away, instantly killing both negroes and one of the mules.

☞ It is difficult to say which is the greater defect in a parent—strictness and firmness in his family without feeling and affection, or feeling and affection without strictness and firmness. Under the one bad system, the children are apt to become slaves or hypocrites; under the other, tyrants or rebels. But true love is always firm and true firmness is always love.

☞ Never abuse one who was once your bosom friend, however bitter now.

From the Allegan Journal, Monday.

The Safe Robers Discovered.

Since our last, important discoveries have been made by the Vigilance Committee at Otsego, and a clue found to the robbers of the safe from Mr. Fitch's store on Friday evening, week.

Suspicions were first arrested on Otto as one of the perpetrators of the robbery. Accordingly the Vigilance Committee arrested him on Saturday morning, week, at Mr. Fitch's store, where he was lounging about and making inquiries into the Safe Robbery, as if he did not know anything about it This, from the very conspicuous position of the safe to all who visited the store, excited suspicion toward Otto, and he was seized by people, with Benj Eager at its head, put a rope around his neck, took him to a tree, and after throwing one end over a limb, charged him with a knowledge of the robbery, and told him if he had anything to say, to speak at once, or he would be a dead man in five minutes! Otto at once begged for life, and promised a complete confession which he made as follows: He said that a thorough organization existed in that vicinity of a number of men; that they were bound together by an oath, the penalty for the violation of which was death; that Edgar Brundage was Captain of the banditti, assisted by himself, Henry Newton, Jas. Crissney, Jonathan Wasson, and a Mr. Taylor; that they put the safe in the river, and were waiting an opportunity to murder Mr. Fitch, and get the key to the safe, which he carried in his pocket; that they intended soon to murder Albert Foster, for money, and Benj. Eager, for a gold watch, also that they stole the money lost from Mr. Foster's store about a year ago. He stated weekly meetings were held of this band where they formed plans, in an old log house in the woods. On going to the river, the safe was found as he described.

It was taken out, and unlocked, but had not been disturbed. Subsequent to these proceedings, on the same day, (23 inst.,) before the Vigilance Committee complaint was made by H. C. Stoughton and James Fitch, before Justice Edsell, against Wm. Taylor, and Edgar Brundage, Charles Otto, Edgar Brato and Henry Newton, as the parties who committed the burglary and larceny upon Mr. Fich's Grocery on the 21st inst This complaint was made on the strength of the affidavit of William Taylor, one of the prisoners, acknowledging his guilt and complicity with the gang. From which we glean the information that the prisoners were secretly banded together into a secret association known as the 'Sons of Equality.'—the Otsego, in a dease forest.

It was the deliberate plan of the order to make their assaults on those who happen to possess that which would enable them to carry on their nefarious schemes.

Among those who incurred their displeasure was James Fitch, Dan Arnold, Jeremy Drew, Justice Edsell and many others in the County, whom they had sworn to kill and rob. The avails of all their rascality was to be divided equally among the gang.

Otto who was taken to Allegan on Mondey week (in order to escape popular indignation in Otsego) was taken before Justice Littlejohn on Wednesday and committed, to the county Jail until the next term of the Circuit Court. The same action was taken with regard to the other prisoners by Justice Edsell, Horace Mower, of Kalamazoo, and H. C. Stoughton appeared for the prosecution at Otsego, and J. W. Paramore, Esq., for the defence. All but two, (Brundage and Barto,) have plead guilty.

The four prisoners who were tried in Otsego, Taylor, Brundage, Barto, and Newton, were escorted into Allegan on Wednesday by Sheriff W. Higgins, and Esqrs B. F. Eager, J. Drew, B. Ballou, M. S. & H. Higgins, K. W. Mansfield and others all well armed. About 100 armed and well mounted men under command of Col Alex. H. Mason, guarded the escort in case an attempt should be made to release the prisoners.

The breaking up of this gang has produced a great excitement in Otsego, and it is said that other arrests are yet to be made. The gang is supposed to be a branch of the notorious Horse-Thief and Robber Association of Indiana, which have recently been broken up by the citizens of that State. Branches of the Association are said to exist in Pine Grove township in Van Burren county, Watson and Martin in Allen county and Middleville, Barry County, which are all affiliated with the parent Association in Indiana.

Original Poetry.

For the Tecumseh Herald.

"As you like it."

I want a theme—a something new,
To write about—or tribble to;
So wild, and rude, and unconnected,
Its faults could scarcely be detected;
So doubtful as to what is meant,
To blame would be impertinent.
A kind of easy rhyming measure,
That may be changed about at pleasure,
To suit a thicken long the third will,
Or fit a word that's hard to rhyme well,
When with a syllable too many,
The verse would still be good as any.

And as for thoughts—Ah! that's a poser,
'Twere well enough—but dont you know sir,
Or (maybe) for perhaps the fair too,
May read what none again would care to,)
Our lines, with drapery all about them,
Are much more musical without them!
Besides Sir, it is quite the fashion
To count the words, then tack a dash on
To show a want of close connection,
Yet hint, there's room for deep reflection,
And here our verse is guarded double,
For none will ever take the trouble.
But read—till line by line diminished,
The piece is actually finished.

Now gentle reader, if it is you,
Pray do not think I meant to quiz you;
When I began, I was jodiing,
A something that seemed quite inviting,
But ere my muse could get her steam on,
Or I a verse to hitch my dream on,
'Tis true I actually forgot it—
'Twas something good, but this is it.
And now 'tis gone, and I am done.
Most sorry that I did begun.—

Washington, Jun 7th

Good order prevailed everywhere up to noon, to-day, and it was anticipated that the election would pass without serious disturbance. The police were strongly represented and arrangements were made to act efficiently and promptly. Fights of short continuance took place at several of the polls without serious results; but while officer Allen was attempting to arrest a young man named Richard Hurley, he was knocked down with a stone near the 4th Ward poll. Regaining his feet, he fired his revolver—one shot striking Hurley and dangerously wounding him.—Allen then made his escape to the City Hall—a large crowd being in hot pursuit of him when the mounted police arrived and quelled the outbreak. Mayor Magruder did all in his power to pacify the assemblage. In another part of the city a young man by the name of Tretter was wounded in the hand by a stray ball.—Several additional disturbances took place in which stones and pistols were fired; but no one was reported injured. Various false reports of disturbances put the mounted police in motion for the specific localities, and they made during the day a large number of arrests. There is much excitement to-night and the mounted police remain on duty.

11 P. M.—The indications are that Col. Barret is elected mayor by several hundred majority, and that the democrats have a larger number of Councilman than before.

A procession with music has proceeded to the residence of the Mayor elect to offer congratulations.

CONDEMNED SOUTH.—The speculation in Washington's bones, is not approved by the Southern papers. The N O Picayune in speaking of it says:—"There should be some appropriate recognition of this sordid speculation. Nothing occurs to us more fitting, if it were only possible, than that the ladies should make it a further condition, that after the purchase is completed the seller shall formally renounce the name of Washington, and adopt some other for himself. It would only require a bonus of a few thousand to obtain his consent; and there is no Legislature extant that would not pass unanimously and gladly, a law to legalize the change."

Washington, June 7.

House.—The appropriation of $75,000 for the Capitol extension gave rise to a debate, during which Mr. Taylor sought ineffectually to amend it by a proviso that no part of the money should be applied to the interior, painting or decorating of the capitol.

Mr. Marshall of Kentucky, offered an amendment providing that no part of the money be expended for structure and painting unless it be recommended by distinguished artists—three in number, selected by the President; the designs to receive the approbation of the Joint Library Committee.

The Senate amendment, with Mr. Marshall's proviso was agreed to.

The House concurred in the amendment appropriating $11,469 for Maine and $2,215 for Mass., for the satisfaction of claims growing out of the Arroostook War, and for which provision was made in the Ashburton treaty.

TECUMSEH:

THURSDAY, JUNE 10, 1858.

Northern Lenawee Agricultural Society

The annual circular announcing the awards of Premiums and the Constitution and Bye Laws of the Society, and Rules for the next Annual Fair appointed to be held at Tecumseh on Thursday, September 16th 1858, are now published, and ready for distribution at the Secretary's office.

The Judges are appointed for the Towns of Tecumseh, Franklin, Ridgeway, Raisin, Macon and Cambridge, and will all of them participate upon the occasion.

There are every year mistakes and disappointments arising from overlooking until too late, the time prescribed by the Rules and bys-laws of the Society, for making entries of farms, crops, and ornamental and forest trees, for premiums.

Those wishing to make any such entries, will do well to inform themselves of the rules and practice of the Society in this respect, in good time.

The mere drawing of a premium is not by any means the principal advantage derived, even by the successful competitors, from their connection with the Society, and efforts made in said competition. The great variety of experiments in this way made, according to the views of the different competitors, to increase the productiveness of the soil, or perfection of crops, must some of them succeed, and prove a safe guide to future operations of a kindred character. The increased amount of attention and thought thus called out in the ordinary cultivation of crops is also a valuable auxiliary to increase the availability of farming labor, and productiveness of toil bestowed upon the raising of crops.

The rotation of crops is also experimented upon and tested, and also the amount of land which a certain amount of labor can cultivate to the best advantage. Combination to perfect and elevate any profession or employment, if well sustained and persisted in has always been found to be time and money well invested, and in the end effective in producing the desired result.

Our farmers should not come to the fair merely as a gala day, or show, but should before hand act, cultivate and experiment in view of it, and then come prepared each one to add his quota to the articles for exhibition, and also to the general fund of facts and knowledge for general distribution on that occasion.

We call attention thus early to this matter because we have so often been accustomed to hear persons after a fair is over telling what they might have produced, or shown, if they had only attended to it, and regretting that they did not think of it in time.

The Atlantic Monthly.

The Atlantic Magazine for June, has been for some time upon our table—Among its leading articles we notice—"Chesuncook," "Leibnitz," "Loo Loo," concluded, "The Catacombs of Rome," continued and to be continued, (the fellow is determined to write a book any how,) "Crawford and Sculpture," "Asirvadam the Brahmin," "The Autocrat of the Breakfast Table," (always good) and "The Presidents Prophecy of Peace." Published by Phillips Sampson & Co., Boston. Terms $3 per annum.

The Ladies Repository

The June number of the Ladies Repository is promptly received, and always welcome to our table. It is uniformly edited with ability and taste, well sustained by an able corps of contributors, embellished with fine original plate engravings, and of very superior typographical execution. It is justly entitled to the popularity and extensive circulation which it enjoys. D. W. Clark, D D. editor—Swormstedt & Poe, Cincinnati O, Publishers. Terms $2 per annum.

Michigan Journal of Education.

The June number of the Journal of Education, is promptly received. It is worthy a more thorough and efficient patronage than it has ever yet received. No number issues which does not contain much valuable thought and instruction.—Every School District and School Director in the State should see to it that it is at least taken and paid for by their own district. J. M Gregory, editor and proprietor, Ann Arbor Mich. Terms $1 per annum.

INFANTS APPLYING FOR A DIVORCE.—In New York, on Monday, a very amusing petition for a divorce was presented to the Supreme Court, which may be taken as highly illustrative of our age of progress. Edward Ayers, "an infant, aged 14," applied by petition to have a guardian appointed to prosecute a suit for a divorce from his—the petitioner's, not the guardian's—wife. The Judge, having read the papers, inquired how old the interesting defendant lady might be, and was informed she was about sixteen. The Judge then granted the prayer of the petition.

General News.

Washington, June 7.

House.—Mr. Savage, of Tennessee said that, as the friend of Mr. Hughes, in the difficulty between him and Mr. Harris, of Illinois, growing out of the language used during the debate in the Minnesota election case, he had met Mr. Wm H. Polk, the friend of Mr. Harris. They had come to the conclusion that no hostile meeting was necessary, and stated that the matter had been settled, on terms honorable to both gentlemen.

The House passed the bill providing for keeping and disbursing all public documents through the Secretary of the Interior.

On motion of J. Glancey Jones, the House went into committee of the whole on the State of the Union on the Senate's 64 amendments to the miscellaneous appropriation bills.

Senate.—Mr. Hunter, from the finance committee reported a bill making appropriation for carrying the trans-Atlantic mails.

Mr Hunter also introduced a resolution relating to the expenses of the next fiscal year—the purport of which was that the Executive shall instruct the heads of Departments to confine their estimates within the limits of sixty four millions of dollars.

Bills were passed granting pensions to the widows of General Jones and General Gaines.

Considerable discussion followed the proposal of Slidell to limit the pension to their widowhood, which was not agreed to. Toombs, of Ga., bitterly opposed the pensions, while Messrs Davis, Houston, and others, paid warm tribute to the memory of Gaines, and charged a want of gallantry on the part of the Senator.—Mrs. Gaines was in the gallery, and was doubtless edified by the debate.

New Orleans, June 5.

The streets are in a state of immense excitement. The Vigilance committee arrested Lumsden, of the Picayune, and kept him in confinement several hours. He was drunk and disorderly around the Vigilance camp. The Mayor is still at the Vigilance Committee's head quarters. He is afraid for his life if he leaves them. Affairs look very squally. We don't expect the election will take place on Monday. The Mayor has issued a proclamation revoking the power of the Recorder to appoint special police.

The citizens are disgusted with the Mayor's vacillation. The Vigilance committee is still fortifying its position. Lafayette square is still in the possession of the mob, and cannon loaded with grape command all the approaches to the square. The Recorders have appointed 800 special police, among them some of the worst men in the city. They refuse to give up their authority, although it has been revoked by the Mayor, and they have arrested several men who belong to the Vigilance Committee.

The Times' Washington correspondent says: Government will call out the volunteer regiments in a few days. The War Department having no troops at its disposal to keep open the communication between Leavenworth and Camp Scott. A large number of strangers are here of both parties, principally Baltimoreans, and several rows have already taken place to day. Every precaution has been taken against disturbances at election tomorrow.

There is a pretty reliable report that the public printing firm of Steedman, Banks and McLean have sold out the House printing to Wendell, who has also bought out the Senate printing. The terms are not known, but Steedman has gone home with $10,000 in his pocket—probably his share of the proceeds.

The Tribune's correspondence says: Butterfield will start an overland mail California by the Southern route, by Memphis, beginning the first of July.

Student's Column.

The Benefits Derived from the Study of Literature.

The word Literature is here used in its more general sense, excluding all the positive Sciences, and embracing, History, Rhetoric, Logic, &c. The Literature of a country comprises all that has been written and published from time to time in that country.

The "study of literature" is not designed to include the study of all that has been written, for there is much of that which public opinion condemns as unworthy of perusal, but the standard works of approved writers of the past and present. If we will turn our attention to this branch of study, we shall be well repaid by the rich mines of thought and vast stores of knowledge which will be unfolded to our view. To the student of human nature, one who loves to fathom the secret thoughts and feelings of those around him, and trace out their hidden motives of action, the advantages of such a course of study are innumerable. His own personal experience and opportunities of judging character, must of course be limited.—Here he may see the inner life of authors unveiled before him, their views and feelings much more candidly expressed, than they would be in conversation, he may have an opportunity of comparing their life experiences with his own, and greatly enlarging his sphere of observation. Indeed to every mind these benefits are as manifest as they are multitudinous. We may in this way become acquainted with all the distinguished and remarkable personages and events of ancient and modern times. Through their literature we may obtain an accurate and extensive knowledge of all nations and climes, of the manner, customs and people of foreign countries. By becoming familiar with the best productions of our standard writers, those who possess a correct and highly finished style our tastes become cultivated, we gain a more just and critical appreciation of what we read. We learn to use words with correctness and skill, to express our thoughts clearly and forcibly, to introduce illustration and ornament of style, happily and appropriately.

The graver and more solid literature does much to strengthen the reasoning powers, to awaken new ideas, and to teach us to think for ourselves, yet the lighter works should by no means be thrown aside and regarded as of no practical use.—They too, do their part in disciplining the mind, refining the tastes and cultivating the intellect. They strengthen and regulate the imagination which faculty properly diverted is a powerful auxiliary to beauty of style and expression. They call into action the more kindly and benevolent feelings of our natures and give us views of society in all its variations and circumstances.

Every one will acknowledge how greatly we are indebted to Scott for his faithful delineations of Highland life, to Lever, for his characteristic sketches of his countrymen, to Cooper, for his graphic description of frontier life, and to Sam Slick, for his life like portraiture of the shrewd and practical Yankee. The utility of perusing the works of these and like authors can hardly be questioned for through them we obtain a more thorough acquaintance with the human nature in different countries and under different circumstances, than we could elsewhere acquire. But the benefits derived from this interesting study can scarcely be enumerated. The subject is exhaustless as its advantages are innumerable, and will amply reward all the time and labor bestowed.

New York, June 7.

The Washington Union of yesterday gives the substance of several private dispatches from New Orleans. Mayor Waterman has resigned; Samuel H Kennedy a wealthy commission merchant was acting as Mayor under authority of the Vigilance Committee. It was reported that Theodore Hunt and his brother Randell Hunt, with several others had been notified to leave the city or remain at their peril. It was expected that 5 or six of the leading rascals would be executed.

New Orleans, June 7.

On Saturday the Mayor, having his life guaranteed, proceeded to the St. Charles hotel, and met the Council. He was impeached, and H. M. Sumners, President of the Board of Aldermen, was elected in his place. Col. Forno chief of Police was dismissed and Col. Jacques appointed in his place. The old police re-organized under Jacques. Turner & Mussey, reporters, were arrested this morning by the special police, as dangerous characters, but were liberated on parole. Turner was subsequently re-arrested. It is rumored that the Sheriff has seized the ballot boxes. If so there will be no election to day. The streets seem quiet, but no man's life is safe outside of the different barricades. An attack was made on the Vigilance Com., Saturday night. During the confusion, a cannon was accidentally discharged killing four and wounding twelve.

New York Correspondence.

New York, June 8th, 1858.

We used to have a clerk here, E. Merriman of Brooklyn Heights, who took excellent care of the weather, reported every days changes, if there were any; or every week, whether or no; but I learn he 'took sick' last year from exposure to his own weather, and has not been able to attend to the duties of his office since. During the month of May, as the rain deluged down day after day, I indulged the hope that somebody was looking after the weather, at least enough to get up a statistic as to whether it did rain every one of the last thirty one days of what seemed likely to be ah too literally an eternal spring. It is my impression that it did, but I would not by any means offer my mere impression against the unerring observations of science. If there was one day when it didn't rain, why at all events, as the long sufferring Mrs. Claude used to say, "it wanted to, and that is just as bad." If I should see a barometrical statement anywhere that could be relied on, giving assurance that there was one day in that merry month that was not watered with the tears of the weeping clouds I will immediately inform you. June, however, opens warm and bright—that is compensation.

The oldest inhabitants here have been greatly annoyed and broken of their rest now for two Sunday mornings on account of a very singular and unexpected cause of disturbance—no less than the crumble, and crash and dissolution of a very venerable New York institution, one of the oldest established, so that the memory of man runneth not back to the time when it did not flourish and make itself heard in the land. Thorough bred New Yorkers had long been accustomed to the extra noise and roar and rattle of every seventh morning, and had come to receive as a specially soothing lullaby the yells of milkmen and the cries of a chorus of newsboys, melodized and modulated on every key of the scale, in delightful accord with the invariable refrain;—"ere's the Sunday 'Erald, Times, Mercury, Dispatch, Sunday Courie-e-e-er!" But a fortnight since since a paper bull, commanding that all bellowings over cows milk or its swill distilled imimitation should cease immediately; and also if the aforesaid swill was not a sufficient gag in their mouths, one, more effectual still, should be applied to all the news boys, for the purpose of stopping all this "windy suspiration of forced breath," to spread the sale of Sunday literature.—'Twas done, and the milkmen and news boys have been compelled to 'dry up;" and the consequent quietness, expressive silence and Sabbath stillness have operated upon Sunday morning snoozers, like the sudden stopping of a saw mill, or an express train at its night stations—to wake up all the sleepers. We expect, however, to recover very soon from the sonorous abstraction and be able to take deeper refuge than ever, in our Sunday morning nap caps; unless, it may be, a few must be excepted who have become so accustomed to the lulling stimulant as to be thrown into a sort of delirium dreamens. But even they will recover and sleep the better in time.—The effect on the Sunday papers themselves remains to be seen. Some of them are belligerent; but the Dispatch, [illegible] reputable of the brood, yields to the new order of things and publishes its edition on Saturday afternoon.

The celebrated Barnum is on his legs again. The Jerome clock dems which wound him up so effectually two or three years ago, have now run down, and the hour has struck which starts him out on a new career of speculation and tick. The best business he ever did in the showman line was his concert expedition through the U. S. with Jenny Lind—so now his first post bankrupt enterprise takes a musical turn, and he proposes to bring to New York next fall the entire Grand Opera and Ballet companies of her Majesty's Theatre, London, consisting of 148 persons, accompanied by its celebrated lessee and director, Mr. Lumley. The enterprise involves an outlay of more than $300,000, and as some guarantee that sufficient patronage will be extended to him to ensure him against loss the subscriptions for 800 seats, at $100 per seat for twenty nights are opened at once and will close on the 10th of June. I understand that more than half the seats have been taken already; so no doubt we shall have an opportunity to see and hear the same Royal Opera which so delights her Majesty of England, and part with three quarters or a million of our dollars in payment for the luxury.

The swill milk agitation continues and is inducing some action in official circles. Half a dozen Aldermen and Councilmen constituting a committee from the Board of Health, whirled away up town in corporation carriages one day last week on a visit to the distillery stables. This movement comes rather late, since the public exposure of every dealer and purchaser had pretty much put a stop to the traffic, and the proprietors had killed and sold off the weakliest of the cows, demolished the worst portion of the stables and whitewashed the rest. The reporters were not invited by the committee, yet with that infallible scent for news, even if afar off, which characterizes that department of the "Press-gang," they smelt out the expedition and were on hand after "Items" like eagles after carcasses. They formed an independent committee on the part of the people, who could not be bribed, and who reported at once through the press to the great public all the facts in the case, so that every reader can know judge for himself as to the guilt or innocence of our disinterested dairymen. The other committee, however, must go through all the windings of the circumlocution office before they can afford us the faintest glimmer from lantern. They took specimen bottles of the different styles of milk, known as "stump tail," "half tail" and "long tail;" also a specimen of the swill feed, which, they will submit to a circumlocution chemist for examination. When they get his conclusions, they will "set" like a committee of geese, two or three weeks on the investigation and finally hatch out a "report" that will 'cackle-ate nobody's to blame" and give the late whitewashing an official coat which will plaster the whole thing over, and, as far as legal sanction can do it, allow the poisoners to pursue still longer their death-dealing career. The press and public opinion, however, will see to it that they do not.

MISAPPREHENSION CORRECTED.

The success which has attended the special treatment of affections of the Throat and Lungs, introduced by Dr. ROBT. HUNTER, of New York, whose practical writing on the Respiratory Organs, and the rational system of inhalation have been so recently published, leads many persons to apply for "Agencies," as if 'Inhilation' consisted of some 'particular nostrum.' Such a misapprehension is calculated grossly to mislead the public; and Dr. Hunter therefore feels it to be due to himself and to the practice of Inhilation with which his name and reputation are identified to state again, that "Inhalation," as advocated by him is a SYSTEM OF TREATMENT based on a correct knowledge of the condition of the patient, and cannot therefore be a subject for Agencies.

All persons desireing to consult or come under treatment, must apply personally or by letter to him, or his associate, Dr. H. MELVILLE, when the fullest information regarding the treatment will be given, either to patients themselves or to physicians consulting on their cases without charge.

Those who are desirous of consulting may address either R. HUNTER, M. D., or Drs. HUNTER & MELVILLE, 828 Broadway, N. Y. May, 1858.

DO YOU EVER

WANT ANY THING
FROM NEW YORK
IF SO, SEND YOUR ORDER TO
F. S. CABOT & CO.
BUYERS, 83 BARCLAY STREET

Almost every one, certainly every merchant sometimes very strongly wished that he had a correspondent and friend in this great city to whom he could send for the transaction of some business or the purchase of some article he could not make it convenient to go to the store do, or to buy himself, with full confidence that his business would be well done, and at a reasonable expense to him. Having become satisfied by a considerably extended observation and experience that there is an almost universal want, we have established a house to supply it. We have found that those persons from Maine to Georgia are constantly writing to us to execute orders, involving purchases to the amount from 25 cents to as many hundred dollars, and we believe in every case, those employing us have been satisfied both with the quality of the goods received and the equity of our charges. We believe that our charges, small in all cases to be sure, are reasonable, being predicated on the time and labor required. It is certain, that being constantly in the market buying largely for cash, we can our selves buy every article we deal in, for less money than any single purchaser can. In fact, we save to our customers much more in prices than the commission we charge. No man, who only occasionally comes into New York, can be familiar with a market so extensive and complicated as theirs all the time, are thoroughly acquainted with it, and know where to go to find everything in the best manner and at the lowest rates. We have found that many of our distant friends wish to send us country produce to sell, sometimes the proceeds to be invested in goods, sometimes in money. Accordingly we have made very liberal arrangements to enable us to do business for those who may consign to us. Our charges for selling are a usually five per cent, although in some instances of very large or very small transactions, more or less is required to be varied from that. We have commenced giving more at length the scope and plan of our business with a statement of one class of articles we have most of the leading articles, which will be sent on application.

Letters of inquiry only should contain stamps to prepay the replies.

Local and Miscellaneous.

☞ Anderson is receiving his New Goods.

☞ Mr. Charles Davenport of Macon has his Tickets for the 4th.—Music by Luther, Smith, Hulbert & Jerry. Bill $2. Mr. D. is building a very large Hotel, on the Ridge Road, which will be compited by the 4th of July. His ball room is 60 by 30 feet, and 16 feet high. We hope the dancing community will give Charles a "bumper."

☞ Morenci is the only village that celebrates the coming 4th in Lenawee Co. Friend Dewey says a Good time may be expected.

W. A. King.—We feel it to be due alike to the unassuming merit of the artist, and to the good taste and interest of the public, to invite them to visit his studio and examine for themselves the evidences of his skill and talent which he is constantly multiplying about him. Those wishing to ornament their rooms with oil paintings crayon or monochromatic copies of the finest specimines of art cannot do better than to send in their orders to R., who will uniformly be found at his rooms, at Bidwells' Block, second floor, corner of Chicago & Rail Road streets, Tecumseh.

Go and see that Engine.—There is on exhibition at the Tecumseh Steam Engine Works, of Anderson & Brewer, a beautiful Engine, which was built to the order of the Terra Haute & Alton Rail Road and intended to drive their machinery, at the "Litchfield shop" of the said Road. The dimentions of this Engine are as follows; 16 inch cylender, 30 inch stroke, and is 80 horse power, length of bed 16 feet, the whole weighing 5 tons We venture to say this one of the largest and best finished Engines ever built in Michigan. This shop is prepared to execute work equal to anything in the West. It is commodious, well filled with the latest style of machinery, and a "Tip-top" mechanic at every bench. At the head of this establishment, will be found two energetic, go-ahead, mechanics, (Anderson & Brewer) who have by industry and economy made their shop the pride of our village, and are rapidly gaining the reputation abroad which they truly deserve. We noticed while at the shop, nine other cylenders of different sizes, which led us to believe that nine other Engines are to be shipped some time during the summer by the S. M. & N. I. R. R. in quest of from twelve hundred to three thousand dollars. See advertisement in another column.

Two Cents a Line.—We received the first chapter of a story, which is concluded in the New York paper, with the request to publish it as selected matter and charge two cts. per line. Now we are in want of advertisements, but will not trespass upon our reading matter short of 25 cts. a line. The probability is we shall not receive any more of this style of advertisements, as our price is 23 cts above a great number of our exchanges.

The State Loan Taken.—The State Loan of $216,000 provided for by the Extra Session of the Legislature of this State, has all been taken by Messrs. E. M. Hazleton & Co. Bankers of this city. The rates at which it was taken were $50,000 01 & 1¼ $75,000 & 1,01 1,10 and $91,000 & 1.01 1-16. As was expected, the State has been enabled to negotiate this loan at a premium which permanently secures the tax-payer against any additional burden on its account—We would further express our satisfaction that this loss has been taken by one of our own banking firms, who, familiar with the operations of our State government, pay the Administration this substantial compliment.—Det. Tribune.

☞ New flour from the wheat crop of 1858, grown at Charleston, S. C., has been received in New York, and sold at $9 per barrel.

☞ Look out for the freshet.

Apportionment of School Money's.

The Superintendent of Public Instruction has just completed the apportionment of the Primary School Interest moneys for the year 1858, based upon the returns for 1857.

In consequence of the financial embarassment which is so widely felt throughout the State and country, there are usual deficiencies in the amount of interest received into the Treasury; still the amount is somewhat greater than was apportioned last year. But the number of children upon which the apportionment is based being nearly thirteen thousand more this year than last, the apportionment just made, gives only 50 cents to the scholar, while last year 53 cents were received on the scholar.

It will be seen that the counties having the greatest number of children stand in the following order: Wayne, Lenawee, Oakland, Washtenaw, Calhoun, Kent, Hillsdale, Jackson. No other counties return over 8,000 children,

☞ At this time of the year, says the Niles Republican, cows will eat too much fresh grass or weeds, causing them to have the cholic and bloat up and finally die.—A half pint of soft soap, with a pint of sweet milk, thoroughly shook up, and turned down a cow, will relieve her in fifteen minutes. This is also excellent for a cow that has a fevered bag and gives clotted milk.

☞ The remains of Henry William Herbert, (Frank Forrester) were interred in Mount Pleasant Cemetry, Newark, N. J., on Wednesday afternoon. A great many people assembled at the "Cedars" his late residence, where it was expected that funeral ceremonies would take place, but the clergyman present declared that the rules of his (Episcopalian) church forbade him to read the ritual over a suicide, and the body was buried without the usual ceremonies.

☞ It is better to sow a young heart with generous thoughts and deeds than a field with corn, since the heart's harvest is perpetual.

Macomb County Bank.—The notes of this bank were thrown out by our Banks and Brokers, and refused by our business men to-day. There is something wrong in its management, and, until its managers place proper securities in the hands of proper officers, our advice to the public is to have nothing to do with it hereafter.—Detroit Tribune.

Golden Wedding.—At Monroe, on Thursday last, the golden wedding of Michael and Catharine Lauer was celebrated, that being the fiftieth anniversary of their wedding. The Commercial states that the ceremonies commenced at nine o'clock in the morning, at the German Catholic Church, and were concluded at the residence of Joseph Lang. A band of music and a large concourse of citizens accompanied the aged couple from the Church to the dwelling. The parties have been married fifty years, and have, living in Monroe, seven children, twenty-seven grand-children, and three great grand-children.

☞ The Illinois papers are making bitter complaint of the drmage done by the rainy weather. The wheat crop is represented to be seriously injured.
